THE MAYORALTY CONTEST WAS REMARKABLY CLOSE

Alderman Vermilyea and Mr. George I. Thomas Had the Closest Run in Belleville's History—The Former Squeezed in by Narrow Majority of 4—Bylaw for Ten Aldermen Carried by More than Two to One—Aldermen and School Elections—Figures of the Polling in the Various Wards

The most sanguine supporters of Ald. Vermilyea and ex-Ald. Thomas, who yesterday were candidates for the position of Chief Magistrate of the city for 1912, did not anticipate that the result of the voting would be so close as it proved to be. Although it was New Year's Day and a holiday, there were 181 less votes polled than were recorded a year ago, when Mayor Ackerman and G. I. Thomas were candidates, although many votes had been in the interim added to the list. Yesterday 1,494 votes were recorded for the Mayoralty candidates, of which Ald. Vermilyea received 749, and ex-Ald. Thomas 745, a majority of 4 for the former. The result was so close that it required the official figures from the Deputy Returning Officers to determine who had been elected. The fact that there was but one ward in the city in which an aldermanic contest was in progress no doubt had something to do with the lightness of the vote. Coleman Ward was the exception. There was a spirited contest there, not only for alderman, but for the election of a Public School trustee. In No. 9 division of Bleecker Ward only 43 votes were polled for the Mayoralty candidates. In Foster, Baldwin, Bleecker and Coleman Wards ex-Ald. Thomas secured a majority and in Samson, Ketcheson and Murney Wards the successful candidate was strongly supported.

It was anticipated that the by-law to return to the system of electing ten aldermen by the votes of the whole city, instead of having the ward system as at present, would be carried, but not by so decisive a majority as it was. The vote for the by-law was 1,100, and against it 416 voted were registered, leaving a majority of 684 in its favor. In every polling subdivision in the city but one, namely, No. 10 Coleman Ward, a majority was recorded on behalf of the by-law.

MAYORALTY FIGURES.

The votes recorded for the Mayoralty candidates in the various polling subdivisions of the city were as follows:

For purposes of comparison last year's figures are placed opposite those for this year.

ALDERMANIC CONTEST.

In Coleman Ward there was a contest for alderman, four candidates being in the race. The result was as follows:—

| | No. 11. | No. 10. | Ttl. |
|---|---|---|---|
| R. P. White | 80 | 135 | 215 |
| F. Slater | 76 | 116 | 192 |
| R. Bogle | 59 | 81 | 140 |
| J. A. Roblin | 31 | 43 | 74 |

SCHOOL TRUSTEE.

Contests for Public School Trustees took place in Coleman and Baldwin Wards, resulting as follows:—

| Coleman Ward— | No. 10. | No. 11. | Ttl. |
|---|---|---|---|
| S. T. Harris | 110 | 64 | 174 |
| C. Greenleaf | 48 | 23 | 71 |
| Majority for Harris | | | 103 |

In Bleecker Ward Messrs. J. B. Ives and H. W. Wrightmyer were the candidates, the former being victorious. The vote was as follows:—

| Bleecker Ward— | No. 8. | No. 9. | Ttl. |
|---|---|---|---|
| J. B. Ives | 56 | 28 | 84 |
| H. W. Wrightmyer | 22 | 9 | 31 |
| Majority for Ives | | | 53 |

AFTER THE VERDICT.

As soon as it was possible for City Clerk Mikel to obtain the official figures from the various sub-divisions, he announced the result to the electors who had gathered in the City Hall, and who received it with approval. Brief speech making was then the order of the day.

Mayor Ackerman was chosen chairman. He wished to thank the electors for the kindness shown him last year by electing him as Mayor. He was retiring from office, and while doing so wished every prosperity for the city.

Mayor-elect Vermilyea was cordially received upon rising to speak. He felt grateful to the electors for having elected him as Mayor, although the majority was not large. The vote in the city was not as large as usual. In the campaign which had just closed nothing of an unkind nature had been said by either of the candidates. It had been a clean fight without personalities. His course in the Council for seven years was known. He had always did what he could for the city's interests and would continue to do so. He referred to the building operations in the city during the past year and felt confident that this year the city would go ahead. The paving of Front Street would no doubt be done and other important matters attended to. With the C.N.O.R. in the city and the prospects of the C.P.R. coming here this year, Belleville should go ahead and grow. In conclusion, he wished all a Happy New Year.

Alderman-elect Slater thanked the electors of Coleman Ward for having elected him as one of their representatives. He would do all he could for the advancement of the city. He spoke of the necessity of paving Front Street and the making of other necessary improvements for the city's advancement.

After Ald. Sills had spoken a few words of a congratulatory nature the meeting closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

ELECTION NOTES.

The Mayoralty contest was run on very thin ice.

Mr. Vermilyea's majority of 4 is just equal to the Liberal increase in the Legislative Assembly—very effective—quite equal to the first scale on the piano where beginners count one, two, three, four.

If the incoming Mayor lives up to his advertised platform he will perform some good work.

There is some talk of a recount of ballots in the Mayoralty contest.

Two Conservatives were elected as aldermen for Coleman Ward.

MARRIED

STAFFORD—PHILLIPS—Married on January 1st, 1912, by the Rev. Geo. Ross Beamish, at the residence of the bride's father, 220 Charles street, Annie E. Phillips, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Phillips, to Roy G. Stafford, only son of the late W. H. Stafford, of this city.

Brisk Blaze at Huntsville.

Huntsville, Ont., Dec. 30.—Fire yesterday morning destroyed the entire building, general stock and household effects of M. Wardell & Son. The Kent House, adjoining is very badly damaged, and the loss is heavy.

The fire broke out about 5.45 o'clock in the rear of Wardell's store and within fifteen minutes the whole block was in flames. The greatest difficulty was experienced in getting the inmates to a place of safety. Mrs. Wardel and other members of the family were removed in their night robes from the upper windows. Damage by fire and water to the contents of the Kent House will amount to thousands of dollars. The loss is divided among a number of insurance companies.

Pineapple Cream

Pineapple cream is a delicious sweet for the hot weather. Required one tin of pineapple, half an ounce of isinglass, two ounces of lump sugar, and half a pint of thick cream. Put half a pint of the syrup or the pineapple into a saucepan (if there is not that quantity make it up with water.) Chop up two-thirds of the pineapple, being careful to remove any skin. Add the chopped-up pineapple and sugar for eight minutes; then add the isinglass that has been previously dissolved in a little hot water; allow all to boil gently for five minutes, and pour the mixture into a bowl. When it is cold and beginning to set whisk in the cream and beat all together until it is a thick creamy mass. Pour into a wet mould, and leave it aside until set and quite firm. Turn on to a glass dish and arrange the remainder of the pineapple around it cut into small chunks.

The Rain Complexion Cure

There are two beautiful women, well known in Irish society, says a lady writer, who frankly declare "the rain cure" to be the sole cause of their exquisite skins being always in perfect condition. Every woman can take the "rain cure" if she wills. Put on a pair of strong shoes, a waterproof, a simple tweed hat, but no veil, and let the fresh soft water reach the skin. Then, on coming in, rub briskly with a soft towel, sit down in a warm but not heated room, and rest all the facial muscles, and you will be astonished at the result. Of course, damp clothing will have been removed previous to this.

Some of the new parasols are edged with narrow ostrich feathers, and have a big bow of ribbon on the handle, also edged with feathers.

For a satin slipper nothing is so effective as a small round buckle of rhinestone through which is inserted a satin or velvet ribbon.

Curls and puffs are used in profusion and quantities of false hair are still absolutely necessary. Infantile styles prevail — quite babyish, in fact.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Intelligencer fought the Ward System, and fought it to a finish.

Belleville never prospered so much in any one year in the history of the municipality as it did during 1911.

Congratulations to the Grand Trunk employees on the increase in their pay, which has been secured by agreement with the company.

It looks as if the Asquith Government may be defeated on the question of home rule for Ireland, as was the Gladstone Government several years ago.

Local option has been defeated in the four municipalities in this county. It was, however, carried in 13 other places, making a net reduction of 23 bars. Abolition of bars is looking up.

The fact that some of the most useful members of the 1911 City Council refused to seek seats in that legislative body has met the approval of the electors, as evidenced by the large majority polled against the cumbersome Ward Systm. The electors made a mistake when they voted to return to the Ward System. They have realized it and rectified it.

A young lady in Ottawa wanted to have white hands, so one day she asked a cynical guest for a recipe. "Soak them in dish water three times a day," was the reply. The girl left the piano, and sticking her head into the kitchen said: "Ma, I wish you would save the dishwater when you get through."—Kansas City Journal.

In another column will be found a communication from Mr. Thomas Ritchie on the subject of amendments to the Children's Protection Act. Mr. Ritchie's suggestions, because of his prominent connection with the work, and the deep interest which he has taken in it, are worthy of the careful consideration of all concerned, and we commend them to the attention of the provincial authorities.

It has been suggested that if Mr. Thomas makes another attempt for the Mayor's chair and succeeds in reducing the majority polled against him in the same proportion as he did in the last contest, he may succeed. In 1911 the majority polled against him was NINE; in 1912 that majority was reduced to FOUR. If he reduce the majority in 1913 in the same proportion he will be elected by a majority of ONE!

Twenty-five hundred and seventy-four vessels of all kinds passed through the Welland Canal, up and down, breaking the record of the previous year in the history of the canal. The lockages total nearly 400 more than last season. Perhaps fifty million bushels of wheat was brought down through the canal during the season. The fastest trip from one end to the other was made by the City of Montreal, which took just nine hours and twenty minutes to go through.

It will be necessary, if we are not to suffer from the lack of a first-class waterway, that steps be taken to get the Bay of Quinte from Telegraph Light up to Belleville, and the Murray Canal throughout its length, deepened to an extent that will make it possible for the large lake freighters to pass through with full cargoes. In effecting this much needed improvement we can co-operate with Belleville to our mutual advantage. It is a matter that merits serious consideration just as early in the year as it can be dealt with.—Trenton Courier.

It is very amusing to not some of the answers given on the recent literature examinations held at the public schools in the city. On the literature paper in one of the schools, the question was asked: "What is a hill?" An answer from one pupil was: "A hill is a field with its back up." Two amusing answers were received to the following question: "In how many conditions can water exist?" One pupil said three and gave them as running, dropping and standing still. Another more brilliant said four—ice, rain, slush, and just plain.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Nowhere is a joke enjoyed more appreciatively than in a newspaper office, particularly if it be a good one. For instance, on Saturday a communication was received at the office of The Intelligencer, one of the subheadings of which read: "Novel device to make hens expert accountants." In answer to an inquiry what this could mean, one of the linotype operators wittily suggested that probably they would be sent to O.B.C. in order that they might be taught to count their chickens before they are hatched. To which another member of the staff added that Mr. J. W. Johnson, F.C.A., would in such case be "cock of the walk."

The lack of interest in city affairs resulted in not a sufficient number of gentlemen seeking seats in the City Council. This should not be. There are now four vacancies to fill: two for Samson Ward, one for Bleecker Ward, and one for Ketcheson Ward. Let us express the hope that some gentlemen having enough interest in the government of the city will sacrifice themselves for one year at least.

AMUSEMENTS

THE THEATRICAL TIP.

So many people complain of being "stung" by schows. Now, this is not the fault of the manager, Mr. Griffin, nor the fault of the local manager, Mr. Malone, who must take what is given them by the Toronto booking agents. The next attraction "The Chorus Lady" by Jas. Forbes, cannot fail to please, for various reasons: the first being that its merits as a striking novelty and finely constructed comedy-drama more than pleased the big city of New York for more than a year. The star, Rose Stahl, who played the piece in New York, of course is not with the company which will visit Belleville, but the lady who portrays the ever-joyful and deliciously droll queen of slang, Patricia O'Brien, is, I have been told, a worthy successor. The reason for the great success of the piece in New York was not wholly due to Rose Stahl's acting, for the play itself undoubtedly made Rose Stahl both in New York and London. It appeals because it exploits a side of life never before so adequately shown upon the stage—strange to say, stage life itself. Undoubtedly the comedy will be a little different from anything ever seen here before. As for the company, I cannot speak with authority, so don't blame me if you may be disappointed. After all, the play itself, aside from everything else, is one which true lovers of the best in stage art and those who like a good, hearty legitimate laugh (with a tear in it, for it has its pathetic side) cannot afford to miss.

NAVAL SECRETS

Every Workman Employed on a New Warship aHs to Take An Oath That He Will Reveal Nothing He Sees.

The recent appointment of Mr. Winston Churchill to be head of the Admiralty recalls the fact that there is no more jealously-guarded department than that over which he now holds away. The head of the Navy is the most reticent man in the Cabinet — when question time comes round. Whenever an answer is given you may be quite sure that it doesn't give very much away.

All new ships are built with the greatest possible secrecy. To begin with, every man who is employed, in whatever capacity, on a new warship has to take an oath that he will never reveal anything he may learn. No outsider is allowed anywhere near the building yards. When the first Dreadnought was being built, for instance, the great vessel was guarded so jealously that no one, save those actually employed on her, were allowed within forty yards. To show how strictly this order war carried out, two post-captains of the Navy, in uniform, were turned back by the police and private detectives on guard.

The actual plans of a new battleship are the most carefully guarded of all the Admiralty's secrets. They are kept in rooms which rival any strong-rooms of a bank. The draughtsmen never have the whole plans in their possession. Parts are given out at a time to different men, and every draughtsman is carefully watched in order that he can take no copy of the part of the plan in front of him. So well are the complete plans divided up that even if three or four men agreed to act together they would be unable to find out much about Britain's latest Dreadnought. Whenever any portion of the plans goes out of the strong-room its movements are as carefully watched and checked as those of the keys of the room.

When the German Emperor visited Gibraltar a few years ago the greatest precautions were quietly taken, in the politest possible way, to prevent members of the Kaiser's suite seeing too much. Sentries were placed at all sorts of odd corners on board all the men-of-war. Every part of the vessels was carefully guarded, and more than one German officer who had 'wandered" below was politely shown the way up to deck again.

After a man has paid all his Christmas bills it's only natural for him to want to turn over a new leaf.

A CONTRADICTION

The Case of the Fox is a Curious Contradiction — He Exists Solely by Reason of Persecution.

The position of the fox is a curious one — he exists solely by reason of persecution. Once let humanitarians step in and put an end to the cruel treatment the fox receives and he must cease to exist.

At present a huge sum is spent every year for the apparent purpose of exterminating canis vulpes, yet an outcry is raised if a single death save by orthodox means occurs. A fox is "vermin," yet he is more carefully protected than most game, and, save in the hunting season, his person is sacred.

True the naturalist, interested in one of the last wild beasts existing in England, tries to make out as good a case for him as he can. He points out with perfect truth that foxes kill rats, when they come across them, and that they eat worms and beetles upon occasion.

Should the gamekeeper be forced to admit this he will promptly give a further list of more dainty fare to which the fox has a leaning, while the poultry fancier will have a tale to tell of thousands of really valuable birds which foxes have accounted for. The culprit's champion may say that such birds should have been better protected, but if he does he will only bring down further wrath, since, alas, it is solely to protect his birds from foxes that many a fancier has to spend money he can ill afford.

Farmers have also a good deal to say on the subject, for it is not an uncommon thing for young lambs to be taken by these pests, while in the West of Ireland pony foals are occasionally pulled down by them.

Cream one-fourth cup of butter, add one-half cup of sugar slowly, and continue beating. Add the yolks of five eggs, beaten until thick and lemon coloured, and one teaspoon of orange extract. Mix and sift seven-eighths cup of pastry flour with one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, and add alternately with one-fourth cup of milk to the first mixture. Bake in a buttered and floured tin.

PUGS MUST GO WEST

California Only Place Left for Mit Artists.

According to Harry B. Smith, the San Francisco sporting writer, California promises to again become the boxing headquarters of the world and there is a possibility that some big matches will be staged on the Coast during the next few months. Of course, Hugh McIntosh has a number of the big fellows out in Australia, but the lightweights, featherweights and bantams will have a chance to make some money out San Francisco way. Smith figures that with New York off the pugilistic map there remains nothing for the boxers of the country but the West, and the West means San Francisco and Los Angeles. Ad. ### PARDONABLE QUACKERY

How a Physician Had to Fake to Cure

As a doctor, one of the English heroes who assisted in the defence of Kars, had special opportunities of studying the habits and character of the degraded races of Asia Minor. He found it necessary to be more of a quack than a physician among them. "As my patients became numerous and pestered me at all hours, I fitted up," he tells us, "a spare tent to serve as my dispensary, and gave out that I received at the time of afternon prayer (ikinsar). I took my seat at the door of my tent, and soon had a crowd around me, many suffering from real diseases, many from imaginary ones, and many bringing for my inspection the effects of diseases such as palsied limbs and stiff points." One of his patients was an old woman, who came forward, and taking hold of the corner of his cloak, kissed it, and then, kneeling before him, began, in a very wheedling manner, to call his attention to her case. "She went on to describe the most anomalous symptoms, affecting her eyes, ears, limbs, and sometimes every part of her. On further inquiry, she confessed to be quite well at that moment; but a year ago, having had these strange complaints, she dreaded the same thing would invade her this year. I then promised to give her strong medicine, but ordered the crowd to stand at a short distance from us. A space is cleared, and all wait in silent admiration for my remedy. I slowly draw forth a bottle of strong liquor of ammonia, or smelling-salts, from my medicine-chest, and, holding it before my patients eyes, tell her to draw in a strong breath when I put it to her nose. I acordingly first hold her nostrils, then, having removed the stopper, I apply the mouth of the bottle to the nose, the fingers are removed, a long sniff is taken, followed by a sort of spasm, and she fails to the ground. A hum of horror runs through the crowd; the patient, after a short interval, rises, her eyes streaming with tears; and then breaks from the crowd, 'La Ilaha Illa 'Ilaha Mahommed rasulu 'Ilah!' — 'There is no God but the God, and Mahomed is the Apostle of God!'"

A lot of us couldn't stand prosperity if we had it.

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

"I want to hold Tahen and his entourage of mild-eyed cutthroats until I put Burke through; they're my best witnesses. We can't hang the rascal, but we have an excellent case against him for burglary, attempted swindling, and attempted blackmail. After I find the ruby you can do the bargaining."

He agreed to this. After a bit he favored me with a quizzical regard.

"I don't mind explaining that ring episode— now," he said, in response to my look of inquiry. "When you first pointed out the true import of the wax impression on the candlestick, it brought to my mind at once Fluette's capricious notion of wearing a ring on the middle finger of his right hand. I was keeping tab on you the day of the inquest. I knew that he was going to attend, and that the circumstance would be of considerable significance to you. I saw your look dart to his right hand—saw you watching him—"

"And you thought you'd confuse me, eh?"

"Exactly. When you saw the ring on his finger only, the circumstance was pregnant—portentous. When you had two rings on two right hands, why, you were puzzled, but the effect was scattering and weak."

I approached Mr. Fluette with an enthusiasm decidedly tempered, and so I was not as disappointed as I might have been. My good news seemed to produce not the slightest effect upon him. He appeared to have aged twenty years; and from that day until his death, which occurred only four months later, he remained melancholy and without interest in anything whatever.

However, I was placed in the most embarrassing position that I ever experienced in my life. Before explanations were half made, Miss Belle flew at me—I'm not attempting a pun, either—with a glad, impetuous cry, threw her arms around my neck, and, drawing herself to her tiptoes—kissed me! I had been far more at ease under her levelled revolver.

In the afternoon Genevieve and I repaired to the old Page place. She was so confident that she could find the originals of the designs on the cipher, that I was anxious to give her the chance. Besides, she was afraid to go alone, and I simply had to accompany her. Belle could not without Maillot tagging along, and—well, we didn't want anybody else.

First of all, Genevieve had to be shown the rent made by the candlestick in the railing of the balustrade. She placed the tip of one little finger in the depression, and drew back with a shudder.

"Let's go," she said, in a hushed voice. "I never expect to come up these stairs again. Let's find the daisies, and go."

She understood as well as I did that Felix Page must have sustituted the stones somewhere between the library table and the hidden safe in his bedroom. She proposed to start at the table and examine every object, if necessary, between the two points mentioned.

Our progress was slow until we reached the bedroom. Genevieve drew to an abrupt halt on the threshold.

"There was a table there, by the head of the bed," she said; "where is it?"

"Lying on its side in that corner"—I pointed. "It was hurled there last Friday night, when the dwarf surprised Burke here."

She went over to it, while I raised the blinds. Instantly she recoiled with a cry, and then in a flash was fairly wild with excitement.

"Knowles, Knowles!" she screamed. "Here they are!"

And sure enough, there they were—the brass tacks with which the artison. Their heads were ornamental, with just such crenellated edges as might have prompted the circular figures at each end of the cipher.

I stared at them in stupified silence. The row of gleaming tacks staggered me. How many times had I lingered by that table while I racked my brain to remember where I had seen the peculiar figure! Why, once I even had paused and drawn the design in the dust on the leather cover! What a dunce—how blind I had been!

The cipher was not difficult to read now. At once I recalled Burke's shadow on the blind; he had been bending over this table, and the agile movements of his hands were no longer mysterious. He, too, had some knowledge of the cipher, and he had been rapidly running over the tack-heads, hunting for the combination that would reveal a concealed compartment.

After a while we grew rational again. I got out the cipher, and once more Genevieve and I put our heads together over it. Here it is; you may follow us while we dig it out:

"If you remember," I said presently, "I told you that very likely it would have to be interpreted in connection with something not on the paper. Count the tacks along the front edge."

There were nineteen of them.

"Counting from either end," I went on, "the centre tack will be ten. It's as simple as A-B-C. That's our starting-point from which to find the others. Find the fourth one to the right of the centre tack—number ten."

She placed the tip of one forefinger upon it—a bit gingerly, I smiled to see.

"Why, it gives!" she announced in surprise.

"I'd be terribly cut up if it didn't," said I. "Now, then, the eleventh to This carried her to the third one around the side; number thirteen was the fifth on the left side, while number five was on the front edge, seventeen the ninth on the right side, of course, close to the centre. Each of them yielded a trifle beneath her [illegible] number five. Here she drew [illegible] and clasped her hands tightly [illegible].

"Oh, I can't!" [illegible] excitedly. "I'm just so nerv[illegible] I can't put my finger upon [illegible] do it." That's the last o[illegible]

"Nonsense!" s[illegible] you don't find the ruby, it [illegible] be found.

At last with shining eyes and parted lips, the litt[illegible] went slowly down upon the [illegible] tackhead. She screwed up her [illegible] closed her lips tightly, as [illegible] feared something would ex[illegible] pushed with all her might, [illegible] tack gave; but nothing else h[illegible].

We stared [illegible] table, our faces long with disappointment; then we looked at each other in unspoken questioning. Genevieve's expression was so woe-begone that I laughed. The nerve-racking suspense was broken.

"How silly!" she exclaimed. "There!"

With a quick movement, she bore down upon the centre tack—number ten—and lo! a section of the table edge flew outward, disclosing an aperture perhaps six inches long and a quarter of an inch wide. It was very much like the slit in a door for letters.

But there was no ruby yet, nor any aperture large enough to accommodate the one for which we were looking. I leaned over with a puzzled scowl and peered into the slit.

"There's a folded paper in there," I announced. My fingers were too large to force into the opening, and Genevieve promptly produced a hat-pin. Next moment we had the paper out—or papers, for there were three sheets folded together.

Across the back, written in Felix Page's small cramped hand, was this inscription:

Memorandum of Agreement between Felix Page
and Cristofano Paternotro, Michele Paterpostro and Filippo Paternostro.

(To be Continued.)

NEW YEAR HONORS.

Premier of Canada Is Made Member of Privy Council.

London, Jan. 2.—The New Year's honor list this year is a short one, as a result of the honors conferred by the King during the Durbar, but the selection covers a wide range of civil servants, politicians and men of distinction, the various professions and commerce being included.

Canada is well represented in the colonial list, which is headed by R. L. Borden, the Canadian Premier, who becomes a Privy Councillor. Only three peerages are conferred, the new barons being Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, governor of Madras; Sir Alfred Thomas, for many years leader of the Welsh party in the House of Commons, and Samuel Hope Morley, ex-governor of the Bank of England.

Among the new baronets are: Wm. Nelson, chairman of the Nelson Steamship Line; Thomas Skinner, a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and deputy governor of the Hudson Bay Co.; Joseph Beecham, Valentine Chirol, director of the foreign department of The London Times; H. Rider Haggard, the novelist, and S. J. Pocock, a large land owner of England and Canada.

The Canadians honored besides Premier Borden, are Col. John Morrison Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and Joseph Pope, Under Secretary for External Affairs, who are made knights commander of St. Michael and St. George; Thomas Cooper Boville, Deputy Minister of Finance, companion of St. Michael and St. George, and Lieut.-Col. Rodolphe Forget of Montreal, and Edmund B. Osler of Toronto, both members of the Canadian Parliament, knights bachelor.

Congratulations To Premier.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—The Right Hon. Robert Laird Borden was occupied yesterday in answering the messages of congratulation which came pouring in from Conservatives and Liberals alike. Among the first to congratulate him were His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, and the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The conferring of the title of right honorable came as a surprise to the many who anticipated a knighthood, which bears with it the title of Sir. But while it is no secret that the Prime Minister could have had the knighthood if he had wished, it is taken among the friends of Mr. Borden as an evidence of his unassuming disposition.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was created knight in 1897, and a month afterwards a member of the Imperial Council.

There are fifty gentlemen in Canada with the title of "Sir," while there are only five gentlemen who are entitled to the rank of Privy Councillor.

Makes Hair Grow

D. M. Waters has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the bald spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by D. M. Waters under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word SALVIA, (Latin for sage), is on every bottle.

Men Like Stagnant Ponds.

The great ocean is in a constant state of evaporation. It gives back what it receives, and sends up its waters in mists to gather into clouds; and so there is rain on the field and storm on the mountains, and greenness and beauty everywhere. But there are many men who do not believe in evaporation. They get all they can and keep all they get, and so are not fertilisers, but only stagnant miasmatic ponds.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Youth and Girl Drowned While Skating at Smith's Falls.

Smith's Falls, Jan 2.—A sad drowning fatality took place here Saturday evening, the victims being Keble Gibson, aged 16 years, a clerk in the Frost and Wood office, and Minnie Pruner, only daughter of J. J. Pruner, aged 15 years.

With hundreds of others the young couple were skating on the river, and at the time of the accident, were skating together. At a point near Beech Island, a mile and a half above Smith's Falls, the ice gave way beneath them. Despite the fact that there were so many on the river, no one witnessed the accident. Both bodies were recovered in a short time, but life was extinct.

Miss Pruner's body was frozen to the ice at the place where she went in and Gibson's was found just below in seven feet of water. The two were great favorites with their young companions and their tragic death has cast a gloom over the town. The parents of both victims are well known residents of Smith's Falls.

In addition to the two who were drowned, eleven others had miraculous escapes during the day. The ice appeared to be solid, but it had numerous weak spots and in these the unwary were caught. Among those who had narrow escapes were Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Warwick, Ottawa, who are spending the holidays in the town. They were returning home after spending the afternoon on the river, and when half a mile from town, they skated into an air hole. As in the case of Gibson and Miss Pruner, no one saw them go in, and it was only by the most heroic efforts on the part of Mr. Warwick that he succeeded in getting his wife and himself out, as the ice kept breaking away as soon as they seized hold of it.

Mrs. Warwick swooned from shock, which made it all the harder to effect her rescue, she being in a precarious condition for some time after being taken out, but is now recovering from the effects of her experience.

Roy Boyd, a clerk in the Bank of Ottawa, and Miss Ella Caswell skated into the hole where Gibson and Miss Pruner went in, and after a trying experience, succeeded in reaching ice strong enough to support their weight. They were in the water ten minutes.

The Cry of the Canadian West.

Winnipeg, Jan. 2.—At last the Canadian West is bursting its mysterious bands that have crippled public action in regard to unfair and extortionate railway charges—freights, passenger and telegraphs—that have prevailed, and now the cities and towns, farmers and dealers are demanding action on the part of the Government and the Railway Commission. Equally strong is the movement against the insufficiency of the railways and their equipment to move the crops. There is a cry coming from the West that will arouse the east to action and to redress.

Killed In Rochester.

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 2.—A man believed to be George L. Smith of Troy was struck by a Rochester, Syracuse and Eastern Railway car near here yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. A card in his possession asked that Mrs. Eva Smith of 712 King street, Toronto, or Mrs. Maria Muriel of South Rose, N.Y., be notified in case of accident. Smith's body was caught under the front truck, his skull crushed and one leg amputated.

The Municipal Elections

Seldom or never has there been less interest taken in the municipal elections in Belleville than was manifested yesterday. There were none of the lively scenes that are usual on such occasions, and no one who was not acquainted with the fact that a contest for the mayoralty was in progress would have noticed anything out of the ordinary. This is evidenced by the fact that despite a large addition to the number of voters on the list since last year, there were 181 fewer votes polled yesterday than there were at last year's election.

The result of the contest for the mayoralty was the closest in the history of the city, Ald. Vermilyea having a majority of but 4 votes. This, too, despite a fairly good organization, on which his opponent had virtually none. Mr. George I. Thomas may, under the circumstances, congratulate himself on the large vote which was polled in his favor.

The vote on the by-law for the abolition of the ward system was exceedingly gratifying to all who desire a sane system of civic government for Belleville, and forms a fitting rebuke to that arrogant minority of the Council of 1911, who succeeded in preventing the people from voting on the question several months ago. The Intelligencer strongly and persistently advocated the passage of the by-law and congratulates the people on the overwhelming majority which was recorded for it.

In the only ward in which there was a contest for aldermen, a good choice was made by the electors in electing Messrs. White and Slater, who will prove to be useful members of the Council.

Details of the voting will be found in our news columns, to which the reader is referred.

Canada's Trade

The section of the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce dealing with trade between Canada, Great Britain, France and Germany has been issued. The report shows that during the fiscal year which closed on March 31 last, Canada's total trade with Great Britain amounted to $247,551,912, as against $245,313,984 for 1910. A considerable increase in imports of British goods and a decrease in exports to Great Britain are shown. The total imports amount to $110,586,801, as compared with $95,679,877 in 1910. Exports last year amounted to $136,065,111, as against $149,634,107.

Canada's total trade with the United States for the same twelve months reached a total of $413,813,003, as compared with $352,221,327 in the previous year.

Both imports and exports increased, the former from $230,070,540 in 1910, to $294,415,202 in 1911, and the latter from $113,150,778 in 1910, to $119,396,801 in 1911.

The duty collected on imports from Great Britain amounted to $21,756,811 and on exports from the United States $37,854,728.

The figures of trade with Germany show a slight increase, the total for the year being $12,750,216, as compared with $10,459,455 for 1910. The import of German goods amounted to $10,687,199, as compared with $7,958,264 for 1910. The figures show that while Canada bought more largely from Germany, the increase in exports from Canada to Germany was very slight, the figures being $2,501,191 for 1910 and $2,663,017 for 1911.

Trade with France increased both ways. The imports amounted to $11,755,493 in 1911, as compared with $10,170,903 in 1910, and the exports $2,782,092 in 1911, as against $2,640,648 in 1910. Canada's total trade in 1911 amounted to $769,443,905, as compared with $693,211,221 in the previous year, and the duty collected increased from $60,709,707 in 1910, to $72,935,639 in 1911.

The exports as well as imports of coin and bullion show very large increases, the imports being $6,017,589 in 1910, and $10,206,210 in 1911, and the exports $2,591,536 in 1910, and $7,196,155 in 1911.

English vs. American Justice

The American press has been aroused to speak its mind freely on the administration of law in the United States. So rampant has crime become and so ineffectual have been the courts of justice in meting out punishment to the offenders, that it has wakened the people to the necessity of remodelling the whole administration of justice. The course of law in the States is slow, tedious and ineffective and in very strong contrast to British law, as administered in England and its colonies, where it is swift and sure.

The Boston Transcript of a recent date makes plain that contrast when it says:

"With a population of 7,000,000, London had but 19 cases of murder during the past year, according to the report of Hon. Charles A. de Courcy, chairman of the committee on criminal law, American Prison Association. Five of the murderers committed suicide and four were never apprehended. The others were either convicted and executed or committed to the insane asylum. In Chicago, during the same period 202 homicides were committed. Only one of the offenders was hanged, 15 were sent to the penitentiary, and the others were exonerated by the grand jury, acquitted, discharged or otherwise set free."

Paper and Pulp-wood

When one considers the enormous quantity of paper used every day by the newspapers and other publications of America, and the rapid lessening of pulp-wood areas one would naturally think that alone would account for the increased cost of paper and the consequent increase of subscription prices. It is interesting to learn that as the material for making paper grows scarcer, the uses to which paper can be put become more numerous. Paper garments are rapidly coming into use in hospitals. They are airy and flexible. Another comparatively new form of paper fabrics is the paper bag for cooking. There are factories for paper bottles and paper grain bags in Philadelphia and in one of the New England cities an ingenious person manufactures paper cigars. Paper horseshoes have been on the market for some time, and paper tires are promised. Over in Germany an inventor has made a reinforced paper that can be used in constructing houses and ships and automobiles and even paving streets. If the supply of material continues to grow less and less, and the earth becomes entirely denuded of its forests, it will be necessary for some clever inventor to produce something that can be used as a substitute for paper. Meanwhile the increasing cost of paper is an ever-present nightmare with publishers.

THE SECRET OF A GOOD COMPLEXION

This is the season for evening parties, social events, etc. Why not look your best? Why let your complexion suffer by contrast with other ladies? Why not ensure a good complexion? You can do this on sound, natural lines by using Zam-Buk, nature's herbal balm.

Zam-Buk is a skin food; and complexion is purely a matter of skin health. Zam-Buk smeared lightly over the face each night acts as a skin tonic. It stimulates the cells beneath the cuticle to healthy action makes the capillaries and blood vessels work and the vigorous circulation thus started carries way secreted impurities. Waxy, sallow deposits are thus removed. Hard, pimply growths are softened and disappear. That yellow tinge gives way to the pink of health and the white, velvety "look" and "feel" which healthy skin alone has.

Isn't this wiser than relying upon talcum powder and cosmetics? These only put on a "complexion" from the outside. It doesn't last. Zam-Buk helps nature to build up a complexion from blood and tissue. It lasts.

Zam-Buk also cures skin diseases, pimples, ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eruptions, cuts, burns, scalds, chapped places, scalp sores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, but beware of harmful substitutes and imitations.

WHAT IS TRUTH?

Men will believe nothing what they cannot understand.

Truth comes to us only by glimpses. There are some who refuse to receive a partial truth, who insist upon having a clear idea of the whole, or at least upon persuading themselves that they have it, before they yield assent to anything. They will believe nothing which they cannot understand, they say, forgetting that, although we may both believe and understand many things to be true, it is only by occasional glimpses that we can ever discover how they came to be so. For instance, we all believe the wonders of the natural world, the existence and motions of the planets and starts, the changes in the earth's surface, the marvellous growth in the vegetable world, and the still more wonderful development of the animal creation—of conscious life and human intelligence. In believing these things we understand that they are so; but how they came to be so, how they perform their several functions, what are the laws which uphold them and the forces they obey — these things we do not understand, except as study or thought, or participation in another's thought, give us glimpses of the truth.

An Immaculate Servant.

He was an immaculate servant. To watch him serve a salad was to watch an artist at work. To hear his subdued accents was a lesson in the art of voice-production. He never slipped, he never smiled, and his mutton-chop whiskers marked him as one of of the old and faithful stock. But one evening, to the surpise of his master, he showed unaccountable signs of nervousness. When the chicken came on he confused it with the pheasant. He served everything in the wrong order, made blunder after blunder, and put a final touch to his shame by upsetting salt over the only superstitious member of the party. Then at last, when the ladies had retired to the drawing-room, he touched his master on the shoulder. "I beg your pardon, sir," he said in a respectful undertone, "but could you manage to spare me now? My house is on fire."

Couldn't Get the Scotchman.

There was an aged Scotchman who by native shrewdness made a fortune, and he did it without the slightest bit of education. One day he and an acquaintance were talking when the latter said to old Duncan: "Say, Duncan, you don't know nough to go in when it rains. Why you can't even spell bird." "B-u-r-d," said Duncan; "I tell you you dont know anything. Why, if you had to spell to make a living you'd have been dead years ago. I'll bet you a hundred you can't spell bird." "I'll tak' ye," quickly replied Duncan. After the money was put up Duncan said "B-i-r-d." "That ain't the way you spelled it the first time." "I wasna bettin' then."

The success of your aim may depend on your target. It's much easier to hit a cow than a rabbit.

1911 BREAKS OPEN SEASON RECORD HELD BY 1877-8

Review of Banking Year Shows Interesting Situation—Montreal to Have Silk Hatted Police Squad

MONTREAL [illegible] 29.—There is still no ice re[illegible] from any point in the river or gulf, and those interested in the port of Montreal consequently have the tantalizing experience of one of the world's finest waterways and ports, devoid of any movements of vessels other than the ferryboats which are now, unless a very sudden change in the weather takes place, almost certain to run longer than the existing record, established in 1877-8, when these boats were in use as late as New Year's Day.

THE YEAR IN BANKING.

Thornton Davidson, & Co. in an able review of the year in banking cast up some interesting deductions. Mr. Davidson says:

"The amalgamation which is taking place between the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Eastern Townships Bank calls attention to the remarkable number of changes which have taken place in the banking field in Canada during the past year.

Comparing the situation at the end of November with that at the end of December a year ago, we find that the number of chartered banks has increased but one. During the year, however, two new banks have entered the field, namely the Banque Internationale and the Weyburn Security Bank. On the other hand, one bank disappeared, namely, the United Empire, this having been taken over by the Union Bank of Canada. Now that the Eastern Townships Bank is about to be taken over by the Bank of Commerce, the number of banks will be decreased by one, so that should the change be made during the present month, the year will end with twenty-eight chartered banks in Canada, being the same number as at the end of 1910.

When comparison is made between the aggregate paid-up capital of the Canadian banks, however, a very considerable change is seen. A year ago the total amount was $99,676,693 while at the end of November the aount was $107,472,558. During the year, therefore, there was an increase of $7,796,465 in the paid-up capital. There is still to be added to this certain payments not yet completed on new issues authorized. For instance, in the case of the Bank of Montreal, $700,000 is to be added to the paid-up capital. The Royal Bank recently authorized $2,000,000 and the Bank of Hochelaga $500,000 new capital, while the Bank of New Brunswick is issuing $100,000. This makes $3,3000,000 to be added to the above increase, so that when the whole of the increased capital has been issued practically $11,000,000 will have been added to the figures at the end of 1910. In addition to this, it is expected that the Merchants Bank will issue $1,000,000 extra, making $12,000,000 increase in sight, bringing the paid-up capital of all the banks to the vicinity of $112,000,000. The addition of the Banque Internationale du Canada will largely swell this amount, it is thought.

SWELL POLICE SQUAD.

Montreal is soon to have the first silk-hatted police squad in its history and as a result this promises to be a difficult winter for the clever beggars, or "panhandlers" as they are known, who have been flocking to the city with the idea of reaping their usual rich reward in the most exclusive sections of the city. The new squad is being organized principally to protect the theatre and club districts from the operation of beggars of country-wide fame, who every winter through their skilful work relieve pedestrians in these districts of more than $250,000. Already consternation has spread among the select "pan handling" circles and such celebrities as "Louis the Crust Thrower" and "Jimmy the Bone Gnawer" and many others equally well known are preparing to leave before the silk-hatted squad really get busy. When it does Montrealers will be treated to a novel spectacle. Acording to the instructions issued the member will have to parade the fashionable districts, clad in frock coats and silk hats in the afternoon and in full evening dress at night. They will make no arrests. They are expected to act only as a lure for "pan handlers." When encountered for a touch their orders are to string them along until a policeman in uniform is encountered and lodge a complaint just as an ordinary citizen would. Some of the squad wanted to balk at wearing silk hats but when the value of such headgear as bait for mendicants was pointed out they finally yielded.

Neglecting His Business.

A country doctor was recently called upon to visit a patient some distance away. Driving to where the invalid tied his horse to a tree and started to walk across the field. It happened that work was in progress on a new well, of which the doctor knew nothing until he found himself sinking into the earth. He fell just far enough to be unable to get out of the hole unassisted, and lustily yelled for help. When he was finally pulled up, the hired man remarked to him:—

"I say, doc, you had no business down there."

"No, I don't think I had," replied the doctor.

"Don't you know," continued the hired man, "you ought to leave the well alone and take care of the sick?"

Not Worth Stopping For.

A party of four gentlemen were driving a motor-car along the road leading from Kilkenny to Clonnel. Seeing a fine stretch of level road in front the car was put at full speed, and they raced along for nearly four miles.

Presently speed was slackened, and the driver turned round to see how his two friends at the back had enjoyed the run. A look of scared astonishment overspread his countenance when he found that only one gentleman was seated there.

"Where's Jack?" he gasped, stopping the car.

"Jack?" replied the other, carelessly. "He blew off at the first milestone."

The woman who does her own house work generally has a good servant.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway recently placed a contract for the construction of 25 locomotives with the Canadian Locomotive Co., Kingston, Ont. These locomotives are of Simple Consolidation type with Schmidt super heaters, cylinders 23 in. in diameter by 30 in. stroke, with 63 in. driving wheels. Boiler pressure 180 lbs. The tenders of these engines will be water bottom type carrying 8000 gallons of water and about 15 tons of coal. The tractive power of the engine is 38,541 lbs. Delivery is expected about May, 1912

CLEVER INVALIDS

Tom Hood — One of the Greatest Humorous Writers Wrote Most of His Best Verses While in Torture.

By the death of W. Clark Russell we lose one of the finest writers of sea-stories that this century ever possessed. His romances throb with such vitality that it is hard to realize that for many year their author had been virtually a cripple. Yet such was the case, and his latest works were dictated to his son while he himself was stretched on a couch of pain.

What wondrous results can be effected by strength of will the life of Herbert Spencer pre-eminently shows. Of delicate constitution, he set himself to accomplish a task the magnitude whereof would have appalled the most robust, and wrestling manfully with the demon of ill-health, which sometimes for months together totally incapacitated him from work, never wavered in his stern resolve until, in 1896, he brought his stupendous "System of Synthetic Philosophy" to a triumphant conclusion.

His fellow-worker in the field of evolution, Charles Darwin, for over forty years knew not the joy of a day without pain. Dyspepsia, allied maybe to gout, held him in thraldom, so that his life was one long and continuous struggle against illness. Yet he bore his unenviable lot with cheery patience, and, though his poor health at times compelled him to cease from his arduous studies and researches, the work that he left accomplished is proof sufficient that no physical ills could subdue the indomitable energy of his mind.

In pain and torture, too, lay Tom Hood when he penned some of his most humorous verses. Even in boyhood his health was delicate, and with increasing years his weakness became more alarmingly apparent. Yet he gallantly struggled on until, in the winter of 1844, he finally broke down and took to his bed. Even there his fertile brain refused to rest, and not till death took him in the following spring did the world cease to enjoy the dying poet's witty words.

Over Keats, the while he was composing those poetic gems that have given him place among the immortals, was poised the hand of death. A victim to consumption and consequent haemorrhage from the lungs, he resolved, "as a soldier marches against a battery," to try the effect of a winter in Italy. Thither he went, and lingered on in Rome, where, on February 23rd, 1821, his brief life of twenty-six years came to a peaceful end.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

ANSON McKIM
McKim Limited

Creative advertising has probably done more to develop trade in this country than anything else — at least it has convinced many manufacturers and merchants that it is one thing to have goods for sale and another to sell by the old fashioned methods and salesmanship alone. The public, which today is a reading public, demand from the retailers certain articles and no other and the retailers—to keep their shops open — in turn must stock those articles. This creative advertising, which has been brought to a fine art, demanding ability of a high order, necessarily means specialization by artists and expert ad writers who qualify for the work by long practice. Such is the principal work of the Advertising agencies like McKim's, though there are many other branches which entail detail work beyond the ken of the layman.

ANSON McKIM

When Ansom McKim opened his little office some twenty-two years ago as an advertising agent, he had already had a large experience in the advertising and business ends of newspaperdom as Montreal representative of the Toronto Mail and Empire, and no one knew better than he the difficulties and shortcomings that met the advertiser at every turn. He realized that his chance of success lay in suggestions and honest advice in the taking up of proper newspaper space and its utilization to the best advantage to bring returns. Mr. McKim met with success at the outset. Firms who were already large advertisers appreciated the agency's methods, and men who had never advertised before were convinced of its necessity if they were to compete successfully with their more pushful rivals, with the result that the agency grew apace, the newspapers got more business and the public better value.

Mark the contrast between the English and Canadian agencies. In Great Britain the agent buys so much space in newspapers and magazines at the lowest price and sells to the highest bidder which obviously means poor returns to the advertiser, for the agent has no responsibility, whereas the Canadian agent, entirely depending on returns for continuous patronage, is very responsible to the advertiser. This to a great extent has been brought about by McKim whose system of coaching forced his rivals to follow suit as well as his principle of dealing squarely with the papers. He made the proprietors tell the truth about their circulation and paid for space accordingly and, what has been a God send to many of the smaller publications, promptly. No fooling or bunkum about McKim; all must be above board if a journal wants to do business with his agency and the newspapermen like him the better for it all.

Mr. McKim was born in Lennox, Ont., in 1855 so that he is in his prime and if looks denote anything he has outside hard work, taken great care of his health. He first came to Montreal in 1878 as business and advertising representative for the Mail and Empire and established the McKim agency in 1889. For recreation Mr. McKim goes in for golf and racquets being member of the Royal Golf Club of which he was captain for two years and the Canadian Forest and Stream Club. He is also member of St. James Club, Montreal.

WILSON MacDONALD,
Poet

When "The Shame of Goderich" appeared in Toronto last June, that remarkable ballad caused a good deal of enquiry about the author, Frederick Maclean. It proved, however, that the real author used a pen name. Wilson MacDonald, who wrote this poem, is a graduate of McMaster, and a Toronto man. The poem, "Purified," is the subject of a Boston story. In a mixed company, a professor of literature there severely criticized some of Mr. MacDonald's work, declaring that Kipling was the only writer of the present day. "Have you seen his last poem," asked Mr. MacDonald, who volunteered to read a copy he had. The professor was delighted, and descanted upon the beauties of the verses. When he left there was a general laugh at his expense.

Mr. MacDonald's abilities are not confined to poetry; he has composed some really good music, one of his pieces in particular "True Love Can Never Die" being very fine.

NATURES WARDROBE

Dame Nature Allows Her Children a Complete Change of Clothes At Least Once a Year

Dame Nature allows her children a complete change of clothes at least once a year. In some instances she is more liberal. This change of raiment does not always meet with man's approval, and, because of the petty annoyances it may cause, the fact that the whole matter is not without points of interest is generally overlooked.

During the autumn the canary has a most irritating way of casting its feathers, and causing what the housemaid calls a "litter" all over the room for their tiny yellow feathers get blown about, and they are extremely difficult to pick up. The sweeping brush is no good at all for the purpose; every feather must be taken up separately, and really, considering that they are from one little bird, their number is extraordinary. "Drat that canary!" remarks the lady of the broom and duster.

The poultry yard is dreadful. Feathers lie everywhere, giving the whole place a desolate, uncared-for look, which is quite in keeping with the miserable appearance of its inmates.

But it is not only the feathered family which cause trouble by leaving their discarded clothes tossing about. Never drive behind a white horse in the spring unless you have a mind above being disturbed by horse hairs. In the pre-taxi days the point was worth remembering, for a white horse between the shafts of the hansom at certain times could make the "fare's" black coat unsightly. A horse sheds his coat — but not his tail or mane — in the spring, and grows a short, glossy, summer coat, which is the delight of the groom. As the winter approaches the animal's appearance undergoes a change. His coat grows long, and is extremely dense, so that if he is out in the fields he can stand severe weather.

It is worth while examining the coat of the house cat in the summer and then in the winter. The animal's appearance may have undergone no change, yet the increase of hair is there all the same. The long-haired cat cannot make her toilet so unobtrusively, and the owner must be very blind who does not know when puss is "moulting" and when she is "in coat."

TIMBER MINING

In the Wood Mines of Upper Tonkin China, Is Found the Curious Phenomenon of Timber Growing Downwards.

A curious source of wealth is found in the wood mines of Upper Tonkin. The wood originally was a pine forest, which the earth wallowed in some cataclysm. Some of the trees are a yard in diameter. They lie in a slanting direction and in sandy soils, which cover them to a depth of about eight yards. As the top branches are well preserved, it is thought the geological convulsion which buried them cannot be of a very great antiquity. The wood furnished by these timber mines is imperishable, and the Chinese gladly buy it for coffins.

BARONESS FOUNDS BIG FEET SOCIETY.

The Baroness Mohn, beautiful and distinguished, has started the Big Feet society in Munich. Its object is to preach the gospel that big feet are not only healthful, but beautiful.

Several hundred persons, some of them titled, have joined the society and have agreed to wear the "big boots" on all occasions and to bring up their children on the same principles.

A DUTCH HERO

By Andrew Muir

Away over the sea, in the land of Holland, there lived many years ago a little Dutch boy named Peter. Now, in that country the sea has always been very greedy, and the Dutch folk have to be continually building dykes — that is, high walls of sand and earth — to keep the sea from rushing over their land. They know how to build stronger ones now, but they had not learnt to do so in the days of which we are talking.

One evening, as Peter came whistling home, he heard a little trickling sound, so he stopped and listened — there it was again. Then all of a sudden he caught sight of a small hole in the dyke, through which the water was drip, dripping. Being a Dutch boy, he knew that this meant that the cruel sea was coming in, and he wondered what he could do. his father was working on a dyke a long distance from home, and in any case while he went for help, the sea, he knew, would run in, for the opening was getting larger every moment. he tried filling it up with sand and grass, but as fast as he did so the water pushed it out again. Suddenly he had an idea; kneeling down he put his hand into the hole, and to his great delight found that the water stopped dripping through.

Hour after hour passed, and the stars came out one by one, but nobody passed that way; yet brave little Peter never stirred, although his hand and arm — indeed, his whole body — felt as if it were frozen. It was not until morning that a passing workman found him, and then the poor lad was so stiff and cold that he could only just murmur into the man's as he bent over him, "I—am—holding—back the sea!" the man hurried away, quickly returning with helpers to fill up the hole, whilst he himself lifted the brave boy gently up in his arms, and carried him home to his mother, who was distracted with grief and anxiety at his absence. It was only when she got him tucked up safe and warm in bed that she had time to feel proud of her boy; nor was she the only one to be so, for all Holland was singing the praises of the little Dutch hero who held back the sea for them.

SEEK "THE SILENCE"

By Cara Reese

All truly great souls seek "the silence." When the sulky fit comes on and the feminine partner of your joys and sorrows "won't speak," you should be careful and tread the carpet as though on storage eggs.

All great souls seek "the silence." A few little souls get in now and then, but it is not at all likely that the one of whom you complain belongs to the shrivelled up persimmon type. Never try to make either a big soul or a little soul "speak" when it is determined not to. Only dogs are forced to "speak" and are disciplined for so doing. Your whole policy is wrong: "the silence" is the most beneficial of remedies. It begins, as a wag in a current magazine says, with the "jellywish" stage. If it can manfully, or womanfully, swim up through the lukewarm vapors to the ultimate progress, lo, behold, you have a yogi in your midst! But rest assured that no woman has yet remained in "the silence" long enough to transcend that which is of the earth, earthy, or, in other words, an eye on the rest of the house and the bossing of things. Be patient and your partner will emerge from the gelatine and soft soap.

Just about the time you clumsily break one of the good teacups, or crunch a chair from its legs, or put your foot through the curtains the "silence" will break and the probabilities are that you will need ear muffs? The "silence" is a foreign element to all real womankind. You need only to wait awhile and to get into mischief or do damage of some sort and the "silence" is scattered, there is a beating of fins and a gasping for fresh air and the real things.

A woman does not stay "great." This is where the trouble lies in all the cults and doctrines. She goes into the trance, but just about the time you think she is blinded to faults and misdemeanors, or to crudeness and deception, that is the time you may look for an awaking. About the time you imagine that she has stopped "speaking" for good, that is the time you need ear protection. And about the time that you imagine there is peace and quiet in suffrage movements or in club agitation, that is the time you are more likely to be shaken from your boots and routed from position.

The "silence" means a great soul — while it lasts. And take courage, for the yogi of your fireside will never be of womankind. No woman has ever been evolved to a plane beyond wishing; of hunger for bread, and finding bread there without a hand in the kneading, figuratively, if not in reality. No woman is there who might require hat, clothing and trimming and have these come running and filled perfectly without her skill in selection or bargaining. No woman is there who might enjoy the gratification of a sufficiency of all good merely in the inert sense and, without stirring tongue or foot. Be patient, man, the "silence" will end. No woman is a success as a yogi.

Wife (who is very fond of her first baby): "The landlord was here today. I gave him the five pounds and showed him the baby."

Husband (who was kept awake last night): "It would have been much better if you'd give him the baby and showed him the five pounds."

DIVORCE IN NATIONS

Some Curious Grounds on Which Divorce is Granted in the Different Nations of the Civilized World.

In connection with the agitation for the reform of English divorce laws, it is interesting to learn the grounds on which divorce is granted in the different countries. In the first place it will probably strike many people as exceedingly curious that, while Ireland has no divorce law — separation alone being allowed — in Scotland divorce is granted for misconduct of either the husband or wife, the sexes being regarded as on an equality in that respect, or for malicious desertion for four years. And while in Queensland, Western Australia and Tasmania the divorce law is almost identical with that in England, in New Zealand misconduct alone on the part of the husband, wilful desertion by the husband or wife for five years without just cause, habitual drunkenness of four years and upwards, imprisonment or penal servitude, for seven years or more, and confinement in a lunatic asylum for ten years constitute grounds for divorce.

In Canada the law is the same as in England, while in America each of the forty-six States makes and administers its own laws of divorce. That is why they vary so much. "In only one State, South Carolina," says the author of "Marriage Making and Breaking," "is there no divorce, and in only one State, New York, is misconduct made an indispensable condition to the grant of a decree. Desertion and cruelty are in varying degrees common grounds in all other States, in fifteen States desertion for only one year being needed. In thirty-five States habitual drunkenness is a ground, and in a majority conviction for felony. Insanity is a ground in nine States, and neglect to provide for the wife and children in nineteen."

In Denmark divorce is obtainable for misconduct, leprosy, incurable insanity, imprisonment for three years, or separation for the same period. A new system of divorce law came into force in Norway in 1910. Under it the husband and wife agreeing to separate, an order is granted by a magistrate. If the parties do not agree, either of them can obtain a separation on the grounds of misconduct, drunkenness, ill-treatment, prodigality, or aversion. The marriage, where the parties agree to separation, may be dissolved at the end of one year.

SOME CLEVER ADS

How Sir George Newnes Advertised His First Venture in the Publishing Line — On An Asses Back.

After the English Tit-Bits was founded Sir George Newnes the proprietor, was always looking out for new ways of advertising it. He was always on the 'qui vive' for fresh notions and an illustration of his ability in this direction is furnished by an incident which took place during a visit to Brighton. Sir Newnes noticed the usual bands of patient donkeys ready to take holiday-makers for "tuppenny" rides at a moment's notice, and the sight inspired him with the following plan: He engaged two of the donkeys, and had gorgeous cloaks prepared for them, bearing the inscription, in gigantic letters, "We don't read Tit-Bits." The public laughed heartily at the idea that the paper was only rejected by asses, and the sale that week was phenomenal.

On another occasion in Newcastle Mr. Newnes as he was then, engaged an army of sandwichmen, the first of whom displayed the name Tit-Bits in gigantic letters on the board towering high above him; the name, and nothing more. The second, in the same manner, paraded the phrase "I like it"; the third, "My wife likes it"; the fourth, "My daughter likes it"; the fifth, "My mother likes it"; and so on, through the whole of what must have appeared a family numerically blessed beyond the average. On the last board was blazoned forth the asserton "So do I," and soon everybody in Newcastle was talking about the name and fame of Tit-Bits.

Everyone to His Taste

With characteristic enterprise Newnes, noticing the popularity of the vegetarian restaurants in Manchester, decided to open one, and in a short time the "Vegetarian Company's Saloon," as he called it, was a great success. It became the talk of the town. At twelve o'clock on a Tuesday the saloon was opened. At 12.30 it was closed, and the proprietor sent a wire to his wife: "Eaten up in half an hour!"

Sir George Newne's brother-in-law tells a delightful story in connection with this experiment. One day when the restaurant was in full swing, he came to it in search of its owner. He found that Mr. Newnes was not there — he had gone out a short time ago. Ultimately he tracked the advocate of vegetarianism to a neighbouring hotel, and discovered him doing justice to a large beefsteak. Mr. Newnes chuckled as he encountered the astonished eye of his brother-in-law, and said, quietly, and with the ghost of a wink, "Everyone to his taste!"

NEW WIRES

Mr. James Kent, Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway telegraphs who has just returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast announces that two new wires have been strung from Winnipeg to Calgary, one via Regina and the other via Saskatoon and Edmonton. A new wire has also been strung from Calgary to Vancouver Speaking of telegraph matters in Western Canada, Mr. Kent stated that during the last six months a great many new branch offices had been opened by the Canadian Pacific Railway. New towns have been springing up and new sections of the country opened and wherever possible the C. P. R. has given the people excellent telegraph services.

It's tough when a man is asked to tender his resignation.

It tickles a man's vanity to be referred to as a leading citizen.

POPULAR SONGS

Romantic Origin of Some Well Known Songs — How "Killarney" and "The Star Spangled Banner" Were Composed.

Composers tell many a curious and romantic story of the birth of songs which have become world-famous; and few of them are more remarkable than those told by Signor Tito Mattei.

"Several of my best songs," he says, "have come to my mind whilst idly strumming with my fingers on a window-pane or table; and my well-known 'Hear the Wild Winds Blow' was written when I was having an oyster supper."

"Dear Heart" had an equally curious origin. One night when the Signor went to see his publisher, Mr. Keppel, the latter produced a sheet of paper, saying, "Here are some pretty words; what do you think of them?" The composer glanced at the manuscript and, walking to the piano, instantly played the four last line of the air which has since been sung all the world over. The same evening the song was complete, and the following morning Mr. Keppel and the Signor were drinking to its success in "repeated glasses of champagne."

The sweet and universally popular "In Old Madrid" came to Mr. H. Trotère one evening as he was returning home from the Theatre. He had no paper on which to jot it down, nor had the publican into whose house he rushed any to offer him. But, catching sight of some biscuit-bags, he seized one, and in a few moments the famous melody was written down.

"Go to Sea" was composed within a quarter of an hour was jotted down "Asthore" was written by Mr. Clifton Bingham and set to music by Mr. Trotère after lunching at Restaurant; and "The Brow of the Hill" eclipsed even these marvellous records, for Mr. Trotère composed the melody, wrote a letter, and ran 400 yards to catch the post, all within eight minutes!

Of "Killarney" a strange story is told. One day Boucicault took the words of the song to Balfe. Mrs. Balfe took them upstairs to her husband, who, after glancing through them, sat down to the piano. Scarcely had his wife left the room when the composer excitedly called her back. "I have done the song," he exclaimed. "It is sweet. Tell Boucicault to come and hear it."

It was while dreaming the time away in his yacht, that Michael Maybrick's great song, "The Holy City," came to him in a flood of inspiration. Hastily writing down the voice part, he called his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Maybrick, to the cabin and asked her to sing it while he extemporized an accompaniment; and within half an hour of reading Mr. Weatherley's words the glorious song was sung by the woman who, but little later, was to make the world ring with her name.

In the war of 1812 Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner" on seeing the flag floating over Fort McHenry. When he returned to his division, we are told, he read it aloud once, twice, three times, until the entire division seemed electrified by its pathetic eloquence. An idea seized Ferdinand Durang. Hunting up a volume of flute music, he impatiently whistled snatches of tune after tune as they caught his eye. Note after note fell from his puckered lips until, with a leap and a shout, he exclaimed, "Boys, I've got it!" and there rang out for the first time the song of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

WHEN BIRDS BREED

Few Experts Can Really Tell When Birds Breed for Even When in Captivity They Baffle Those in Charge.

Although a thousand and one ornithological volumes have been written, it is a curious fact that not a scrap of information is to be found in any of them regarding the ages at which different species of birds breed in the wild state. This discovery has been made by a writer who suggests that as, in most cases, birds breed as a matter of course in their second season, writers have assumed that there is nothing to be said on the subject.

Dr. Seth Smith, who is in charge of the birds at the Zoological Gardens, London, says that in all probability many of the parrots do not breed till they are three or four years old — that is to say, till their fourth or fifth season. Geese, however, according to the same authority, are an exception to this generalization, as, in common with sheldrakes and some of the pheasants, they breed in their second season. Possibly, as regards geese, this applies only to domesticated breeds.

Pigeons and the majority of game-birds attain their full plumage in the first summer; and the presumption accordingly is that they breed in their second season. That this is the case with partridges is rendered evident by the fact that in their second season, all the birds, with possibly a few accidental exceptons, are paired.

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable of recent additions to the "Zoo" is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vulture). This giant bird has recently arrived from India, and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over 14 ft. from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown.

The lammergeyer is found in Mid-Europe, Asia, and North Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to "creating" carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterwards flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.

No man knows what he is capable of doing until his wife assumes the role of taskmaster.

Fortunately the average man is unable to realize how homely he is.

UNSINKABLE SHIPS

New Invention For Forcing Water Out of a Ship by Compressed Air, Permitting the Holes to be Repaired from Within.

If all that is claimed for the idea proves correct there will be a revolution in the work of ship-saving in the near future. Indeed, it promises to revolutionize naval warfare, for it is claimed for this new invention that ships can be kept afloat even after being rammed. In fact, they can be made practically unsinkable. The invention is the outcome of an idea for forcing water out of a ship by compressed air, thus permitting the holes to be repaired from within. The idea is a very simple one, and was suggested to Commander Marsh, of the battleship North Carolina, lying off New York, by Mr. Witherspoon, the engineer engaged in the construction of the New York railway tubes under the Hudson River.

All the experiments tried proved entirely successful. The sea-cocks were opened on the Carolina and water was permitted to fill one of the watertight compartments. Compressed air at a pressure of twelve pounds to the square inch was then forced into the compartment through a small opening. In ten minutes all the water was driven back into the river. Simultaneously with the twelve-pound pressure into the waterlogged compartment compressed air at seven pounds pressure was driven into all the surrounding compartments and a three-pound pressure into the next series of compartments, this being necessary to prevent the pressure on the original compartment buckling the sides and the dock.

Commander Marsh is most enthusiastic regarding the idea. He points out that the invention now enables them to do repairs to the hull below water-line from the inside, either after collision or during a naval battle. "Ships," he says, "are now for the first time practically unsinkable, for the water-tight compartments alone will not keep a ship afloat indefinitely. There is always a leak somewhere. All that is necessary," he continues, "is to install a system of pipes and gauges and attach them to the compressed air plant. Every warship already has such a plant for the purpose of blowing off poisonous and explosive gases, which can be utilized for driving out the water. The whole cost for a battleship is about $400. How is that for a low insurance promium against the sinking of a battleship worth $10,000,000?"

QUICK MASTERS

Bobbie Burns Composed His Masterpiece "Tam o' Shanter" In One Day and Byron His Masterpiece In One Night.

Dr. John Brown, one of Ruskin's greatest friends, made an immortal name by one short story, "Rab and His Friends." Rab is a dog, and his history, full of a natural pathos and simplicity, is read, and will continue to be read, by old and young as long as the language lasts. Yet it was written in the first four hours of a midsummer morning. The author was then a young doctor, and he sat down to write his masterpiece at twelve o'clock midnight and finished at four o'clock in the morning. He was unaware that he had written anything exceptionally good, but the moment it appeared in print he found himself famous.

Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote his only novel in a week. This is the celebrated "Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia." His mother died at Lichfield in her ninetieth year, and in order to defray the funeral expenses, and to discharge some debts which she had left, he sat down to write a book. It took him seven days to complete, and he sent the sheets to the press without looking them over. He was paid $500 for the copyright, which was probably ten times more than he ever earned in the same space of time during any other period of his life. The book was an instant success and immediately became the talk of the town.

A Good Day's Work

Robert Burns composed his masterpiece, "Tam o' Shanter," in one day, in the open air. Burns went out of the house in the morning and, not returning, his wife joined him in the afternoon with her two children. Seeing that he was "crooning to himself" she forebore to interrupt him, but stayed in the fields at a distance, where she could see him. She observed him wildly gesticulating, and at times fairly leaping with joy. She said to Allan Cunningham, the poet, after her husband's death, "I wisht ye had seen him, he was in such ecstasy that the tears were happing down his cheeks." He committed the poem to writing by the riverside, and went into the house and read it to his wife at the fireside with great triumph. One of the most notable day's work ever done in Scotland!

"The Diverting History of John Gilpin," a ballad which contains upwards of sixty verses, was composed by Cowper in bed during the hours of one night. Lady Austen, Cowper's friend, told him the story one evening to cheer him up, and he said next morning not only that convulsions of laughter at his recollections of its incidents had kept him awake during the greater part of the night, but also that he had made a ballad of it. As soon as it appeared in print it was recited on the stage and became vastly popular, a popularity which it retains to this day.

Byron, delayed by bad weather at an inn at Gruchy for a couple of days, wrote that sublime poem, "The Prisoner of Chillon," perhaps the best known of all his works. He wrote it, almost as it stands, in one night, sitting up late, in a perfect frenzy of inspiration, and completing it before he retired to rest. The whole history of literature does not contain a more unique instance of rapid composition.

Growth of Wealth in Prussia.

Some interesting statistics have just been published showing the increase of wealth in Prussia. In 1903 there were only 80,000 people in Prussia with incomes of over $7,000; while in 1910 there were 104,000. In 1908 1,500,000 people owned property worth $225,000,000. There are 8,300 millionaires in Prussia, and their wealth has increased from $2,500,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 within the last fourteen years. Of course it must be remembered that a German "millionaire" is only worth $250,000 — a million marks.

Growth of Population in Sweden.

The increase of population in Sweden during the year 1910 was greater than during any of the last ten years, amounting to 51,887, or 9.63 per thousand. As usual the increase has been greater in the large cities than in the provinces. But the growth of population in the smaller industrial centres was not so great as formerly, on account of the crisis of 1907-09 which greatly handicapped both manufacturing and commercial interests.

Thuh Americans Dont Care for Pantomine.

A story from the Folies Bergere has to do with Sig. Curti, the imported ballet master, who spent half an hour trying to drill into the walnut head of a chorus man a bit of pantomine. At last the chorus man said: "Aw, what's the odds? Thuh Americans don't care for Pantomine, anyhow." "It makes me think," said Curti, "of the old tenor. Broke, down and out, he had been sleeping in the livery stable for three months, when he suddenly got a chance to sing the role in which he had once been famous. La Scala at Milan was packed that night. He sang — most painfully — before that vast audience. At the end the audience hissed with drilled unanimity. 'Ahh!' said the old tenor, in the wings. 'Ees eet not painful? Zee Italian people, zey no longer care for Verdi.'"

Something from his Pen.

A new editor on a country newspaper called on a successful farmer in his vicinity, and assured the latter that the paper would gladly pay for something from his pen. The farmer promised to see what he could do, and the following week an expressman called at the publication office with a young pig. "C.O.D., $10."

Valuable Information about Taxicabs

In reply to many correspondents from the West, it may be said that a taxcab is a lineal descendant of Captain Kidd on its father's side and Jesse James on its mother's. To look at, it is a harmless creature. To read about, it is positively virtuous. But to monkey with, it is the triple concentrated extract of Montreal's Ananias Club, fishermen, real-estate agents, mining promoters, and autobiographers. Whether this is because of sheer willfulness or because it was sick with the scarlet fever at the time the rest of the class studied the tables of linear measurement is not clear, but the fact is that a taxicab can get more miles out or three blocks than a landlady can get pieces out of a single pie, and it can ruffle one's temper more effectually than the most dipsomaniacal Jehu that ever cracked a whip or framed an oath.

VICTORIES FOR HYDRO

Not One Defeat Registered Against Provincial Power.

Hydro-Electric Bylaws Carry Wherever Submitted With as Few as 2 and 10 Votes Against—C. H. Hartman Wins on Electric Issue in Brantford—Ottawa Re-elects Mayor Hopewell—Berlin's Improvements.

Two outstanding features marked the municipal contests throughout the Province of Ontario, the overwhelming sentiment in favor of the Hydro electric system and the setback given to local option, which failed in 23 municipalities of even a straight majority.

The Hydro-electric bylaws were carried wherever they were submitted, in many cases only from 2 to 10 voting against public power.

In Brantford the majority contest was fought out on this issue, and resulted in the return of Charles H. Hartman by a majority of 263.

Among the other cities and large towns which voted for Hydro power were Kingston, Owen Sound, Goderich, Clinton and Prescott.

Mayor Hopewell is again chief magistrate of Ottawa by a good majority, and Mayor Lees still retains the confidence of the electors of Hamilton.

Charles M. H. Graham is mayor of London, and F. J. Hoag had an acclamation in Kingston.

The city of Berlin voted to spend $130,000 for a number of civic improvements.

In Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Toronto's civic elections yesterday resulted in a turn down for the proposed subways and a win for most of the other bylaws. F. S. Spence, the well-known temperance man, and J. J. Ward, for a long time a controller, were defeated in the running for the Board of Control. The mayor was re-elected by acclamation. The new council is:

Mayor, G. R. Geary. Controllers, H. C. Hocken, J. O. McCarthy, T. Foster, T. Church. Aldermen: First Ward, D. Chisholm, Z. Hilton, W. J. Saunderson; Second Ward, J. O'Neill, H. A. Rowland, R. M. Yeomans; Third Ward, S. McBride (accl.), A. Maguire (accl.), M. Rawlinson (accl.); Fourth Ward, G. Weston, J. Wanless, G. McMurrich; Fifth Ward, J. Dunn, R. H. Graham, J. T. V. May; Sixth Ward, F. Mc Brien, D. Spence, J. A. Austin; Seventh Ward, A. J. Anderson, S. Ryding.

In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Jan. 2.—Hamilton's City Council for 1912 will be constituted as follows:

Mayor—George H. Lees (elected by acclamation).

Board of Control—W. G. Bailey, Charles W. Gardner, John Allan, Thomas W. Jutten.

Aldermen—Ward 1, J. H. Horning, J. H. Milne; Ward 2, Hugh S. Wallace, Charles G. Bird; Ward 3, David Garson, Charles W. Homing (accl.); Ward 4, J. E. Davey, Norman Clark (accl.); Ward 5, James MacKay, F. W. Littlewood; Ward 6, Wm. Ryan, Dr. Hopkins; Ward 7, David Newlands, Walter Elliott; Ward 8, P. F. Lalonde, Nathaniel Merigold.

Of the four money bylaws submitted to the ratepayers all were approved except the one for the purchase of a park site on the north shore of Burlington Bay. This measure was defeated by only 47 votes. The voting on the bylaws was as follows: East end park site: 2,353 for, 1,985 against. Waterworks extensions: 3,705 for, 1,169 against. New fire regulations: Gowerh against. New fire station: 2,903 for, 1,469 against. Underground lavatory, Gore Park: 2,932 for, 1,608 against.

London.

London, Jan. 2.—Charles M. A. Graham was yesterday elected mayor, defeating Ald. Eckert and Ald. Stevenson by a large majority. The business men's slate of eight, endorsed by the Board of Trade, was elected. Only three of last year's council go back again—Ashplant, Richeter and Bennett.

G. E. Rose, a Labor man, who was disqualified last year by Ald. Wilson, is returned. Ald. Bennett is also a Labor man. The council is as follows: Robinson, Moore, Richter, Ashplant, Wright, Coles, Blandford, Spittal, Rose, Murphy, Johnston, Bennett.

Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—All circumstances combined to make yesterday's municipal vote the heaviest ever polled in this city. With the keenest fight for the mayoralty that has occurred for many years, and the biggest struggle ever for the Board of Control, the people had a great incentive to turn out in throngs to the polling booths.

The figures of the vote for mayoralty were: Mayor Hopewell, 4,156; E. J. Laverdure, 3,937; Ross, 3,340; re-electing the old mayor by a majority of 219.

The vote for controllers was a close fight as regards the three last of the four elected out of nine candidates: McClenaghan 6,063, Parent 4,243, Hinchey 3,820, Hastey 3,543, Wilson 3,543, Pepper 3,388, Draper 3,363, Champagne 2,861, Stanley 2,258.

The aldermen elected in the different wards are: Rideau Ward, Perney and Slinn; Capital Ward, Nelson and Ault; Victoria Ward, Green and Garland; Dalhousie Ward, Forward and Black; By Ward, LaPointe and Desjointes; Central Ward, Hogg and Kent; Ottawa Ward—Valin and Desjardines; Wellington Ward, Campbell and Black.

Kingston.

Kingston, Jan. 2.—Kingston had four bylaws to vote on and interest centered there, as there was no mayoralty contest, Ald. F. J. Hoag having been elected by acclamation. All four carried. The bylaw asking for a reduction of ten liquor licenses was carried by a majority of 123, while other three giving a fixed assessment of $100,000 to the Canadian Locomotive Co., concessions to box factory, and giving city council power to open negotiations with the Hydro Electric Power Commission were carried by very large majorities.

The aldermen elected were: Ald. Wm. Clubston, Ald. J. W. Litton, Ald. W. P. Peters, R. D. Sutherland and Allan Stroud.

Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 2.—Charles H. Hartman was elected here yesterday on the Hydro-electric ticket by a majority of 266 over Joseph Ruddy. The bylaw to raise $85,000 for the improvement of the John H. Stratford Hospital was carried by nearly 500 majority, having received influential support in all the wards.

Berlin.

Berlin, Jan. 2.—The municipal contest yesterday resulted as follows: Mayor, William H. Schmalz; reeve, W. D. Euler; first deputy, N. Armusson; second deputy, H. A. Dietrich; third deputy, Fred Rirleder. Aldermen: E. W. Clement leads the poll, Carl Krantz, David Cross, William Pieper, C. H. Mills, H. A. Hagen, N. B. Wetweiler, Joseph Winterhalt, George Pucher, C. B. Dunk, Wm. O. Knichtel, J. R. Schilling, W. V. Utley, John S. Schwartz, John Schnarr.

Bylaw to raise $100,000 for extensions to the waterworks system was carried by 576 majority. Bylaw to raise $10,735 for deviation of Wilmot street storm drain was carried by 223 majority.

Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 2.—In a spirited contest for the mayoralty yesterday Mayor Munro defeated J. Stevenson by a majority of 188. The councillors elected are: George Boyd, A. G. Blain, J. A. McPhail, H. Sargeant, A. E. Crawford and P. M. Everett. School trustees: C. A. Leaney and U. McFadden elected by acclamation, and H. Meggeinston defeated R. G. Campbell in ward three.

Woodstock.

Woodstock, Jan. 2.—The municipal elections which took place yesterday aroused very little interest. Dr. A. B. Welford was elected over Clifford Kemp, barrister, for mayor, by a majority of nearly 500. Others elected were: Aldermen, J. G. McBeath, Geo. King, T. D. Broom, John Butler, W. D. Hobson, John Manning, George Parker, W. S. West, J. W. Scarff; Board of Education, G. Whitlaw, E. A. Rae, F Downs, Dr. John Mearns and W. S. Bean; water and light commissions, R. E. Butler and John Bain.

St. Thomas.

St. Thomas, Jan. 2.—Mayor, R. N. Price. Aldermen, Gilbert Roche heads poll, M. B. Josnon, K. C. Sanders, W. Trott, J. R. Martin, Frank Brinkman, A. E. Hookway, P. Weehan, C. Scrace, S. Chapter, W. K. Sanderson. School trustees, Henry Roe, Dr. Lumly, A. T. Smith, W. Bennett. Hospital bylaw carried. Street railway bylaw plebiscite defeated.

Windsor.

Windsor, Jan. 2.—Mayor, J. W. Hanna (re-elected by 1,108 majority over T. J. Eansor). Aldermen—First Ward, F. Howell, H. J. McKay and N. Irwin; second ward, P. M. Keogh, D. M. Eagle, J. H. Shepherd; third ward, A. Mertsky, H. Trumble, J. E. Banwell; fourth ward, Euclid Jacques, A. J. McTavish and W. Lanspeary. School trustees—G. A. Courtenay, B. Allison, Henry Clay and E. A. Edgar were elected.

St. Catharines.

St. Catharines, Jan. 2.—There was no local mayoralty contest here yesterday, Dr. Merritt being elected by acclamation, but ratepayers, besides electing city council with three new men, carried the bylaw empowering the city council to purchase "Old Corner Lot," known as Athletic Lacrosse grounds, to save them as permanent playground. The cost to the city will be $6,000.

Aldermen elected—St. Andrew's Ward, J. D. Chaplin 435, Thomas Nihan 308, W. B. Burgoyne 251; St. George's ward, W. A. Sherwood 230, C. M. Gibson 278, Byron Honsberger 250; St. Patrick's Ward, Robt. Black 395, J. A. Wiley 343, Melvin Moyer 343.

Chatham.

Chatham, Jan. 2.—Local option received a death blow in Chatham yesterday. On a straight vote it was defeated by 503 majority.

The following municipal representatives were elected: Mayor, W. Anderson. Aldermen: A. J. Dunn, Ed. Wanless, James Pritchard, C. E. Lister, S. B. Arnold, P. G. Piggott, A. D. Westman, J. W. Wilson, Sam Holmes. Board of Education: Frank D. Laurie, Dr. T. L. McRitchie, John A. Walker, W. E. Gundy. William Gordon was elected water commissioner by acclamation.

Protest Against Masons.

Montreal, Jan. 2.—It has just transpired that when the Canadian Roman Catholic archbishops met at Quebec to attend the consecration of Mgr. Mathieu, Bishop of Regina, they decided to send a letter of sympathy and protest to the archbishops and bishops of Portugal, in view of the attitude of the Government of that country towards the Catholic Church and its orders.

The language used by the prelates is very vigorous and Freemasons are held to be behind what is called an odious persecution. The Canadian archbishops, through Mgr. Begin of Quebec, who sent the protest, say that they hope the better feeling and better educated men of Portugal will stay their hand in the course they have already outlined.

Merger of Steamships.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The consolidation of the Eastern, Metropolitan and Maine Steamship Companies into one corporation became effective yesterday, notwithstanding protests made by Mayor Fitzgerald and others.

The properties are now owned by the Eastern Steamship Corporation.

The Fir Trees of the Pacific

"Next to the big tree of California, or sequoia, as it is termed by the scientists, the fir as found in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, has the largest diameter of any tree in America, and probably in the world. Some have been cut down which actually measured 15 feet in diameter at the point where the incision was made. As they decay very rapidly after the timber has been removed, usually the interior can be hollowed out with little difficulty. Sometimes they are used for dancing platforms... some being large enough to accommodate four couples."

OPTION GETS SETBACK

Prohibition Fights Show Defeat For the Alliance Workers.

Total Result of Year's Work Will Be the Cutting Off of Twenty Licenses —In Thirteen Municipalities the Temperance Workers Overcame the Three-Fifths Clause, In Eleven They Got a Simple Majority.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Slightly more than 20 licenses will be cut off as a result of the voting on local option bylaws throughout Ontario yesterday. Bylaws were carried over the three-fifths requirement in thirteen towns, villages and townships; while in eleven municipalities a majority was recorded, but the bylaws failed to get the necessary three-fifths.

In 23 municipalities the bylaws failed of even a straight majority. In all the cities where the reform was voted on it was defeated. Chatham, Fort William and Port Arthur were the most conspicuous of these, and they all defeated the measure, the antis were unsuccessful in securing a repeal in Owen Sound.

The liquor party were also unsuccessful in securing repeal in thirteen other municipalities, though figures are not available to show in how many places the three-fifths requirement prevent a return to license.

On the whole the local optionists have no reason to complain, since they held what they had and gained a few more.

Kingston voted on a bylaw to reduce the number of licenses from 25 to 15. This was carried.

The results are:

Sustained.

Richmond Hill—For repeal, 44; against repeal, 126. Majority, 82.

Coldwater—For repeal, 35; against, 88. Majority, 53.

Wyoming—For repeal, 46; against, 111. Majority, 65.

Thedford—For local option, 72; against, 55. Majority, 17.

Peel Township—Against repeal, 74; for repeal, 46. Majority, 28.

Tara—Against repeal, 76; for repeal, 57. Majority, 13.

Durham—Against repeal, 203; for repeal, 180. Majority, 23.

Lakefield—For repeal, 160; against repeal, 175. Majority, 15.

Carried.

Lucknow—For local option, 208; against local option, 70. Majority for, 138.

Kinloss—For local option, 320; against, 135. Majority, 185.

Calbogie Township—Carried by 3 to 1.

Cannington—For local option, 193; against, 84. Majority, 99.

Defeated by Three-Fifths Clause.

Sherbrooke Township—For local option, 40; against, 30. Defeated by the three-fifths requirement.

Goderich—For bylaw, 624; against, 449. Allowing for the three-fifths clause, this defeats the bylaw by a majority of 18.

Chesterville—For local option, 122; against, 108. Majority for, 14.

Hepworth—For local option, 43; against, 35. Majority for, 8.

Hagerman—For local option, 59; against local option, 48. Majority for, 11.

Wroxeter—For local option, 56; against, 42. Majority for, 14.

Caledonia—For local option, 153; against, 119. Majority for, 34.

Defeated by Straight Majority.

Dunnville—Local option was defeated in Dunnville by a vote of 284 for and 431 against.

Elgin—For local option, 182; against, 234.

Waterloo Township—The local option vote in Waterloo Township yesterday resulted in an utter defeat for the local optionists, being about twenty vote behind the anti vote.

Hastings—Against local option, 131; for, 84. Majority, 47.

Alvinston—The local option bylaw was defeated by the following vote: For, 108; against, 116.

Mimico—Against local option, 183; for, 148. Majority, 35.

Ontario Alliance workers were somewhat disappointed at the results of the battle between the drys and the wets. They had discounted the victories for their side in advance so far as the repeal contests, and were not surprised when the fourteen of the total fifteen repeal contests heard from were received in their favor to remain dry. The Alliance executive had the results announced in Room 411, Confederation Life Building. About 40 representative local optionists were present, including several ladies.

At first the meeting was marked by evidences of grave anxiety, and a tendency on everyone's part to lapse into deep silence.

When the announcement came that Owen Sound had been held by the drys, the meeting began to assume a normal appearance, but the defeat of local option in all the new urban municipalities attacked precluded any exurbant enthusiasm.

Freight Wreck In West.

EMPEROR HAS FLOWN?

Correspondent Says His Mother Has Taken Him Away.

Yuan Shi Kai Is Object of Attacks by Manchus, Says Same Reporter—Fighting Has Been Renewed Between Republicans and Imperialists and Battle Is In Progress—Princes' Wealth to Be Seized.

London, Jan. 2.—The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says that news received there from Manchuria reports the secret flight of the Emperor and the Dowager Empress of China through Mukden, on the way to the Imperial residence at Sehikhe, near the Mongolian frontier.

Yuan Shi Kai is suspected by the Manchus of playing double. He has not been shaved for days and does not sleep. He is being attacked and betrayed in every quarter, according to the correspondent, but still is holding his own courageously, like a lion at bay.

Fighting Renewed.

Hankow, Jan. 2.—Fighting between the revolutionists and the Imperialists, which began Sunday evening, was renewed yesterday morning twenty miles up the river, by the republicans, who had not yet received notice of the promulgation of an armistice. The republican commander ordered the fighting to cease, but a desultory gun fire was heard throughout the day.

Yuan Welcomed Attack.

Pekin, Jan. 2.—Much depends upon whether the fighting near Hankow was authorized by the republicans and whether it will be followed up by the republicans or imperialists. The Associated Press is informed that the news of the attack was welcomed by Yuan Shi Kai, who will now await the issue of the battle. If the Imperialists are victorious it will give the throne a brief lease of life, while a reverse to the Imperial arms, it is believed, would precipitate the abdication of the Emperor.

Must Surrender Wealth.

Paris, Jan. 2.—A special despatch to the Paris edition of The New York Herald from its Pekin correspondent says that Yuan Shi Kai, the Premier, to-day will present to the throne a signed demand of all the commanders of the northern army that the wealth of the princes and nobles shall be commandeered for a continuance of the war.

The memorial characterizes the dictatorial attitude of the revolutionists unbearable, expresses loyalty to the monarchy and a desire to fight the issue to a finish. It insists that unless the princes contribute they shall be treated as traitors. It is stated that if the memorial is rejected by the throne Yuan Shi Kai will insist that his resignation be accepted."

OLD LONDON REJOICES.

High Revel Is Held In Metropolis at Birth of the New Year.

London, Jan. 2.—Scenes of revelry in the city and west end of London heralded the birth of the New Year. All the leading hotels were crowded, and some of the schemes devised for the entertainment of dinner and supper parties were highly ingenious.

At the Carlton a huge basket of flowers were brilliantly illuminated, from the centre of which appeared a well-known actress, who sang "Auld Lang Syne." The guests joined in the song with great fervor.

A pretty surprise awaited the guests at the Savoy. Mavis York, a charming little actress, attended by 16 diminutive fairies, danced down the restaurant, distributing crackers and to the ladies handsome theatre bags.

A gigantic cracker which at midnight opened to allow Father Time to emerge and distribute souvenirs was the principal feature of the celebration at the Waldorf. Here also 24 singers from the London Opera House, dressed in mediaeval costume, sang carols to welcome the New Year.

The Hotel Cecil had a Roman chariot, drawn by a pony and driven by a fairy, to distribute crackers and souvenirs to the guests. At 12 o'clock the lights went out and when they were restored it was seen that ten waiters, who had been ranged around the room, had been suddenly changed and formed the greeting "A Happy New Year to You All."

Killed by Dynamite.

Lindsay, Jan. 2.—An Italian named Valentina Lucdano met death on Saturday afternoon at the construction camp on the line of the C.P.R. seaboard branch near Glenarm. It appears that Lucdano was in the act of sawing dynamite when a spark got into one of the cases causing a terrific explosion. Lucdano's body was blown to atoms, and a companion assistant some distance away was seriously injured and is now lying at the Ross Memorial Hospital here.

Six cases of dynamite exploded. Lucdano was a fine young fellow, about 22 years of age, unmarried, and a brother resides in town.

Had Narrow Escape.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 2.—One thousand persons escaped with difficulty from the First Presbyterian Church of this city early yesterday when the church was destroyed by fire. The congregation had assembled to hold special watch services. Shortly after the new year had been welcomed the church suddenly filled with smoke and the members had to grope their way out. Good order prevailed and no one was injured. A few minutes later flames swept through the edifice, which was soon a mass of ruins.

Cost of Fighting White Plague.

New York, Jan. 2.—The sum of $14,500,000 was spent during the year 1911 throughout the country in the war against tuberculosis, according to a statement issued last night by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

AT THE Y. M. C. A.

An exceptionally interesting address was delivered at the Y.M.C.A. rooms Sunday afternoon by the Rev. J. S. McKay of Neemuch, Central India, who gave a running sketch of his observations and experiences in the eastern world, speaking of the call for Christian officials in Japan and China, because of the lack of dependable native men, and the conditions in his immediate mission field, Mr. MacKay is brimming with information regarding the outlook for extending the work and claims that the East is awaking to the needs of the times, which will shortly develop into a radical change favorable to Christianity. Mr. MacKay, who is a very pleasing speaker, is now touring the west and will remain in this country until next summer, when with Mrs. MacKay he will return to his chosen work.

During a recent dispute between the Grand Trunk Pacific and their boiler makers, sympathetic interests with the latter endeavored through several channels to circulate the report that the freight traffic of the Grand Trunk Pacific was badly congested, and they had difficulty in moving freight. The Secretary of the Board of Trade of Watrous, Sask. wrote an unsolicited letter to the General Freight agent of the railway in which he complimented him on the position of the freight conditions on the line. In this letter he gives the information that in connection with the installation of the electric light plant at Watrous they received a carload of machinery on the 9th of December that was shipped from Montreal on the 29th of Nevember via Grand Trunk route, and says—"A ten day service between Montreal and Watrous appears to us an exceptionally good service under the best of conditions and it certainly does not go to show that your road is tied up in any manner but entirely the opposite, that you are able to handle all freight to the best interests of the shipper. I compliment you on the prompt service rendered."

THE CHILDREN'S PROTECTION ACT OF ONTARIO NEEDS TO BE AMENDED

Mr. Ritchie Approves the Act, but urges that certain Amendments are Needed to Render It Effective—Practical Suggestions from One Interested in the Work

To the Editor of The Inteligencer.

Dear Sir,—The Act respecting neglected and dependent children is one of more importance to the well being of our country than many are aware of, but certain amendments to the Act are needed to render it effective. In a very real sense the children belong to the State as well as to the parents, and the State is under obligation to see that they are protected from injurious treatment and thus provided with opportunity to become useful citizens, this not merely on philanthropic grounds, but also for economic and patriotic reasons. This obligation of the State is so far recognized that it provides for Public Schools to aid parents in Child Culture and enforces attendance.

Previous to the passage of the Children's Protection Act, little or nothing had been done for those children whose natural guardians utterly failed in their duty to the child, while it is well known that multitudes throughout the country are being born and growing up neglected and exposed to vicious and degrading conditions, left to become a burden to society as vagrants or criminals. Apart from the woes thus inflicted on the child itself through unworthy parentage the whole community suffers. If not for humanity's sake, yet from mere policy and for self-presrevation, active means ought to be adopted to stay the evil.

This undesirable progeny beget their like, and this class is usually more prolific than the well born; thus, the evil being neglected, keeps multiplying. The only practical application of any rational system of eugenics is to deal with the subject at its source, that is, with the children; we can do little or nothing to stem the tide by dealing with the depraved men and women who bring these children into the world. We cannot dispose of them by locking them up or otherwise disposing of them, or chloroforming them, as some would suggest; such resources are impracticable, except for the worst criminals.

The Protection Act of Ontario provides an excellent and efficient means of correcting the evil, if made operative. It grants authority to Children's Aid Societies to remove children from parents who are hopelessly neglecting them, and to have them committed as wards of the society, with the view of obtaining foster homes for them in respectable families. The object of these societies appeals to public sentiment and elicits much charitable aid throughout the community. What is wanting to complete the usefulness of the Act is provision for shelters wherein temporarily to care for the children until placed in foster homes. Also it will be necessary for the government to arrange for inspectors or agents, say one each to cover several adjoining counties, to aid the societies throughout the province in locating and delivering the rescued ones to the shelters.

The law as it stands provides for shelters, but only for cities and large towns. The Act says, clause 6 (1): "That every city or town having a population of ten thousand or over shall provide one or more places of refuge for such children to be known as temporary homes or shelters." This seemingly contemplates that the evil exists only or chiefly in large centres of population, whereas it extends widely in rural districts, not so patent indeed as in cities, but actually to even a greater extent, in some sections, in proportion to the number of inhabitants, out of sight in obscure places. It will therefore be found necessary to amend this Act to make it imperative for every county town to provide a shelter, which can be effected with but smal cost to municipalities. Unless these shelters and a certain number of inspectors are provided, the object of the Children's Aid Society cannot be carried out efficiently. For instance, some years ago a society was formed in Belleville of members eager to help in rescue work, but previous to having a shelter which was afterwards provided by the city, very little was accomplished owing to the difficulty of temporarily harboring the children perhaps not more than a dozen children were dealt with in as many years, but after a shelter was secured and an inspector employed, in two yeare one hundred and sixty neglected ones were provided for and foster homes found for nearly all of them and let it be noted, that the greater number of these were taken from outlying districts in the country, not more than ten or twelve being from town or city.

It is certain that the Children's Aid Societies will accomplish a most important work for the social uplift of the province if made operative by these amendments, and the Act efficiently administered. The object of the societies appeals strongly to the public and liberal contributions will be made in money and in kind, for maintenance in the shelters.

Among those neglected ones there are to be found a few defective children for whom foster homes cannot be secured. As these cannot be left to perish, the government will need to establish a central home wherein to care for them, and also to receive and care for a few very young boys between the ages of one and eight years for whom it is sometimes difficult to speedily find homes, though girls of any age are quickly adopted or provided for in families. Local shelters are not intended to retain a child for a lengthened period or to act as a training school. If this were attempted it would defeat the very object in view, which is to obtain a home for it. It will therefore be necessary for the Government to make provision to deal with these exceptional cases in a central home.

To casual observers little conception can be formed of the number of neglected and dependent children that are scattered throughout the province. Experience shows, however, that where even limited areas have ben thoroughly canvassed such numbers are found as to lead to the conclusion that there are thousands of such who are growing up to become a menace to society. Therefore, if from no higher moitve than for material gain alone, strenuous efforts ought to be taken to arrest this evil. Of course this will cost something, but the cost will be but a fraction of what it now costs the Province in prisons, reformatories, penitentiaries, industrial schools, etc. A competent authority has estimated that it will cost but five dollars to SAVE a child, whereas it costs one hundred dollars to PUNISH a criminal, and it is from neglected children that the ranks of professional criminals are recruited. Further still, in saving the children we are diminishing a fruitful source of moral corruption, and besides all this preserving valuable lives for a useful career.

For many years we have been caring for a large number of this class of children imported from the old land. Ought we not also to care for our own?

When given a fair chance these young waifs usually turn out about as well as children of ordinarily well regulated families. Moral delinquency arises almost wholly from evil environment.

We are professedly a Christian people, and Christ has said: "It is not the will of your Father which is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." The responsibility is on the State, and in proportion as we let them perish, we suffer with them.

As the law now stands and is at present administered, it is practically a dead letter except in a few localities where necessary appliance is furnished through the charity of individuals in giving a shelter and paying an inspector.

THOS. RITCHIE.

With the new train service that went into effect recently on the Grand Trunk Railway, the announcement is made that 98 of the new stations, out of the 150 contracted, for in the Spring, have been opened, 27 are under construction, and the balance will be completed in the Spring.

These stations on the Grand Trunk Pacific are an innovation as far as stations in Western Canada are concerned, for they provide, unlike stations built heretofore, for the looking after the flag stations all the year round. This means that stations called flag stations, points where trains stop only when there are passengers to get on or off, are in charge winter and summer by a capable employee and kept heated day and night. The arrangement has been made with section men to live in these stations, quarters having been provided for them, and in return for looking after the station and keeping it in shape for receiving passengers at all times, they have heat and rent free. The one stipulation that is put on by the company is that the agent or section man must be married, for in this way the company thinks they will receive better service.

THE ORIGIN OF OPIUM

The Cultivation of Poppies which was only Begun in China 250 Years Ago was Imported from the West Into India.

The same political developments are to be seen in the East as in the West, but in a lesser degree, and to affirm that the West has outstripped the East, or that the East has lagged behind the West, is to affirm things about which nothing certain can be said. It is curious that the vice which is regarded as most distinctly Asiatic should have originated in Europe. Seven thousand years ago in the so-called Stone age, the lake dwellers of Switzerland were cultivating poppies, apparently for the oil in the seed.

In the South of Europe and on the Mediterranean shores of Africa the opium poppy—or rather the wild poppy of which the opium poppy is a cultivated variety—was grown perhaps two thousand years ago. The Greeks were acquainted with the somniferous properties of the sap which was used as medicine, but chiefly it was cultivated for the oil. Now this variety of poppy does not grow wild in Asia; it was apparently introduced into Persia, India, and China by Arab traders, as the narcotic juice seems to have been largely used by the Arabians for the pleasurable effects produced. It appears to have reached India about a thousand years ago, although no doubt the drug was imported before that time, and five hundred years ago it was an article of trade between India and China.

The cultivation of poppies, however, apparently was only begun in China some two hundred years ago, when the Chinese hit upon the plan of inhaling the fumes by burning the drug—the so-called opium smoking. Here we see the introduction of a narcotic from the West to the East, and the question arises why the West has been able to escape from its influence while so many Eastern nations have succumbed? This is more especially curious when we remember that tobacco, also introduced to the East from the West, is now as popular in Europe as in Asia and other parts of the world.

Whatever be the cause of this comparative indifference to opium in Europe, it remains a fact that its use and cultivation were imported from the West, and thus an Asiatic vice turns out to be not peculiarly Asiatic at all.

VARIETY OF HOLES IN GOLF

The up-to-date golf architects generally agree nowadays that in the arrangement of courses that mean something there should be a complete variety of holes not only as to length, but in their character, the way in which they are bunkered, the kind of tee shot that is required at them, and last, but not least, the kind of approach. In every case the putting greens should be thoroughly well guarded.

It has also been claimed that the shorter the hole the smaller should be the green and the more closely it should be guarded, so that on this principle when in good play a long shot can reach the green which should be fairly large and open in order to give the player encouragement to which he is entitled.

In this subject, however, there must ever be difference of opinion. There are those who argue that it is wrong to say that a fairly long course is a sufficient test to select the best golfer out of a field of any fifty or one hundred competitors. In other words, no course can be a thorough test of the skill and nerve of the player which has not so closely guarded greens that on occasions there is but one, and that a most skillful shot, by which the long approach can get home.

Football

How sports, once only followed in the British Empire, have became popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by no means confined to the white race. Some of the native teams in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussern Hegarsi as centre forward on Saturday, against Stockport. He is an Egyptian, who showed capital form against English teams at Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he shaped very well for a first appearance in an important game.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WOMAN WALKS 8000 MILES

A walk of 6,000 miles was recently be finished by Mrs. Stella Woolf, and her husband, Dwight H. Woolf, when they arrive at their home in Kansas City.

The trip started at San Antonio, Texas, more than thirteen months ago. The pair went first to Atlanta and then to New York, where they turned their steps toward home. Previously they made two other walking tours and have covered a total of 10,300 miles on foot.

"When you get into a rut walk out," said Woolf today, as he explained that he took up walking in order to get the outdoor life which his physician two years ago said he must have. At that time Woolf was a music dealer. His health was poor and the doctor told him he would have to get out in the open or die.

"Let's walk," suggested his wife, "for I'm going along."

With them went the family pets, a faithful pony, which has drawn a cart carrying their baggage on the long marches, and a dog.

The Woolfs have eaten and slept in the open. Since leaving San Antonio they have spent only twenty-one nights out of 411 with a roof over their heads.

BOB FITZ THE MOST REMARKABLE FIGHTER

Who was the most remarkable heavy-weight fighter who ever put up his gloves under the Marquis of Queensbury rules? Answer: Bob Fitzimmons. The freckled faced Cornishman, maker of horse shoes, and built like a reversed pyramid, was the most extraordinary fighter.

Fitz was thirty-five years old when he won the championship of the world from Jim Corbett at Carson City. He was thirty-seven when he lost the title to Jeffries and thirty nine when beaten by the Californian the second time.

Age is a big factor in this story. It serves to show that the ruddy product of the antipodes was more extraordinary than Jeffries, who up to the recent disaster at Reno was generally conceded the distinction. Likewise it proves that care of a body can combat the advance of years to a certain extent.

Jeffries was twenty-four years old when he beat Fitzimmons at Coney Island. He was thirty-five years, two months and nineteen days old when Johnson whipped him in the "battle of the century," July 4. At thirty five he is an old man. At this same age Fitz was in the zenith of his great power.

After the two knockouts which Jeffries imposed on him, the Cornishman went out and beat all candidates except Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, with whom he drew, until the total period of his existence totalled forty-three years. What other fighter in the history of pugilism can claim such a record? None.

Fitzimmons' is to be considered all the more extraordinary because of the weight handicap which he suffered after he defeated all the middleweights. Never scaling more than 170 pounds he had all the punching force of men of fifty pounds more left.

At twenty-nine Jeff retired from the ring and rested on his reputation. He did much hunting and fishing, but idleness was his principal occupation for six years. And when he was induced to train and knock the packing out of Johnson, his paunch bulged out like a submarine boat. He reduced to his old weight after much effort. In training he looked as good as when he had made mince meat of Jack Munro, as his farewell fight. But Ed Dunkhorst could have put up a better battle at Reno than the "mighty" Jeff.

BASEBALL SALARIES WONT BE CUT.

The fact that the minor baseball leagues intend to reduce salaries of players in future has alarmed members of the profession who firmly believe that in the course of time the magnates of the majors the National and The American will decide to adopt a similar policy. Alarmists point to present conditions in organized baseball as favorable. From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico there isn't an outlaw circuit. The players, big and little, are at the mercy of organized major and minor leagues wherever professional baseball thrives upon gate receipts. If the major league magnates wanted to apply the screws and chop salaries the players would be compelled to submit or retire from the diamond. They could get no baseball employment anywhere else unless with semi-professional teams paying nominal salaries for one or two games a week.

ENGLISHMEN AND OLYMPIC GAMES.

To win the Olympic games seems to be the ruling passion of a large number of Englishmen, just now. The wave of patriotism is sweeping in England. The cry for Olympic material has reached national proportions.

Englishmen have always been wonderful distance runners. They have been weak at the sprints and in some of the field events.

The effort now being made is to find men capable of holding the old country on the field and in the sprints in the hope that the distance runners will "bring home the bacon."

HARRY GREEN

Two of the best amateurs in England are Harry Green, a marathon runner of ability and W. Scott, England's 10-mile champion.

LACROSSE ON SKATES

A new game is being introduced in Regina this winter, lacrosse on skates. It has been tried and accepted by the sportsmen in Eastern Ontario, and will be given a trial. It is played by seven-men teams, who line up as they would on a lacrosse green. A soft ball is used and players are not allowed to raise their sticks above the shoulders. An offender against this is sent to the penalty box. This rule makes underhand passing and shooting imperative.

The Rough Riders as instituting the game in Regina, and are ready to meet any team in town that would like to take a whirl at it. They organized at a meeting held in the Palmer House, when the following officers were elected:

Ladies' Golf Attire.

A golf kit is an essential in the wardrobe of most of the society women who are now out on holiday. The Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia who have been seen doing a round on the links at Ballater in pouring rain, are two Royal ladies who play a good game, and Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein is another Royal enthusiast for golf. The Duchess of Marlborough, Mrs. Asquith and the Premier's daughters are some of the ladies known on the links of Gullane and North Berwick. A short skirt of Harris tweed or serge with tailor-made shirt of soft silk or a fine wool, low-heeled shoes, and a jacket of knitted wool, with either a cap to match or the smallest and simplest of turbans in suede — such is the outfit of the woman golfer who is in earnest. There is greater variety than ever this year in the matter of golf coats.

BELLEVILLE'S DEVELOPMENT DURING THE PAST YEAR

New Buildings Erected at a Cost of Over $300,000-Nearly $200;000 Expended on Public Works—C. N. R. Expenditure would Bring Total up to Nearly a Million

In reply to a request from The Financial Post, the most influential financial journal perhaps in Canada, the City Engineer has, we understand, been able to show a development in the building trade in Belleville which few will relaize, the expenditure totalling over $300,000, and this takes no account of the operations conducted by the City Engineer's department, the contracts for sewerage alone being over $70,000. Public works and concrete works, $30,000, and water works exceeding $25,000, or a total expenditure of little less than half a million dollars. This is more than encouraging, placing Belleville as it does in the front rank of building development.

Were the expenditure of the C.N.O.R. in constructing their line, bridge and buildings in Belleville added to the above it would raise the total to a million dollars or over.

That 1912 wil show equally satisfactory results there is already good reason to believe and hope. With Front street paved from the upper bridge to Dundas street, as we believe and understand it will, a sewerage scheme for the west side of the city, and a permanent treatment of road building for our residential streets, especially on the east side where sewers and connections are now laid, Belleville will yet become a beautiful city, as it was certainly intended to be, nature having been very bounteous in that respect, and all will look and hope for this result at no distant date.

(Intelligencer Special).

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Captain Lux, the French officer who escaped from a German fortress, has left Paris because it was feared popular jubilation would assume the form of an anti German demonstration.

The only occupants of the police cells last night were three tramps, all of whom were comparatively young men.

McLAREN—ROBINSON.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Robinson, Blessington, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27th, when their youngest daughter, Sabra Maude, was united in marriage with Mr. Ross McLaren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McLaren, of Melrose. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, pastor of Cannifton Methodist church. The pretty dark-eyed bride, in a handsome gown of white marquisette, trimmed with lace, and carrying a bouquet of roses, entered the long drawing room on the arm of her father, Miss Sheffield playing Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the bridal party entered. Little Maude McLaren, niece of the groom, made a dainty little flower girl, in a white embroidered frock, and carrying a basket of pink carnations in which the ring lay. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst and to the flower girl a pearl ring. Mr. and Mrs. McLaren left later for Montreal and other eastern cities, the bride going away in a brown broadcloth suit and hat to match. On their return they will reside at Melrose.

BABE SAFE IN ARMS OF DEAD MOTHER

Woman Wraps Cloak About Little Son and Sinks Exhausted

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Dec. 30.—After an all night search in a blinding snow storm, amounting almost to a blizzard, W. D. Nilton found the body of his wife this morning, buried in the snow near Fowler. Clinging to her breast was her five year old son.

The boy was partly protected from the cold by his mother's body and was still alive. He may recover.

Mrs. Nilton taught school at St Jacob's Well, 16 miles from Mineola. She started home with her son in a buggy about 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It had been snowing nearly all day and the road was blocked with drifts in many places.

The mother evidently decided to reach home by walking across fields and taking her son with her, deserted the horse and buggy.

Although her home is only 2 1-2 miles from the school, the body was found 4 1-2 miles distant, showing that she had lost her way in the darkness, wandering in a circle in two feet of snow. She had been dead several hours before the body was found.

After being carried to his home and partially revived, the little boy was able to tell of the wanderings of his mother in the snowstorm. Part of the time she had carried her son, and part of the time he stumbled along after her, his hand clasped tight in hers. Finally the boy was unable longer to travel in the snow which reached his armpits in places, and the mother, unable to carry him, sank down and put her cloak about him. The extreme cold soon caused the boy to fall asleep. The last he remembers was his mother calling for help.

FRENCH OFFICER'S ESCAPE.

His Brother-Officers Concealed Thin Files in Cover of Books.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—General Messimy, Minister of War, has forbidden Capt. Lux, who recently escaped from the fortress of Graetz, in Prussia, where he was serving a term of six years' imprisonment for spying out German military secrets, to accept a projected newspaper subscription designed to make him a presentation as a gift from the people of France. The French Minister of War wishes the matter to be forgotten, as continued reference to it might unnecessarily inflame German opinion.

Public opinion in France is elated over Capt. Lux's audacity and ingenuity. It is now established that his flight from the fortress prison was carefully planned by his brother officers in France. They forwarded to Capt. Lux various works on the "Life of Napoleon." There were heavily bound in leather and the covers concealed several thin but powerful steel files with which he eventually sawed his way through the prison bars to freedom. Capt. Lux was informed of the scheme for his release by marked letters in the books and phrases written in invisible ink.

Give a boy all the liberty he wants and he'll be lucky if he doesn't land in jail.

Swift and Co's Smokehouse Goes Up In Smoke—Firemen Injured

(Intelligencer Special.)

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 3.—Fire which broke out at 10 o'clock last night, destroyed Swift & Company's smokehouse, a five-storey building, almost a block long and 200 feet deep, and was still burning early to-day after having wrought damage to the extent of $500,000. Three firemen were injured.

AN OTTAWA RUMOR

(Intelligencer Special.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 3.—The Free Press today prints a rumor emanating from Montreal that Mr. Monk will shortly leave the Cabinet and take the place of Hon. Mr. Brodeur on the Supreme Court Bench, the latter replacing Hon. Phillippe Roy as Canadian Commissioner in Paris. Then, it is added, Hon. Mr. Perley will be made Minister of Public Works and Mr. Bourassa will become a Minister without portfolio. The story is not credited in political circles.

KILLED BY TRAIN

(Intelligencer Special)

PARIS, Ont., Jan. 3.—George Spahlegher, a piano tuner, of Goderich, was struck and instantly killed by the through express at the Grand Trunk station here last night.

HAD TO LEAVE

(Intelligencer Special).

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Captain Lux, the French officer who escaped from a German fortress, has left Paris because it was feared popular jubilation would assume the form of an anti German demonstration.

The only occupants of the police cells last night were three tramps, all of whom were comparatively young men.

McLAREN—ROBINSON.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Robinson, Blessington, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27th, when their youngest daughter, Sabra Maude, was united in marriage with Mr. Ross McLaren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McLaren, of Melrose. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, pastor of Canniffton Methodist church. The pretty dark-eyed bride, in a handsome gown of white marquisette, trimmed with lace, and carrying a bouquet of roses, entered the long drawing room on the arm of her father, Miss Sheffield playing Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the bridal party entered. Little Maude McLaren, niece of the groom, made a dainty little flower girl, in a white embroidered frock, and carrying a basket of pink carnations in which the ring lay. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl sunburst and to the flower girl a pearl ring. Mr. and Mrs. McLaren left later for Montreal and other eastern cities, the bride going away in a brown broadcloth suit and hat to match. On their return they will reside at Melrose.

Woman Wraps Cloak About Little Son and Sinks Exhausted

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Dec. 30.—After an all night search in a blinding snow storm, amounting almost to a blizzard, W. D. Nilton found the body of his wife this morning, buried in the snow near Fowler. Clinging to her breast was her five year old son.

The boy was partly protected from the cold by his mother's body and was still alive. He may recover.

Mrs. Nilton's taught school at St. Jacob's Well, 16 miles from Mineola. She started home with her son in a buggy about 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It had been snowing nearly all day and the road was blocked with drifts in many places.

The mother evidently decided to reach home by walking across fields and taking her son with her, deserted the horse and buggy.

Although her home is only 2 1-2 miles from the school, the body was found 4 1-2 miles distant, showing that she had lost her way in the darkness, wandering in a circle in two feet of snow. She had been dead several hours before the body was found.

After being carried to his home and partially revived, the little boy was able to tell of the wanderings of his mother in the snowstorm. Part of the time she had carried her son, and part of the time he stumbled along after her, his hand clasped tight in hers. Finally the boy was unable longer to travel in the snow which reached his armpits in places, and the mother, unable to carry him, sank down and put her cloak about him. The extreme cold soon caused the boy to fall asleep. The last he remembers was his mother calling for help.

FRENCH OFFICER'S ESCAPE.

His Brother-Officers Concealed Thin Files in Cover of Books.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—General Messimy, Minister of War, has forbidden Capt. Lux, who recently escaped from the fortress of Graetz, in Prussia, where he was serving a term of six years' imprisonment for spying out German military secrets, to accept a projected newspaper subscription designed to make him a presentation as a gift from the people of France. The French Minister of War wishes the matter to be forgotten, as continued reference to it might unnecessarily inflame German opinion.

Public opinion in France is elated over Capt. Lux's audacity and ingenuity. It is now established that his flight from the fortress prison was carefully planned by his brother officers in France. They forwarded to Capt. Lux various works on the "Life of Napoleon." There were heavily bound in leather and the covers concealed several thin but powerful steel files with which he eventually sawed his way through the prison bars to freedom. Capt. Lux was informed of the scheme for his release by marked letters in the books and phrases written in invisible ink.

Give a boy all the liberty he wants and he'll be lucky it he doesn't land in jail.

Dressing Room Scene from "THE CHORUS LADY," at Griffin's to-morrow night. Plan now open at Doyle's.

SPORTING NOTES

The game here with Trenton Juniors scheduled for Friday night is off, there being no fit ice in the local rink.

The Kingston Collegiate Institute hockey team notified the O.H.A. yesterday that they would be compelled to withdraw from that competition owing to the big schedule and the mild weather. Had they been able to play on New Year's they would have probably been able to work in their out of town games all right, but there was no ice at Picton. Belleville juniors were to have played them at Kingston to-night, but the game is off.

These O.H.A. players registered yesterday:

Picton (junior)—Wellesley Scott, F. G. Moffatt, Earl Hickey, Clifford Cooper, Bernard Sayers, Albert G. Hare, George Jones, Ernest Hudgin.

Mr. Ivor Thomas will on Saturday next at 4 o'clock give the first of a series of six monthly organ recitals in Bridge St. Methodist Church. These Recitals will be given on the first Saturday in each month and are in aid of the Organ Fund. An offering of ten cents and upwards will be taken at the door. Miss Wanda Riggs, soprano, will assist at the recital on Saturday next.

HAPPY BUT NOT HEALTHY ARE CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS.

Noted European Alienist Says Many Are Made Insane on the Subject.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Dr. Bernard Hollander, one of the best known European specialists on mental diseases, makes a remarkable contribution to a campaign being carried on by the Daily Express against Christian Science.

He asserts that his investigations have shown him many patients who have become insane on the subject of Christian Science, and that in cases of persons with psychopathic tendencies, it only requires the extra stimulus which these beliefs furnish to send them off their balance.

"Christian Science," he concluded, "is a danger to the community for though it may make a certain class of people happy, it cannot make them healthy."

N. Y. STREET DANGERS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Dangers of the streets of New York are thrown into strong relief in the annual report of the Highways Protective Society made public to-day, showing that street accidents resulted in the killing of 423 persons and the injury of 2,004 in 1911. During 1910 there were 376 killed and 930 seriously injured by vehicular traffic in the city streets.

The automobile has not yet outstripped the horse and waggon as a slayer of pedestrians the report shows, the tally standing 142 fatalities for motors and 172 waggons. Trolley cars killed 109 persons and injured 604. Sixty chauffeurs ran away and escaped detection after killing pedestrians, according to the report.

Daily Intelligencer.

Wife—"Georgie, do you know that the children need new shoes?"

Husband—"So does the auto. The children wi'l have to wait."—Puck.

Walking is said to be one of the best of tonics. Strange to say, running is not. Just ask some of the candidates for municipal honors in Belleville and elsewhere.

First Politician—"Don't you admire Santa Claus?"

Second Politician—"Yes. He seldom gets caught with the goods on him."—New York Sun.

Everybody in Canada is gratified by the appointment of Premier Borden to the Imperial Privy Council. Never was the honor more worthily bestowed. Mr. Borden is a political Bayard, "without fear and without reproach."

The chief characters of the duke of Argyll's new opera are Irish, and the scenes are in Ireland and ancient Carthage. It remains to be seen whether this work of art is to constitute another Irish grievance.—Hamilton Herald.

Seventy-seven murderers in the Cook county jail, Chicago, were given a Christmas dinner and allowed to exchange Yuletide greetings with the 600 other prisoners. They are reported to have enjoyed the event hugely. May they have many happy returns of the day—in Cook county jail.

The salutary effect of the three-fifths clause in the local option law has been demonstrated in the attempt to repeal the act in thirteen dry municipalities. Had the simple majority principle prevailed the dry municipalities would now be wet.

Because of the completion of certain parts of the work for winter, about two hundred men engaged in engineering, clerical and other work on the transcontinental railway have been relieved from duty. No doubt this will be condemned as an outrageous enforcement of the spoils system by the Opposition.

Quebec has a scandal. The City Council has authorized an investigation by the Recorder, recommended by the water works committee, into a water pipe scandal. Mr. McQuestion, a director of the McLaren Company, Montreal, denies under oath that the company gave instructions to bribe anybody. An investigation may unearth something.

There is a growing impression in England that in view of the Russian occupation of the northern part of Persia that country is not likely to regain its control of its territory. There is so much in the history of empire expansion of other countries besides Russia to suggest that the surmise will be justified by events. Russia has a great land appetite, and Persia is placed to seem like a natural meal.—Montreal Gazette.

Cablegrams from England say no less than 260,000 hands are locked out in the cotton spinning district of England—the result of the labor unions refusing to work because one man and two women, who refused to join the union were employed in one of the mills. Another evidence of the labor unrest in the United Kingdom was manifested yesterday when 200 colliers employed in the mines at Treorchy, Wales, went out on strike as a protest against the employment of non-union miners. In the past we have boasted of living in a free country. The unions have destroyed that hallucination.

A Los Angeles despatch tells of sixty of its citizens, on a world tour, who were unwilling witnesses of a wholesale execution of a band of pirates in Canton, China, the former having been caught within the cordon of police, while sight seeing, and unable to make their escape. Two or three of the men fainted, but the women displayed more stoicism. The story is likely enough. Those familiar with the locality know that the execution ground is as exposed as a vacant lot between two houses, where guides invariably pilot their patrons, and it is probably thus that they were hemmed in. When it is known that upward of 300 are decapitated annually in that city, many with horrible details of torture added, it may be surmised how any one may duplicate the experience of these Americans.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Belleville Intermediates will play their first game of the season at Trenton on Friday night.

The two diplomas for Grand Prix awarded by the Festival of Empire and Imperial Exposition at London, Eng., 1911, to the Grand Trunk Railway System and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for their exhibition building and general exhibits therein was received at headquarters of these respective companies this week.

The diplomas are handsomely engraved, and printed on heavy parchment, and have been added to the large collection of awards that the Grand Trunk System have secured in recent years at all the big exhibitions that have been held throughout the world.

The Grand Trunk have decided to continue this exhibition at the Crystal Palace, London, next year from April 8th until Oct. 31st, and preparations are in hand for the purpose of adding to and changing the general scheme of the interior decorations of the building that will make it even more attractive than it was during the Festival of Empire.

Every one who has seen the Grand Trunk Pavilion at the Crystal Palace say that it is one of the best on the grounds, and the exhibit one of the finest and most attractive.

What about that ship of yours that is to come in—has it started yet.

And when a man hopes for the best and gets it, he wishes he had hoped for something better.

Two Days to Make a Town

The largest single building ever moved bodily was a block of dwelling-houses known as Normandy Apartments in America. The building weighed 8,000 tons, yet it was decided to shift it as it stood, in order to make room for an elevated railway. It was done, however, without any mishaps, though the move took ten weeks' hard labour to accomplish.

In 1890 the inhabitants of Tipperary had a dispute with their ground landlord, and gave notice to quit in a body. At a spot some miles distant they were provided by the Land League with a brand-new Tipperary. Unlike the inhabitants of Platte they decided to leave the houses standing, though everything else portable was taken. It was lucky they did so, for New Tipperary proved a hopeless failure, and after a few months the inhabitants had another huge flitting back to their old homes.

The new football rule making it imperative for a goalkeeper to wear a distinguishing jersey led to an amusing incident at a junior match in the Midlands recently.

When the visiting team came on the field their goalkeeper, a youth of gigantic proportions, was seen to be wearing a jersey of the same flaring colours as the rest of the side.

"You must get another jersey," ordered the referee, and the player trotted back to the pavilion.

Back he came in five minutes, still wearng the offending garment. "There ain't another jersey in the place half big enough," he explained.

"Then you'll have to play without one," snapped the autocrat of the whistle, whose temper was not sweetened by waiting about in a cold drizzle.

When the young giant once more reappeared on the field with his team's colours still in evidence, the patience of the official quite gave way.

"If you don't change that jersey I'll order you off the field!" he bellowed.

"I ain't got no jersey on, mister," came the reply. "I've been wearin' the blessed thing as an undershirt all the week, and the bloomin' dye's come out!"

THE Paternoster Ruby

BY CHARLES EDMOND WALK

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press Limited, Toronto.

"Well, we're hot on the scent, at any rate," was my comment, as I folded them again, without a glance inside.

"Wait!" said I. "This is a solemn occasion, and it should be recognized with some fitting observance."

"Oh, don't tease!" cried Genevieve, dancing up and down with impatience, and trying to pluck the papers from my hand.

"I'm not teasing, my dear," said I; "I'm terribly serious. We are pretty near the end of the trail, little girl; after we have read this imposing document we will have reached the end. I'm halfway sorry, too, notwithstanding the grim tragedy that has hung over us. We must celebrate the last event with an appropriate rite—a fire upon the library hearth."

She flushed with delight, and consented to wait until I had the fire going properly. It was a most successful fire. We dragged the library table up close; I jumped Genevieve to a seat beside me. She placed a hand upon my shoulder, and our heads were again very close together.

"Now, then!" I shook the papers open.

The more imposing one—the agreement—I placed beneath; its dry legal phraseology was not at all inviting. The other sheets were, however. They too were written all over in Felix Page's hand, but bore the blunt, direct phrases of a man used to expressing himself without and rhetorical embellishment or nonsense.

And this is what we read:

This explanation is written to clear up any misunderstanding or doubt, that may arise after my death, over the stone called the Paternoster Ruby.

In June, 1884, I learned that Alfred Fluette was trying to buy it from the Paternostros. I at once determined that he should not have the stone if money could prevent it. So I too became a bidder.

The first figure set by the dealers was almost prohibitive, but as Fluette seemed willing to meet it, I was ready to go him one better. But the wily Italians hedged. They set us to bidding against each other, and as the price rose my resolution to get the stone grew more set.

While the bids mounted, I was given ample satisfaction for the weight of whatever financial obligations I was incurring by Fluette's increasing worry and chagrin. He was like a pup that doesn't know whether the bone is going into the soup-kettle or the garbage-can. I swore to have that bit of red glass if it took every cent that I could rake and scrape together—and I had a few of them.

Finally Fluette drew out, cursing me. I brought the Italians to a showdown.

Still they hesitated. I became suspicious.

One night Cristofano Paternostro, the head of the firm, called at my hotel. He was nervous and ill at ease. He informed me, with many hems and haws, that the ruby Fluette and I had been snarling over was lying at the bottom of the English Channel, and that they would be unable to deliver the goods. He had a good deal to say about the prestige the ruby gave the firm, and much more to the same effect, until I cut him off short. I told him that the ruby was nearer making him ridiculous.

It seems that after they recovered the stone in Paris, the expert who accompanied them couldn't resist the temptation to steal it. Besides being a gem expert and an expert thief, this fellow was an expert swimmer. When the boat was near land he tried to get away with the prize by jumping overboard, under cover of night, and swimming ashore. He did succeed in reaching the nearest land—which is to say, straight down. And that was the last of him, the ruby, and pretty nearly of the three Italians.

Since the ruby couldn't be recovered, they agreed to make the best of it. They agreed to keep the matter among themselves, and to continue to reap all the advertising benefits which the supposed possession of such a costly trinket gave them.

It was a joke, that. Here was I, like an old idiot, trying to spend good money for something the other fellow didn't have to sell.

But pretty soon I saw a way to reach my end just the same as though I'd beat Fluette in the deal. It was a whole lot better than that, in fact. I could get out from under without it costing me a cent, and still make Fluette and the world believe that I had bought the ruby.

"Nice thing for the Paternostros," says I, "when all this comes out."

Crisofano turned green. He begged me not to tell. He promised me the pick of his gems if I'd only keep the secret.

I looked at him pretty sour. "Very well," says I at last. "You give me the imitation stone. I'll never disclose the fact that you didn't have the original ruby, if you will announce to the world that is was sold to me for $500,000. As long as you keep your mouth shut, I'll keep mine."

He was tickled to death. Nothing would do but he must have in the rest of the firm (his brother and cousin). When they came I had a written contract prepared for them, setting forth the terms of our agreement and binding them with a penalty heavy to keep them from blabbing. (Contract memo. attached hereto).

How long we remained silent in the midst of a speechless wonder, I havn't the least idea. Words were wholly inadequate even feebly to express the mingled feelings with which we slowly digested the full force and import of this remarkable document.

So the very heart and essence of the tragedy, the crimson woof that knitted together the dark warp of its fabric, had all along been unreal and without substance! or a gem that can not be applied to its ordained function can scarcely be said to have an existence. Yet the Paternoster ruby had been potent to project its maleficent influence from the depths of its watery grave, and shape the destinies of the living. Verily, Fate never played a grimmer joke.

My thoughts drifted back to the night of the murder. Why had Felix Page paused beside the table while going between the hidden safe and Maillot, who was waiting in the library? I could imagine only one explanation: as he passed the table he was siezed with a sudden impulse to impart the secret to the young man, even going to the extent of setting down the jewel-box so that one hand would be free to manipulate the tack-heads. But a second thought had prevailed. He picked up the box and proceeded on his way.

Genevieve, round-eyed, sat staring into the dying fire. (That was a jolly fire!) Presently her head bent over to my shoulder, and without looking up she quoted a familiar couplet which must have occurred to the reader ere this:

> "Full many a gem of purest ray serene
> The dark, unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

I mention the circumstance because it prompted an idea which suddenly set me to laughing. Genevieve looked at me in alarm.

"What in the world!" she marveled, for the silence had been very sedate.

"Little girl," I at last enlightened her, "it will pay you to go with me when we leave here—to the Central Station. There's something I want us to enjoy together; it will compensate for a deal of your late trouble and anxiety."

"What is it?"

"I want to hand Alexander Burke these papers, tell him they're what was hidden in the table—then quietly watch him while he reads."

I meant to do it, too. But Genevieve failed to enter into the spirit of the suggestion.

"Mercy!" she shuddered. "I don't want to gloat over the poor wretch."

I said no more about it, but—well, the result was all that I had anticipated.

Genevieve reminded me that we should be thankful for having been relieved from a final perplexity.

"I don't understand," said I.

"Why, we haven't the ruby to dispose of; that would have puzzled even you."

"I don't know about that. Royal gave it to me. I see where I stand to lose a fortune. Five hundred thousand—whew!"

Suddenly she snuggled closer and clasped her hands tightly upon my shoulder. Her hair teased my cheek, and the delicate perfume of it made me light-headed. Twisting her pretty head sideways, she flashed an arch look at me from under her lashes, then glanced quickly away again. Blue eyes and long dark lashes are a potently disturbing combination.

"Well," she sighed, "the Page case may have cost you a fortune, but—it gave me you. And I—for one—am very content and happy, Mr. Swift."

THE END.

Found His Freedom.

Paris, Jan. 3.—Gen. Messimy, Minister of War, has forbidden Capt. Lux, who recently escaped from the fortress of Graetz, in Prussia, where he was serving a term of six years' imprisonment for spying out German military secrets, to accept a projected newspaper subscription designed to make him a presentation as a gift from the people of France. The French Minister of War wishes the matter to be forgotten, as continued reference to it might unnecessarily inflame German opinion.

Public opinion in France is elated over Capt. Lux's audacity and ingenuity. It is now established that his flight from the fortress prison was carefully planned by his brother officers in France. They forwarded to Capt. Lux various works on the "Life of Napoleon." These were heavily bound in leather and the covers concealed several thin but powerful files, with which he eventually sawed his way through the prison bars to freedom. Capt. Lux was informed of the scheme for his release by marked letters in the books and phrases written in invisible ink.

Opium and Drugs

The increase in the vicious use of narcotic and other drugs has become a grave evil in Canada, and it has been found that in some districts the evil grows more threatening as the restriction of the liquor traffic becomes greater. Parliament last session considered a new measure, "The Opium and Drug Act," aimed at combatting the evil. It deals with such drugs as cocaine and its derivatives and compounds, and opium in all its forms. It prohibits the sale save on the prescription of a duly qualified physician, proper records of all such sales to be kept. Violation is punishable by the fine of $200 and three months in jail. Unlawfully dealing in these drugs or having them in one's possession is made punishable by a $500 fine or a year's imprisonment. An opium smoker incurs a fine of $50 or three months in jail, and the keeper of the resort is liable to fined $100 and one month in jail. Physicians giving orders for opium or any forbidden drug, save for medical purposes, may be fined $200 and a jail sentence of three months.

Four years ago a stringent act was passed along similar lines (so far as the sale of these drugs is concerned). Quebec has probably the most stringent of all provincial laws affecting the sale of "habit drugs," and the tendency is to make more difficult the traffic in them. The passage of the Dominion legislation, says the Hamilton Times, will not fail to make it easier to crush out an evil that has been a menace to our people.

Mrs. Harriman's Letters

Mrs. Harriman, widow of the railway magnate and mistress of his great fortune, has received, since she came into possession of that fortune, 6000 begging letters. The task of even reading them was so great that she turned them over to the New York bureau of municipal research, with the request that they be examined and reported on. The bureau's report shows that the total amount asked for in the letters was $120,000,000, a little more than half of it from residents of the United States. When they really think they need money, persons who are willing to ask for gratuities are not modest. A great many of the requests were, of course, deserving of no attention; but there were some cases in which relief was indirectly given.

A man about to be released from prison, for instance, wrote that he needed money for a new start in life. Investigation disclosed that at that particular place there was no organization for helping men in that plight to help themselves, and, as a result, an organization of the kind is soon to begin operations. The probability is that the discovery of that one need was worth all the anxiety of Mrs. Harriman and the work of the bureau. Something will be done, not only for that man, but also for others who will follow him from prison out into the world, which is generally suspicious and more ready to rebuff than to assist. Incidentally, it should be mentioned that that is precisely the work that the Volunteers of America are doing in cities where there are penitentiaries. And by all reports it is a work that counts for good.

An "Angel of Mercy"

Lord Pembroke has been elected chairman of a committee to collect funds for a memorial to Florence Nightingale. The selection is a most fitting one, as Lord Pembroke is a son of that Sydney Herbert who was responsible for sending Miss Florence Nightingale to the Crimea. The memorial is to take the form first of a statue, and any balance over is to be used in annuities for aged and distressed nurses. The committee has been fortunate enough to have granted to it the best and most appropriate site in Pall Mall, opposite the Guards' Crimean Memorial, and between the Senior United Service and the Athenaeum Clubs. Fame, even such transcendent fame as that of Florence Nightingale, is fleeting. Lord Pembroke relates that a friend of his was asked about Miss Nightingale, "Did she not do something with a life-boat?" The questioner, of course, confused her with Grace Darling. Yet, besides her work in the Crimea, everyone has cause to revere her memory. The discarding the world over of the Sairy Gamp order of nurses and the replacement of it by gentle, trained and cultured ladies is due to her. The modern reconstruction of hospitals is largely her work. Her paper on district nursing is the best that has been written and is to-day universally followed, although it evoked much opposition at the time when it was written. For years she worked at organizing the proper nursing of British soldiers in India. The motive of her whole life was that of helping others and the last 55 years of her life spent in bed, owing to the impairment of her health in the Crimea, were devoted with untiring energy, unfailing patience and forgetfulness of self, to unceasing toil for others. The idea of health visitors, which is becoming increasingly popular in England, originated with her and she took infinite trouble to sketch out what the duties of a health missioner should be. And is all this to be forgotten, asks Lord Pembroke, and is her name to be buried in books and history? Is it not unthinkable that there should be no statue of her to tell future generations that she did not "do anything with a life-boat?" but that by her example, her life, by her devotion, "she inspired her countrymen, and more particularly the women of her country, to look at sickness in an entirely different light, revealing to them what a useful opportunity of true self-sacrifice exists in bestowing service on all who suffer." Florence Nightingale has done as much for England and for the world as any woman who ever lived, and a worthy statue of her would cause many to learn her story, and, if they were worthy, to try to emulate it.

Pastor Russell's Sermon

TOKIO, Japan, Dec. 31.—The International Bible Students Committee of seven, for the investigation of Foreign Missions is here. Pastor Russell, the chairman of the committee, gave two public addresses in one of our principal auditoriums, the Y.M.C.A. He had large audiences, and keenest attention. We report his discourse on The Power of the Will in the Shaping of Life's Destinies. His text was from Joshua xxiv: 15—"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

The human will, he pointed out, is the most wonderful power known to man because it has to do with the development and use of every power in nature. The feet, the hands, the tongue, are all servants of the will, and all declare and illustrate the mastery of mind over matter.

In our day, the human will, although still ambitious and avaricious, has taken a higher plane for its exercise, in the conquering of mountains and valleys; in the casting up of highways and the piercing of tunnels; in the erection of bridges and the masterpieces of mechanical engineery which traverse the land and the sea with almost incredible speed. How noble is the human will when thus employed in the interest of humanity!

But, said the pastor, the most wonderful achievement of the will is seen in self control. The scriptures say truly, "Greater is he that ruleth his own will than he that taketh a city." Prov. xvi:32. The most wonderful illustrations of the will thus exercised he believes to be found in the cases of Jesus and His footstep followers. "He who was rich, for our sakes became poor." Cor. viii:9. His will was exercised, not along selfish lines, but in carrying out the great divine programme of human redemption. By the exercise of His will He surrendered His glorious condition for the human estate, and then delivered up Himself, as the Man Christ Jesus, to the doing of the divine will, even unto death, that thus, "by the grace of God He might taste death for every man." Heb. ii: 9. The motive behind that strong will was not selfishness, but love.

When I note the gentleness and kindness and courtesy of Japanese life in general, I am astonished and wonder that the ordinary Christian message has not appealed more to your hearts and replaced Shinto worship, for which I understand you have two hundred thousand figures, and temples. Sympathetically putting myself in the place of the Japanese, I fancy you saying: Shall we exchange our simple esthetic gentleness and kindness of spirit for the rudeness and sometimes swagger of the soldiers and sailors and the domineering headlines of the upper classes who come to us?

I must apologize and explain that while the masses of Europe and America call themselves Christians they really neither understand nor practice the teachings of Jesus. The essence of His teaching is "Love out of a pure heart." Tim. i:5; 1Peter iv: 22—the putting away of malice anger, hatred, envy, strife, and the putting on of the fruits and graces of the holy spirit—meekness, gentleness, patience, long suffering, brotherly kindness, love.

But, sympathetically, again I hear you say. The missionaries who have expounded Christianity to us for years have told us that our parents and ancestors whom we reverently worship are despised by your Christian God and are damned to an eternity of torture because they did not know Jesus and become His followers. They tell us, also, that we are bound for that place of eternal horror unless we repudiate the religion of our birth which has made us so happy and contented. Can you wonder that we resent such teachings? That the vast majority of us hate Christianity, and merely tolerate it to avoid war? Can you wonder that we prefer Buddhism and Shintoism, and that our Shinto temples increase the more rapidly because of antagonism to Christianity?

Alas, my dear hearers, Christianity, with very precious truths at its foundation, seriously lost its way long centuries ago and wandered far from the inspired teachings of the Bible. This is the explanation of the numerous sects and parties of Christendom and the different doctrines, none of which are defensible indeed, either from the standpoint of reason or from the Bible.

The Bible does not teach, as once you supposed, that eternal torment was the penalty for our first parents' disobedience in the eating of the forbidden fruit. On the contrary it teaches that the "wages of sin is death" and that this death wage has been the experience of the entire race for now six thousand years. It teaches that all of our imperfections, mental, moral and physical, are a part of this dying process. It teaches that in God's due time this curse or sentence of death will be lifted, that ignorance and sin will be abolished, that our loving Creator will then wipe away all tears, and that sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

It teaches that the whole earth shall become Paradise Restored, world wide. It teaches that Satan will be bound, that every evil influence will be restrained, and that the light of the knowledge of the glory of God will flood the earth and bring to all peoples a knowledge of the Truth—a knowledge of the love of God, which passeth all understanding. It teaches that, those who, when fully informed, shall prefer sin, shall be utterly completely and everlastingly destroyed in the "Second Death."

So then, my friends, if from Shintoism you have earned to be esthetic in your tastes, kind and gentle in your manner and loyal to the backbone to what what you conceive to be your duty, these lessons learned will be to you a great advantage in that future time of blessing, under Messiah's kingdom. On the other hand, all those who have cultivated a contrary spirit wil be correspondingly depraved in that future time and will correspondingly have the more and severer lessons to learn. Take heart then to-day from the assurance of the good time coming, and that every grace of character acquired by you, through Shintoism or otherwise, is not lost, but should be maintained.

Youth Who Took Roommate's Suit Records Thefts in Diary.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 31.—William C. Terring, 19 years old, is one of the most curious prisoners ever held in a Pittsburgh police station. He was arrested yesterday on the charge of having stolen his roommate's best suit on Christmas Day. The roommate produced Terring's diary, in which entries of his peculations were made. He was known by his friends as a studious young man, who spent most of the time reading the Bible and religious books. E. B. Mahood, a wealthy Pittsburgher, was his benefactor and gave the lad a home a year ago. One of the entries, in the diary, under date of Feb. 2, 1911, reads:

"E. B. M. and I went to town today to buy my suit. Mrs. M.—made me a present of a very nice Bible. I swiped $1.75 from E. B. M.—to-day. May God forgive me and give me strength to pay it back."

This entry is typical of many others in the book.

TEN "DON'TS" FOR HUSBANDS.

Pastor Who Advised Wives Now Tells Men What to Do.

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 31.—The Rev. Dr. Albert Marion Hyde, of the Porter Congregational Church, whose decalogue for wives aroused much interest, stirred his congregation to-night with a decalogue for husbands." Here are his ten don'ts:

1. Don't forget and leave your little courtesies and general kindness at some hotel on your wedding trip; you will need them on the rest of life's journey.

2. Don't unbosom yourself about your family troubles. These sacred confidences spread like thistle down and bring forth fruit just as prickly and disagreeable. Fight it out with your wife alone.

3. Don't arrange for your second marriage before your first wife is dead.

4. Don't support the wife and children of the saloonkeeper at the expense of your own wife and children.

5. Don't have nervous prostration when your wife asks you to go out with her for an evening. It is hard on a woman to be a grass widow all the time.

6. Don't make a your wife a stranger to your checkbook. She is not a hired servant; she is a partner in the business.

7. Don't make your wife a pack horse. The eight-hour man with the sixteen-hour wife needs to unionize his home.

8. Don't carry all your religion in your wife's name.

9. Don't overlook the fact that the decalogue of Moses is still on the statute books, and that it is written for husbands as well as for wives.

10. Don't forget that the happiest spot on earth is your home. Your wife may not be an angel; you would be lonesome if she was.

WHEN TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL.—HERE IS A COMMON-SENSE SAFEGUARD.

Big, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill.

The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner, and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion, brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

A couple of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

ELOPEMENT IN HIGH LIFE.

A Texas Millionaire's Wife Is Deported From Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 2.—With his penitent wife, J. E. Snaad, millionaire, of Amarillo, Texas, left for St. Paul this morning to join her children and mother. Albert Boyce, with whom the woman eloped, is being held here under $5,000 bail by the Federal authorities on a deportment warrant. The couple were ordered deported, and the wife left with her husband and a Burns' detective rather than wait official developments.

Boyce had $15,000 in currency in his pocket when arrested last week at a local hotel, and New York drafts for $100,000. Mrs. Snaad had diamonds on her person valued at $20,000. Her husband, who arrived yesterday had much trouble persuading his wife to return.

Boyce says he will not return to Texas, as he fears he will be shot. Hundred dollars bills were freely distributed by both sides, and an army of detectives watched all concerned. There is no police charge against Mr. Boyce.

ROBS BRIDE HE WON BY MAIL.

Deserted After Four Days, Mrs. Kirk Says She'll Kill Runaway on Sight.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Neil T. Kirk, 68 years old, and a bride of four days, asked Police Supt. McQuade to-day to aid her in getting track of her husband. Kirk married her on Christmas Eve in the Satler Hotel, Buffalo, she said, after courting her by letter, and, after stealing $580 and her gold watch, deserted her in this city last Tuesday.

"I have lived in Oklahoma for fifty-one years," Mrs. Kirk told McQuade, "and when I was a girl I could hit a dime at 100 paces. When I next meet my bridegroom he dies."

As Mrs. Martha Gibbs, a widow and trained nurse, Mrs. Kirk lived at 2,540 Templar Avenue, Walnut Hill, Cincinnati. Last March she received a letter introducing Neil T. Kirk, a man of her own age, of 257 Prairie Ave., Chicago. She corresponded with Kirk and they exchanged photos. They wooed by mail, and meeting for the first time on Dec. 23, in Toronto, were married the following day in Buafflo.

The police think that Kirk may be an impostor and that his Chicago address is fictitious. His bride had only 15 cents to-day when she visited the police. She owns big lands in Oklahoma and has four children and ten grandchildren. Kirk told her that Dr. Hugh Kirk, of 275 Madison Ave., Manhattan, New York City, and Dr. Lester Kirk, of Albany, are his brothers and that they are triplets.

KILLS HER SON-IN-LAW.

Body of Mobile (Ala.) Policeman Found Dead in a Pond.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 31.—Policeman Fred Wasserleben, who was once in the German navy, was murdered last night and thrown into a pond of water two feet deep, where the body was found floating to-day. Three bullet wounds were in the head and the skull was beaten in.

His mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Godeau; his wife, and brother-in-law, William Green, were arrested, charged with the crime. The mother-in-law confessed to-night, saying that Wasserleben had attempted to attack her and that she wrested his pistol from him and killed him. She admitted that she dragged his body downstairs into a wagon and dumped it into the pond. The Godeau woman was arrested eight years ago for killing her husband.

The reason for the killing of Wasserleben is believed to have been a plot to obtain his life insurance money, amounting to $7,000. Mrs. Godeau exempts her daughter and son from complicity in the crime.

200 MARRIAGES NOT LEGAL.

Pastors or Judges Who Failed to Return Licenses May Be Fined $100.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 31.—More than 200 couples to whom marriage licenses were issued in Hennepin County in 1911 are only "partially married" owing to failure of clergymen or Justices to return the licenses to the court. By not doing so these clergymen or Justices have made themselves liable to fines of $100 each.

The law requires that licenses must be returned to the court within sixty days after ceremonies are performed.

THE WIZARD OF THE FORGE

By Harry Dixon

One summer morning little John Anderson was drawing his wooden horse up and down in the sunshine outside the door of his father's forge. By and by, feeling rather tired, he sat down on his good little horse's back, and nursing his chin in his hands, listened to the song of the hammer as it beat and beat on his father's anvil. Gradually words began to connect themselves with the music it made, and the question was repeated again and again. "What will you be when you grow to a man? Rattipan — rittapan — rattapan — pan?"

Johnny's eyes opened wide. He got upon his feat and stole timidly to the door of the forge, to see a queer old man, dressed in a light red cloak and a tall steeple hat, pounding away on the anvil.

"Ah, John Anderson, you have come like a brave boy," said the old man. "Now, tell me, when you grow up, are you going to be a draper or a butcher?"

Johnny twisted his fingers behind his back and looked shy.

"I'm the wizard of the forge," said the old man sharply, "and I cannot take silence for an answer."

"Soldier," said Johnny, quickly, "I thought everybody knew that I was going to be a soldier."

The wizard looked just a little bit hurt as he drew himself into a more upright position.

"Then there is no time to be lost," said he. "If you are going to be a soldier, of course you know what a soldier it?"

Johnny smiled. There was nothing he liked better than talking about soldiers, so he told the Wizard right away that he had a whole regiment of them. They were made of tin, and he ordered them about while he sat on his gallant wooden charger, Wellington (he nodded towards the door of the forge, round the corner of which Wellington's head was peeping), and if that was not being a soldier, what was?

"Anything else?" said the Wizard, a little sadly.

"No; I don't think so," replied Johnny.

"Then allow me to present you with your sword."

He turned aside to a pile of steel bars, and selecting a short one, handed it to Johnny.

"That's not a sword, Mr. Wizard," said he, half smiling; "that's only a bar of steel."

"It's your sword," cried the Wizard in a tone that made Master Anderson tremble, "take it in both hands, my boy, and make the best of it."

Johnny obeyed, and as his fingers touched the steel the flames in the forge fire leapt three feet high; the wind from the bellows began to murmur like a distant gale, and the whole smithy was filled with a warm and beautiful light. The Wizard, redder, larger, and more upright than before, spoke in a solemn voice:—

"Put it in the fire," said he, "make it hot, my little man. Hammer it into shape, with care and diligence."

He seized the handle of the bellows. Johnny stood before the fire, thrusting the steel bar into the glowing depths. With magic speed it grew red hot, he carried it to the anvil, and began pounding upon it with the hammer till the sparks flew in a golden shower. But with the first blow a strange thing happened. The noise it made was the boom of a drum — a faraway drum — that with every blow grew nearer and nearer. Johnny's heart began throbbing with joy. Under the hammer the steel bar was taking the shape of a beautiful sword — flat, shining, and keen. As the toil went on the sound of the drum grew louder, the hammer came down with its last blow. The shining sword was finished, and as John Anderson turned his eyes form its flashing blade to the door of the smithy, it was to see a brilliant cavalcade awaitng him there. The Wizard of the forge laid a hand upon his shoulder. At the touch, his clothes changed like magic, and he stood arrayed in splendid uniform. Another moment he was among the crowd at the door, mounted on a lovely horse, with his sword at his side.

And then John Anderson rode away. He rode away for a month and a day, and he saw sad sights as well as brave and noble deeds. For a little while he was vain of his sword and uniform, but after that he learned that there was more for a soldier to do than ride a fine horse, listen to stirring music, and order brave men about.

And so, one day when a sad campaign had ended, he thought about the time before the Wizard of the Forge had given him his sword. He would take it back and say that perhaps after all he had wished to be a soldier without really knowing what a soldier was. With the very thought, the uniform began to fade, the sword in his hand changed shape, and he stood in his father's forge once more. It was dark and silent and empty, but peering into the shadow he saw the red cloak of the wizard disappear through the doorway behind the bellows. He darted forward. The door slammed in his face with a loud report, and Johnny Anderson woke with a start to find himself sitting on Wellington's back at the entrance to the forge. The fire was burning low, for the blacksmith himself had just gone to dinner, and Johnny followed him a moment later through the very doorway that the wizard had used.

When he talks about being a soldier now, it is not the same soldier that he used to mean — but a better.

Harry Burgoyne Arrested in the United States for July Robbery.

TORONTO, Jan. 2.—Harry Burgoyne, who is believed to have been a confederate in an extensive jewelry robbery in Toronto, has been arrested in Rochester, and an officer left today to bring him back. Some of the stolen goods were found in his possession.

Brazier Lunges at Villain in Play and Stabs Himself.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Dec. 31. —Richard Brazier, an actor, of New York City, accidentally committed hari kari last evening while playing in "The Night Before Christmas," in the Rose Theatre. He is at the point of death in the Port Townsend Hospital.

Brazier, in defending the heroine in the play, made a stab at the villain, but miscalculated the distance. His arm swung around in a half circle, and the knife he held made a gaping wound in his stomach.

The opportunities which are offering in all lines of trade and resourcefulness in the Pacific coast is demonstrated by the fact that the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., Ltd., have recently erected a cold storage and fish freezing plant at Ritchie Point in the city of Prince Rupert, B. C., the western treminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and has been built for the handling of the fish industry of the Northern Pacific Ocean.

The waters surrounding Prince Rupert teem with halibut, ling, and grey cod, salmon, sole, herring, etc., the market for which is unlimited, and with the completion of the railway the fish can be in transit to the eastern markets on the day caught, thus assuring, with speedy transportation their arrival in first class condition at destination.

The building is constructed of reinforced concrete throughout. The foundation is built on solid rock, and is of sufficient strength to carry the building to the height of ten stories. The present structure is six stories high, and can be extended as soon as trade permits.

The daily fish freezing capacity will be sixty tons, and the storage capacity of frozen fish about 6500 tons.

The ice making plant is of 25 tons daily capacity, and space has been left for an additional 25 tons for future installation.

Over thirty miles of piping was required for the refrigeration installation. Twenty-three carloads of cork were used in the building for the flooring and for the partitions between each room.

A GOOD HAUL

By George Hart

It was noon of a brilliant, still day on the south coast of Louisiana. My partner heard a rapid crunching of feet out on the dazzling shore of white shells marking Barataria Bay. Then a shout, eager, tremulous, in German then two burned and ragged boys of eighteen came round the mangrove and rushed to Allen, with cries of joy.

They were almost unable to speak from thirst, and their feet were bleeding; but after Allen had offered them the contents of our canvas waterbags, they crawled into the strip of shade and explained. Oscar did the talking and Paul kept his blue, eyes steadily on the red sail of a lugger that hung lifeless over the sunlit water miles down the shrimp platforms. They were afraid of that lugger, Paul explained. Only yesterday they had escaped from the old Etienne and his Filipino-Chinese company.

"No more shrimping!" said Oscar. "We were just landed from New Orleans from a Bremen ship. We deserted to get out to Paul's sister in Kansas. Ach, if we could only get there. Gretchen and Hans, her man says what money we could make. And we landed in New Orleans and on the quay a man asked us if we didn't want to fish for shrimp down in Barataria — he, too, tell what money a man could make."

"Shanghaied,' said Allen laughing. "I've been told of this before."

"Slaves," cried Oscar; 'that's what we were."

"I know the game," said Allen. "Every man in the company has a share—the lugger is counted a share, and the seine a share, and the captain's wife a share for the cooking, a share for the steamer men, and against the catch is charged all the stake expenses. And old Etienne juggles the account to suit himself."

"And all the time," quavered Paul, "beans and bread—ach. Oscar and I, we jumped that camp last night."

"You don't say," retorted Allen, "that you spent the night in the swamp?"

Oscar nodded. We might have known by a single glance at them. If they had known the hopelessness of getting away unaided they would never have plunged into that morass.

Back of our camp, near the scrub-oaks with their Spanish moss and the mangrove bushes, one of Etienne's seines was stretched to dry. The crew had landed only the day before and hung the two thousand feet of grey net on the flimsy frame, its leads and flots sagging it to the shells.

At sunset Etienne's crew pulled the lugger with their oars far to the east. The castaways breathed easier.

Allen and I slept soundly in our tent; our friends slept under the big net. I was awakened by an exclamation and a fumbling at the flap. Oscar was there warning me in a scared voice.

"Someone's fooling round our camp," he whispered. "Paul's still asleep, but I heard noises in the shells and went out. I crept along the net rack, and down by the little scrub oaks somebody was prowling about. I heard him in the trees."

"Panther!" Allen and I yelled together. And our amazement at this moment was swallowed up in what followed, for the big cat, describing an arc in the air, came down on all fours squarely in old Etienne's mass of seine.

He crashed through the flimsy frame upon the shells, instinctively closing his claws in the meshes. And the whole long frame collapsed just as we heard a bowl from up the line. While we stood staring the panther, charged up the line of net, sprung again and alighting not twenty feet away from where Paul was fighting about in his bar.

When the place was reached the cat was on its back, kicking and tearing great holes in the net, only to find successive layers. Then it would jump and twist, growling. Paul, too, was roled in yards of the seine, for the struggles of the panther drew it tight about the boy. Tear at it as we might, we could not get him out, and he, wildly yelling, could not understand what was the matter and another leap of the panther landed him not two yards from us.

"Hold on," shouted Allen; let me get the gun! He dashed away for the camp. But meanwhile the fighting panther had dragged the seine to the edge of the water, and then another leap and twist sent him in. Paul was hurled down also in the shallows, and Oscar and I dashed in to seize the seine, for we thought surely that be would be drowned. But salt water had a surprising effect on the panther. The minute he was beyond his depth he ceased tearing at the net and struggled round in circle under it.

"Get the head line and twist them!" I shouted. "Twist them hard and we'll tighten him in."

Paul had got his panic-stricken head out of the net at last. He could hardly comprehend our cries; but he seized the lead edges of the seine, and when Allen came up we were dragging a half-drowned but very big panther ashore.

When sunrise came we sat about the brute, near our campfire, all of us bruised, cut by shells and palmettoes, but with the prisoner safe. I never saw two such excited boys as the German fellows. And when Allen and I told them we would throw the panther into the launch and hurry him off to the city, where he surely could be sold for enough to pay them for the three months they had been marooned, they were the happiest castaways imaginable.

"Old Etienne's seine did make a haul for us after all, er, Oscar?" cried the younger one.

"Ach, we get by Kansas now," shouted his friend. "Und Gretchen's farm, where her man'll pay us big in the harvest."

The next week, indeed, we saw them off bound for the promised land. A speculative commission men in New Orleans had give them $150 for the last catch in Etienne's shrimp net.

PILGRIMS TO MECCA

Of All the Millions Who Visit Mecca Not a Score of Christians are Known to Come Out of the Sacred City Alive.

Although one of the most inaccessible cities on earth, Mecca each year has visitors in such number that it must be ranked in this particular with London and New York. Even the world's metropolis on the Thames can boast no such cosmopolitan character as is imparted to this mysterious city in the wilderness of Arabia by the myriads of pilgrims, who at the cost of incredible pains annually crowd into its confines. This city is the oldest place of resort in existence, yet of all the millions who have visited it not a score of Christians are known to have come out alive. No flag of citizenship would save a man's life were he known to be a Christian within the sacred precincts of the city, where the Prophet himself decreed that no unbeliever should set foot. Of the 225,000,000 Moslems in the world only 15,500,000 live under the Turkish flag, yet most of them acknowledge the Sultan of Turkey as their caliph, the successor of the Prophet. As Mohammed shrewdly foresaw, the Mecca pilgrimage binds together his disciples into a unity which could be effected in no other way. "Mecca," says Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, of Arabia, "has become the religious capital and the centre of universal pilgrimage for one-seventh of the human race."

THREAD BUSINESS

The Originator of the Industry Was the Widow of a Minister Who founded the "Bargarran Thread" Business.

It is strange that the first thread made in Scotland had a tragic connection with Paisley, for not far from where the Ferguslie Thread Mills now stand six persons — two men and four women — were burnt to death in 1697 for the alleged crime of having bewitched Christian Shaw, the oldest daughter of the laird of Bargarran, a small estate in the neighborhood, when she was a child of eleven years of age. She was married to a minister, and on his death returned to her father's house.

She was a great adept at the spinning-wheel, and as she kept spinning the fine linen yarn, such as was used in Paisley for the making of lawns, it occurred to her that it might be twisted into thread suitable for the sewing or embroidering needle. As all the thread used for this purpose came at that time from Holland, she commissioned a friend who was going over there to purchase for her a twisting mill. On getting it she at once proceeded with her thread-making, performing every part of the process with her own hand. The mill she had was small, and ran only twelve bobbins at a time. A fine thread, equal — and, as some thought, superior — to the Dutch, was produced, and when specimens of it were taken to Bath by Lady Blantyre, a near neighbour of the family, the makers of lace there at once saw its value. Thus a trade in "Bargarran thread" sprung up in 1722. Although cotton has since then largely superseded linen thread, yet this Renfrewshire lady is fairly entitled to the honour of being the originator of the industry that has made Paisley.

The agriculturist's idea of a lady is someone who has had nothing to do with farming all her life, just as his ideal gentleman is a retired shopkeeper.

It is a wise woman who refrains from inducing her husband to bring the atmosphere of his club home with him.

NEW POLICY IS NEEDED

Ontario Temperance Leaders May Change Their Tactics.

Some of the Chief Workers Think Next Year Will See the Last Campaign on Present Local Option Lines Because Nothing Now Remains But "Hard" Places—New Agitation Will Be For Shorter Hours.

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Some of the representative Toronto temperance men, sizing up the Ontario situation, in view of the results on Monday, take the view that there will only be one more round fought on a provincial scale by the Ontario Alliance on local option lines. That will take place next January. After that a new plan of campaign will have to be adopted by the alliance, or the drys will have to go on the defensive.

The position taken in well informed temperance circles is that the territory in which the adoption of local option by a three-fifths majority is likely in Ontario is now very limited, and will be exhausted by another general engagement.

Where important urban municipalities were attacked, not only did the local option bylaws fail to get a three-fifths majority, but they were voted down in straight majorities. It is recognized by the drys that the movement from the rural municipalities to the cities is not favorable to the adoption of drastic prohibitory liquor legislation. Men who have been in the light and have given the outlook thought, say that the course which the alliance will take is already marked out by the logic of events, and that it will take the form of a license reduction and earlier closing movement.

The alliance had one of its organizers, Dr. McTavish, assisting in the license reduction movement which has just cut off ten licenses at Kingston.

The alliance was never in such good fighting trim as it has became during the past three years under the generalship of Rev. B. H. Spence. He has now a staff of effective speakers and organizers, an alliance weekly paper, with a big circulation, and he is successful in securing ample campaign funds each year.

There is a quiet tip going around that a movement will be gradually developed in Toronto for earlier closing of the liquor shops and bars and that it will be championed in due time, by Controller McCarthy and Ald. Austin.

There are nominally 175 municipalities where local option contests could be brought on next January, but most of them are hard places from the alliance's standpoint or else are too sparsely settled for organization purposes.

Additional returns received yesterday of the local option votes leave the net result a reduction of 20 licenses by local option successes, and 16 by license reduction. The reductions are those previously announced of ten at Kingston, and also six at Stratford.

Kingston had 35 and will now have 25. Stratford had 16 and will now have ten.

Places heard from yesterday were Vavalle and Point Edward, where local option carried. Elzevir and Gennsthorpe defeated local option.

Emo, Wallace and Ridgetown gave local option majorities, but failed to attain the necessary three-fifths.

Secretary Ben Spence says of the result 55 out of the 69 contests have been heard from. The fifteen repeal contests all failed. "We are preparing for a new fight which will be no child's play."

Canadian Missionaries Safe.

The missionaries had been advised by the British consul that it was impossible to guarantee their safety at inland points.

YUAN STILL HOPEFUL

He Thinks He Can Prevent China Becoming a Republic.

Tang Shao Yi Is Discharged From the Imperial Cabinet on the Ground That He Exceeded His Instructions at the Peace Conference—Premier Gets a Loan of $2,000,000 For Carrying on of the War.

Pekin, Jan. 3.—The feeling in Pekin last night was that the throne has taken on a new lease of life. Indeed there are some competent observers, who believe that Premier Yuan Shi Kai is still determined that he can succeed in preventing the consummation of a republic.

The Imperial Cabinet has accepted the resignation of Tang Shao Yi, who was sent to Shanghai as the representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Imperialists at the peace conference between the representativs of both parties there. The Government has also telegraphed to Wu Ting Fang, the leader of the revolutionaries at the peace conference, stating that in future it will negotiate telegraphically. The Government is of the opinion that Tang Shao Yi went beyond his instructions when he signed the agreement as to the calling of the national convention to decide on the future form of government of China with Fu Ting Fang.

The Premier adheres to two points of his original suggestion regarding the national convention, namely, that he insists on the proper selection of delegates to the national assembly and also that its gathering place shall be Pekin.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai again offered his resignation yesterday morning, but it was not accepted. The court also received a round robin from the generals commanding the Imperialistic troops in the vicinity of Pekin, in which they demanded that the princes of the Imperial clan should withdraw their wealth from the safety of the foreign banks, where much of it has been placed quite recently, and deliver it into the hands of the War Office.

Prince Ching, the former Premier and Foreign Minister, received a letter yesterday on behalf of the Manchu troops in the vicinity of Pekin, threatening to destroy his palace unless it was delivered over to them.

When negotiating recently for a loan, Yuan Shi Kai explained that about $10,000,000 would carry the Government on for six months. By that time discord would have occurred among the rebels in the south and the provinces would return gradually to their allegiance. Yuan Shi Kai has now obtained from the Empress Dowager more than $2,000,000, which will permit the carrying on of the Government beyond the period which the rebels have fixed for the assembling of the national convention.

It is believed here that the lack of funds among the rebels has inspired their haste in settling the date for the national convention.

Seven hundred soldiers guarding the Lanchau arsenal mutinied yesterday. They are part of the Imperial Government troops, among whom there has been a movement for some time past in favor of a republic. The commanding officer fled to Kaiping, from which point he sent a message to the railway authorities at Tientsin warning them that the mutineers intended to stop all railway traffic.

Fighting Around Hankow.

Hankow, Jan. 3.—The fighting around Hankow has not been serious and the Imperialists have evacuated Hanyang and entrained for the north with their batteries. Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the Republican commander, has given the Imperialist commanders assurances that he will not occupy the vacated positions. The armistice is again being observed.

Dr. Sun Sworn In.

Nanking, Jan. 2.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen has taken the oath of office as provisional President of the Chinese Republic and yesterday morning was farmally invested with the powers of Chief Executive. The ceremony was simple but very dignified, and was attended by all the prominent men of the revolutionary party.

The first official act of the President was to change the Chinese calendar. He made New Year's Day the first day of his Presidency, thus marking the commencement of a new era and making the Chinese year begin henceforth on the same day as the year begins in most other countries of the world.

Many prominent men among the revolutionaries met him at the station and accompanied him to the Government House, the route to which was lined by 10,000 soldiers. The whole town was beflagged, the warships and merchant vessels along the river dressed ship and a salute was fired from the guns of all the forts.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was dressed in a khaki uniform on his arrival, held a reception, which was attended by a number of Governors-General and other high officials.

Alimony Insurance.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Under a novel court order entered by Judge Brentano in the Superior Court yesterday, Frank J. McAvoy, head of an automobile supply company, is directed to take out a $9,000 life insurance policy in favor of the woman to whom the court in the same order granted a decree of divorce. In addition to becoming the beneficiary of an insurance policy, Mrs. Nellie McAvoy is to receive a total of $10,000 alimony, payable in annual instalments of $1,000.

A Boon to Grain Growers.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 3.—What will prove a great boon to the holders of preemptions is the order issued by Hon. Robert Rogers to the various Dominion land officers throughout the west not to cancel preemptions for non-payment of interest. The reason for the suspension of the provision allowing cancellation of the preemptions, if interest is not paid is that the settlers have had great difficulty in marketing their grain and are not in a position to pay the interest.

IS AGAINST HOME RULE

Prominent Welsh Liberal Expresses His Resentment.

Sir Clifford Cory, One of the Great Coal and Shipping Men of the Principality Who Has Been a Staunch Liberal, Has Given Up His Office In the Party—Sir Edward Carson Is Leading the Fight.

London, Jan. 3.—Sir Edward Carson is leading the Unionist party's vigorous campaign against Irish home rule. Generally, his argument is: "Ireland is prospering; leave her alone." The possibility of religious intolerance is also emphasized.

Sir Clifford Cory, one of the great coal and shipping barons of Wales, a stalwart Liberal, has resigned the presidency of the Cardiff Liberal Association because the committee invited Mr. John Redmond to the city to address a meeting on home rule, and has reminded the Government that he is as strongly opposed to home rule as ever.

Other Nonconformists are in doubt as to whether to throw over their convictions against placing their coreligionists in Ulster under the rule of Catholic Ireland, or the Government, which has promised them a new education bill and disestablishment of the church in Wales.

The alleged weakening in the demand by the people of Ireland for home rule, as a result of increasing prosperity, is another string that the Unionists have to play in England. So little do the people want it, say the Unionists, that they will not contribute to the funds of the Nationalists, who are now dependent on "American dollars" for support.

Dickens' Son Dead.

New York, Jan. 3.—Alfred Tennyson Dickens, eldest surviving son of Charles Dickens, the novelist, died suddenly of acute indigestion at the Hotel Astor here late yesterday. Mr. Dickens was in this country on a lecture tour.

Mr. Dickens was a godson of the late Alfred Tennyson, poet laureate of England. He was in his 67th year.

Mr. Dickens, who has spent the greater part of his life in Australia, going there at the age of 20, arrived in this country on Sept. 29, landing at Boston. He rested there for ten days because of a slight indisposition before beginning his lecture tour, which he opened at Lowell, Mass., on October 9.

The lecturer reached New York last week, spent Sunday with cousins in Pelham, N.Y., and was on his way to attend the theatre Monday night when taken ill.

A Busy Man Is Rogers.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3—Hon. Robert Rogers left for Ottawa Monday night. He gave up almost the entire week to the transaction of public business. In the offices of the school lands department he kept long office hours, receiving from day to day hundreds, who had business with his Department.

New Year's Day was no exception to the rule. From nine o'clock in the morning till late in the evening, the Minister of the Interior remained in his office, the holiday making no appreciable difference in the number who sought interviews with him. Notwithstanding the wide range of business matters, which Mr. Rogers dealt with, following his arrival in Winnipeg, he found time to attend a public banquet in North Winnipeg, where he delivered an address and to spend a short time at the reception by the Maple Leaf Conservative Club.

Bars Beer From Her Court.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 3.—Although as Justice of the Peace Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch has a court room in her house here she refuses to allow beer to be exhibited therein. Mrs. McCulloch was asked to hear a case which involved an exhibit of beer. She refused to allow the beverage to be brought into her house. The prosecution intimated that the case could not go on without the beer exhibit. A police patrol was called, the beer loaded into it and Mrs. McCulloch then climbed into the vehicle and rode to the police station, where the case was begun. The case involved the arrest of a man who had been accused of selling beer in the streets.

Camps For Cadets.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—A provision will be made in the estimates for the coming fiscal year for the uniforming of some forty thousand school cadets and for one week's training for them during the holiday season in July at regimental or district headquarters.

William Comer, aged 13, was drowned while skating on the River Sydenham, near Chatham. He managed to push his younger brother towards the shore and he was rescued.

Fifty girls were compelled to dash from their work at Montreal yesterday when the first sprinkling system in the Dominion Feather and Flower Co., begun operation and flooded the factory.

Six persons were injured, two of them seriously, last night during the rush hour, on the United Traction Co.'s line, when a Delaware & Hudson passenger train crashed into a crowded trolley car at Troy, N.Y.

The idea of placing the new C.P.R. steamers, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, now building on the Clyde, on the Royal Naval Reserve list is at present being considered, and negotiations are now going on with that end in view.

The eight years old son of J. Lobb, of Tweed, was brought to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, yesterday afternoon in a serious condition from a bullet wound. The lad was standing on a bridge at Tweed, when he was struck with a stray bullet, but it is not known who fired the shot.

Joint High Commission Meets.

Montreal, Jan. 3.—An informal meeting of the newly-appointed Canadian section of the International Joint High Commission was held in the city yesterday, preparatory to the convening of the body in Washington on Jan. 10.

The new commission, the Canadian members of which are T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., of this city, C. A. Magrath of Medicine Hat, and H. A. Powell of St. John, N.B., will direct its energies for some time towards the settlement of all outstanding differences between Canada and the United States respecting the boundary waters and their potentialities.

Of these, the great problem which the international commissioners will face in so far as Montrealers are concerned, will be that of the project of damming the Long Sault Rapids. The Long Sault Development Co., of which the Pittsburg Aluminum Co. is the principal factor, now have a bill before the United States Senate asking for the necessary authorization to carry out the proposed work. There has, however, been strong opposition to the scheme at Washington, and a determined effort will be made by the opponents of the measure to have the matter referred to the new international commission.

1912 To Be a Bad Year.

London, Jan. 3.—Mme. de Thebes, most celebrated of Parisian soothsayers, is pessimistic as to 1912, and predicts:

War, which will wreck Europe and other continents as well.
Conspiracies.
Assassinations.
Total ruin of Paris.
Downfall of the German Emperor.
Riots.
Epidemics.
Evil destiny for England.
Fusilades and bloodsheds in Spain.
Tears and misery elsewhere.

Zadkiel's almanac and book of prophecy foreshadows worries for the Kaiser, Czar and King of Spain. As far as Great Britain is concerned, the sixpenny prophet states that the spring will be marked by political tumult and a serious risk of foreign warfare, consequent upon the breaking of a treaty, binding upon Great Britain, by a foreign power. However, it will all end happily, because King George's horoscope is stronger and more fortunate than that of any other living monarch.

Sir Wilfrid to Address Young Liberals.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will leave for Montreal Monday next and will address an audience in the Monument Nationale under the auspices of the Young Liberal Club of the Montreal district.

This will be Sir Wilfrid's first political appearance outside of Parliament since his resignation of the Premiership, and there is reason to believe that he will set forth his ideas of the policy which the Liberal party should follow, especially as regards the trade and the defence issues. He will also, in all probability, reply to the attacks of Mr. Bourassa and his allies.

Shuster Gives Up Books.

London, Jan. 3.—A special despatch to The Daily Mail from Teheran says that W. Morgan Shuster, the former treasurer-general, has handed the accounts of his office to the commission of which M. Mernard, the Belgian exdirector of Persian customs, has been appointed president, for the purpose of settling up affairs. F. T. Cairns, who was Mr. Shuster's chief American assistant, the correspondent says, has been named as Mr. Shuster's successor.

Another despatch from Teheran says that two Russian regiments have left Kasbin for Resht.

Priest Talked Flippantly.

Winnipeg, Jan. 3.—The Northwest Review, the organ of the English-speaking Catholics, does not agree with the remarkable views of Father Comeau as to marriage, and says:

"From the fact that the man has taken the woman to be his wife (even should the marriage be unlawful in the eyes of the Church), such a man has contracted certain legal and moral obligations in regard to that woman which he cannot deliver himself of simply by endeavoring to square himself with the laws of the Church, and he cannot be a 'good Catholic' unless he recognizes his obligation to the woman he married.

"It is not our purpose to expose in detail what such obligations would be, but merely to point out that in our estimation, Father Comeau has spoken rather flippantly on such a grave subject."

Will Be One Man Show.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—That the three remaining appointees to the National Transcontinental Railway Commission will shortly go out of office is a practically sure thing.

The commission will be a one-man institution, and Major R. E. Leonard will be the man. The Government will take action within the next few days. The men who are to go are W. S. Calvert, Colin McIsaacs and C. A. Young. The two former are ex-M.P.'s, and the latter is a brother of Senator Finlay Young.

Legislation will probably be necessary in order to alter the constitution of the commission.

Opposes U. S. Preference.

London, Jan. 3.—The Morning Post has started a strong agitation against the reported proposal of the United States Government to grant preference to American shipping in the Panama Canal. It devotes three columns and a long editorial this morning to that subject. It declares that such discrimination would be a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and says:

"By no sophistry can the American Government pretend that it is not bound by the terms of the treaty. An evasion of the obligation into which it entered would prove to the world that its pledges are meaningless."

Asuncion Blockaded.

Paris, Jan. 3.—The French Minister at Asuncion, Paraguay, has succeeded in getting through, by a circuitous route, a despatch to the Foreign Office, dated Dec. 28. He says that the revolution continues, but without serious fighting. The capital is blockaded and all communication is badly interrupted. The Paraguayan authorities hope to have control of the situation, adds the Minister, early this month. This is the only telegraphic communication that has reached the Foreign Office from Paraguay since the revolution broke out.

Annuities Branch Transferred.

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—The annuities branch of the Trade and Commerce Department is to-day doing business under the control of the Postoffice Department, and hereafter will be administered by that Department. The plans for the new campaign have not yet been matured, but it is probable that an official announcement will be shortly issued by Hon. Mr. Pelletier for general distribution.

"From the vulgarity of notoriety good Lord deliver us," should be your morning and evening prayer.

Nothing is more garrulous than an old woman, except a Company Promoter's wife after her first drawing-room.

LIVE 150 YEARS

SCIENTISTS SAY IT CAN BE DONE.

"Old age is simply a disease," say some of the European scientists now. They hold that with proper attention to diet people should live 150 yeasr.

We don't know how true that is. But we do know that great numbers of elderly or aged people feel and look younger than they are because they build up with Vino, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy without oil.

Mrs. Michael Bloom of Lewistown, Pa., 83 years of age, had to be wheeled around in an invalid's chair before she began taking Vinol, and after using a few bottles was able to get out and go walking alone, and to most of her housework too. That shows how Vinol strengthens feeble people.

It sharpens the appetite, makes the blood rich and causes it to circulate better. You feel the good effects of Vinol very soon. We guarantee that Vinol will please you and pay back your money if it does not. —Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

SOMETHING ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

Mr. Flint Tells us a Good Deal About Who and What They Were

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:—

Dear Sir,—Patriotism has nearly always been extolled, although one great writer called it "the last refuge of scoundrels." I have heard eloquent addresses on the subject, and have listened with some amusement to orators ascribing to the Scotchman, the Irishman and the Englishman certain peculiarities of race, each orator claiming special hereditary virtues for the race described. It seems strange that these gentlemen appeared to be unaware of the fact that all these races (including the Germans) had the same origin, and descended from the same warlike ancestors. Of course, during the ages, peculiarities of various lands marked their inhabitants.

Heredity maintained and continued these peculairities. The rude, half naked, skin robed creatures, with stained and painted faces, with their clubs and uncouth weapons, with whom Caesar fought, when he landed upon shores held by people we call "ancient Britons" were our ancestors. Four hundred years before Christ the British Isles, Germany, parts of Russia, and in fact all of the immense countries and forests at some distance north of Italy were occupied by wild creatures, called Celts or Kelts. It is impossible to assign limits to the Celts. France, Spain, Balkan Provinces, Germany were occupied by the race. They swarmed in countless numbers over nearly all Europe. They had haughty chiefs, but no imperial monarch. Some sections had kings and notables. War was their pastime. Their motto was: "We fear no man; what we do fear is that the sky, and the stars, may fall upon us." The meaning of this expression was as follows: In any treaty or contract, the expression was used, "If we break the conditions of this treaty, may the sky and stars fall upon us." And they meant that they "feared no man," but they did fear to break any treaty or contract. They often fought each other. They were tall, sinewy, fair haired, blue eyed. They knew how to enamel, to make swords, spears and armor. They detested agriculture. They believed in magic, had myths, legends and ballads. The purest Celts were to be found in Ireland and in Wales, because they had not become blended with the original inhabitants of these lands. Picts, Scots and Huns were Celts. If your readers (who are interested) would read Kingsley's "Hypatia," they would find a picture of the Huns, drawn by a master hand. The Romans formed a treaty with the Celts, agreeing to besiege Chesium. During the siege the Celts discovered in their opponents' ranks the very man who formulated the treaty to besiege the city. The Celts, disgusted with perfidy of the Romans, marched at once on Rome, descended like an avalanche upon the Roman legions, scattered them as chaff flies before the wind, and placed their chief upon the throne of the world-famous Roman Empire. The Danubian country was the cradle of the Celts. We dislike to call the Gallacians, Doukobors, etc. our blood relations, but their ancestors were our ancestors. In examining our lineage we must go farther back than the Celts. The earliest people inhabiting the west of Europe and spreading over the British Isles, was the Megalithic—so called from two Greek words, megas (great) and lithos (a stone). This people lived in France Scandinavia, all down the west of Europe to the Straits of Gibraltar, round by the Mediterranean, east of Spain, upon islands in the Mediterranean, Greece, the north African shores, Arabia, India, Japan. They are traced all over the British Isles and Germany. They were overcome by the Celts, who did not destroy them, but allowed them to remain and become absorbed by and blended with their conquerors. I may say here, for the comfort of all Irishmen, that for four centuries, from 500 to 900, Ireland was the refuge of learning and the source of literary and philosophic culture for half Europe. The myths and legends of the Gaelic and Cymric peoples kindled the imagination of continental poets. The Celt has always been a rebel against anything that has not in it the breath of life, against an unspiritual and purely external form of domination.

I will in another letter write of this strange Megalithic people, with whom we ought to be greatly interested, and who were our ancestors. I am

Yours, etc.,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The nine boys from Belleville who attended the boys' conference at Orillia on Friday, Saturday and Sunday are home again. The boys report an excellent time and a splendid conference. The boys report that the Orillia Association, where the conference was held, is one of the best they have seen. The population of Orillia is about seven thousand, and they have now an association valued at about $50,000, a $25,000 addition having recently been added to what was then a comparatively new building. If Orillia can do this, why not Belleville, with a far larger population, go into the new building entirely free of debt. It is believed that the attendance of the local boys at the big conference will prove of great benefit to the boys' work in the Belleville Association. The boys who attended were S. Nurse, G. Duesberry, H. Leavens, H. Yeomans, E. Jones, R. Woodley, J. Bennett, E. Wallace, H. Rogers.

All etams wishing to play in the Junior Hockey League are asked to send two representatives to the Y.M.C.A. Friday night at 7.30, when organization will take place. The senior league will be organized Monday night at 7.30 in the Association.

Over in the new building the Gym., the centre of attraction for a great many of the members, is being gradually put into shape, and the fellows are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to the first class there.

Intermediates are reminded of the regular Thursday night tea to-morrow night at 6.30. Let the Physical

Gym. classes are running on the same nights as before the holidays. Senior class meets to-night at eight.

SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

Distribution is to be Made from the Dominion Experimental Farms

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution will be made during the coming winter and spring of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (5 lbs.), white oats (4 lbs.), barley (5 lbs.), and field peas (3 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supply only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants should give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms; and also should state what varieties they have already tested and in what way these have been found satisfactory, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be sent.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample can be sent to each farm. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early and avoid possible disappointment. No applications can be accepted after Feb. 15th.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage.

Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE.
Director, Dominion Experimental Farms.

AMUSEMENTS

THE CHORUS LADY.

The leading character in James Forbes' international success, "The Chorus Lady," is that of Patricia O'Brien, a member of the chorus, who speaks slang with amazing fluency. The chorus girl type, as portrayed in this comedy, is one of the most original characterizations that has ever been attempted. "The Chorus Lady" will be the attraction at Griffin's Opera House on Thursday, Jan. 4th, and judging from the enthusiasm with which this play has been received elsewhere, local theatregoers are assured a genuine comedy treat. The play, which portrays phases in the life of a chorus girl, is unusual in its treatment and strongly dramatic in its climaxes. The second act, picturing the dressing room in the Lyric Theatre, New York, is striking and abounds in bright bits of slang. Plan now open at Doyle's drug store. Prices 25c. to $1.00.

THE ROSARY.

"The Rosary," a beautiful new play to be presented under the management of Monte Thompson at Griffin's Opera House on Tuesday, Jan. 9th next, with John Meehan in the role of "Father Brian Kelly," is described as follows: A typical American family is shown, a young wife, her devoted husband, their friends, and the material surroundings which wealth can procure. Then comes the jarring note. No one knows whence it comes or the reason for it's being, but it grows, grows, more and more apparent. Now it swells into suspicion and doubt, then blind rage, and the household is upset; its happiness gone. Then comes the other power, a higher spiritual note, which swells upon the ear until its beauty and divine harmony brings the discordant souls of the family back to peace and full accord. That is 'The Rosary." Chicago liked the play so well last season that it remained in the city for over four months. It had an equal success in New York.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion lands Agency or Sub-Agent for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at an agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.--Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

THE MAIN THING

The Poets May Sing that the Heart's the Thing and Scientists the Brain But It's the Stomach That Counts.

Troubles "to burn" we have, in turn, and blessings befall us, too; and we show our pluck and we have our luck in whatever we have to do; but all of our pluck and most of our luck will come from our real might, and that will depend in the usual end upon whether the stomach is right! There'll be bills galore and we'll walk the floor, if we're not in the best of trim; there'll be notes mature and we'll fall for sure, if we're lacking at all in vim; we may want to roam from the things at home and consider it all a blight, but there's nothing so punk it can make us flunk, if only the stomach is right! The poets may sing that the heart's the thing, and the scientists talk of brain, and these may not shirk in their daily work, but it's little that they ordain; they are organs fine but their chief design is as registers of mood, and the one that guides and their way decides is the one that handles food! And its function great and its high estate are the marvels we should admire, and to cherish it and to keep it fit should be our chief desire; if it's sound as a bell we can do things well, and do 'em with all our might; we can laugh at fate and can celebrate if only the stomach is right!

Sceptical

Meditating in a certain Northern churchyard the other day, we came across an old tombstone bearing the following epitaph:—

"Here lie the bones of William Shott,
Bluff landlord of the 'Foaming Pot';
He warmly welcomed travellers sore,
But now his smile is seen no more."

"Requiescat in pace," we mrumured. "One of the good old sort." Then our eyes wandered further down the sad "memento mori," and discovered that some sceptic with a sharp nail and added:

"Fret not; his welcome down below
Was more than warm—'twas hot, I trow."

Then, alas! we, too, grew sceptical; so fertile are the seeds of doubt and suspicion. Alas! alas!

Underground Post-Office

In Austria, between Laibach and Trieste, a few miles distant from the former, are the famous Adlesberg caves, visited by thousands of sightseers every year. A feature of these caves, visited by thousands of sight-215 yds. broad, and 190 ft. in height. In this hall the Austrian Government has lately established a post-office at which stamps and illustrated postcards are sold to visitors. Each card bears a special post-mark denoting the fact of its having been mailed in the lower regions. In the first few months after the opening of the post-office the number of cards dispatched amounted, on an average, to 10,000 a day.

"Nein; he vos carried avay on two piece poardts mit his head cut."

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

CAPT. R. J. BIRDWHISTLE

Boy Scouts

Since Baden-Powell originated the boy scout movement in South Africa during the Boer war, when he had an opportunity to test the value of boy's work in the Mafeking siege, the organization a success — the pioneers civilized world. And there is no country better adapted to take up the idea than Canada where a backwoods training is easily obtained. Capt. R. J. Birdwhistle the Dominion secretary was one of the first men in the Dominion to take up the proposition. He realized the splendid possibilities of the movement amongst the healthy boys who would be willing to undergo the training laid down by B. P. and the captain was not mistaken for every city, town and township today has its corps of scouts. What Capt. Birdwhistle has done in hard work to bring this about is only known to himself; we only know the results.

Dr. James W. Robertson, Chairman of the Royal Commission on Technical Education, and General Consulting Counsel for All Canada on matters of organization and social progress.

That is his present phase: to those who know the man, the fact that he is busy with this subject now, in itself is sufficient evidence that he was not busy with it two years ago, and will not be busy with it two years hence. Not that he is volatile; not that he lacks perseverance, but this — that he is a man at once dowered with a singular gift for observation and organization, and possessed with a fierce restless energy. He is a beginner, not an administrator. Canada is strewed with prosperous institutions which he started, and which he left for others to carry on.

Consider his career for a moment; for part of the significance of what is to follow depends on that career. In the beginning this serious-faced young Scot, with a North British burr on his tongue and a gift of speech which could talk a bird off a bush, managed a cheese factory; two or three chese factories in fact, with a famous brand of his own. His family business had led him into that. His explosive energy and gift for expressing his ideas drew attention, and the early eighties saw him acquired by the Guelph Agricultural College as professor in dairying. Soon Guelph was too small to hold him, and in the early nineties, somewhile before the Conservative Administration went out of office, he was taken possession of by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

JAMES J. HILL

President of the Great Northern

At the time of Jim Hill's rather notable visit to Winnipeg, something over a year ago, when he worked up the enthusiasm of the citizens by promising them another transcontinental railway as soon as the Grand Trunk Pacific was ready, was a sort of oldtimers reunion. The railway magnate seemed to take particular delight in meeting friends of his early days in Winnipeg, and in talking over old times. At Manitoba Club he was holding a sort of levee when an old Frenchman asked to see Jim. He was introduced. Hill recalled him at once, and asked him how his son, Louis, and how Baptiste were getting on, and questioned him particularly about his family and about early days that showed an astonishing memory.

"You sold me a horse once," said Jim, suddenly, with a glimmer of a smile.

"Oui," replied the old Frenchman.

"It was an old gray nag," added Hill.

"Oui," was the answer.

"I remember its name, let's see, Marie, wasn't it?"

"Oui, oui," laughed the Frenchman.

"Yes, and you beat me too, it developed a spavin!" said Hill, and the crowd of newspaper men and friends of the railway magnate around howled with delight.

It is not generally known that Mr. Hill is Canadian born, having first seen the light on a farm near Guelph Ont. seventy four years ago. He also received his education in this country, so one might term Mr. Hill a Canadian product. 19

Miss Rose Bud: "Certainly, $5 each. How many will you have?"

Mr. Compton (handing out the money): "I'll take two; good measure, please."

Miss Rose Bud (with a seraphic smile): "Oh, yes, we are particular about that. Miss Autumn Leaf, will you deliver two kisses to Mr. Compton?" (Miss Leaf is forty in the shade and paralyzingly masculine.)

Mr. Compton: "You are more than kind. Dobson" (turning to his man, who is carrying his parcels). "Just take this purchase from Miss Autumn Leaf."

My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. # INCENDIARY FIRES STARTED IN THREE BUILDINGS IN TORONTO

Several Attempts Made to Burn Down the Globe, Mail and Empire and Union Bank Buildings Early this Morning

Two attempts were made, fifteen minutes apart, to burn The Globe building early this morning.

At 12.30 a member of the staff detected smoke, and, going down the rear stairway, saw a doorway on fire. As he went down an unknown man ran out into the street, while The Globe man turned back to give the alarm. Members of the staff put the blaze out with a hand extinguisher. Fifteen minutes later a cloud of smoke rose from the same portion of the building, and it was discovered that a fire had been deliberately built of piles of paper and pieces of lumber on the ground floor near the rear stairway, a few feet lower down than the first. This blaze was also discovered before it had made great headway, and was also put out with a hand extinguisher. The police were notified.

Two attempts were also made to burn the Mail and Empire building at King and Bay streets shortly after the two fires had been extinguished at The Globe office. The first fire at The Mail building was discovered in the rear of the building near the entrance to the mailing department. The woodwork of a window was burning. Near it had been placed a bundle of old papers, which were blazing when the firemen from the Bay St. section arrived on the scene.

Shortly after one o'clock a second blaze was discovered in the building. A section of the floor at the top of the landing at the first floor had been torn up and a quantity of old newspapers wedged in between the cross beams. The fire had just got nicely started when it was discovered by an employee of The Mail. The firemen were again summoned, and they xetinguished the blaze.

At 2 o'clock this morning the firemen had another run to the Union Bank building at King and Bay streets, where a fire had been deliberately started in the rear. The flames were discovered shooting up from a pile of refuse at the rear of the building. The firemen arrived just in time.

Patrol Sergts. Martin and Reburn, who are investigating the fires, discovered parts of bottles at all three fires. The bottles are supposed to have contained spirits.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

ADDRESS TO LADIES.

Mrs. J. S. MacKay, of Neemuch, India, will give a missionary address to ladies in the School room of John St. Presbyterian church on Friday afternoon, Jan. 5th, at four o'clock. All ladies welcome.

TAKEN BY MISTAKE.

It was reported to the police yesterday afternoon that an overcoat had been stolen from a hotel in the city. It transpired that the coat was taken by mistake and the article was returned to the owner.

OYSTER SUPPER.

The members of the local branch of the Woodmen of the World last night had an oyster supper in the A. O. F. hall, Front Street. Many were present and a most enjoyable time was participated in by those who attended. After supper had been partaken of an hour was spent in speech-making and songs.

GALLOWAY—CORBETT.

Miss Bessie Corbett, youngest daughter of Mrs. Wm. Corbett, Charles Street, was married yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Drumm to the Rev. John Galloway, formerly of Thessalon, Ont. They left on the early train for Saskatoon (via Chicago), where Mr. Galloway has a call to the Presbyterian church there.

HAD A BIG SKATE.

Mr. H. M. Moran, a well-known resident of Big Island, Prince Edward County, who is 50 years of age, yesterday skated from Big Island to the city, a distance of about nine miles. He intended to return home in the same manner, but was induced by a relative to motor home. Mr. Moran states that yesterday was the first time in 30 years that he had skates on.

S. S. BOARD ORGANIZED.

The Separate School Board met last evening for the purpose of organizing for the year. All the members were in attendance. Mr. M. R. Doyle was chosen chairman. Mr. E. J. Butler was selected as the representative of the Board on the High School Board. Mr. H. L. Ingram was selected as the representative on the Public Library Board. After some other business of a routine nature had been transacted the Board adjourned.

HEAVILY PUNISHED.

Victor Jordan, a young man, was this morning placed on trial before Judge Deroche on two charges, namely the theft of harness and threatening to do grievous bodily harm. The accused was employed as a farm helper for a Mrs. Ross in Tyendinaga, and he stole some harness and threatened to harm Miss Bertha Ross, who swore she was afraid of him. The charges were proven and Jordan was sentenced to the Central Prison for one year. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown, and the accused was undefended

THE ICE BRIDGE.

The ice upon the bay is of sufficient thickness to allow a horse and light rig to be driven upon it. To-day a party from across the bay bushed out a road from Rossmore to Rednerville and also from Rossmore to the city.

MR. ALFORD WILL RUN.

At the solicitation of many friends Mr. Walter Alford has consented to be a candidate for one of the aldermanic seats to be filled for Samson Ward. Mr. Alford is one of our best citizens and will bring to the Council practical experience, such as is very much needed in that body. His election will be a credit to the ward.

AN ERROR CORRECTED

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Sir,—If the gentleman who informed The Intelligencer reporter that No. 12 division of Murney Ward was not opened at 9 o'clock on election morning, had come to Mr. Brockhurst's residence on Catherine St. at 15 minutes to nine, he would have found Mr. James Hudgins, poll clerk, the constable, Mr. Brockhurst and your humble servant, busily engaged in geting the poll ready to open at the regular hour, as some of the best residents of the Ward can testify, and he could have done what one of the oldest and most respected merchants on Front St. did, namely cast his vote at 9 o'clock.

Yours truly,
GEO. DULMAGE.
Deputy Returning Officer, No. 12 Division.

COBURN—WHITTARD.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Thomas Church on Dec. 27th, when Mr. F. Coburn, of Kingston, and Miss Maud Whittard, of this city, were united in the bonds of holy matrimony. The bride and bridegroom returned from the church to the home of the bride, where a lovely supper was served. The bride was dressed in a navy blue suit and a set of wolf furs with large beaver hat with white plumes. She was attended by Miss May Whittard, her sister, whose dress corresponded with that of the bride, and who wore a large beaver hat with plumes. Mr. William Hunter acted as best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of blue wolf furs; to the bridesmaid a gold ring set with pearls, and to the best man a signet ring. They have gone to the west for their honeymoon, and after they return they will reside in Kingston. Many handsome presents were given to the bride.

ADMITS SLAYING GREEK ARCHBISHOP

Crime Had Been Attributed to Turks and Nearly Caused War

SALONICA, Jan. 3.—One of the incidents which have caused friction between Turkey and Greece, and which has been a matter of mystery for the past few months, is thought to be cleared up in a letter received form a Greek subject who is now in New York, who confesses to a part in the murder of a Greek archbishop.

On October 21 last news from Grevena, in Macedonia, announced that the Greek Arahbishop Emilanos metropolitan of the Diocese of Grevena, his chaplain and his mule driver had been murdered on October 14, and that the bodies of the three had been found in a neighboring forest. It was stated that the murderers were not known.

The Greeks at Grevena were worked up to a dangerous pitch over the affair, and it was stated by the Greek element that the murders had been committed by a Turkish band who were working under orders from the Young Turks. Russia took up the matter and pressed the Turkish Government for a solution.

To-day it became known that a Greek, who is now in New York, has written a letter to Athanasius Iria, a prominent member of the religious congregation at Grevena, in which he confesses his complicity in the murder of the Greek Archbishop. He states that one of the men who had committed the crime had been smitten with remorse and had committed suicide in the Merichowa River. The writer of the letter and one of his companions escaped to New York.

In his letter the man in New York indicates the place on the bank of the Merichowa River where the Archbishop's crozier has been hidden. He confesses that the metropolitan was murdered in revenge for his refusal to admit the murderers to membership in the Greek Patriotic Committee. The letter enclosed money which was stolen from the Archbishop's body.

The authorities here are investigating the confession, and are searching the bank of the river for the missing crozier.

THE BELLEVILLE GIRL WAS THE MOST ATTRACTIVE

Detroit Lady Sues Physician for Her Blighted Affections—Her Claim is $50,000. Doctor Forsook Her and Married Lady from Belleville

DETROIT, Mich, Jan. 3.—Claiming damages to her affections in the sum of $50,000, Miss Violet Schram began suit against Dr. Frederick B. Ashton, a well known Woodward Avenue physician for breach of promise of marriage. The suit was called in the Circuit Court this afternoon. Miss Schram, who is about 35 years old and of good appearance, says that Dr. Ashton 'kept company' with her with her to the exclusion of other desirable men, and that at the end of that time the physician met and fell in love with Miss Margaret Gailey, a pretty young woman of Belleville, Ontario. Miss Schram alleges that when she reproached her lover with his preference for the Canadian girl, the doctor remarked: "Well, you know it is not often a fellow gets a snap like this," and from that time on Ashton's affections were transferred to Belleville, according to Miss Schram, where he married Miss Gailey, May 21, 1910.

THE KING MAY COME.

It Is Believed That He Would Readily Accept Invitation.

OTTAWA, Jan. 3.—It is probable that King George will visit Canada in either 1913 or 1914. Nothing has as yet been done by the Government, although it is understood that the matter has been informally discussed by some of the Ministers. King George is strongly Imperial and his journey to India shows that he is willing to break precedents. He has always been particularly interested in Canada, and it is believed that he would readily accept an invitation to come to Canada. Action will not be taken until the Imperial authorities are consulted.

That the King will come to Canada to open the National Transcontinental Railway is denied. The whole matter lies in the hands of His Majesty and as yet nothing has been done.

A letter from Mr. Flint will be published in to-morrow's Intelligencer.

THEY'LL DEFEND ULSTER.

Resist Home Rule to End—Unionist Council Issues a Manifesto.

BELFAST, Ireland, Jan. 3.—The Unionist Council of Ulster issued this morning a manifesto declaring that a provisional Government will be constituted in Ulster immediately a Home Rule measure has been passed by the British Parliament, and that the most extreme measures will be resorted to for the defence of Ulster by the Loyalists.

This manifesto is represented to be the expression of the unalterable decision of the Anti-Home Rule forces.

BROCKTON MAN FINDS AMBERGRIS.

A Great Climb

A wonderful feat of rock-climbing in the Grindenwald, Switzerland, has been accomplished by Mr. Percy H. Thorp. He succeeded in climbing up the face of the Eiger to the Eigerwadl station of the Jungfran Railway (a tunnel railway), and clambered in through the aperature by which travellers admire the view.

This aperature is situated at a great height above the valley, and the rock wall reaching up to it is almost as steep and smooth as the side of a house. The feat has never been accomplished before.

JUDGE UPHOLDS BOXING

Circuit Judge D. E. Blair recently upheld boxing exhibitions in Joplin, his decision affecting every athletic club in Missouri. A test case was brought recently to determine the legality of local exhibitions. Young Jack Johnson, of Memphis, and Jeff Clarke, of Philadelphia, were arrested at the end of a 15 round bout before the Southwest A. C. of Jopli. Pending the decision of Judge Blair, permitting the bouts, many Missouri clubs cancelled exhibitions.

SULLIVAN COMING BACK

Mike (Twin) Sullivan, former champion welterweight, who outgrew the class, and who has been having a touch of the quiet life on a farm near Cambridge, Mass., will forsake the cows and chickens and try his luck in the arena again. Mike is to meet Paddy Lavin at Buffalo, and if he wins he will go after the harder nuts in the 150-pound division and the middleweight class. If Mike is right he is hard to beat.

BILLIARDS

Stevenson, Dawson, Gray, Lindrum, Inman, Diggle and Reece are some of the billiard cracks now before the English public, consequently stirring events may be looked for. Stevenson and Gray will shortly meet in the first of their three level matches of 18,000 points up at Holborn Hall (London). All three are to be played out, even should one man win the first two, and so make sure of the $2500 aside in stakes. As Stevenson has agreed to play with bonzoline balls, it is difficult to see where his chance comes in, unless he has quietly mastered the hazzard stroke, which made Gray so famous. Reece is also very much to the fore with a challenge to Stevenson, and offers to play the champion 18,000 up level, with ivory balls for $500 aside, the winner to take all the gate. There is a genuine ring about the latter clause, and the conditions are the same as will govern the Reece vs. Inman match. The Oldham man is certainly in rare form and in his heat of the big London tournament with Diggle lately he scored 7,500 points, whilst Diggle made 5,933.

Fathers Work Too Long.

It is a mistake for fathers to toil all their lives in order that their children may escape toil all theirs. Suppose the calculation correct, and permanent idleness secured for the next generation, what evidence is there that the boys and girls will be happier and better for it? The boys will be exposed to the devices of "sharks," and the girls to those of fortune hunters. Leave something for them also to do.

Wash your own clothes. Some two thousand or more laundry workers in New York went on strike on the 2nd inst. for increased wages and a nine hour working day.

"You say your jewels were stolen while the family were at dinner?"

"No, no. This is an important robbery, officer. Our dinner was stolen while we were putting on our jewels."

"Can't you gimme a small raise?"

"We gave you a raise when you got married."

"And I foolishly told my wife about it. I'd like to get hold of a couple of dollars a week for my own use."

There were sixty-two policemen, some in plain clothes and some in uniform, present to preserve order at the peace dinner at which President Taft spoke at New York on Saturday night. The dove is seemingly still among the birds that need protection.

Turkish toweling is the latest material for women's gowns. But before husbands cheer at coming economy, let them take notice that with the towel dress will be worn a real silk underskirt. And then there is always the hat.

The small boys and girls—some of them not so very small at that—have not been suffering because the skating rink has not yet been opened. The icy sidewalks are good enough for most of them, and then there are the ponds and the bay, which are fine places for skating.

There are humanitarians in Britain who are fools enough to demand that the British Government shall send the Russians packing out of Persia even at the risk of war with Russia. In the first place, it is very doubtful if Britain could compel Russia to quit her hold on Persia. In the second place, it would be madness for Britain, in the existing state of Europe, to embroil herself with Russia even to secure justice for Persia.—Hamilton Herald.

Judging by the fact that the hydro-electric by-laws were passed by sweeping majorities in all the municipalities in which they were submitted, it does not appear that the people share the fears of The Globe and other Grit newspapers that the placing of the hydro power department in the charge of a responsible Minister will be injurious—by, as those critics say, "dragging it into politics." The Grit press have been measuring the Conservatives' grain in their own half bushel, it having been their partice to corruptly use every public work to their own advantage, financially and otherwise.

A London cablegram of the 1st inst says there is a division of the Cabinet over woman suffrage which promises the most interesting developments. Lord George the Chancellor of the Exchequer, will address a meeting in favor of woman suffrage at Albert Hall on February 28. There will be a counter meeting at the same hall five days later at which it is understood Lord Loreburn, the Lord Chancellor, Lewis Harcourt, the Colonial Secretary, and possibly other anti-suffrage members of the Cabinet will speak. The promoters of the latter meeting also hope to be abe to get Prime Minister Asquith to attend and make a speech. Lloyd George will win.

The Washington Post says: While foreign nations are clamoring for the free entry of wood pulp and paper into the United States in an equality with Canada, the Treasury Department yesterday decreased the supply which can be imported from Canada without duty through an order relating to the Indian Lands in Ontario. In future wood pulp or paper made from the woods of these lands must pay duty, because of the Canadian regulation prohibiting the exportation of wood scut from Ontario Indian lands for the manufacture of wood pulp. This places these lands in the same class as the Crown lands, upon which exportaion restrictions are placed, and in accordance with the agreement with Canada.

Hatching fish by artificial means to stock the waters of Canada is engaged in on a large scale by the Dominion fish hatcheries planted no few- minion fish hatcheries planted o fewer than 1,024,282,000 fry in various waters throughout the country. In 1900, only 271,996,000 fry were planted by the Government fish hatcheries so that the plant of young fish has increased by nearly 277 per cent. in the past ten years and the number of hatcheries has increased from 12 to 37, or 208 per cent. Of the 37 hatcheries now in operation, British Columbia and Quebec have 8 each, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Ontario 5 each, and Manitoba and Prince Edward Island each have 3. The amount voted by the Dominion Parliament for fish culture purposes in 1909 was $322,300, and of this $180,345, or approximately 56 per cent. was expended. The importance of carrying on this work cannot be emphasizde too much in a growing country like Canada, where the increasing population is making greater and greater demands on the fish supply.

A report comes from Ottawa that Hon. L. P. Brodeur, whose healh is precarious, will retire from the Supreme Court bench, and will be succeeded by the Hon. F. D. Monk, Minister of Public Works in the Borden Cabinet. This rumor, which comes from a Grit source, is therefore probably untrue, but it may be said that Mr. Monk would make an excellent judge, as did his father before him.

Prince Edward Island, after having been for long ruled by the Grits, has thrown off that incubus and has entered the Conservative fold, having virtually obliterated the formerly dominant party, of whom only two survived the ordeal at the polls. The Conservative party now hold the reins in five out of the nine provinces and it looks as if all the others will come in ere long.

ABOUT THAT OLD FIRE ENGINE

Mr. Marsh Says Not Worth Repairing--Comments on Council's Action

Belleville, Jan. 4, 1912.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—I was surprised to note in the report of the proceedings of the City Council of the 26th December the passage of a resolution to spend $600 in repairing the old fire engine, on a recommendation from Ald. Clarke. These repairs, I understand, consist of retubing the boiler and boring out the engine and pump cylinders and putting in new rings. Doubtless all this work is required or a new engine purchased. The question of retubing the boiler was taken up some months ago, and my company put in a price of $200, which, however, was considered too high. Now, however, $680 is not considered too high by Ald. Clarke for this work, together with the repairs to the engine and pump, which should not cost more than another $200. Why were tenders not asked instead of this arrangement being made between Ald. Clarke and Mr McCarthy?

A few months ago Mr. McCarthy, backed up by Ald. Clarke (so McCarthy told me) and a few other progressive (?) citizens endeavored to quash a by-law passed by the ratepayers of Belleville, but was unsuccessful, and was mulcted with the costs of the action.

As a matter of fact the engine in question is too small for this city's use, and what is wanted is a new and larger and more modern engine. Repairing this engine is simply throwing so much money away. Tenders should be called for, anyway, and, according to Ald. Clarke's previous contentions, no contract of any importance should be closed right at the end of the year.

My company would consider itself fortunate in getting this work at a price of from $400 to $500, and will take it at that price if the Council is bound to toss away money in repairing an engine out of date and entirely inadequate to supplying the requirements of the city.

Yours respectfully,

L. W. MARSH.

CHOLERA AT BERLIN.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Many people here believe that the epidemic among vagrants in Berlin was undoubtedly Asiatic cholera, and that it was probably introduced to the German capital by way of Hamburg through immigrants. Medical men hesitate to give an opinion. They point out, however that the sanitary precautions which have been taken by the Berlin authorities are exactly the same as would be taken for cholera. It is possible, French physicians say, that the disease is the pneumoniac plague which raged with great virulence in Manchuria about a year ago. A person of the highest authority who refused to allow his name to be used, told a correspondent to-day that the Berlin disease was surely cholera.

RIOTING IN BRITISH MILITARY CAMP

Scotsmen, Yorkshiremen and Irishmen in Combat—Bayonets Used

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Some of the London evening papers to-day created a mild sensation by lurid reports of rioting in the military camp at Longmoor, near Aldershot, in the course of which, it was said, shots were fired and a pugilistic combat took place between a private and officer. Investigation shows that while the rioting did not proceed to such extremeties, there was a pretty shindy, in which men of the Scotch and Irish regiments and men of the Yorkshire Regiment fought with bayonets, while a Welsh regiment was called to quell the fray.

The trouble began on New Year's Eve, when the Yorkshire Regiment gave a ball. Some Scottish soldiers entered the room, and as a result of an argument, friction arose. There was no fighting that day.

On New Year's Day, a Scottish holiday, the Scotsmen learned that instead of having a day off they would have to do duty as on ordinary days. The Scotsmen, who were composed of drafts from the King's Own Scottish Borderers, the Black Watch, the Seaforth Highlanders, and the Royal Scottish Light Infantry, became very discontented.

A few minutes after 9 o'clock, when the canteen closed, fighting began between the Scotsmen and the Yorkshire men, bayonets being used. An Irish regiment, the Connaughts, joined in the fray, and the fighting became indiscriminate.

A Wesh battalion was called to quell the riot, which had reached the stage of destruction of camp property. Officers attached to the Scottish regiments were called upon, and, although there was some slight hustling, as soon as the men recognized the officers they obeyed orders. Some Scotsmen, however, broke camp, and wandered as far as Petersfield, eight miles away, returning to camp about 6 o'clock next morning.

A district court-martial is to be held on a non-commissioned officer, who, it is alleged, was not at his post. Two men were wounded, one in the hand and the other in the thigh.

The Colonel in command ridicules the suggestion that the affair might be called a mutiny, and says it is more fittingly described as a "rag."

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

SIR ROBT. PERKS, BART.

Financer and Engineer

Capital combined with foresight and industrial confidence, coupled with untiring energy and zeal, are among the requirements and in having these Canada can thank her great men. They have developed and are still developing her resources and making the brand "Made in Canada" favorably known in the marts of the world. The position which the Dominion has assumed, not only as the foremost of the outlying sections of the British Empire but in the estimation of all civilized nations, is a tribute to her great men and a striking evidence that our opportunities have not been neglected.

SIR ROBT. PERKS, BART.

And though Sir Robt. Perks is not a Canadian his interests lately have been largely in this country—particularly with his Georgian Bay scheme. A man who has sufficient confidence in Canada as to offer to invest millions of dollars of his own and friends must see a large future for the country.

J. H. COLLINSON

Hamilton, Ont.

Now the boy scout movement has spread over Canada — with branches in every city, it is well that we should know something about the men who have done so much to make the organization a success — the pioneers of scoutcraft. In Mr. J. H. Collinson of Hamilton the boys have always had a firm friend and when the idea was brought to Canada he at once organized a local troop and because the first scoutmaster. Today the boy scouts in Hamilton are very strong and, thanks to the energy of their poplar master, increasing each year.

Esquimaux Beliefs

Esquimaux believe that earth and air are filled with spirits. The one drags men into the earth by the feet, from which they never emerge; the other strikes men dead, leaving no mark. They often stop and listen and say that Tuna of the wind is passing by, imagining that the air is full of voices.

When one hears some people warble it's not difficult to understand why they are saddest when they sing.

WIDOW McNEE

Her Wooing Told in a Charming Complete Story

By MALCOLM MURRAY

Ralph McNee, who, according to his mother, Widow McNee, was the finest lad North of Tweed, but who had given a different impression of his virtues to some others north of the famous river, was pleading hard with Farmer Alan—pleading, withal, for the hand of the farmer's pretty lass, Margery. And knowing that the heart was already his, Master Ralph made exceeding bold.

"I'm not so poor, nor so unseemly in my looks, farmer," he said. "I've a farm as big as yours, and the finest mother in Scotland. What more could a father want for his daughter?"

Farmer Alan, who stood in his shirt-sleeves at his kitchen door, did not allow this young scapegoat of a lad to enter his house.

"If you were big enough," he announced, looking the unembarrassed lover up and down, "I'd give you a mighty good hiding! You ought not even to know my Margery!"

"But I do!"

"Ay, that's so, and she'll be sorry for it."

"You'll never blame her?"

"Won't I just! And for your farm, young man, it's the most barren—"

"You're a silly old Tory!"

"Ye lie!" exclaimed Alan at this insult, and then let it pass. "You're not rich enough, or handsome enough; and, mark my words now, you're not good enough for my Margery."

"My mother says I am," put in young Ralph.

Alan looked up in a flash.

"Oh, the Widow McNee!" he said, an infinite scorn in his tone.

"Well," cried Ralph, "and what's the matter with the Widow McNee? I'd be beholden to you, Mister Alan, for the information."

The farmer spread out his large hands expressively.

"She's the fussiest, busiest, most deceitful old body in the whole country!"

Ralph sniggered.

"She's the bonniest, prettiest mother a lad ever had to kiss him good-night!"

"Pretty!" gasped the farmer. "She's fifty—"

"Forty!" replied the youth. "Now, come, Mr. Alan, you know she's the only body in these parts who has ever got the better of you. She runs the farm better than yours, she could get more milk out of a motor-car than you could out of all your cows, and she fairly beat you over that field of Donald's."

"You young scamp! You young—"

But his wrath got the better of him. It was well known round Fairdare that the Widow McNee had long shown Alan how a prosperous farm ought to be run. When he spoke again it was in a burst of dismissal.

"Get you off, my lad," he cried, "before I kick you home to yon fine mother of yours! And if I find you hanging around Margery, I'll murder the very shadow of you!"

So it was that Master Ralph, fairly bursting with his story, took himself and his troubles back to his mother. As ever she received him with sympathy.

"You want to marry Margery, lad?" she said.

"Ay, and the old man would not hear of it. He's heard wicked, untrue tales of your poor boy, mither."

The widow raised her eyebrows shrewdly.

"If he's only heard true ones it's quite enough," she said. "But I do not like the mon refusing a McNee for his lass."

"It's certainly inconsiderate on you, mither," Ralph murmured.

The widow rose and went to the door where her cloak hung.

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to yon Alan," the widow announced, taking a bonnet from a cupboard. "I'm a woman of action, lad. I wish you were, but you're not." The widow's eyes sparkled, which, by the way, became her mightily. "Yes," she said, opening the door, "Mister Alan'll be very sorry that he refused Widow McNee's bonnie son."

"Ugh! Ye cruel, heartless monster, Mister Alan!" she exclaimed. "You thought nothing of sending my poor lad to a suicide's grave. So you turned up your fine nose at Ralph McNee?" she continued.

"Did you think I'd have a wicked, evil-looking young—young rascal for my lass?"

"He's a good enough lad," the widow returned. "I remember you as a young man, Mister Alan. I remember the night at Farmer Mackay's party when the lamps went out, and someone kissed someone else so loud, and, if you wish my mind of it, so clumsily, that even—"

"Hathers, woman, tell me what you've come for?" gasped the farmer, purple.

"I've come to arrange for my lad to marry your lass."

"He won't!"

"Oh, yes, he will!"

"I tell you he won't!"

Widow McNee held up her hands in mock surprise.

"And you a man was married for ten years, farmer, and you don't know that when a woman says a thing it will happen—well, it does happen!"

The farmer held open the door.

"I wish you'd go."

"You don't like me?" she laughed.

"You're doing no good, Mrs. McNee," he said.

The widow rose with a little sigh.

"And Ralph no' such a poor match, I'm thinking," she said gently, as though to herself.

"Eh?" put in Alan quickly. This was talking, this was more to the point.

"Well, he's got the farm and a bonnie mother." She hesitated, and then: "And, of course, there was his Uncle Kenneth who died in New Zealand."

"His uncle?" asked Alan quickly.

"Ay! You see, Ralph and I have kept it quiet. The lad did not wish to get a lass who cared more for his money than himself."

The farmer shut the door.

"His money?" he inquired.

"Ay; just a wee couple of thousand pounds." It was the widow's turn to open the door, and on the threshold she turned. "I'm sorry you cannot agree to the bairns making a match of it. But good-night, Mister Alan."

The man smiled rather sheepishly.

"Good-night, Widow McNee," he said.

From that day Mr. Alan obviously softened towards the reprobate Ralph; but he was too Scottish to have him in his house, or to give his consent.

The widow came to see him five or six times, and he was hard to refuse her. But he could not bring himself to give in to a woman.

Matters were brought to a head by his daughter's weeping announcement that Widow McNee had forbidden her son to continue the engagement any longer. It seemed that she had grown tired, and that meant an end of it.

"She's never said that?" asked Alan.

"Ay, and now there's no one to help us!" cried Margery. "Ye're a pair of cruel old wretches!"

The farmer was worried, not so much at the thought of his daughter's bleeding heart as Ralph's thousands. He took his daughter's hand, and patted it gently.

"Never you mind, lassie," he said, "you shall be married despite the old woman."

The girl cried aloud in her surprise.

So farmer Alan sent for Ralph to consult with him.

"I'm doing it just to spite the widow, mind ye," said the farmer when the astonished Ralph had arrived. "But you two bairns must get married."

"We've your permission," gasped the prospective bridegroom.

"On one condition."

"Eh?"

"It's to be a secret wedding now," he replied. "If you keep it secret from the widow, I'll help you and see no harm comes to you. Ah, that woman will be just mad!"

Ralph evidently shared his opinion with the farmer, and hesitated in his reply. But he remembered his mother's advice about getting married first, and then worrying. He held out his hand to the farmer.

"It's a bargain," he said, and that day week Farmer Alan was a father-in-law.

Ralph was sent home to inform the widow of the news, while the farmer waited in anticipation of her glorious wrath.

She was rather more startled than otherwise, and went straight to see Alan. He met her alone in his kitchen.

Very pale, and, for her, wondrously nervous, she made her confession.

"Mister Alan," she said, "I have been a very wicked woman."

"Wicked?" asked the farmer, puzzled.

"Yes. I have deceived you most wickedly," she said, coming out with her confession in a rush. "I told you that Ralph had been left a heap of money. It was not true."

"Not true!"

"No," she rushed on. "I did it to make you agree. I thought that you would do it for the money."

The farmer colored deeply, and for a moment there was an awkward silence. Then, in a low voice, he said:

"And I did so, you think?"

"No, no!" she exclaimed. "I have been a very wicked woman."

Alan stepped up to her.

"Do you know why I did it?" he asked, almost roughly.

"No." Her eyes were frightened, but bright.

"So that I could be related to you."

"To me! But I don't understand."

"Don't you!" he cried, and took her in his arms.

And then, a little later, the Widow McNee said, looking up into his eyes:

"I think I understand now, dear."

"You ought to," he laughed. "Ma wurrd, but a widow's a verra dangerous thing, I'm thinking!"

CHANGE IN GIBBONS

Three months ago I met some of the New York boxing promoters, also a couple of Boston men, and suggested they would make a hit by matching Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welterweight, with one of the Lewis boys or some good 145-pounder. They ridiculed the idea, saying that Gibbons had never been heard of outside the woods, that he was a bloomer, etc. Now look over the eastern sport sheets and see what a change has taken place regarding Michael.

Shooting partridges from aeroplanes is now a popular sport in France and several aviators who are good shots have secured excellent bags.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 2.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts for the week ending Dec. 30 were 1650 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 1350 hogs and 300 calves, while the offerings on the market to-day for sale were 850 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 925 hogs and 150 calves.

There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle, on account of the fact that supplies were small, but, as there were no really choice steers offered, the top price realized was $6 for the best stock on the market, but if choice steers had been obtainable buyers would have willingly paid $6.25 to $6.50 for the same. The demand was fairly good for the season of the year, and a moderately active trade was done.

A feature of the small-meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for lambs, owing to the limited supplies, and prices scored a further advance of 50c to 75c per 100 pounds, with a good demand at $7. The tone of the market for sheep was firm, with no change in prices to note. The demand for calves was fairly good, of which the offerings were small, and prices ruled higher for the best stock.

There were no new developments in the hog situation, prices being fairly maintained under a good demand from packers for supplies, which were none too large, owing to the fact that very few country-dressed hogs are coming forward this season, and sales of selected lots were made at $7 to $7.10 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 30 were 1500 cattle, 1800 sheep and lambs, 3000 hogs and 200 calves. The supply on the market this morning consisted of 300 cattle, 250 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 75 calves. A fair trade was done in all lines.

Killings and Injuries

In the past four years there have been 8,718 persons killed and 27,992 injured in Canada on steam and eelctric railways, by industrial accidents, and by fires. The figures in detail are as follows:—

| | Persons killed. |
|---|---|
| Steam railways | 2,049 |
| Electric railways | 301 |
| Industrial accidents | 1,072 |
| | 8,718 |

| | Persons injured. |
|---|---|
| Electric railways | 8,296 |
| Steam railways | 7,344 |
| Industrial accidents | 10,444 |
| Fires (estimated) | 1,908 |
| | 27,992 |

As the Monetary Times figures it out, "every day during that period 6 persons have been killed or injured every hour of the twenty-four." This record of deaths and injuries is taken by the Monetary Times as the text for an earnest appeal for the application of the gospel of conservation of natural resources to the greatest of all resources, human life. Says the journal referred to:

"Many, if not the majority, of these accidents can be traced to carelessness, thoughtlessness or selfishness. The desire to achieve big results in the shortest possible time at the expense of efficiency is a national trait which the country may well take immediate steps to obliterate. The evil of dollar and dividend hunting, regardless of destruction in its wake, is a menace to Canada's progress and credit. The basis of civilization is the proper respect for life and property. We in this country have by no means sufficient regard for either. The fact is noted by the capitalist and investor abroad, and we suffer thereby, and will do so to a greater extent if early improvement is not made.

Analyzing the statistics of industrial accidents in the latest published report, under the heading of mining, it is found that explosions caused over 33 per cent. of the deaths and over 20 per cent. of the injuries. Falls accounted for nearly all of the deaths and over 66 per cent. of the injuries in the building trades. Among unskilled laborers, 21 men were killed by being run over by vehicles, and 17 by falling material, and 53 were injured in a similar way. An alarming increase has occurred in the number of fatalities among workpeople engaged in the handling of explosives.

Mine Accidents in Canada

Statistics recently compiled by the Commissioner of Conservation show that the death rate in Canadian coal mines is much higher than in any other civilized country. In 1902, the year of the Fernie disaster, the death rate per 100 men employed (above and below ground) reached the maximum rate of 13.25. The average rate for the ten years preceding 1910, however, was 4.79. The United States comes next with an average rate for the same period of 3.43. Perhaps the worst aspect of the situation is the fact that the death rate from coal mine accidents has been steadily on the increase in Canada for a number of years. The minimum rate of 1.83 was reached in 1897. In 1909 the rate was 4.21. During the same time there has been a steady decrease in all the leading European countries.

It would, of course, be unreasonable to expect that the loss of life and property could be entirely done away with, but experience has shown that careful investigation of the conditions will point the way to the remedying of many abuses. That the danger inherent in coal mining can be largely eliminated is shown by the low, constant death rates in Belgium and Great Britain. Coal mine explosions are much more frequent in Canada and the United States than in any of the European countries. The following example is exceedingly significant. In 1850 the fatality rate in the Belgian coal mines was as high as the present Canadian death rate, while at the present time it averages the lowest in the world. This decline in the death rate was due to the combined efforts of the mine owners, the workmen and the Administration of Mines; to the diffusion of technical and professional knowledge and to the administrative organization for the scientific study of accidents.

Although the death rate in metalliferous mines in Canada is lower than in the coal mines, it is much higher than in any of the European countries. The death rate in Canada for the period 1900-1909 was 3.82.

With the exception of the Kimberley diamond mines and the Transvaal, where native and Chinese labor are employed, the fatality rate during this period (1900-1909) was considerably lower elsewhere than in Canada. It requires no discussion to emphasize the importance of an inquiry into the whole subject of fatal accidents in the mines of Canada.

ARE TO RECEIVE GRANTS.

Dominion Government Will Aid the Veterans of '66.

KINGSTON, Jan. 3.—As the result of an interview of the Minister of Militia by Col. McDonald, of Toronto, a short time ago, Col. Hunter, of this city, has received a communication to the effect that in place of giving the Fenian Raid veterans land grants similar to those given by the Ontario Government, the Minister has promised that the veterans will receive a sum of money instead.

A bill was introduced to give them the land grants.

Although there is nothing definite, yet, it is understood that a local league will be formed here in conjunction with the Imperial Army Veterans' Association of Canada. The aim of this league is to assist worthy veteran militia men.

FIRE IN A CHURCH.

One Thousand Escape From Burning Building During Service.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 3.—One thousand persons escaped with difficulty from the First Presbyterian Church of this city on Monday when the church was destroyed by fire. The congregation had assembled to hold special watch services. Shortly after the new year had been welcomed the church suddenly filled with smoke and the members had to grope their way out. Good order prevailed and no one was injured. A few minutes later flames swept through the edifice, which was soon a mass of ruins

LITERARY NOTES

The Canadian Magazine starts the new year with a most attractive January number. The frontispiece is reproduced in tint from a painting by J. E. H. MacDonald, a clever young artist of Toronto, and the first article is a delightful bit of writing by W. Lacey Amy, descriptive of "Quidi Vidi," a surprising fishing town in Newfoundland. "Burns' Message to Canada," by Dr. J. D. Logan, is a timely application of this celebrated Scottish bard's social ideas to trans-Atlantic conditions. Arthur Hawkes gives an interesting acount of the explorations of Hearne and his Canadian associate Matanabee. A fine historical sketch of the first administration of Ontario is contributed by Professor W. S. Wallace, with portraits of the members of Ontario's first Government. There are other very readable articles: "English Play-actresses," by Ida Burwash; "Plays of the Season," by John E. Webber; "The Vogue of the Nature Story," by C. Lintern Sibley; and a sketch of Miss Janet Carnochan, by Francis Drake Smith, with short stories by Brian Bellasis, Sylvester Perry and Elizabeth Richardson.

THREE DOCTORS DIFFER.

One Says Girl Is Insane Because She Works for Less Than She Needs to.

TORONTO, Jan. 3.—Doctors differ upon the question of Emily Tyler's sanity, and since Dec. 26 the girl has been kept in jail because of the controversy.

On Dec. 26 Dr. Parry, the jail physician, reported her "insane and dangerous."

Same date Dr. J. J. Thompson said—"She is not insane, but has always been the same. She is capable of supporting herself amid proper environment. She is a simple girl. She can read the papers."

Then came Dr. Vrooman on Jan. 2: "Mentally deficient, an irresponsible person."

Finally Dr. Harry Clare, of the asylum announced his opinion:

"She is mentally deficient and irresponsible, because she is willing to work for low wages; in fact for no wages at all."

"This is all very extraordinary. I'll commit her to the asylum. She will be turned out at once if she is not insane," said the magistrate.

"I'm not insane. There's people here who know all about fe," declared the girl.

"You may be out in a week."

THE U. S. DENY FREE ENTRY TO FOREIGN MADE PULP

United States Declines to Extend Concession Enjoyed by Canada—Want Matter Tested—In Doubt as to Whether Dominion is Entitled to Privilege

Washington, Jan. 3.—The Federal Government has denied the formal requests by Germany, Austria-Hungary, Norway and Denmark for free admission of wood pulp, print paper and paper board, made from wood cut on restricted lands.

These nations demanded the same concession in regard to the wood pulp and print paper as Canada now enjoys under the Canadian Reciprocity Act, which became effective in this country so far as these items are concerned on July 1 last.

In rendering this decision the Treasury Department purposely opens the way for importers who are now paying the duty under protest, to bring a test case before the Board of General Appraisers, in New York, which may be carried to the United States Court of Customs Appeals. Several bills are already pending in Congress to repeal the Canadian Reciprocity Act, but a decision by the Customs Court holding that it was not the intention of Congress to have the wood pulp provision of the Reciprocity Act effective unless Canada herself accepted the entire Act, will remove all torublesome features so far as the Government's relations with European nations is concerned.

In announcing the decision the Treasury Department to-day gave out this statement:

"Careful consideration having been given to the briefs presented on both sides of the question whether or not the provisions of section 2 of the Act of July 26, 1911, granting free entry to Canadian wood pulp, print paper and paper board made from wood cut on restricted lands should be extended to similar articles produced in countries other than Canada, with which this country has treaties granting the most-favored-nation treatment with respect to the imposition of Customs duties, it has been decided that inasmuch as the questions presented contain many elements of doubt as to the proper interpretation and interrelation of the treaties and statutes involved, the right of free entry will be denied. This action will provide the only means of having the issues subjected to judicial determination, as the importers who feel aggrieved by the ruling may carry their protests to the Board of United States General Appraisers, and then to the Court of Customs Appeals. The department has isued instructions to the officers to have them co-operate with the importers in bringing the cases forward for speedy hearing and determination.

"It is acknowledged that there is some doubt in the minds of President Taft and his Cabinet advisers as to the exact intention of Congress in making operative section 2 of the Canadian reciprocity measure, granting free admission to wood pulp and print paper from Canada independently of the rejection of the measure by the Canadian voters. Mr. Taft is not certain that Congress really intended to admit Canadian wood pulp and print paper free of duty, unless there were similar concessions from Canada in the reciprocity pact. When the reciprocity measure was voted down in the recent Canadian election, section 2 had already become operative and wood pulp and print paper from Canada were being admitted free of duty. The result was that the admission of Canadian wood pulp and print paper free of duty was in the nature of a gratuitous concession made by the United States without a corresponding concession from Canada.

CAVALIERI GETS DIVORCE AT LAST.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—The Court which has been hearing the divorce case of Mme. Lina Cavalieri to-day granted her a decree, and the much talked of Chanler-Cavalieri affair thus is legally ended.

The divorce judgment was granted on Mme. Cavalieri's demand, and Chanler did not put in any defence.

The Court judgment reads:—

"Whereas the two parties concerned were married June 18, 1910, without any previous marriage settlements; whereas there was no child born; whereas Chanler refused on several occasions to receive his wife at his conjugal domicile and resume their common life; whereas, in replying to a summons to receive his wife, which summons was served December 16, 1911, by Sheriff's officers, Chanler declared in the most absolute manner that was possible that he refused to resume the common life, saying:—

"I've had enough already. If, despite me, my wife entered the door, I would jump through the window"; whereas he agreed to sign the officers' report on condition that he did not hear any more of his wife;

"This Court grants a divorce through the husband's wrongdoings."

JOURNALIST DEAD AT SEA.

John Seward Hunt Suicided on Christmas Night on S.S. Saxonia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—With the arrival to-day of the steamship Saxonia, from Liverpool, came the first authentic account of the death at sea of John Ward Hunt, a New York newspaper writer.

Hunt, according to wireless despatches telling of his disappearance, was not washed overboard, but, according to the best belief of the officers and passengers of the ship, deliberately leaped into the sea some time after dinner Christmas night, and was not missed until the following morning.

The sea at the time was smooth and there was not the least possibility, they say, of a person falling over the rail. Hunt seemed to be in a perturbed mental condition on the evening before his disappearance.

A solid special train left Edmonton Dec. 8th, at 5.00 a. m., over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for Portland, Me., in connection with the sailing of the White Star-Dominion Line S. S. "Teutonic," which sailed from Portland Dec. 14th. The special was run via Potrage La Prairie, to St. Paul and Chicago, thence via Grand Trunk Railway System to destination, and was composed of baggage car, six tourist cars, one first-class coach and a Grand Trunk Pacific dining car. Full complement of passengers were on board who had taken advantage of the Christmas holidays for a visit to the old coun-

COME BACK AT RUSSELL.

Pinkertons and McNamara Enter Suits Aggregating $250,000.

MONTREAL, Jan. 3.—New actions were yesterday entered arising out of the famous David Russell cases against the Pinkerton Detective Agency and their Montreal manager, J. W. McNamara, which are now on their way through the appeal courts after Mr. Russell lost his first hearing before Judge Archer. Now the Pinkertons are suing Mr. Russell for $250,000 damages, and Mr. McNamara has entered a similar suit for $50,000, both actions being based on alleged malicious and inaccurate charges made by Mr. Russell in connection with the first action.

A good deal of money, on paper, is thus involved in this cause celebre. In the original case Mr. Russell sued the Pinkertons for $200,000, and Mr. McNamara for $50,000, claiming that they had conspired against him and otherwise behaved improperly toward him as their client. This case is still under way, so that the whole court proceedings inaugurated by Mr. Russell as a result of the alleged "badger game" and other alleged conspiracies in which he claimed that the detective agency men tried to have him incarcerated in a lunatic sanitarium, have now led to court proceedings involving some half million dollars.

The new actions were entered by Messrs. Meredith, Macpherson, Hague & Holden, who acted for both the Pinkertons and Mr. McNamara during the original case, and it is likely that the final decision will not be reached until the appeals in the first actions which may go to the Privy Council, are decided.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Some Great Gastronomic Feats Performed at Different Times by Gluttons for Wagers and Then Boast.

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min.: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

SOME SMALL WRITING

Characters So Small That a Microscope has to be Used to Decipher the Work Which Is In Japanese.

For some time there has been shown in San Francisco a piece of paper 13 in. by 7½ in., on which there are written 126,000 words. This writing is the work of Kobo Taishi, a Buddhist of Japan, who lived 1,100 years ago. Before his time his countrymen used only Chinese characters in writing and he evolved the idea of the Japanese alphabet.

The writing on the paper is so fine that a microscope has to be used to decipher the intricate Japanese characters. It is an exact copy of eight books of the Buddhist Bible, and was written by the author as a sort of penance to purify his spirit. It is the property of a descendant of the writer, and has passed as a sacred heirloom from father to son for a thousand years. Every precaution has been taken to insure the safety of the document. In a case of white wood is a beautiful lacquered box wrapped in green silk. Within the lacquered box is another made of a very light porous wood that is extensively used in the manufacture of cabinets in which to store treasures. In this box is the precious writing.

WHAT IS A GENTLEMAN?

It is said that every man's definition of the term "gentleman" makes it inclusive of himself. Likewise it is true that each man is prone to believe that his manners are the best in the world. A writer, speaking of this point, relates the following story. On a man-of-war there was once a reception, and it happened that a distinguished statesman forgot, or did not know, the usual formal salute on coming aboard.

"Who's that lubber what don't tip his skypiece to the skipper?" said a sailor.

"Choke your luff," returned another sailor. "That's Blank, the famous politician."

"Well," growled the first sailor, "why ain't he got manners enough to salute the quarter-deck?"

"Manners?" a third sailor chipped in. "What does he know about manners? I don't suppose he was ever out of sight of land in his life."

Quick Measurements.

A traveller was detained at a little country railway station for half an hour, and was chatting with the stationmaster, when the bell rang sharply half-a-dozen times. Instantly the three employés—stationmaster, booking-clerk and yard hand — ranged up in a line on the platform and stood at attention.

A moment later a locomotive with a single saloon-carriage slowed up. The solitary occupant of the saloon regarded the men sharply, made hurried notes, and quickly retired.

"Who was that?" the traveller asked the station agent after the train had gone. "Some prominent official of the line?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. "That was the company's tailor measuring us for new suits."

Why the Dog Howled

He was a poor, miserable-looking dog, and the stranger's heart was filled with pity. For the dog was howling, and it was only too evident that he was suffering pain. So he asked the tired rustic who longed near why the dog howled.

"'Im?" asked the rustic. "He's just lazy, that's all."

"But laziness doesn't make a dog howl, surely?" queried the benevolent one.

"Does 'im," said the tired owner. "Only lazy."

"But how," queried the persistent questioner —"how can laziness make him howl?"

"Well, you see," said the rural lounger, "that pore dog is sittin' on some real, tough thistles, and he's too lazy to get off, so he just sits there and howls 'cause it hurts so."

QUEBEC HOCKEY CLUB

The Quebec Hockey Club have concluded arrangements with the Quebec Skating Club, and it has been decided to erect a new gallery at the far end of the rink. This will give increased accommodation. The architects are now busy upon the preparation, and the work will be rushed through for the opening match. Three new exits will be installed.

The line-up of the Quebec team is expected to be one of the strongest it has had for a long time. Outside clubs are still dickering for some of last year's players, but nothing definite has yet been done.

The locals expected to get to work tonight, but owing to the mild spell the ice was not in condition.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

J. F. MACKAY

Manager Toronto Globe.

A sign of the times is the improvement in the managerial end of the great Canadian newspapers. No longer does one meet with the illiterate bullies who at one time used to dominate everyone who came in contact with them — from the editor down to the presmen. Today the successful newspaper manager is a well educated and courteous gentlemen; he meets the editorial staff on terms of literary equality, he knows the value and the standard of his paper as an educator just as he knows the intrinsic value of the newsprint and the machinery. Such a man is J. F. Mackay the manager of the Toronto Globe. Since he took over the business end of the great Canadian daily Mr. Mackay has put the property on a sound basis, he has been Dr. MacDonald's right hand man in getting the best out the staff and has worked like a Trojan to bring the paper to every household in Canada.

J. F. MACKAY

Last year on Mr. Mackay's election to the presidency of the Canadian Club in Toronto every newspaperman felt that his profession had been honoured, as indeed it had.

John Fields Mackay was born in Toronto in 1868 and educated at Woodstock College.

In addition to his newspaper work Mr. Mackay gives a good deal of his time to the Conservation Commission of which he is a member.

MISS LOIS MOYES

Toronto.

Since women have taken such a large part in the sports of the nation they bid fair to compete successfully with the sterner sex. In Miss Lois of Toronto the sporting ladies have a splendid exponant of their claims.

Her skill with the racquet approaches and often excells that of many of the male entries in the different tournaments. She has captured many championships, and is known as one of the cleverest lady tennis players in North America.

A Fair Champion

Graduating from the high school classes as an expert tennis player in addition to her scholastic honors, Miss Moyes, who is still a young lady, continued her marvellous playing, her victory in the Canadian Championships two seasons ago, giving her a clear claim to the Canadian title.

ROBT. BAIRD

Toronto.

Big, strong and with a heart that warms you to his delightful personality, Robt. Baird, the idol of the Toronto tennis enthusiasts, is a Champion of whom the Queen City fans may well feel proud. His honors have been deservedly won, and while he has not a few rivals, his tennis ability and strong forceful pay, are factors, that cannot be downed in wresting the title from him.

Baird has figured in dozens of tennis tournaments, but he has yet to have a disastrous defeat registered against him. He lost to Capt. Foulkes, of British Columbia, last year, but his playing is much improved this season, and there are not a few but who look to him to pull down international laurels before the year is out.

Doctor: "So your mother-in-law died while I was away. What finally carried her off?"

John: "The hearse, sir."

Wife (who is very fond of her first baby): "The landlord was here today. I gave him the five pounds and showed him the baby."

Husband (who was kept awake last night): "It would have been much better if you'd give him the baby and showed him the five pounds."

PARLIAMENTARY PERQUISITES

Members of U. S. Congress Usually Travel Cheaply and Consequently Save Many Cents Per Mile on Allowance.

For each session of the U. S. Congress each member is allowed twenty cents a mile for each mile going and coming between his home and Washington. As railroad fares these times run about two cents a mile, and as the Hon. Jasper on his first trip generally spurns the Pullman, as being fit only for the predatory and plutocratic rich, and rides in the day coach with the great common people, it will be seen that on this mileage item alone he cleans up to a considerable extent, especially if he chances to live a long distance from Washington. He gets twenty cents a mile. Every time eight telegraph poles go flittering by there are twenty cents coming in and only about two and a half cents going out. Here, of course, distance counts.

Mileage amounts to a most impressive sum in the case of Prince Cupid, the chubby delegate from the Hawaiian Islands, who comes all the way from Honolulu, and to practically nothing at all in the lamentable case of Representative Charles Creighton Carlin, who resides in Alexandria, right across the river from the district. One or two of the Maryland members, who live only a short distance away, also suffer distressingly in this regard, and are objects of commiseration among their fellows.

CHILDREN INJURED

ORDINARY CATHARTICS AND PILLS AND HARSH PHYSIC CAUSE DISTRESSING COMPLAINTS.

You cannot be ever-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowel, thus over coming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents and 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Belleville only at our store—The Rexall Store.—J. S. McKeown.

Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a ruling passion in his life it was politeness — if such a rare accomplishment can be called a passion.

All the days of his two-and-twenty years had been spent in imbibing the lesson that politeness is irresistible, that as a business asset its value is incalculable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner, for tea, and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Tired and despondent he tramped along.

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an expoition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job. He is at it still. He is in gaol.

THE COURAGE OF OPINIONS

The ways in which people form their opinions are most remarkable. Every man, when he begins his reasonable life, finds certain general opinions current in the world. He is shaped by these opinions in one way or another, either directly or by reaction. If he is soft and plastic, like the majority of people, he takes the opinions that are about him for his own. If he is self-assertive and defiant, he takes the opposite of these opinions and gives to them his vehement adherence. We know the two kinds well, and as we ordinarily see them, the fault which is at the root of both is intellectual cowardice. One man clings servilely to the old ready-made opinions which he finds, because he is afraid of being called rash and radical; another rejects the traditions of his people from fear of being thought fearful, and timid, and a slave.... Both are cowards. Both are equally removed from that brave seeking of the truth, which is not set upon either winning or avoiding any name, which will take no opinion for the sake of conformity and reject no opinion for the sake of originality; which is free, therefore — free to gather its own convictions, a slave neither to any compulsion nor to any antagonism.

—Phillips Brooks.

Latin Prescriptions

The following ludicrously illustrates the necessity of a reform in medical nomenclature.

Dr. Doane was very much confounded, a few years since, by a remark of one of his patients. The day previous the doctor had prescribed that safe and palatable remedy, syrup of buckthorn, and left his prescription duly written in the usual cabalistic characters—"Syr. Rham. Cath." On inquiring if the patient had taken the medicine, a thundercloud darkened her face, lightning darted from her eye, and she roared out:—

"No! I can read your doctor-writing. And I aint' a-going to take Syrup of Ram Cats for anybody."

A Pennyworth of Air.

An enterprising inventor has gone into the business of retailing compressed air for cycles and motor-car tyres on the principle of "drop a penny in the slot," the device is a cast-iron pump in a neat box arrangement, which is nailed to telegraph poles and walls in country districts that are frequented by cyclists and motorists. The handle shown in the centre of the box gives a supply of air when turned.

Scottish Weather.

A gentleman who had been spending a few weeks holiday at a pleasant seaside resort noted for its golf links, asked one of the caddies if he got much caddying in the winter.

"No, sir, no," replied the caddie. "There's no caddying in the winter time. Ye see, t's this way. If it's no' sna', it's frost; if it's no' frost, it's sna' if it's neither frost nor sna', it's rain; if it's no' rain, t's wind; and if it's a fine day, it's the Sabboth."

CALABASH PIPES

Showing How the Favourite of the Smoker Can Be Made to Grow in Your Back-Garden or Window.

The fruits are allowed to remain on the vine, which is a relative of the Gourds, till the outer parts are quite hard, for if gathered before they are thoroughly ripe, difficulty is experienced in seasoning. On the other hand, they must not be allowed to remain long enough to be subjected to frost, for a severe frost is likely to cause injury. Dry, sunny weather is more favourable to the development of fruit than wet weather, for though the plants will take plenty of water, more satisfactory results are obtained from watering by hand than from the plants being subjected to an excessive amount of rain. The past summer, with its long-continued heat, has been ideal for the successful cultivation of these Gourds, in England, providing they were well watered at frequent interval. Seeds sown here on a slight hot-bed and the plants allowed to grow till they had filled a frame, which could be lifted off about mid-June, would probably give the most satisfactory results. If grown throughout the whole of their career in a frame or greenhouse, however, arrangements ought to be made for a free circulation of air at all times. Apart from the utility of the fruits of this plant, it is quite ornamental enough to receive attention from a decorative standpoint, either indoors or out.

A pedigree hog was killed by an American railroad and a jury awarded $10,000 damages. And you couldn't get that for ten dead section men.

The schottische was introduced 40 years ago in Germany.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

E. M. BERLINER

Montreal

To be secretary-treasurer and joint manager of one of Canada's biggest companies at the early age of twenty-seven is something to be proud of and Edgar Berliner holds down these two positions like a veteran, as those who would try to take advantage of this smooth faced young fellow, find to their cost. But though Eddie Berliner is one of the keenest business men in Montreal, he is one of the best to meet. With a countenance beaming with good nature he grips your hand as though he was really glad to see you and the first query "what can I do for you" is typical of the man. He is always ready to do someone a good turn, he treats his employees like men and women, not machines, and when sickness comes to any of them he is there with the "practical" support.

The firm which gives Mr. Berliner these opportunities to show what he is made of is the Berliner Gramophone Company Limited of Canada of "His Master's Voice" fame. There is quite a romantic story attached to the adoption by this firm of the famous advertisement but it must be given in another place and it is best told by Eddie Berliner himself for he is a good raconteur with a big fund of humour.

E. M. BERLINER

Edgar M. Berliner, to give him his full name, is the second son of Emile Berliner the founder of the firm and was born in Washington D. C. in the year 18 . He received his education in his native city and the Institute of Thechnology where he graduated in 1906. Mr. Berliner immediately entered the great business in which he has been so successful.

Whatever future Canada holds out for her brainy young men will be Edgar Berliner's. He is a living example of the sureness to win, of the man who means to, by good and honest work.

Hon. Mrs. FRANK OLIVER

Ottawa.

What the Hon. Frank Oliver, late Minister of the Interior, owes to his wife for his success both in his journalistic and public life is best expressed in Frank's own words when he said that he owed everything to his wife. And no wonder, for Mrs. Oliver, with her quiet and gracious ways has brought many a Westerner to her husband's side, which he himself, with his plain talk had estranged.

Hon. Mrs. FRANK OLIVER

Mrs. Oliver was married in 1881 and boasts of three daughters and one son.

WILLIAM D. EDY

One of the Oldest Photographers in Canada.

William D. Edy, of London, is one of the oldest and best-known photographers in Canada. With his brother, the late James N. Edy, he shared the distinction of having photographed the earliest telephone instruments with which Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, was experimenting back in the early seventies.

Mr. Edy who was born 1832, in Burford Township, Brant County, will be 80 years of age in February, 1912. He was born in Canada of New England and French ancestry, and his grandfather, Roswell Matthews, built the first house in Guelph, although this is usually attributed to one or the other of two subsequent tenants by the names of Allan and Galt. He began life as a farmer in Townsend Township, Norfolk County.

Arrival of Money Gives Imperialists More Hope.

It Is Now Expected That Yuan Shi Kai With 80,000 Ounces of Gold In His Treasury Will Resume Fighting —Reign of Terror Exists In Shanghai—Wu Ting Fang Refuses to Negotiate by Telegraph.

Pekin, Jan. 4.—Confidence continues to revive among the adherents of the Imperial court. The Chinese nation is very easily encouraged or discouraged owing to its trait of timidity. Nowhere else in the world could 80,000 ounces of gold bars such as were delivered from the Imperial purse into the hands of Premier Yuan Shi Kai Tuesday seriously affect a great empire at a critical moment.

A belief is current that fighting will shortly be resumed. Premier Yuan Shi Kai has not received any reply from Wu Ting Fang at Shanghai, who he informed that he would in future carry on negotiations by telegraph. It is understood that the republicans object to negotiate by telegraph.

The Imperial delegates, who have returned here from Shanghai, state that a reign of terror prevails in that city. Nobody dares to venture an opinion in favor of a constitutional monarchy.

In quarters closely connected with the Imperial Government, it is believed that the important provinces of Hupeh and Hunan are dissatisfied with the foreign educated element, which is dominating the affairs at Shanghai. The hope exists in these quarters that these two provinces will soon revert to the idea of a constitutional monarchy.

In case Yuan Shi Kai makes satisfactory progress in the course of this month in his attempts to suppress the rebellion, more treasure will be forthcoming from the coffers of the Manchu princes and the Imperial court.

Tang Quits Gracefully.

Shanghai, Jan. 4.—"I have done my best for my country and do not desire to embarrass my old chief." That is all that Tang Shao Yi would say for publication after the announcement of his resignation as a representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai to the peace conference.

Tang Shao Yi appears to be much affected over the situation. Up to Tuesday night he believed that peace was assured and that there would be no further bloodshed.

Emperor Going to Mongolia.

Harbin, Jan. 4.—The commander of the Imperial troops at Zekhe, Mongolia, has received 100,000 taels and instructions to prepare a residence for the Emperor and other members of the royal family, and to organize a Mongol bodyguard.

No Negotiations by Wire.

London, Jan. 4.—Wu Ting Fang has written to Premier Yuan Shi Kai, says The Daily Telegraph's Shanghai correspondent, informing the Premier that he declines to carry on negotiations by telegraph. He insists upon Yuan Shi Kai coming to Shanghai for that purpose. Dr. Wu believes that the Premier is willing to join the republicans, but is afraid to leave Pekin.

A despatch from St. Petersburg to The Telegraph says that there is danger of Mongolia splitting into three separate kingdoms. Eastern Mongolia has already proclaimed independence at Urga. Western and Southern Mongolia are preparing to follow suit, with capitals at Kobdo and Ullassutai.

Montreal Fighting Railway.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—The Quebec Legislature is, according to information gleaned at the City Hall yesterday, to witness a repetition of the fight which took place at Quebec last February between the civic authorities of Montreal and the representatives of the Montreal Street Railway Co., aldermen having yesterday morning expressed in caucus a determination to send a delegation down to Quebec to make one more stand against the ratification of the tramways amalgamation as it now stands through the street railway company's action.

The aldermen have been informed that it is the company's expressed intention to present a private bill before the Legislature in its coming session, which will ask for legislative sanction to the amalgamation of the Montreal Street Railway with the Terminal and Park and Island and the Public Service Corporation.

This bylaw was originally reported as having been defeated.

Lives In One Room With 30 Dogs.

"FIGHTING BOB" DEAD

Rear-Admiral Evans of U.S. Navy Passes Away Suddenly.

Celebrated Naval Officer Who Commanded the Battleship Iowa in Sampson's Fleet at Santiago Has Had a Busy Career—Taken With an Acute Attack of Indigestion When In Best of Health.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, retired, died suddenly last night of acute indigestion. He had been apparently in the best of health up to the minute he was stricken.

Admiral Evans, one of the most popular men in the United States navy, arose yesterday morning apparently in better health than he has enjoyed for some time. He lunched at two o'clock and almost immediately afterward was stricken. Dr. S. S. Adams was called hurriedly, but the naval officer lapsed into unconsciousness, dying at 4.45 o'clock.

Admiral Evans started the battleship fleet in its cruise around the world, resigning command at San Francisco because of his approaching retirement from the service. From President Taft down, officials of the Government last night expressed the deepest regret over his sudden demise.

Robley Dunglison Evans was born Aug. 16, 1846, in Floyd County, Virginia, and educated in the public schools of Washington. He graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1863, and was made an ensign in October of that year. He participated in both attacks on Fort Fisher in January, 1865, and in the land attack received four severe rifle shot wounds. He achieved his lieutenancy in 1866, became a lieutenant commander in 1868, and a commander in 1878. When in command of the Yorktown in 1891, at Valparaiso, Chile, his conduct when American sailors were attacked, earned for him the name of "Fighting Bob" Evans.

He was promoted to a captaincy in 1893, and in 1898 commanded the battleship Iowa in Sampson's fleet, taking an active part in the destruction of Cervera's fleet off Santiago, Cuba. He was appointed president of the board of inspection and survey, and was made a rear-admiral on Feb. 11, 1901.

He was commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station, 1902-4, and commanded the Atlantic fleet from 1905 to 1907. He retired on Aug. 18, 1908.

Since his retirement he has devoted himself to writing his memoirs and to the directorate of oil fields in California.

Persia In High Excitement.

Teheran, Jan. 4.—The execution of Shegat Ul Islam, head of one of the religious sects, which took place at Tabriz on Monday after a court-martial by Russian officers, has deeply perturbed officials here.

Seven other Persians were hanged at the same time, and there is apprehension that Russia's drastic and wholesale executions, which occurred during the most solemn religious festival of the Persian year, will affront national feeling to a dangerous degree.

The successor to W. Morgan Shuster as treasurer-general of Persia has not yet beeg named. Rumors are again current that the Bakhtiaris design to create a new dynasty.

Hot Time In Hull.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Some of the most riotous scenes that have ever been witnessed during a Hull municipal campaign occurred last night at the meeting held by Mayor Archambault. There were over 300 persons present, partisans of Mayor Archambault and Ald. Dupuis, the two mayoralty candidates, and the utmost confusion reigned during the early part of the evening.

Free fighting was going on all over the hall, and yelling, catcalls and obscene language blocked any attempt on the part of the mayor to address the meeting, the services of the police having to be called in to quell the riot which was in progress, several arrests resulting.

Bryan Is Reluctant.

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 4.—"I cannot conceive any condition that would make it possible for me to consider the question of my becoming the candidate for the Presidential nomination of the Democratic party in 1912."

This was the declaration of Colonel William J. Bryan on his arrival here yesterday from Havana in company with Mrs. Bryan. They left last night for Washington. Mr. Bryan declined to comment on the action of the Progressive Democrats of Ohio in pushing his name to the front as a candidate.

New York Living Better.

There were 75,423 deaths, as against 76,742 in 1910, the number being 13,537 less than the decennial average. ## Thugs In Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 4.—Four men working together holding up innocent citizens is the latest in Vancouver thugdom.

A young Englishman, James Malcolm, who was walking home on Melville street just after midnight, was the victim. He met two men who stopped him.

One, pointing a gun, said: "Give us your valuables quick." Just at that moment the young man noticed two other men on the opposite side of the street walking. Ducking away from a possible shot from the hold-up men, Malcolm ran across the street, shouting for aid from the new arrivals and they received him with open arms with another revolver. They pressed the gun in his ribs and held him so he could not get away. The first two men walked away, apparently assured that their two comrades would do the job well. The young man was relieved of $18 in cash and a heavy overcoat before being told to walk homeward.

Shoe Machinery Case.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Testimony was given before the commission investigating complaints against the business methods of the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada yesterday afternoon by G. A. Slater, president of the G. A. Slater, Limited.

The witness stated that, in his opinion, its methods were calculated to hamper trade. He declared the Canadian company compelled those using its machines to use old types long after new ones had been put out and that improved machinery was not introduced into Canada until the United States market had been supplied.

He also objected to the tieing clause, under which users of the company's machinery were bound to lease machinery for a certain period, and only to use machinery of certain make in connection with it, considering this took away from the independence of the shoe manufacturer.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Parliament Will Start Next Week on Big Program.

Heads of Departments Have Been at Work Preparing Several Matters For Immediate Consideration—Trade With West Indies Will Be Taken Up and Conference Will Be Held—Estimates to Be Presented.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—When Parliament reassembles on Wednesday next the Government will be ready to provide it with work. The period before Christmas served the purposes of getting rid of the inevitable post-mortem upon the election, and of getting the estimates for the current year finally voted.

On reassembling the Ministry will promptly lay before the Commons the estimates for 1912-13, and, in addition, on the opening day will have three bills ready to introduce—that respecting the Department of External Affairs, that respecting the archives, and that respecting the status of private secretaries of Ministers.

A vigorous pushing forward of business may be expected from the start.

The Government has already taken steps to implement the promise contained in the speech from the throne for closer trade relations between Canada and the British West Indies.

Negotiations have been opened through the Imperial authorities with the West Indies, and the expectation is that the progress now being made will clear the way for more direct and detailed conferences between representatives of the West Indies and the Government of Canada.

The Canadian end of the negotiations now in progress is in charge of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. George E. Foster. The object toward which the negotiations are now working is the establishment of a mutual trade preference. As long ago as 1893 Canada gave the West Indies a preference of 25 per cent, and got nothing in return.

The royal commission, headed by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, which was appointed by the British Government to investigate West Indian trade conditions, reported in 1910 that the islands might be willing to extend a 20 per cent. preference to Canadian products and accept a lower Canadian preference in return, provided the present Canadian system of letting in each year a little foreign sugar at lower rates were discounted.

The Island of Barbados, some time ago, passed an act giving preferential treatment to certain Canadian products, but the list was not large enough for Canada, especially as the Dominion was required to grant a still more extended preference in return.

It is understood that the principal difficulty to be encountered in the negotiations is the somewhat complicated condition of the sugar trade, and the unwillingness of the Island of Jamaica, the most important fruit-exporting island of the group, to jeopardize its commercial relations with the United States.

Samuel Gompers has again denied knowing anything about the dynamite cases in any way.

Quebec Legislature Tuesday.

Quebec, Jan. 4.—Daily meetings of the Provincial Cabinet are being held at the Parliament Buildings, the Ministers being busily engaged in preparing the business for the coming session, which opens on Tuesday next. It has been decided that Mr. Laetare Roy, the new Minister for Levis, will move the address and the seconder will be W. H. Walker, member from Huntingdon. In the Legislative Council the address will be prepared by Hon. George E. Amyot and the seconder will probably be Hon. Mr. Bryson.

Aylmer Sets Timber Limits.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—After six months' discussion the Aylmer Council Tuesday night decided to prohibit the piling of lumber inside the town limits.

For the last five years the residents of Aylmer have lived in constant terror of the large lumber yards inside the town catching fire, which would mean, if the wind was high, the total destruction of the town.

Last summer the lumber yards were burned and it was only by the good work of the Ottawa firemen that the town was saved.

Recalls a Sea Mystery.

London, Jan. 4.—A life buoy, inscribed "S. S. Waratah," has been picked up on the west coast of New Zealand. The discovery recalls a mystery of the sea, but throws no light on the loss of the Waratah. It is remarkable that the buoy should have drifted 7,000 nautical miles in two years and five months.

One new waist handsomely trimmed with Irish lace had disks of "Helen" pink scattered along the lace here and there with pleasing effect.

One of the new petticoats is of crepe de chine edged with a deep net ruffle. This latter has a hem three inches wide of crepe de chine.

Fire In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 4.—For over two hours last evening the fire department fought a stubborn fire in the central district in an atmosphere of 30 below zero. The origin of the fire, which was in the Excelsior Motor Works, on Garry street, about a block from the postoffice, and in the same block on the same side of the street with Premier Roblin's residence.

The loss in the garage includes 16 motor cars, averaging $1,500 each, while a terrace of houses, the fronts of which had been extended for stores, was destroyed, at a loss of about $13,000; the total loss being placed at $75,000. During the fire two firemen had their feet badly cut by jumping on to broken glass.

The firemen were handicapped by the failure of high pressure on two occasions, the fire gaining at once and spreading south.

Too Much Fresh Meat.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—W. D. Miles, general manager of the Armour Packing Co. at Kansas City from 1894 to 1902, testified yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws, that the old packers pools were organized to prevent the glutting of the market with fresh meat and that there always was active competition between the members in all parts of the country.

Despite the fact that Miles had on two occasions given testimony against the packers before federal grand juries, he proved an unwilling witness yesterday, and little of value to the Government's case was gleaned from his direct examination, which was not concluded when court adjourned.

Berlin's Furniture Show.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—Plans are about complete for the holding here on Jan. 9, 10, 11, and 12, one of the greatest furniture exhibitions ever held in Canada. Twenty-five furniture manufacturers in Berlin and Waterloo will exhibit in their show rooms the latest creation on furniture and their display will be second to none. It will be the first annual exposition and the latest and most up-to-date exhibits will be placed on view and the idea is to make of it such an exhibit that it will become an annual event.

A great deal depends on the success of this exhibit as permanent show rooms are contemplated along the line of the one now building in Winnipeg should this prove successful.

Cotton Strike Extends.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 4—The lockout of the weavers and spinners in Lancashire, which began Dec. 30, has extended to several mills at Bolton and elsewhere.

The conference, which took place here yesterday between Sir George R. Askwith, the noted strike arbitrator, the employers and employes, lasted for six hours.

No settlement was reached and the conference adjourned until to-day.

Brantford Fears Rabies.

Brantford, Jan. 4.—A dog was shot on Crown street yesterday having symptoms of rabies, and last night Constable Reed gave a canine a chase down Queen street, firing several shots. The dog had bitten a young man, who rushed into the police station for assistance, and the animal escaped to the outskirts of the city. Only recently several dogs were exterminated as a result of the visit of a Government inspector.

WIFE ACCUSED.

Chicago Club Woman Held for the Murder of Her Husband.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—The defence of Mrs. Rene Morrow, writer and club woman, who is under arrest charged with the murder of her husband, Chas. B. Morrow, an inventor, was complicated yesterday by a story told at her preliminary hearing by Dr. Arthur W. Morrew, a son of the deceased.

The doctor testified that the inventor came to his home, two weeks before his death, Dec. 28, and told substantially the following story:—"I was awakened by a noise in my room. I found some one standing over me with a weapon. I leaped from the bed and knocked the pistol from the intruder's hand and then found it was my wife.

"I want to come to your house and get some sleep and something to eat. I am afraid at home. My life has been threatened several times."

Inasmuch as it had been agreed that the examination now would proceed only far enough to enable Municipal Judge Fake to determine whether the woman would be admitted to bail, Morrow's testimony was ordered excluded from the record.

Morrow was found shot to death on the rear porch of his home. Mrs. Morrow said she heard shots, but had feared her husband would end his life because he had threatened to do so. She said she had not seen him since the night before.

DYNAMITE IN A LOCAL OPTION CONTEST

Church Meeting at Actinolite Disturbed by Loud Explosion—Glass Smashed.

TWEED, Jan. 1.—The little village of Actinolite, which in the palmy days of Billa Flint, was known as Bridgewater, is in a fever of excitement as the result of a dynamite outrage which occurred there on Sunday night.

A local option contest has been strenuously waged in that vicinity, and naturally a considerable amount of feeling has been engendered. On Sunday special temperance addresses were delivered in the church, and it was decided to hold a watch-night service as well. A large number participated in this, and many earnest prayers were offered for the successful outcome of the fight. During the progress of the meeting the worshippers were startled by a loud report and the shattering of glass in the large windows. It is said there were three explosions. Considerable damage was done to the fine building but no one was injured. Certain parties are suspected of this dastardly crime, but up to the present no arrests have been made.

It is said that an attempt is being made to hush the matter up, but there is no doubt the Crown authorities will take hold of the matter and push the case. The whole community is aroused to indignation over the matter.

A GOOD MAN GONE

The Late Levi Massey Passed Away Honored and Respected by All.

After a lingering illness from general debility, caused by advanced age Levi Massey, an honored layman of the Methodist Church, passed away peacefully at his residence on Jan. 1st, 1912. Mr. Massey was born near Cobourg, April 13, 1827. Cradled in a christian home, early in life, through the direct influence of his cousin, the late Hart A. Massey, of Toronto, he took a decided stand in religious matters, and was shortly afterward appointed Recording Steward, an office which he held until his removal from Haldimand to Sidney in March, 1867. For over sixty years, Mr. Massey served the church in an official capacity, as steward and class leader, he has been a frequent delegate to the Annual Conferences and three times a representative to the General Conferences. He has also been an active member of the Board of Management of Albert College for nearly forty years.

On the eightieth anniversary of his birth about sixty neighbors and friends invaded his home and presented him with an easy chair and an appreciative address.

In 1860 Mr. Massey was happily united in marriage to Miss McClatchie sister of A. McClatchie, M.A., of this city. After 51 years of married life. Mrs. Massey, with their five children three sons and two daughters, are left to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and kind father. The children are Charles J., of Sidney; Norman L. B.A., of Moose Jaw; Alfred Yale, B. A., M.D., of Central Africa; Mrs. S. E. Lane, of Sidney, and Mrs. (Dr.) Palmer, of Waldeck, Sask.

In the passing away of Mr. Massey the church loses a liberal supporter the temperance cause a staunch advocate, and the community a genial and obliging neighbor.

The Grand Trunk Railway System seems to be the popular route for Trans-Atlantic passengers during the Christmas holiday travel. On Dec. 7th no less than four special trains left Chicago for the Atlantic Coast over this line, all of the trains being well filled with those sailing from this side to the old country.

At 11.00 a. m. a special train with 8 cars left the Dearborn Station, Chicago, for New York, with over 250 passengers.

Another special left the same station at 2 p. m. with 7 cars with over 200 passengers for the S. S. "Megantic," which sailed for Portland on Dec. 9th.

Another special left at 2.30 p. m. with six cars and over 150 passengers for the S.S. "Franconia," of the Cunard line, sailing from Boston Dec. 9th, and at 3.00 p. m. another special pulled out from Chicago with six cars with over 150 passengers, for the steamships leaving New York on Dec. 9th. All these special trains were of most modern equipment and quick runs were made to destination.

Many a dramatic critic doesn't know a good thing when he sees it—at least, many playwrights think so.

A Kansas burglar recently stole a woman's false hair. He probably found her asleep at the switch.

KINGSTON MAN WAS CRAZED BY WHISKEY

Drunken Man Tried to Drive Horse Into Water—Went Dashing Down Street and Nearly Into Bay.

KINGSTON, Jan. 3.—A remarkable story of the act last week of a citizen temporarily crazed with liquor—"squirrel" whiskey, some say—has just leaked out. It seems that this citizen had been celebrating not wisely, but too well, the approach of the New Year and had got into such a state that he scarcely knew what he was doing.

In any event, be this as it may, a mad fit seized him hen reeling down Johnson street and, seeing a horse and rig standing on the street unattended, he jumped into the rig and lashing the horse he started on a mad gallop down Johnson street toward the water. On and on he went, faster and faster, for the street inclines steadily down for several blocks. Despite the cries of panic-stricken spectators he continued to lash the horse, even after it had passed Ontario St.—not only that, but headed it directly across the tracks and for the open water in the slip. Another moment, and man, beast and wagon would have gone over. But it was not to be. With a good deal more intelligence than the drunken dirver, the horse, seeing the water and apparently realizing the danger, swerved sharply to the left and then came to a sudden halt, trembling in every part of its body. An instant later, and several of the horrified but now relieved spectators were at the horse's side, and none too gently removed the drunken brute from the rig. Later, he went home, but not until he had been given a serious talking to by a number of citizens.

Undoubtedly had the horse continued its mad gallop and not stopped itself, nothing could have saved either man or horse.

MUSIC and DRAMA

"THE CHORUS LADY."

This is surely the day of the downtrodden and despised chorus lady. James Forbes' clever play, "The Chorus Lady," which will be seen at Griffin's Opera House to-night, has raised the ensemble artist to the proud pinnacle of heroine, and she is certainly enjoying herself. The dressing room scene in the second act is a triumph of the scenic artist and shows the chorus girls as they are, both with and without the "make-up." The play is one of the biggest successes ever written and enjoyed runs of one year in New York, nine months in Chicago, six months in Boston and six months in London, England.

Contrary to the meaning suggested by the title, it is not a musical play, though a dozen girls are carried by the company, but a neat little drama told in a concise, entertaining way, possessiong a happy combination of the laugh and the tear, and bearing a strong moral lesson. The leading part is that of Patricia O'Brien, a wise, slangy, sophisticated girl. Prices 25, 50, 75c. and $1.00.

"THE ROSARY."

When Edward E. Rose's new play, "The Rosary," with John Meehan in the role of "Father Kelly," comes to Griffin's Opera House on Tuesday, Jan. 9th, local theatre goers will have an opportunity to see pictured before them the growing unrest and irreligion of our times. It is a faithful picture of the misery and unhappiness that surely comes upon a man who lacks faith in the supreme good and its triumphs in our world.

Can one evil mind poison a whole household? Is the human brain capable of producing disastrous effects upon a household by adverse suggestive thoughts?

Do we realize adequately how our mental attitudes influence our lives and the lives about us?

And the answer? Well,—the play is the answer.

"The Rosary" has proven to be the sensation of the past year in Chicago and New York. One company played for almost four months in Chicago alone and the engagement in New York, in fact in all the large cities, was equally as successful.

The prices for the engagement here will be 25c., 50c., 75c., $1.00. Seats on sale in advance at Doyle's Drug Store.

YOUNG MAN SHOT.

Tweed Lad in a Serious Condition—Hit by Stray Bullet.

TWEED, Jan. 3.—A young man by the name of Lobb, aged 14, or thereabouts, while walking along the street yesterday afternoon was struck by a stray bullet, which passed through one lung. Three physicians were immediately summoned, but the lad's condition is very serious.

No light has been thrown upon the identity of the person who fired the bullet.

Deceased, who was 80 years of age, was born at Sophiasburg, Prince Edward County, and had resided in this vicinity all her life. Mrs. Pennock was an estimable lady, respected by all who knew her. The remains will be taken to Shannonville for interment.

MRS. M. GILLEN.

One of Belleville's oldest and most respected residents passed away this morning, when Mrs. M. Gillen expired at her residence on George Street after a week's illness from bronchitis. The deceased lady, whose maiden name was Hannah Mitchell, was born in 1822 at Coleraine, Ireland, of Scotch-Irish parents, and was consequently in her 90th year. She came to Canada some 75 years ago, and about five years later was married at Montreal to Mr. M. Gillen, and a few years afterwards removed, with her husband, to Belleville, where she had ever since resided. Mrs. Gillen was a member of St. Andrew's Church, with the activities of which she was long prominently connected, and was widely known and much esteemed in that connection. For thirty-five years she had been a widow, and is survived by the following members of a numerous family: Mrs. E. Donald, Montreal; Mrs. S. A. Hyman, Belleville; Mr. Alfred Gillen, Postmaster, and Mr. Fred Gillen, Belleville. The Intelligencer join in sympathy with the bereaved family.

Milking by Electricity.

We have had milking machines for some while; now comes the American electric machine which jealously watches the milk from cow to pail, from pail to dairy, from dairy to sterilizer, from sterilizer to separator, from separator to churn, from churn to refrigerator, neatly packed up as germless butter.

You press a button. Four cows are electrically milked simultaneously, and all this happens. And not a germ, not a molecule of contamination. This is an era of hard choices for the man who loves health and beauty equally. The farmyard of the future is not an inspiring speculation, but the most aesthetic person cannot preserve a blind eye to the sediment in his glass of milk.

Belleville never prospered so much in any one year in the history of the municipality as it did during 1911.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BOXING

THEIR "REAL" NAMES.

Tommy Andrews' new dope book is out and contains quite a lot of new material for those interested in the study of nomenclature (highbrow for monakers). By studying it you can learn that Joe Coster is really Joe Agnello; Joe Rivers is Jose Rivers; Jack Dillon is Ernest Cutler Price; Knockout Brown is Valentine Braun (not Brown); Young Jack Redmond is Henry F. Hoppe; Frankie Conley is Francesco Conte; Jack White is Jack Aukove; Billie Berger is William Neiderberger; Charlie White is Charlie Anchowitz; Young Erne is Hugh F. Calvin; Paddy Lavin (our Paddy) is Patrick C. Stynes and Dixie Kid is Aaron L. Brown.

A $10,000 SIDE BET.

Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant, probably will have a chance shortly to see what he can do over the long distance route he would have to travel if he ever mixed up with Jack Johnson for the championship of the world.

Acting for Morris, F. B. Uferr, his manager, yesterday in New York posted $10,000 in gold with Billy Newman to go as a side bet for a twenty-round fight with Al Palzer.

Morris wants to fight on the coast, where a distance bout may be arranged, but has expressed a willingness to meet Palzer in a ten-round bout in New York if the latter insists.

ATHLETICS

EXCUSES FOR LONGBOAT.

Tom Longboat's defeat in the Powderhall Marathon yesterday is attributed to the tremendous pace he made in the early part of the race. A C.A.P. cable states that he was warned repeatedly by the crowd to slow up but that he would not listen to them. His manager, Harry O-burn, formerly a railroad man in St. Andrews, N.B., said that Longboat was unaccustomed to running the wrong way of the track and it was an effort to him to run with the right hand in. A strain to his right knee caused his retirement in the 16th mile. Cameron, who was third, received the magnificent sum of $30 for his share of the purse.

CANADIAN BALL LEAGUE

McCaffery Declares Against a Club for Toronto.

There will not be a Canadian League Club in Toronto next season as its promoters had hoped for. The proposition was turned down by President McCaffery in no uncertain manner when he met Manager Shaughnessy of Ottawa on Saturday. Mr. McCafferty gave the Ottawa man three reasons why the scheme would not work, as follows:

First—The Eastern League would oppose it.

Second—It would be a death blow to the city amateur clubs.

Third—A club that would draw in Toronto would be too strong for the other cities in the league, with the result that it would have a tempestuous career.

MAT WELLS HOME AGAIN

Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion, is back in London and full of the good time he had in the United States. He says: "I have had the time of my life, and put in the pleasantest and most profitable six months I ever dreamed of. Nothing was too good for me. They treated me like a prince, and if I am only half as well received in my native land, I will be a happy lad." This will please the Americans, and coming on top of what the English polo players and H. H. Hilton say, demonstrate that visitors to the United Sates may count on a good reception.

Wells has issued a challenge, to the world, and is prepared to box anyone at the lightweight limit, for $2500 aside. His rise to fame since leaving the amateur ranks has been rapid and he may yet go further. Naturally the Englishman feels sorry he did not get a chance of meeting Wolgast or McFarland, when in America, but as he hopes to pay another visit, he may yet attain his wish.

PEDESTRIANISM

A good performance was accomplished by C. Harris when beating Pat White for the 10 miles Irish professional running championship recently. The event was decided at Dublin, and as rain fell in torrents during the race, the track was very heavy. In spite of this handicap, Harris covered the journey in 53 mins. 58 secs., winning by 500 yards, a very smart bit of running on the part of the ex-amateur.

The times accomplished in the series of sprint races between A. B. Postle and J. Donaldson, at Melbourne, make interesting reading. The course was grass, but a good turf track is quite as fast as cinders. Postle's 7 4-5 secs. for 80 yards, and Donaldson's 9.3-5 secs. for 100 yards, are both splendid, but Donaldson's 10 4-5 secs. for 100 yards does not strike one as remarkable. On the 100 yards' time, Donaldson ought to have shown 10 1-2 secs. at least, though possibly Postle failed to push him. There can be little doubt that the winner is a wonderful sprinter, and the writer can testify from personal experience that Donaldson is very modest about his great ability.

A man with more money than brains is apt to have more friends than enemies.

HOCKEY

The members of the intermediate hockey team here are practicing for their match to-morrow night at Trenton with a team representing that town. Our boys, owing to there being no ice at the rink, have not had the practice they desired to have, but will nevertheless be in shape for a good argument with the western town boys.

Lloyd Gunter has been registered by the Belleville Juniors and Frank Stanton, Willet Hubbs, Fred T. Haylock and Ralph Burns by the Picton Juniors.

ANDY MORRIS

Seeks a Match With Barry, Ross, Flynn, or Any of the Boxers of the South.

"White Hopes galore, but few worth railway fair to New York or any other city," remarked an old-time heavyweight to me the other day, while discussing the Oklahoma giant — Carl Morris.

"By the way," said the old timer, "they're talking about this Morris being a comer, but why don't they give the real Morris a chance. I mean this young fellow in Boston they call "Andy" Morris, who has had more real fights the past year than Carl Morris ever thought of.

"I have followed this chap for months and I notice that he is always going against the hardest men in his class and generally winning. I think he will take the starch out of Carl Morris and also Palzer and Kennedy if given the chance."

And the "old sport" is right "Andy" Morris has been showing up better than any of the eastern heavies. He has beaten most of the "hopes" around New York and Boston and only recently broke two ribs for Tony Ross in Pittsburg, when they met [illegible] and strong and has [illegible] ambition.

ANDY MORRIS

"Andy" seeks a match with Jim Barry, Tony Ross, Jim Flynn or any of the tough men of that class at New Orleans, as he wants to try the long distance game. He is planning an Australian trip next season and if he shows well the balance of this year will be given a contract for 1912 by Hugh McIntosh.

AMATEUR HOCKEY UNION

There Will Be Only Four Teams In Ottawa Section.

There will be only four teams in the Ottawa section of the Interprovincial Amateur Hockey Union. Efforts were made lately to revise the Cliffside club, but the officers gave up in despair. The Y. M. C. A. jumped into the limelight Saturday and proposed to organize, but the Stewartons have spoiled the chances of further expansion by threatening to withdraw should another team be taken in. They claim that they were given first call on all the players after the National and New Edinburghs had picked their eligibles. Consequently, the idea has been abandoned and the series will consist of New Edinburgh, Nationals, Stewarton and Renfrew.

A merry fight for players is still being waged. Stewarton's claiming Benedict and Broadbent, who were booked for the professional ranks; also Gilmour and Carling, of last year's Cliffside team, as well as George and Gilbert, the Queen's stars, who are now here.

Attell vs. Kilbane

Negotiations are on for a match of 20 rounds at New Orleans, between Abe Attell, featherweight champion, and Johnny Kilbane, the Cleveland lad who seeks Abe's title. There is talk of them meeting at San Francisco, but Kilbane assures that nothing has been settled and if he can come to terms with the New Orleans promoters he will give them the preference. Attell also likes the southern club, where he drew over $11,000 with Frankie Conley. He knows he will draw more with Kilbane. The chances are the match would be staged during the Mardi Gras.

A grateful manner, considered even from a sordid point of view, pays. Would you not be inclined to repeat an invitation to the grateful guest who laid stress upon heartful thanks for the pleasure received?

Certainly it is agreeable to be amply thanked, instead of feeling every entertainment is accepted as a matter of course.

CALGARY SPORTING WRITER AND RUGBY.

Where does the successful coach earn his money in the huge American University teams. If the game was the same old cut-and-dried stuff pulled out every year, think you that these coaches would be retained at the enormous salaries just to rehearse the old story? Not much. Each year there is a decided evolution, and these coaches are the boys who do the evolving. They try to lead the game, not have the game run away with them. The only fault of the Canadian game is the fact that it has undergone practically no change at all. Same old stuff hauled out year after year. Two downs and a kick; two downs and a kick. Change ends. Two downs and a kick; two downs and a kick. If one of the halves run a few yards or is tackled at all well, or a little run is pulled off with the wings handling the ball, the play is called a wonder. The game is suffering from the lack of brains to make new plays.

Take this method of heeling out the ball. No man or woman can tell how the ball is going to come out. That is one of the weak points of the game and could stand some revolutionizing without doing any harm. The English way is worse, for it is purely luck. The Americans have that part of the game down to a decided art. When the ball is put into play, all can see it go into action and there is no chance for a slip. In the Canadian game the ball is placed into the scrimmage and then heeled out in a most unscientific way. It may come out or ooze out, and the luckless quarter back who has to do the initial handling has the time of his life trying to get the ball out clean from the centre scrimmage, and do something with it before the wings pile around him and massage the tan off him with their boots.

SAMSON

Samson

Not satisfied with his first experience with Champion Frank Gotch, the result of which was a week in a hospital, many hours of which were passed in a state of coma from which it was feared he would not emerge, Henry Bahn, the German wrestler, known as "Samson," wants some more.

Immediately upon his discharge from St. Luke's, "Samson" went to the office of the Chicago Daily Socialist and deposited $1000 to bind a return match with Gotch, George Hackenschmidt or any other heavyweight grappler living.

He announced his willingness to meet any man after a week's training. Although he has wrestled for years, "Samson" says he has never been thrown. Gotch tossed the big German over his head and he was knocked senseless, the match ending with "Samson" on his way to the hospital.

The beauty about love in a cottage is that there is no janitor.

3 P. M. DESPATCHES

JUSTICE RATHER SLOW FOOTED

Man Charged With Jewel Robbery of Three Years Ago Arrested

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 5.—After nearly three years' search for the thieves who stole jewels valued at half a million dollars from a strong box en route to the Queen of Siam, the police last night arrested Jules Deboseck, a newspaperman, on a charge of complicity in the crime. At the Bow Street Court to-day he was remanded without bail. The gems disappeared while on a German steamer.

DIED FROM EXPOSURE

(Intelligencer Special)

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—Clad only in his shirt and trousers, James McClurkin, of Guelph, leaped from the second story window of the Hotel Rupert, Queen and Parliament Streets, some time during the night, and died of exposure shortly after being found by a policeman. McClurkin had not been drinking and appeared rational last night.

FIRES AT GODERICH

(Intelligencer Special)

GODERICH, Jan. 5.—In zero weather the firemen here fought two fires this morning, one of which slightly damaged the new Public School, and the other burning the top portion of the Western Canada Flour Mills elevator. Much grain was damaged by water.

EXPLOSION AT HAMILTON

(Intelligencer Special)

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan 5.—A terrific explosion destroyed shack thirteen of the Hand fireworks plant this morning, and the fire which followed threatened for a time to reach tons of high explosives stored in nearby buildings. All the employees escaped.

LENDS AUTO TO A MOTHER.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Jan. 3.—As Mrs. Charles Millman of 138 Church St. was walking to-day in Main St., pushing a carriage containing her baby, and her four year old son toddled beside her, a team of horses drawing a heavy truck started across the sidewalk. The mother rushed ahead to save the baby in the carriage, but forgot the older child who was knocked down by one of the horses.

Main St. was thronged with shoppers, and as a throng gathered an automobile stopped and a young woman wearing costly furs got out and pushed through the crowd. She picked up the unconscious child, regardless of its condition, and held it while a physician examined it. He decided that the boy was not mortally hurt, but that it was important to get him home quickly.

The woman, who proved to be Mrs. Mary Thaw Thompson Van Cleef, a cousin of Harry Thaw, turned over her car to the child, its mother, and the doctor, and instructed her husband, who was at the wheel, to hurry, while she took the baby carriage to the mother's home.

So absorbed was Mrs. Van Cleef in her errand of mercy she was unconscious of the notice she attracted, the sight of a richly apparalled woman walking behind a very ordinary baby carriage causing a great crowd to follow half a mile to the poorer part of the city, where she delivered the baby to its mother and received her profuse and tearful thanks.

Mrs. Van Cleef occupies a beautiful home on the Hyde Park Road. She has several children of her own.

GOING TO JAMAICA.

A trip to Jamaica will be made this winter by a number of Canadians under the direction of the Canadian Travel Club. The members of the club in Jamaica, who include His Excellency Sir Sydney Oliver, have arranged an enticing programme of visits to large plantations stalactite caves, and the like. Mr. Lewis W. Clemens, president of the club, was recently made a Fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute of London.

LITTLE GIRL WAS SLAIN IN SAVING HER MOTHER

Got the Bullet Intended for Her Parent—Stepfather Arrested—Told the Police That He Meant to Kill His Wife When He Fired

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—As Bertha Reinen, fourteen years old, sprang in front of her mother to protect her from possible injury, a revolver shot was heard, and the child fell to the pavement with a bullet in her brain. The tragedy occurred near her home, No. 233 George Street, Ridgewood, and the girl's step-father, George Benz, of No. 1,510 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested and was arraigned on a charge of murder in the Flushing Police Court.

Benz and his wife were quarreling, when Bertha said to her step-father: "You ought not to use such language to my mother," said the child as she grasped his arm, but he tried to brush her aside and started toward his wife.

Just then, as Benz advanced, a revolver flashed in the bright daylight and Mrs. Menz said she heard her husband say in a thick, angry voice: "I've got you now."

Bertha sprang in front of her mother as Mrs. Mafera and the other children screamed. The man said something more and as the little girl clung to her mother's shoulders, acting as a shield, there was a loud report, a scream and Bertha fell lifeless to the street.

In the powder smoke, noise and confusion Mrs. Benz bent over the body of her little daughter and tried to revive her. When the smoke cleared Benz had disappeared and Policeman Thomas Doyle rushed to the scene. Dr. Clark put the child in an ambulance, but the last throb of life soon passed away.

Policeman Doyle learned where Benz was living and went there to arrest him. He says the man was in bed, fully dressed, and that he asked:

"Is the child dead? I meant to kill the wife."

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

HE WAS LET GO.

Thomas Kelley, of Thurlow, who has been in jail for a week on a charge of vagrancy, was to-day discharged by the Magistrate.

P. O. APPOINTMENT.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., has had Harold Macpherson placed on the permanent staff of the local post office. During the holiday rush Macpherson was on as a temporary clerk.

FURTHER ENLARGED.

The case against Mr. T. Haslip, who is accused of refusing to allow a police officer admittance to his bar during prohibited hours, was to have been heard to-day, but was further enlarged for a few days.

MRS. KELLEHER'S FUNERAL.

Yesterday afternoon the remains of the late Mrs. M. Kelleher, were interred in St. James cemetery here. Services were held at St. Michael's Church, being conducted by the Rev. Father Meehan. Many friends were present at the service. A number of mass cards were contributed by the friends of deceased. The bearers were brothers-in-law and three nephews of deceased, namely, William, John, Charles, Joseph, Francis and Charles Kelleher.

FATALITY AT PULP MILL.

W. W. Bush, an employee of the Midland Construction Co., of Toronto, who was helping to instal the new electrical equipment in the pulp mill at Campbellford, was instantly killed on Wednesday morning. He was working on the switchboard connecting it up when he took hold of a charged connection and was electrocuted. Every means was employed to induce artificial respiration, but in vain. He was a middle-aged man with a wife and two children.

WRONGLY CHARGED.

The charge preferred against Harry Thrasher of having stolen a robe belonging to John Titterson was, it appears, founded on a misapprehension. Thrasher had sold a robe to a second hand dealer, but it was his own property, and on Titterson discovering he had made a mistake he withdrew the charge and paid costs.

LOCAL OPTION VOTE.

In Madoc village local option was defeated by the three-fifths clause. As it was the vote was only 13 short of the 60 per cent. required to carry it. The vote in favor of the by-law was 146, while the vote against it was 119. In Hungerford the vote stood 430 for and 469 against the by-law; in Elzevir the vote was 137 for and 173 against the by-law; in Tyendinaga local option was defeated by a majority of 63.

MANY PAID LAST TOKEN.

One of the largest funeral corteges ever seen in Sidney Township was that of yesterday afternoon, when the remains of the late Mr. Levi Massey were conveyed to their final resting place. At one o'clock the remains were conveyed from the family residence, 5th concession of Sidney, to the Wallbridge Methodist church, where an impressive service was held, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. C. Cook, assisted by Rev. Dr. Dyer, Principal of Albert College, Messrs. A. McClatchie, M.A., of this city, J. T. Holgate and Scott, all of whom referred to the great loss the church had sustained by the passing away of one of the leaders in this section of the country. Upon the casket were placed a number of beautiful floral tributes. At Belleville cemetery the interment took place. The bearers were Messrs. J. Hinchcliff, T. McKim, J. Phillips, G. A., J. E. and W. G. Ketcheson.

Cut Throat with Scissors.

SMITH'S FALLS, Jan. 3.—Hugh Mason, a respectably dressed Montreal man, who was arrested for disorderly conduct on the C.P.R. train when it arrived here last night, and who was placed in a cell, cut his throat with a pair of scissors and will probably die.

CHILDREN'S AID NOTES.

ATROCITIES IN TRIPOLI

Report Again Published — War Costs Italy Much.

Rome. — After the capture of Tajura, the Italians found the bodies of former comrades with the limbs severed and others who had been crucified. The corpses of members of the Bersaglieri and other regiments were found in a well, where they had been buried alive and the top walled in.

An additional appropriation of $25,000 was made, to carry on the war until the end of 1911. Thus the war in three months has cost Italy $90,000,000.

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says, "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

MR. GEORGE H. POPE RETIRES FROM G. T. P.

Superintended Purchase of Hundreds of Miles of Right of Way

The announcement comes from Montreal that our former highly esteemed townsman, Mr. George H. Pope, right of way and claims agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, has been superannuated and is succeeded by H. E. Bissell, whose headquarters will be in Winnipeg.

Mr. Pope, who is in his 75th year, was for many years a resident of Belleville and did excellent service in several public capacities here, particularly as Alderman and Superintendent of the Water Works. He was for several years associated with Mr. Fred Lingham in the cattle export trade, and removed hence to Montreal on his appointment as Dominion Cattle Inspector at that port.

The Montreal Star of yesterday says: "Mr. Pope was in Montreal to-day, and is looking as hale and hearty as ever. He stated that he would make his home in Winnipeg, where his son, Dr. Pope, is in practice. Mr. Pope has been connected with the Grand Trunk since the early eighties. He was for a time the Dominion cattle inspector at the port of Montreal but continued to act for the Grand Trunk whenever required. He joined the Grand Trunk Pacific staff in 1905 and superintended the purchase of the right of way for that line from St. John, N.B., to Prince Rupert, B. C., as well as the right of way for 1100 miles of branch lines. According to the rules of the railway employes must retire on the pension fund at 65. The work in which Mr. Pope was engaged, however, was of such an important nature that it was felt that Mr. Pope could not be spared. This has now been done.

"While in Montreal Mr. Pope's biggest work for the Grand Trunk was the purchase of the land on which the Company's Turcot yards are situated."

The many friends in this city of Mr. Pope will unite with The Intelligencer in wishing him a further long lease of life in his western home and will be glad to welcome him to Belleville as often as he can make it convenient to visit the City of the Bay.

DEATH'S CALL

RICHARD WATERHOUSE.

Mr. Richard Waterhouse, who was well known in the city, died last night at the hospital, after being ill for some time. Seventy-two years ago deceased was born in Ireland, and when a young man came out to this country. He had resided in Belleville for many years. Mrs. Waterhouse preceded him to the tomb some time ago. One son, John, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. O. H. Colling, of North Dakota, survive.

MRS. JAMES COOK.

At an early hour this morning Mrs. James Cook passed away at the hospital as the result of an attack of typhoid fever. Deceased, who was in her 43rd year, was born at Marmora village, and for the past nine years had been a resident of this city, residing on Mary Street. She was a member of the Reformed Episcopal Church and a lady who had many friends in this city who will regret to learn of her demise. In addition to the husband, two sons, William and Ernest, of this city, and two daughters, Misses Edith and Florence, of this city, survive. Deceased is also survived by two brothers, Wm. Rose, of Marmora, Albert of Maynooth and one sister, Mrs. Geo. Acker, of Marmora.

DROPPED DEAD.

Just as She Finished Singing "Good Night."

LONDON, Jan. 4.—There was a tragic conclusion to a musical party at the residence of Sir Nathaniel Barnaby, Bart., the honorary vice-president of the Institute of Naval Architects, last night. His daughter, Rosetta, sang the song "Good Night" in a duet with a friend. Just as she uttered "Good Night," the last words of the song, she dropped to the floor dead.

CHANGE IN GIBBONS

Three months ago I met some of the New York boxing promoters, also a couple of Boston men, and suggested they would make a hit by matching Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul welterweight, with one of the Lewis boys or some good 145-pounder. They ridiculed the idea, saying that Gibbons had never been heard of outside the woods, that he was a bloomer, etc. Now look over the eastern sport sheets and see what a change has taken place regarding Michael.

Shooting partridges from aeroplanes is now a popular sport in France and several aviators who are good shots have secured excellent bags.

RESCUE OF THE PRINCESS

Admiral Craddock, the Duke and a Passenger Saved the Princess Royal of England from Drowning.

Gibraltar. — It now seems that the life of the Princess Royal was saved by the joint efforts of Admiral Craddock, the Duke of Fife and a passenger on the Delhi of the name of McCaulbell.

When the cutter, in which the Princess was escaping from the stranded steamship, was swamped and its occupants thrown into the water, the three men named went to her assistance, and, supporting her with one hand each, swam with her through the surf to the shore.

Tangier. — A moderation in the weather permitted the rigging of a second breeches buoy from the steamer Delhi to the land, and sixty members of the crew of 100 who had stood by the vessel since she went aground were taken off. All the passengers, except one with a broken leg, previously had been sent ashore. A special tackle is being prepared for the rescue of this man.

The captain and forty members of the crew of the Delhi still remain on board, and when the stormy weather abates will make an effort to save the specie the vessel carries. The condition of thew reck, however, has grown more precarious, as the watertight partitions in the stern have burst. The big breakers are still crashing against the steamer, inundating her cabins and the cargo in the holds.

Underground Post-Office

In Austria, between Laibach and Trieste, a few miles distant from the former, are the famous Adlesberg caves, visited by thousands of sightseers every year. A feature of these caves, visited by thousands of sight-215 yds. broad, and 190 ft. in height. In this hall the Austrian Government has lately established a post-office at which stamps and illustrated postcards are sold to visitors. Each card bears a special post-mark denoting the fact of its having been mailed in the lower regions. In the first few months after the opening of the post-office the number of cards dispatched amounted, on an average, to 10,000 a day.

"ANYTHING that is produced in Canada from Canadian materials, by the application of Canadian brain and labor, will always have first call with me. And it's only good business on my part that it should.'

CURRENT COMMENT

Station platforms in Japan, as in Britain and Europe, are level with the car steps. It would be well were Canada to follow the example set by the Japs.

The present winter has been most remarkable in one respect, namely, that since its commencement, the temperature has not yet reached zero, the lowest reading of the thermometer being 4 degrees above zero this morning.

For the first time in history, the leaders of the two parties in the Canadian parliament may refer to one another as "Right Honorable." It is the first time the premier and the leader of the opposition have both been privy councillors.—St. Thomas Journal.

The evidence in the trial at Chicago of the meat packers—the meat trust—shows that these kindly gentlemen not only fixed prices arbitrarily but even regulated the supply of meat so that only a certain quantity should go to any one district at a given time. It is no wonder that the Americans finally rebelled against an altogether artificial high cost of living—no wonder that they finally have got after the chief offenders. Let it be hoped that these robber meat barons will wind up where they belong—behind prison bars.—Kingston Standard.

Many of the Chinese residents of New York celebrated the white man's New Year by cutting off their queues. One tradition is that the wearing of queues was imposed upon the Chinese by their Manchu conquerors and so became a national custom. Cutting them off is in its way a declaration of independence as regards China. It may also be of some advantage in America. It will remove one thing that distinguishes the Chinamen from the others among whom he lives. If it was followed by the general adoption of European dress much of the prejudice against the Chinese abroad might vanish. Ignorance excited against the oddity of the yellow man's costume accounts for much that has been said against him.—Montreal Gazette.

Four hundred officers and man of a National Guard regiment in New York have submitted to an experimental inoculation to guard against typhoid fever. The experiment is being made under the auspices of the war department, and each man will be inoculated three times, with intervening periods of ten days. It is claimed that 90 per cent. will suffer only a slight soreness in the arm, while the others will suffer from fever and chills and may be confined to bed for a day. It is supposed to render those inoculated immune to typhoid. Experiments of a similar kind were tried on the regular troops during the mobilization at San Antonio early last summer, but the results were much more uncomfortable than the prospects held out to the New York militia. In the case of the latte rthe inoculation is purely voluntary, and its result will be watched with considerable interest, as a complete record will be kept of each man.—Ottawa Citizen.

THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion Is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilized nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognized when the average smoker tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, sidings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

A MODERN MIRACLE!

HE HAD ECZEMA FOR 25 YEARS AND DOCTORS SAID "NO CURE."

YET ZAM-BUK HAS WORKED COMPLETE CURE.

This is the experience of a man of high reputation, widely known in Montreal, and whose case can readily be investigated. Mr. T. M. Marsh, the gentleman referred to, lives at 101 Delorimier Avenue, Montreal, and has lived there for years. For twenty-five years he has had eczema on his hands and wrists. The disease started in red blotches, which itched, and when scratched became painful. Bad sores followed, which discharged, and the discharge spread the disease until his hands were one raw, painful mass of sores. This state of affairs continued for twenty-five years!

In that time four eminent medical men tried to cure him, and each gave up the case as hopeless. Naturally, Mr. Marsh tried remedies of all kinds, but he, also, at last gave it up. For two years he had to wear gloves day and night so terrible was the pain and itching when the air got to the sores.

Then came Zam-Buk! He tried it, just as he had tried hundreds of remedies before. But he soon found out that Zam-Buk was different. Within a few weeks there were distinct signs of benefit, and a little perseverance with this great herbal balm resulted in what he had given up all hope of—a perfect cure! And the cure was no temporary cure. It was permanent. He was cured nearly four years ago. Interviewed the other day, Mr. Marsh said, "The cure which Zam-Buk worked has been absolutely permanent. From the day that I was cured to the present moment I have had no trace of eczema, and I feel sure it will never return."

If you suffer from any skin trouble cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it, with one cent stamp to pay return postage, to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. We will forward you by return a free trial box of Zam-Buk. All druggists and stores sell this famous remedy, 50c. box, or three for $1.25. Refuse harmful substitutes.

WICKERSHAM ILL

New York. — Attorney General Wickersham is reported to be ill at his home in Washington; not seriously, it is said.

When George W. Wickersham left his $100,000 a year practice with the Wall-st law firm of Strong and Cadwalader, to become President Taft's attorney-general at less than $10,000 a year it was announced that it was with great difficulty the president persuaded him to take the job; then it was reported that the president's brother, Henry Taft, also a member of the same Wall-st law firm, and powerful corporations for whom Henry Taft and Wickersham had worked, did the persuading — persuaded the president to give him the place.

Before Wickersham's advent in the department of justice at Washington, he was unknown except to the biggest of Big Business folk, J. P. Morgan, the sugar trust, the Chicago traction people, the New York street railway concerns. From them he had secured his monumental fees, which made him at one time the best paid lawyer in Wall-st. Not only was Wickersham one of the best paid, but he was one of the brainiest.

By far the most important anti-trust suit begun by Wickersham was the case against the United States steel corporation, Oct. 27, 1911.

BASEBALL IN CHINA

They have a baseball season in China as well as a revolution, and the ball-players finished their job first. The teams were recruited in Shanghai and last season the league consisted of four clubs. Next year, it is to be doubled in size. According to reports from Shanghai, baseball is making great headway in China — and why should it not, where there are so many fans?

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, clever manager of Joe Jeanette, claims the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVoy, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeanette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVoy.

FOR YOUR HAIR

HERE ARE FACTS WE WANT YOU TO PROVE AT OUR RISK.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth.

But, when the hair roots retain any life, we believe there is nothing that will so surely promote hair growth as will Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. To prove that statement we promise to promptly return all the money you pay us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, should it not please you.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic destroys the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and, by promoting circulation, nourishing them.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic helps to relieve scalp irritation, to remove dandruff, to prevent the hair from falling out, and to promote an increased growth of hair. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store—The Rexall Store.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY

Like most of the men who have carved out a career for themselves and become famous at it Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is a hard worker. He likes workers about him and has no use for the idler. His salary as head of a wealthy and appreciative corporation, combined with successful investments from his savings, have made his future comforts assured in this world but he does not work for the mere sake of earning money or piling it up. He works with a purpose in view and that purpose is the carrying out of the great plans of the road. He does not believe in riches. "I believe the day is coming," he is credited with saying, "when it will be considered vulgar for a man to have more than a million dollars. I do not believe in the aristocracy of dollars. If there must be an aristocracy, let it be of brain, refinement and work. Let it be above all else, an aristocracy of well directed, useful, conscientious work.'

He was born in Milwaukee in 1853, as the name implies, of Irish ancestry. At the age of 16 on graduating from a business college, he joined the staff of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway and got along so well in his work that in 1879 he was appointed general store-keeper. Sir William Van Horne wanted a good man in that department and in 1822 asked Mr. Shaughnessy to take the job which he did. His work was not a bed of roses but he did what was expected of him so well that inside of a couple of years he was made assistant to the general manager and moved up step by step until he became president and only recently chairman of the board of directors from which Sir William Van Horne retired.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ON JURY

"We voted together for the first time and guess we thought just alike all along," said Mrs. Gideon Frazer, who, with her husband, sat three days recently on the same jury and helped return a verdict today convicting Meyer Cohen of embezzlement from the Moose Lodge. It was the first time a husband and wife had served on the same jury in this state, possibly in the country, and the couple were the centre of attraction for many who visited the trial.

BRAINY WORKERS

Working Shoemakers, Chimney Sweepers, Tramcar Men, and Seamstresses Are Amongst the Most Learned.

Genius like murder, will out, and the history of modern literature provides us with some striking examples of men and women who, although humbly born and denied by circumstances any educational advantages, have given to the world some remarkable literary works. At the present time, for instance, the compilers of the great Oxford English Dictionary are deriving much help in their work from a Concordance of the words of Thomas Kyd, a learned literary man and dramatist of the sixteenth century, which has been compiled by Mr. Charles Crawford, a London railway clerk.

Mr. Crawford is a great authority on Elizabethan English and published his Concordance five years ago. His knowledge of words has been acquired through close study, and is certainly extraordinary; for often when experts have stated, without investigation, that such and such a word or phrase occurs only in certain writers or does not appear in certain authors, Mr. Crawford has produced abundant evidence showing the statement to be incorrect.

The Shoemaker Historian

An even more remarkable work than Mr. Crawford's Concordance, however, was that compiled by John Mackintosh, LL.D., who died at Aberdeen four years ago. Although Mackintosh was a shoemaker by trade, he was one of the most notable personalities that the North Country has of recent times produced, and his 'History of Civilization in Scotland,' in four big volumes, has been described as one of the most complete histories of Scotland ever written.

Chimney Sweep and Author.

It is only a few weeks ago that the University Extension Board appointed Mr. Walter Hunt lecturer on sociology. Mr. Hunt has had an amazing career. He started life as a sailor, spent some time in the fire brigade, and then set up as a chimney sweep at Streatham. He then decided to attend the Robert Browning Settlement in Walworth, and in time was led to write a thoughtful little book wherein he discusses the question, "Are we a declining race?" which attracted much attention among critics. Mr. Hunt's successful writings on race deterioration, involving as they did an immense amount of research work, are the more remarkable when one considers that his calling took him out at four o'clock in the morning. Most of his study was done at night time, and he confided in an interview a little while ago that he found no time to read anything but works on science and history. "Life is too short to waste time in reading fiction," he said.

It might be mentioned that London also possesses a linguistic tramwayman in the person of Mr. Richard Hobdell, of London, who is employed by the London County Council as a pointsman on the car system. Mr. Hobdell has a perfect knowledge of Arabic and Sanskrit, and has just finished translating a book from Sanskrit into English. Hobdell, who was with Lord Roberts on the famous march from Kabul to Kandahar, has devoted much of his leisure time since leaving the Army to the study of languages — a study of which he has always been very fond.

The literary sensation of last year was a book, "Marie Claire," written by a Parisian seamstress, Marguerite Audoux, who worked as a dressmaker in one small room on the sixth floor of a house in Paris. The story won a prize of $1000 and royalties — a prize given every year by what is know as the Goncourt Academy for the best novel of the year. It took the seamstress ten years to write her book. "I did not write it to be published," she said, during the course of an interview, as she sat in her little workroom: "It is just my life." And it is because Marguertie Audoux told the story of her life in plain, simple language that she scored such a literary success.

JAMES MUIR
Newspaperman
Ottawa.

When the other day the Ottawa Journal, of which James Muir is managing editor, incidentally told its readers that every member of the editorial staff was a graduate of either a Canadian or Old Country university they must have been startled at such an assertion, but the writer could have truthfully gone further and stated that over seventy per cent of the Canadian newspapermen are university graduates. This speaks well for the future of the Canadian press and its influence, and probably no paper has, to day, a better opportunity than the Journal, and no journalist a greater privilege than Mr. Muir in making the press of this country the leaders of the people. One notices too that the smaller journals are considerably higher in tone than they used to be. This is what one expects from the class of men who are running the papers now.

JAMES MUIR

Mr. Muir, who is a graduate of Edinburgh University, before taking up the editorship of the Journal was for a long time in the parliamentary press gallery.

Mr. Muir is a noted footballer having at one time the honor of representing Scotland in the international football games.

REV. DEAN PAGET, D.D.
Calgary.

To be a good minister of the gospel and a leader of men is a combination given to few and when that combination has Western Canada, with its full blooded men and women for a field, by the process of elimination it becomes a rarity and an exception So that Calgary is fortunate in Dean Paget who has the happy knack of securing men's confidence, of leading in every movement to better their social life and on Sunday preaching a good sermon. Dean Paget last year was President of Calgary Canadian Club.

REV. DEAN PAGET, D.D.

DEATHS IN BOXING MATCHES

The British Home Secretary, writing in reply to Mr. Silvester Horne, says: Deaths caused by prize fights and boxing encounters are not separately classed in the Registrar-General's statistics, but are included with street fights, etc., under the general heading "Fights, wrestling, etc." The total deaths in England and Wales thus grouped were:—

| | |
|---|---|
| 1905 | 11 |
| 1906 | 9 |
| 1907 | 8 |
| 1908 | 10 |
| 1909 | 11 |

Probably very few of these were deaths at prize fights as in London during the five years covered by the figures there was only one death in connection with a prize fight. Exact figures for Ireland cannot be given, but I am informed that probably not more than one, or two deaths have occurred in that country during the past five years which could be attributed to prize fighting or boxing matches.

Will it be the same old story on the new leaf?

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—There was a brisk demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat and especially so from the United Kingdom. There was also a keen demand for spring wheat flour for prompt and future shipment. Owing to the advance in wheat to-day millers have put them up another 1s per sack. ## Getting Rid of the Useless

The Dominion Government has commenced well, in relieving the treasury of the country of the drains upon it by those who have, through the patronage list, been added to the regiments of officials. The enacting of the Annuities Law gave Sir Richard Cartwright an opportunity to provide for some thirty of his admirers by appointing them agents to solicit business. The Government, knowing that few would take advantage of its provisions, lecturers and canvassers were appointed to boom the business and solicit patrons after the fashion of life and fire insurance companies. To such an extent was this carried that the expense about ate up all the income, leaving the country to meet the calls upon it, the result of the sale of annuities. This is all to be changed. The services of these extra officials are to be dispensed with, and the annuity branch of the service transferred, as in England, to the Post Office Department, thus saving the large and unnecessary expense now incurred in trying to make the Annuity Act popular.

Another large and unnecessary outlay is to be cut off by relieving the members of the Railway Commission of the National Transcontinental Railway of further duty, leaving the future management of that important work in the hands of Mr. R. E. Leonard, the Chief Commissioner, appointed by the Hon. Frank Cochrane.

If what are believed to be the present plans of the Government are carried into effect, there will be a one-man commission consisting of Major R. E. Leonard, who will have sole charge of the remainder of the construction work.

Hon. Frank Cochrane is said to personally favor this course. The commissioners who will go out of office are W. S. Calvert, former Liberal M.P. for West Middlesex and Chief Liberal Whip, Colin McIsaac, former Liberal M.P. for Antigonish, N.S., and C. A. Young, brother of Senator Finlay Young, of Manitoba. When former Chairman S. N. Parent resigned these commissioners remained in the hope that their services would be retained by the new Government. The change in the constitution of the commission will deprive these gentlemen of the trouble of drawing large monthly salaries for doing comparatively nothing.

The selection of those who composed the commission was an unpardonable farce. Not one of them had any knowledge of or experience in railway building. One of the original commissioners was a corset manufacturer, another a grain merchant, one a lawyer, and the other an M.P., their only qualification being that they were active politicians. Get rid of them and leave the work that is to be done to a practical engineer, such as is now chairman, is the voice of the country.

There are other branches of the public service to which the pruning knife can be usefully applied. Apply it.

Hydro-Electric

The wiseacres have been shaking their heads at the proposition to make the Hydro-Electric work a definite part of the Government administration, with a regularly appointed Minister of the Crown, responsible to the Administration and the people, placed in charge of the affairs of this great movement, says the Guelph Herald.

Some of the criticism is no doubt well meant, while others are inspired by their chronic inability to see beyond their partizan noses. The reason most of the objections are urged is that the proposed change will introduce evils of patronage into the public ownership scheme. That is not a very serious charge, to our mind, because it is difficult to see why there should be any greater evil results from Hon. Adam Beck's administration of Niagara power as a Minister of the Crown than exists under the same gentleman's supervision of the power movement as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

There have been little or no evil results under the latter movement and we see no reason to apprehend any when Hon. Adam Beck is made more directly responsible to the people. And even if the Minister of Power were agreeable, Sir James Whitney can be depended upon to insure the Province against the results which some people are too prone to imagine.

It was just the same when the Hydro-Electric policy was inaugurated. There were the same misgivings then to contend with. The oracles wagged their wise heads and predicted that Sir James Whitney would curse the day that he ever saw Adam Beck and that the Hydro-Electric policy would be the ruin of the Conservative party. Yet we know that it has been successful and its success has been a tower of strength to the Conservative party in Ontario.

The name of Adam Beck and the policy which Sir James Whitney accepted at the hands of Adam Beck was a conclusive answer to the cry that the Conservatives were the party of the trusts, and contributed mightily to the strength of the progressive Canadianism that overwhelmed reciprocity in this Province.

The results that have followed Sir James Whitney's support of Adam Beck and the Conservative party's acceptance and promotion of the Hydro-Electric policy are such as to add new emphasis to the old truth that courage is better politics than cunning, and there is no reason to apprehend that either Sir James Whitney's or Hon. Adam Beck's courage will desert them with regard to patronage evil.

SECURITY

Absolute security is the first essential in Fire Insurance. Cost is a secondary consideration. You may save a trifle on the premium but as a rule it does not pay in the long run. What do a few dollars signify when you take a big chance that the Company you insure with will not be able to pay when your loss occurs? Avoid taking any chances by demanding a policy in the Manitoba Assurance Company, which furnishes security of over twenty millions.

Gem Squeezed Out of Ring.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—When Henry Opperman, of Baldwin, Long Island, a passenger agent employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, greeted with a handshake a friend on the Anchor Line steamship pier, his hand was squeezed so hard that his ring nearly cut into the flesh. In adjusting the ring he noticed that it lacked its diamond, valued at $400. The diamond could not be found.

WANTS TO PROVE CLAY A MINERAL.

Brick Company Objects to Expropriation of Land by Railway Company.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—The Peerless Brick Company and the Canadian Northern Railway are the principals in an interesting action here over certain lands which the railway wants to expropriate south of the city. The peculiar point about the case is that it hinges on the question whether or not clay is a mineral. The Brick Company contends that the area is a "mine" of clay. It quotes the Railway Act, which states that a railway has not the power to expropriate land which might obstruct the workings of a mine. The compensation asked for is $40,000, which the railway considers too large. The action has been adjourned until April 10.

JUDGE JUSTIFIES LYNCHING.

Refuses Investigation Into Hanging of Negro Who Slew Farmer.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Jan. 4—Declaring the lynching of William Turner, a negro, slayer of George Cason, was justified, the judge in the Muldrow court refused to order an investigation of the mob which hanged the man to a telegraph pole. Further trouble is feared, and negroes have been warned to stay off the streets of Muldrow and Saltisaw.

The chain of crime in which Turner spent his last day on earth has aroused the town against the blacks, and whenever one emerged from the negro quarter he was driven back by a policeman.

Turner first stole an engine, and rode into Muldrow. After derailing it he made his way to the Cason home, asked for shelter and then shot the farmer and attacked his wife.

GRAIN AT KINGSTON.

Highest Total for Number of Years—The Tonnage of Other Commodities.

KINGSTON, Jan. 4.—The amount of grain received at the port of Kingston during 1911 shows a big increase over 1910 and a substantial increase over the amount received for a number of years. The total arrivals for 1911 are 16,040,262 bushels, against a total in 1910 of 14,963,412 bushels. The increase is not entirely due to the large western crop, as low water in the St. Lawrence necessitated a number of steamers being lightered here during the fall. A complete table showing the arrivals and departures of grain and the arrival of other commodities for 1911 from the upper lakes follow:

Grain arrivals—16,040,262 bushels.

Grain forwarded by St. Lawrence canals—15,381,847 bushels.

Grain removed by rail — 658,415 bushels.

Coal received—32,085 tons.

Flour received—3,761 tons.

Other merchandise—210 tons.

During the year 212 steamers of a total tonnage of 103,011 and consists of 146,487 tons from above the Welland Canal either discharged or were lightered at this port.

A SOLITARY PASSENGER.

Special Train Brought One to Attend Locomotive Co. Meeting.

KINGSTON, Jan. 4.—It is not often that Kingston is honored with the arrival from Toronto of a special train consisting of one private car and engine containing a solitary passenger, yet this morning such a special train drew into the Grand Trunk station, and the solitary passenger from Toronto alighted and proceeded immediately at the summons of Mr. Aemilius Jarvis to the Locomotive Company's offices to attend the meeting of the directors of the works held there this morning at ten o'clock.

Mr. Jarivs, who has been in Kingston since yesterday, late last night sent word to Toronto for this special train to be secured, so urgent did the situation of to-day's meeting appear to the eminent financier.

EASTERN DAIRYMEN HAD A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Production Was Less, but Prices Were Higher—Drouth in the Pastures—Senator Derbyshire Speaks on Progressive Methods—Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3.—Five hundred men interested in the production of cheese and butter in eastern Ontario were in attendance at the 35th annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario, which opened here this morning.

In his opening address President Henry Glendinning of Manila said that during the eleven months ending November 30, 1911, there were exported from Canada 1,659,261 boxes of cheese, valued at $18,067,459, and 134,600 packages of butter, valued at $1,732,360. This was an increase of $1,395,607 in butter over the entire year of 1910. "We should remember that our export trade is only about 25 per cent. of our total dairy production," he said, "and that the home consumption of milk, butter, and cheese is growing every year. The public are realizing more and more the value of milk and its products as food."

President Glendinning said that dairy conditions during the past season had been what might be termed sectional. West of Belleville was marked by the clover and grasses being largely destroyed in the spring followed by very hot and dry weather that produced poor pastures and light crops of hay and grain. The eastern sections did not suffer to any great extent from spring frosts and winds, and they were blessed with an abundance of rain, which gave them one of the best seasons in the history of the dairy industry in Ontario. The price of cheese, he said, reached a record figure in September—fifteen cents per pound on the Cheese Boards. This was, he said, the highest figure in the history of the cheese trade in Canada. But the income to the farmers was much less than the casual observer might be led to infer from the ruling high prices at that time.

(The highest price ever paid in Canada was reached on the Belleville market, namely, 15 5-16c.)—Ed. Intelligencer.

Senator Derbyshire, a past President, said that in spite of the fact that there were 68,727 boxes of cheese made less than in 1910 the income to the dairymen along the St. Lawrence River was $1,311,147 more than that realized the preceding year. He said that if every dairy section was as progressive as the Brockville district in the matter of raising corn, building silos and providing summer ensilage as well as in bringing cows in for feeding during the summer, no such shrinkage in the production would result. The increase in the butter production of the St. Lawrence River dairy sections amounted to 106,119 packages, and the farmers received $1,265,615 more for their butter than they did the previous year. The value of the total dairy production of Canada this year was, he said, $105,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 over 1910. The dairymen of Brockville alone sold over $3,000,000 worth of cheese in 1911.

Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., emphasized the importance of carrying instructions to the farmer through the dairy instructors and spoke in high terms of the work being done for the province by the Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, and his staff. Addresses were delivered also by J. H. Singleton, of Smith's Falls, first vice president of the association; Nelson Stone, Norham; John McGregor, Alexandria; J. B. Wilson Gananoque and A. D. McIntosh, Stirling.

A resolution was passed asking the Provincial Government to increase the staff of dairy instructors, in order to further the work of inspection on farms, which the association considers to be the weakest point in the dairy business of the country.

At the afternoon session Mr. J. H. Grisdale, director of Dominion experimental farms, discussed the production of crops suitable for feeding dairy stock. Farms must be so laid out, he said, that the largest returns may be secured with the least labor and expense. A rational rotation of crops must be practiced. Experiments at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, during the past twelve years indicate that the producing power of land may be doubled and in some cases tripled by systematic methods. For instance, in 1910 the average farmer produced crops that averaged about fifteen dollars an acre at a cost of nine dollars, leaving a profit of six dollars an acre. At Ottawa the crops averaged forty-three dollars, cost twelve dollars and gave a profit of twenty-one dollars. To get this result nothing was done that could not be done by any farmer. Systematic rotation will increase crops from 50 to 100 per cent. in six years. A three year rotation is most suitable for a dairy farm where pasture is available—first year corn, second year, oats; third, hay. Where it is necessary to pasture the arable land, a four year rotation would be better. To have this, leave the hay a year longer. Mr. Grisdale advises seeding down heavily with the following mixture: Red clover, alfalfa and timothy, six to eight pounds of each, alsike, two pounds per acre. This will give hay of most tonnage, best quality, and most easily digested. Mr. Grisdale claimed that farmers should get their farms in larger fields to facilitate work and to save labor. He advocated the use of big machinery and implements, as these will reduce by one half the cost of plowing, harrowing, seeding and harvesting.

An illustrated lecture on tile drainage was given by Professor W. H. Day, of the Ontario Agricultural College. By various examples he showed wonderful crop increases due by actual experience in the province to underdrainage. The difference in yield shown by various reports give an average annual increase of over twenty dollars an acre over undrained land. The average cost per acre to drain was twenty-five dollars. Drainage, he said, enables the farmer to get on his land from three to four weeks earlier in the spring. It loosens the soil, enables the soil to retain more moisture when ready for sowing, allows plant roots to go deeper, warms the soil earlier in the spring and makes plant food more available than in undrained land. To construct drains the farmer must follow definite methods. Under average conditions a tile drain should be three feet deep and laid four rods apart. The professor explained in detail the system of getting levels and falls, digging and laying.

At the evening session Senator Derbyshire occupied the chair, and addresses of welcome to the town of Campbellford were given by Mayor W. J. Doxsee and Reeve J. A. Irwin. Mr. J. A. Ruddick, commissioner of dairying and cold stoarge at Ottawa, discussed the outlook for the cheese and butter-making industries of Canada, and said that the total value of exports of these products for the past three years except for the past year, were $7,000,000 less than for the record year of 1903. Against this is the increase in home consumption, which is at least $25,000,000 a year more than it was in 1903. This would have a net increase of over $18,000,000 in the annual production. The increase in export shipments from New Zealand tallies closely with the decrease in those from Canada. Figures showing the export trade of Australia also were given. The most outstanding feature of the dairy trade of Canada at the present moment, said the speaker, is the growing demand for milk in the larger towns and cities. While the impoved sanitary conditions surrounding the production and distribution of market milk have given a great stimulus to its use, there is still much to be accomplished in that direction.

How the New Zealand competition affects the Canadian trade also was referred to. Cheese from that country, which is produced in season just opposite to ours, begins to arrive in England a little after the close of the manufacturing season in Canada, and, therefore, there is not now the necessity to store as much summer-made cheese for winter use as there formerly was. When New Zealand cheese supplies the foreign demand during the time it arrives on the market, say from November, to June, Canadian cheese will have to be consumed very largely at home during that period.

COST OF WAR NEWS

The Modern Newspaper Spares No Expense to Get the Latest News from the Seat of War to the Breakfast Table.

"Get it, at a reasonable cost if you can, but get it." This practically constitutes the orders issued to its war correspondents by the enterprising newspaper of to-day; for whether a war is taking place next door to our own Britain, or a couple of thousands of miles away, the public expects a full account at breakfast time of the previous day's battle. The consequence is that the modern newspaper must spare no expense to obtain war news.

Take the last big war — that between Russia and Japan — which broke out at the beginning of 1904, and lasted twenty months. It is estimated that British newspapers were spending during that time $200,000 a week to secure news of the war. This money was expended on the salary of some 200 correspondents, their interpreters and servants, the upkeep of at least 600 horses, the maintenance of despatch-runners, and the forwarding of cable messages.

Costly Cables.

The expense of getting war news is so great that the smaller newspapers during recent years have, in some cases, combined and shared the cost of sending out correspondents. The more important newspapers, however, send out their own men and also have correspondents stationed at various places where news is most likely to be obtainable. In the Turco-Italian war, for instance, papers are receiving telegrams from "our own correspondent" at such places as Tripoli, Malta, Djerba, Sfax, Constantinople, Rome, Tunis, and many other places.

Telegraph Rates.

It is the cost of transmitting the news which is the biggest item in the war-bill for a newspaper. During the course of the South African War the cable Press rate was 25c. a word, although it is now reduced to 18c., while in the Russo-Japan War the rate varied from about 32c to nearly 48c. per word. These are the special Press rates, but it often happened that when the correspondent had some exclusive news he paid two or three times these rates in order to secure precedence of Press-rate messages. In the case of the Tripoli War the cost of transmitting news is not so great, although from Tripoli itself there is no Press rate; but the full rate per word is only 14c., while that from Malta is only 04c.

The upkeep of war correspondents at the seat of the campaign is a great expense. As a rule the remuneration is from between $125 to $200 per week per man, apart from his personal expenses, and even such sums do not exhaust the liabilities of newspapers when war breaks out. Many proprietors take out a special insurance on the lives of their representatives, and some of the more generous go to the extent of giving an undertaking to see to the future of those dependent upon them.

LOST V.TALITY

Caused by Kidney, Stomach and Bowel Disorders

St. John, N.B., September 18th, 1911.—My brother was a great sufferer from kidney, stomach and bowel troubles and was given up by two doctors. ### AN INDIAN SENATOR

For the first time in the history of the United States a man with Indian blood was chosen to act as president pro-tempore of the Senate. He is Charles Curtis, who has been senator from Kansas since 1907. Mr. Curtis will act as substitute for Vice-President Sherman for one week. Then he may be re-elected or another may succeed him.

Senator Curtis, whose grandmother was a Kaw Indian, was born January 25, 1860, and was admitted to the bar thirty years ago. He was serving his eighth term in the House when elected senator. By reason of his Indian blood, in 1903 he received 1,600 acres of land in Oklahoma as his part of the Kaw allotment.

At the time of the great flood in Kansas in May, 1903, Senator Curtis was the first man at Topeka to dare the waters, rescuing his mother, then ninety-six years old.

A Point of Etiquette.

The wedding had gone off without a hitch, and the bride and groom had departed amid a perfect shower of confetti, rice, and slippers.

The process of departure had been watched with the keenest delight by little May, who with her parents was of the party of guests remaining behind. Then, when the hum of excitement had died away, the childish inquisitiveness was manifested once again.

"Why do they throw things at the pretty lady in the carriage?" piped May.

"For luck, my dear," replied a bridesmaid.

"And why," she asked again, "doesn't the pretty lady throw them back?"

"Oh," was the answer, "that would be rude."

"No it wouldn't," persisted the dear little May, to the delight of her parents, who were standing close by. "Ma always does."

ONLY TWO LIBERALS ELECTED IN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Conservatives Score Overwhelmingly In P. E. I.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 4.—The provincial elections yesterday passed off quietly and the Conservative Government achieved a victory, quite beyond precedent in its sweep.

For some weeks past the general opinion had been that the Conservatives would win, but it was still thought by many that eight or ten Liberals at least would be returned, and even the most sanguine were surprised at the vote.

Such a sweep was not anticipated, and in Charlottetown especially the Liberals were completely routed. Every division in the island is Conservative, except Second Prince, which is not yet verified.

On nomination day a week ago one Independent Conservative, Prof. Alex. MacPhail, in the fourth district of Queen's, and five straight Conservatives—Premier Mathieson, his colleague, T. W. Macdonald, in the first district of King's, Hon. John McLean and John Kickham in the first district of Queen's, Hon. John A. Macdonald in the third district of Queen's —were elected by acclamation.

In yesterday's elections only two Liberals have safe majorities, Hon. John Richards, their leader, and his colleague, A. MacWilliams, in the second district of Prince, who are returned by 165 and 49 respectively.

In the second district of King's R. N. Cox, Liberal, is one vote behind E. Simpson, Conservative. The result will not be known till declaration day, when the special votes put in for these men in other districts all over the Island are counted. They will likely increase Mr. Simpson's majority, judging from previous elections. All the other Liberals have gone down to defeat.

In a Tree-Top.

It does not fall to the lot of everyone to see a donkey and cart perched on the top of an oak tree nearly thirty-five feet from the ground.

During the winter of 1909 a large limb of an oak tree, in Scotland, was almost torn from the stem, and was overhanging a glasshouse wherein were some very valuable plants. The foresters had climbed up the tree and fastened a long rope on the limb, with the intention of cutting the branch away and lowering it gently, and so saving a disaster. The limb, however, was heavier than was thought, and when the saw had done its work away the limb went with a crash, and a loop in the rope caught a hook in the donkey's cart (which was there to remove the limb when sawn in pieces), and in a twinkling donkey and cart were jerked up on to the tree-top, and held there entangled amongst the branches.

It is satisfactory to learn that the donkey and cart were got down in safety.

A Tall Yarn.

A big-game hunter and his brother recently spent a year in and about the Rocky Mountains. They had two rifles, one bullet, and one keg of powder. With these they say they killed on an average twenty-seven head of buffaloes a day. The fact that they did all this with one bullet led to the following cross-question:—

"How did you kill all these buffaloes with only one bullet?"

"Well, we shot a buffalo; I stood on one side and my brother on the other. Brother fired, and the ball passed into the barrel of my rifle. We kept up the hunt for twelve months, killing nearly 200 buffaloes a week, and yet brought home the same ball we started with!"

Wife (who is very fond of her first baby): "The landlord was here today. I gave him the five pounds and showed him the baby."

Husband (who was kept awake last night): "It would have been much better if you'd give him the baby and showed him the five pounds."

FISHER WAS NIGGARDLY

Hon. Mr. Burrell Promises Larger Grants to Agriculture.

New Minister Delivers Important Address at Concluding Public Meeting of Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association in Campbellford—Dairy Education Is Needed In Canada, Says A. D. McIntosh of Sterling.

Campbellford, Jan. 5.—At the last big public meeting of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention, held here last night, Hon. Martin Burrell, the new Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, delivered a short address in which he made promises that the new Government would give more aid to agriculture than the preceding one. He said, in the course of his address: "There is only one criticism I have to make in connection with the last Government, and Hon. Sydney Fisher's administration, and that is that my predecessor was too niggardly. But you have in Mr. Borden one who has deep sympathy with the agricultural interests, and we are doing our utmost to devise a scheme whereby we can give more assistance to the agricultural industries, so that they can help themselves."

Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M. P. P., was chairman, and on the platform were: Senator Derbyshire, Mayor-elect C. J. Owen, Mr. John Webster, M.P. of Brockville, and President Henry Glendinning. Other speakers were: President George C. Creelman of the Agricultural College at Guelph, and Mr. A. D. McIntosh of Sterling.

Mr. A. D. McIntosh of Sterling, district representative of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, spoke on "How to Apply the Need of Dairy Education." Canada, he said, had an unparalleled system of education and one recognized the world over as a model. There were some defects though. These defects were responsible for the exodus of young people from the farm. The action of the Provincial Government in appointing district representatives to visit the farmers and find out what problems they were facing was a move toward remedying these defects. He advocated organizing agricultural classes in the public and high schools. Next Monday, he said, such a class would be opened in the Sterling High School, and a large number of pupils had been enrolled. The course will be of six weeks' duration.

Preferred Wife to Millions.

Denver, Col., Jan. 5.—Lawrence Brown, the only son of J. J. Brown, millionaire mine owner of Denver, is compelled to pound a drill in a mine at Victor, Col., in order that his young wife and five weeks old son may have the necessities of life.

More than a year ago Brown met Miss Aileen Horton, a Kansas City debutante. The two were married and young Brown brought his bride to his father's home. The father did not take kindly to the marriage because of the youth of the two, and told his son he would have to shift for himself.

Young Brown said he and his family were happy and that he would not ask his father for support so long as he was able to work.

Heir to Millions.

New York, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Julia Curtiss Lawrence complained to the Supreme Court yesterday that although she was heir to more than $20,000,000 from the estate of her aunt, the late Mary G. Pinckney, she was in actual poverty at the present time. Mrs. Lawrence asked the court to have the estate partitioned so that she may be able to support herself. Her desire to have this done was particularly prompted by the fact that there is more than $2,000,000 due her immediately, she said, as the result of a recent sale of a portion of the Pinckney estate, the value of which is estimated at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

Indians Killed After Hard Fight.

Wallaceburg, Jan. 5.—Late yesterday the body of Hiram John, one of the Indians murdered on Walpole Island, was found in the St. Clair River near the scene of the crime.

Blood spattered over the walls and floors and little tufts of human hair former the gruesome sight which greeted the neighbors when in response to the sound of shots they hurried to the house of Charles Nahdee, an Indian, living on Chicken Island, part of the Walpole reserve. The appearance of the place pointed to a desperate battle. The belief is entertained by the Indians that Nahdee was killed for his money.

Induction at Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 5.—Rev. G. A. Woodside, formerly of Owen Sound, was inducted here last night into the pastorate of Zion Church. Rev. Mr. Scott, moderator of the Paris presbytery—presided. Rev. Matheson of Drumbo delivered the address to the people and Rev. R. G. MacBeth of Paris & the minister. Rev. H. M. Paulin of Woodstock also assisted. The new minister in his reply made an excellent impression and his pastorate will doubtless prove a popular one.

A. T. Day was unanimously chosen by the new-elected school board here last night as chairman for 1912.

African Liquor Traffic.

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 5.—An international conference for the control of the liquor traffic in Africa opened here yesterday. The proposals before the conference are an extension of the total prohibition zone and the imposition of largely increased duties on alcohol in the zones where the importation of alcohol is permitted.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he enlisted, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier; "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf."

Fortune In Stamps

A lady living in Sydney for many years has hoarded a collection of postal stamps left by her father, who had pursued his hobby of collecting for fifty years. The daughter was ignorant of any knowledge of philately, and threw the stamps into an old trunk.

Recently she visited a stamp exhibition, and for the first time awoke to the value of the stamps in her possession. She secured the assistance of experts, who estimated the value of the collection at $100,000.

Photographs on Finger-Nails.

One of the latest fads in Germany is the mounting of photographs on the finger-nails, the idea growing out of the whim of a cousin of the Kaiser, who had an enamelled portrait of her fiancée worked on the nail of her little finger. This portrait was a work of art and cost $75, but now the fashionable manicures of Berlin have taken up the idea in the photograph form. The picture is rendered waterproof by coating it over with a shellac-like substance burned upon the nail. It is said that a photograph so mounted will last about four months without renewal. 38

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know All — Who Heard That Years Ago — Can Be Taken Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything under the sun worth knowing.

When next you run up against him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this marvel, ask him which city is the father east — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

Hangings Go On.

Tabriz, Jan. 5.—The hanging of Fidais by the Russians continues. Three of the Fidais were hanged Wednesday night and their bodies displayed on the gallows yesterday. Many arrests are being made, and several houses of Fidais and nationalists have been blown up. The prisoners who were brought in by Shua-ed-Dowleh, brother of the ex-shah, when he arrived here on January 2 to assume the governorship, were handed over to the Russians, who marched them to camp with chains around their necks. All the houses in the neighborhood of the Russian camp have been wrecked.

The general feeling among Persians is that the situation will become normal when the governorship has been placed in the hands of Shua-ed-Dowleh.

At the present time Tabriz is controlled by a Russian general, who is quartered in the governor's palace.

HANISH A WITNESS.

Head of Mazdaznan Figures In Trial In Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Against his desire, Ottoman Zar Adusht Hanish, head of the Mazdaznan cult, was yesterday called to the witness stand before Judge Pinkney in the juvenile court, where Charles R. Lindsay is seeking to gain possession of his nephew, William Lindsay, heir to an estate in Philadelphia, who was taken from the "Temple," of the Mazdaznans in December and placed in the custody of the court.

The boy was not in court, neither was his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Lindsay, and the attorney declared that he did not know the whereabouts of the lad, and added that he had been made the victim of a conspiracy to prevent the boy being brought into court.

The Mazdaznan cult is said to be a revival of the ancient Persian fire worshippers, and many forms of ceremonies, together with posturing and breathing exercises, are said to be in its ritual.

Lindsay complained to the court that the Mazdaznan Temple was not a proper place for a small boy, even though his mother was there.

On the witness stand the head of the cult was asked questions regarding the practices at the temple over which he presides.

A number of women members of the cult objected to the presence of photographers in the court-room, and they were ordered to put away their cameras.

Hanish said he had received the title of "doctor" from a medical college and the title "reverend" from the Association of Mazdaznan. He denied that at any time he had control or custody of the boy.

The Mazdaznan leader was asked concerning trips to Montreal, Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, which he had made, accompanied by the Lindsay boy. Hanish said the boy's mother paid the expenses of the lad and that she was a member of his church.

Hanish said the boy called him doctor and sometimes "master" and that Mrs. Lindsay also used the latter title in addressing him.

He emphatically declared he had not seen William Lindsay since he was taken from the Mazdaznan Temple in December at the order of the court.

Shoe Machinery Case.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—A vast amount of technical evidence as to different machines and the relative cost of buying outright and leasing machines from the United Shoe Machinery Co. was given yesterday afternoon at the session of the commission investigating the charges against the latter company.

George A. Fortir of the Scout Shoe Co., Ltd., was on the stand all afternoon. Among other things he said that his company was operating throughout with machines secured from independent companies and that they considered they got better results in this way, because by buying the machines outright they were paid for within about four years, and their lifetime was approximately twenty years, while by doing business with the United Shoe Machinery Co. they had to pay leases and royalties and never owned the machines. The leasing system was slightly higher to manufacturers, he thought.

By-Products—Profitable.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—By-products yield 97 per cent. of the profits of the packing business, according to figures given by Wm. D. Miles, formerly general manager of the Armour Packing Co. of Kansas City, who concluded his testimony yesterday in the trial of the ten Chicago packers, charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law. He gave the company's net profits for 1890 as $202,875 in the dressed beef department, based on the slaughter of 204,820 animals.

An analysis of these figures showed that the company made but three cents profits on dressed meat of each steer killed, while the fat of each animal yielded a profit of 42 cents. The profit on hides was 37 cents a head and 18 cents profit was obtained from the glue manufactured from the hoofs.

Empress Dowager Squeezes Cash Out of the Princes.

Revolutionary Agents Say Chinese Premier Is Playing Double and Is Trying to Impoverish the Manchus Before Having Them Dethroned—Sun Yat Sen Abolishes Office of Prime Minister—Note to Powers.

Pekin, Jan. 5.—The court's preparation for residence in Mongolia is believed to be only against an emergency. There has been a report current that a residence for the Emperor and the members of the royal family is being put in order at Fekhe, Mongolia. Additional treasure to that contributed to the Government by the Empress Dowager, has been forthcoming from the palace, and the Empress Dowager has issued an edict addressed to the princes, commanding a loan from each of them for the Imperial cause. This has resulted in further contributions of a few hundred thousand taels.

The foreign banks are experiencing difficulties in converting the bars of gold into silver. Foreign bank notes are no longer current, silver alone being acceptable.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai is being accused of double dealing. It is alleged that he is attempting the destruction of the Manchus financially before conniving in their dethronement, but it is thought that the revolutionaries, whose agents employ every trick, are circulating reports that Yuan is secretly republican, in order to discredit him.

Dynamite discovered along the railway line has been brought to Pekin by a woman. This is the first evidence that the long-standing revolutionary threats are serious. The revolutionaries months ago declared that they would employ dynamite to accomplish their purpose of driving the Manchus out of the Government.

Reports regarding disaffection among the Hankow troops are conflicting. It is believed that the disaffected soldiers number not more than 800. Yuan Shi Kai is making preparations in anticipation of the arrival of the republican army by sea, and for this purpose is despatching troops to the north.

Sent Note to Consuls.

Shanghai, Jan. 5.—Referring to representations contained in the identical note from the foreign powers, comprising Great Britain, United States, Japan, Germany, France and Russia, which was presented by the consuls on Dec. 20, Wu Ting Fang yesterday addressed a note to the consuls, in which he explains the present situation. He says:

"The republic, confiding in Tang Shao Yi's credentials, continued friendly negotiations until they were broken off by the action of the Manchu Government. Tang Shao Yi in refraining from making counter-proposals said that he acquiesced in the reasons, which justified the establishment of a republic in the interests of a peaceful settlement."

Wu Ting Fang expresses surprise and regret at Yuan Shi Kai's long delay in referring the form of government to a national convention. Reviewing recent events, he accuses Yuan Shi Kai of trying to render abortive the agreements already signed by Tank Shao Yi, thus jeopardizing all chances of arriving at the substantial peace desired by the powers.

"Therefore," continues Secretary Wu, "it is with extreme regret that the republican government is compelled to say that the prospects for peace have been wilfully nullified by the Manchu Government, upon whose shoulders will rest full responsibility for a longer period of disturbing indecision, possibly the resumption of hostilities."

Secretary Wu asks that his representations be submitted to the respective Governments.

The identical note from the foreign powers was read to both Tang Shao Yi, the representative of Premier Yuan Shi Kai and to Wu Ting Fang, representing the republicans. The note did not go much further than to express the good-will of the Governments represented and the hope that the peace conference would result in bringing the revolution to a close.

Steel Men Hold Conference With Dominion Cabinet.

Assisted by Counsel the Magnates Endeavor to Secure a Restoration of the Bonuses For the Steel and Iron Industry—No Assurance Is Given By the Government, and May Be Sent to Tariff Commission.

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—A deputation representing the iron and steel industry of Canada, waited on the Government yesterday afternoon and held a protracted conference. There were present J. H. Plummer, head of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co.; Mr. Hobson, for the Hamilton industry, and Thomas J. and George E. Hammond for the Algoma Company.

The steel men appeared with counsel in an effort to obtain from the new Government a restoration of the iron and steel bounties and further encouragement for the industry. They presented a mass of material in the form of statistics, showing the actual degree of prosperity enjoyed by the industry under present conditions. The bounties paid on iron and steel in the last fiscal year amounted to $1,138,748. The iron and steel bounties were paid for twenty-eight years before finally cut off by the late Government, the bounties on pig iron, steel and puddled bars expiring a year ago, and the last bounty, that on wire rods, being paid on the last day of June, 1911.

The deputation left the east block at 6 o'clock without having received any assurance from the Government There is a rather strong probability that the whole question will be turned over to the Tariff Commission, soon to be established. In any event, it is understood the Government does not intend to make any tariff changes this session.

Guarding McManigal.

Indianapolis, Jan. 5.—Ortie E. McManigal, confessedly a member of the dynamiting staff of John J. McNamara, was not brought into this city last night, as was expected, but will reach here in time to testify before the federal grand jury on Monday. Agents of the Department of Justice yesterday guarded with greatest secrecy the whereabouts of McManigal, and prepared to prevent the time of his arrival from becoming known.

It is believed that he may have been taken from a train by the detectives in charge and lodged in an intermediate city. Federal authorities said they feared some sort of vengeance against him unless his movements were carefully hidden.

Equal Treatment Wanted.

London, Jan. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Chairman Smithers of the G.T.R., discussing the American proposal of preferential treatment upon the opening of the Panama Canal, said he interpreted the Hay-Pauncefote treaty as guaranteeing equal treatment to vessels of all nations passing through the Panama Canal. He wouldn't like to commit himself to any forecast of the changes, which the opening of the canal was likely to bring, but so far as Canadian lines were concerned considerable traffic carried westward to the Pacific for shipment to Europe might be witnessed. He had no doubt that English ships would still carry the bulk of the overseas Canadian trade whether it be conveyed across the Pacific or the Atlantic.

Sold Liquor Illegally.

St. Catharines, Jan. 5.—Momer Bergon, convicted here yesterday of keeping liquor for sale on his premises, near Queenston quarries, was fined $25 and $11 costs. ### Banish the Bishops.

Lisbon, Jan. 5.—Following the punishment of the Patriarch of Lisbon, Mgr. Anthony Mendes Bello, who was ordered to be expelled on Dec. 28 by the Portuguese Government for two years, all the Portuguese bishops yesterday proclaimed their independence from the Government. TAKE TOO BIG CHANCES

Why is it that men and women will never learn that overwork and nervous and weak, no appetite, could not Every day the papers tell of the dreadful results of overtaxing one's strength, yet the others keep right on without profiting by the lesson.

Henry Jacobs of Ninth avenue, N. Y., went through this experience and now writes in a letter: "I was in bad health for two years, very nervous and eak, no appetite, could not sleep well and had no ambition or energy. I was getting worse all the time.

"But since I began taking Vinol there is a wonderful difference. I have gained 14 pounds in less than two months, have a splendid appetite and can enjoy my meals. My nerves are strong and I sleep soundly. I simply feel fine now, which shows what Vinol did for me."

Our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, will do as much for all other run-down, worn-out people, if they will only give it a chance. There is no risk for we give back the money if Vinol fails to satisfy you. —Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

SOMETHING ABOUT OUR ANCESTORS

Mr. Flint Tells us a Good Deal About Who and What They Were

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Scotchmen and Irishmen ought to love each other, as they are branches of their great ancestral tree. One of the many proofs is that the Gaelic of the Highland Scotchman is the Erse—Eiresh—or Gaelic of the native of Ireland. A Highlander speaking Gaelic in Tipperary would be perfectly understood by the Irish native, for it is his native tongue, and the Tipperary man speaking Irish would be understood by any brawny Argyleshire man who speaks Gaelic. If the Scotchman and the Irishman took a trip to the Isle of Man, they would find the Manx dialect a familar language to them——pure Gaelic. If they visited Brittany, in France, Gaelic would be an open door to the hearts of the peasants of Brittany. Every race every tribe, has some kind of religion other than Druidism. Not much can be learned about this mysterious cult, for one chief reason. No ceremonial sermon, ritual, ballad or hymn was permitted to be in writing. No sacred book or document was used. Everything was oral, and had to be committed to memory. Consequently, when the Druids died, and their followers, nothing but myths and traditions remained. It is a terrible and horrible truth that every old pagan religion had as a part of its belief the practice of human sacrifices to appease the wrath of some god or gods. Druids practiced this, and it was (as nearly as can be ascertained), a principal part of their worship. Some of the old ballads or songs which have drifted down from the ages reveal this practice. What do we know about the people who occupied the countries subsequently captured by the Celts? Before going into this matter permit me to observe that although the word is spelled Celt, the pronounciation should be Kelt. There is no K in the Celtic alphabet, which consists of seventeen letters, and C is pronounced hard, giving it the sound of K. There are no documents extant which tell about the Megalithian people. But we trace them in Asia, the British Isles, France, Germany, Greece, India, Japan. Their sepulchral monuments tell us many things. They were the builders of the dolmens, cromlechs, chambered tunnels. More than 3,000 of these have been discovered in France. Stonehenge, in England, was their work. A dolmen is a chamber composed of upright unhewn stones, and roofed generally by one immense stone. This was a chamber for the dead. A cromlech is a circle of large stones. Sometimes a dolmen is found within the cromlech. It is believed that dolmens and cromlechs were covered with earth and denuded during the ages by the elements. There are great avenues of immense stones found in various lands. The Megalithians and Celts believed in magic. In Brittany to-day, stones of immense size, placed there during the ages, are worshipped by some portions of the peasantry. There is a photograph taken a short time ago, showing the people engaged in worshipping huge stones. Apparently Megalithians were of North African origin, creeping into Europe at Gibraltar. Originally they were a distinct race, but in the end they came not to represent a race, but a cult. The skulls found represent a superior type. The monuments show that there was a priesthood charged with the care of funeral rites. What their peculiar cult was cannot be ascertained. That they believed in magic and astrology and chiromancy may be deemed from a remarkable discovery in Brittany in 1864. It was a mound which had evidently been untouched since the builders left it, ages ago. At the entrance was a sculptured stone on which was engraven a mysterious sign, perhaps the totem of a chief. On entering the cave a beautiful pendant about the size of an egg, of green jasper, was found. In the centre, on the floor, a most singular arrangement, consisting of a ring of jadite, oval in shape, with a magnificent ox-head of jadite, with its point resting on the ring. The ox is the symbol of power of the godhead, and is found in rock carvings, etc.. At a little distance lay two large pendants of jasper, an ox-head in white jade, another jasper pendant, then 101 ox-heads of white jade, jadite and fribolite, stones were found there with lines traced upon them, in exact resemblance to the lines of the human hand at the roots and tips of the fingers. This tunnel fortunately escaped the ravages of the Danes, whose especial mission it seemed to be to destroy everything that would yield booty. It is to be hoped that other discoveries may be made to enable us to learn something more about our remote ancestors.

Jasper is found in many colors. It was used by the ancients for cameos. It was the twelfth stone in the breastplate of the High Priest, as described in the English version of the Old Testament and is frequently referred to in the Apocalypse.

I am, respectfully,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

MUSIC and DRAMA

"THE CHORUS LADY."

Last evening, at Griffin's Opera House, "The Chorus Lady," by James Forbes, was presented to a large and well pleased audience. The play is a little out of the ordinary run of attractions, depicting as it does the everyday life of a chorus girl in the larger cities. The plot hinged upon the attempts of a "man about town" to entrap a young chorus girl, and the protection afforded the latter by a sister of the chorus who is, as she puts it, "wise." Miss Edith Wall as Patricia O'Brien in the title role, received much merited applause for her delineation of the difficult part she played. Her vocabulary of slang was a revelation to the audience and her quaint and pointed remarks kept the audience in continual laughter, and touches of pathos here and there formed in all a most pleasing combination. W. H. Belmont as Dick Crawford, the "man about town," carried his part in a creditable manner, as also did Mary Morrison as Sylvia Simpson, a show girl. The rest of the company supported ably, and taken as a whole received the hearty approval of the audience. It is safe to say that several of the spectators went expecting to be disappointed, but were pleasantly surprised at the excellence of the production and the ability of the performers. "The Chorus Lady" was no disappointment.

"THE ROSARY."

A modern play to be presented at Griffin's Opera House on Tuesday, Jan. 9, is entitled "The Rosary." It was written by Edward E. Rose, is produced under the management of Monte Thompson, with the well-known young American actor, John Meehan, in the role of "Father Brian Kelly."

Quietly and modestly, with no blare of trumpets, the play projects a quiet word into our turmoil of opinions, which many believe will revolutionize our ethics of marriage and divorce; as an illustration, "The Rosary" takes you into the heart of an American home, such as our homes are to-day. It shows peace and happiness—then suddenly trouble comes—lack of faith in the husband. Slowly, little by little, is seen the devastating power of atheism, how it saps the strength and breaks the will, so that when doubt and suspicion creep in, they find fertile soil for the descendants—hatred and revenge. Then comes the spiritual power of a great man—a priest—whose life is given to mankind. Slowly he analyzes the situation and brings the husband and wife, whom he loves, out of the darkness to happiness and peace.

The prices for the production of "The Rosary" will be 25c., 50c., 75c. and $1.00. Seats on sale at Doyle's Drug Store, Saturday, Jan. 6th.

Our new serial, THE GOOSE GIRL by Harold McGrath, will be commenced in to-morrow's Intelligencer.

BOXING

JOHNSON AND McVEY.

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 3.—Hugh D. McIntosh, who has been arranging the boxing bout between Jack Johnson and Sam McVey, has accepted a very tempting offer to change the place where the fight will take place. Jack Johnson, the champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, and Sam McVey the heavyweight champion of Australia, will therefore fight in Paris on the night of the Grand Prix, the latter part of June, instead of meeting in Sydney on Easter Monday.

Sam Langford and Sam McVey have engaged to fight a return match on Jan. 26 here, if McVey's hand heals in the meantime.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—"I'm going to fight Sam McVey in Paris on the night of the Grand Prix, I think on June 23, and I'll fight Jim Flynn some time before that, either in New York or Nevada."

Champion Jack Johnson to-night thus outlined the pugilistic situation of the future, so far as the heavyweight championship is concerned.

"There has been so much stuff published, it's hard to tell where I'm at," continued Johnson, "and I want to straighten it out. Every manager of a fighter, who, by the widest stretch of the imagination might be called a heavyweight, has been seeking publicity for his man by a lot of talk of a match with me.

"I have two matches coming— the two I named—and no more. When there are more I'll announce them."

The champion said the McVey articles of agreement would be signed to-morrow, and that the Flynn contract would be signed soon afterward.

NEW OFFER FOR JOHNSON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The appearance of Jack Johnson, the world's heavyweight champion, in a ten-round boxing bout in this city in the near future is now regarded as more than a possibility. An offer was wired yesterday by the McMahon Brothers, managers of the Empire A. C., to Johnson, calling for a ten-round bout here, for which the champion is offered $15,000. His opponent, if the offer is accepted, will be Joe Jeannette; and the latter will receive $5,000. It is understood that Jeannette has accepted, and the club is now awaiting a reply from Johnson. The following letter regarding the proposed bout was issued yesterday by the McMahon Brothers of the Empire A. C.:—

"For a time we have been interested in the promoting of high-class boxing both at the Empire and Olympic Clubs.

"It has been our policy to present the best boxing talent available, and in making matches we have strictly adhered to matches in which both contestants were of equal class.

"We now want to present to the New York fans the world's heavyweight champion Jack Johnson. While we appreciate that Johnson would be a tremendous attraction with almost any one, at the same time we will only match him with the man who in our opinion is capable of giving him a good contest. We refer to Joe Jeannette, who no doubt is the next best man to Johnson in the heavyweight line.

"We are prepared to give him for this bout a purse of $20,000, to be divided as follows: $15,000 for Johnson and $5,000 for Jeannette.

"As Johnson has been demanding $30,000 for a contest, we assume that in order to get that amount it would have to be a contest of twenty rounds or more, so we are practically giving him his own terms, or $15,000 for ten rounds.

"We have to-day wired this offer to Johnson, and have stipulated that it would have to be with Jeannette, for there is no other man in the country who can give Johnson a good bout. While the white hopes are all right as white hopes, the matching of them with Johnson would be ridiculous.

HOCKEY

Belleville's prospects for a fast Junior team look good. A dozen or more boys have been tried out and the showing made by most of them was excellent.

The Intermediates practiced last night in preparation for their match at Trenton to-night. The boys and the ice were both in poor condition.

The following will be the line up of the Belleville intermediate hockey team to-night at Trenton when the first scheduled game will be played: LeFleur, goal; J. Wallace, point; J. Connolly, cover point; Wilson, rover; Symons, centre; Ford, right wing; Patterson, left wing.

A number from the city accompanied the team to the neighboring town to witness the match.

Seaforth intermediates beat Mitchell 7 to 1 last night and Strathroy went to Sarnia and defeated the home team by 4 to 3. The good little Berlin junior team won again, defeating Preston 8 to 2. Peterborough downed Cobourg and the Lindsay youngsters trimmed Port Hope by 8 to 4. Galt juniors beat Woodstock juniors in an exhibition game. The Monarchs of Winnipeg defeated the New Edinburgh tourists by 8 to 6. Moncton of the Maritime Province Leagues has offered Fred Taylor $100 per week for the remainder of the season. Seventeen O.H.A. games are scheduled for to-night, including Picton juniors at the Kingston Frontenacs.

HAYES AND JOE MANDOT

While all eyes were turned toward Los Angeles for the battle between Wolgast and Welsh it might be well to keep in mind another bout which although not so important, may have a bearing on the lightweight title in the future. The contest will be between Grover Hayes and Joe Mandot, who gained fame by whipping Milburn Saylor. Mandot and Hayes should put up a grand fight and the winner will be in line for the winner of the Welsh-Wolgast bout.

TAKING TIME BY THE FORELOCK

A Secret Conclave Held to Allot the Civic Chairmanships

Nothing like taking time by the forelock. The members of the new City Council, under the leadership of Alderman Robinson met in solemn caucus last night and decided who should be and who should not be chairmen of committees during the year 1912. The ten out of twenty-one were, our informant says, Aldermen Robinson, Chown, Woodley, Parks, Smith, White, Anderson, Wallace, Canning and McCurdy. Certain of the others, our informant says, were not of the chosen few and consequently were not invited to the conference—a serious blunder in the manipulator.

Well, the result of this secret conclave was the selection of the following Aldermen for Chairmanships:

| | |
|---|---|
| Executive .. .. .. .. .. | Ald. Panter. |
| Public Works .. .. .. .. " | Robinson. |
| Water Works .. .. .. .. " | Chown |
| Gas .. .. .. .. .. .. .. " | Clarke. |
| Market .. .. .. .. .. .. " | Parks |
| Fire .. .. .. .. .. .. .. " | Woodley. |
| Claims .. .. .. .. .. .. " | Slater. |
| Parks & Light .. .. .. " | Wallace |
| Industries & Railways .. " | Smith |

The Intelligencer feels slighted, no information having been given it of this important caucus, as it would have been delighted to have sent a reporter to record the eloquence of the favored ones. What an interesting chapter in the history of municipal government in Belleville it would have made!

So far as the secrets of the conclave have leaked out, Alderman Clarke became disgusted and bolted, Ald. Wallace following suit. Notwithstanding this revolt, Ald. Robinson martialled his remaining forces, resulting in the nominations recorded above.

Seriously—is it much less than presumption for TEN out of TWENTY-ONE aldermen to meet and allot to themselves all the plums?

Look out for fun next Monday when the new Council meets.

BOY SCOUTS

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 6.—Anti-Home Rule advocates characterize as treasonable the independent boy scout movement being organized in southern Ireland. One of the chief rules that recruits must subscribe to is, "I promise to work for the independence of Ireland, never to join England's armed forces, and to obey my superior officers."

PEACE RUMOR

(Intelligencer Special)

PARIS, France, Jan. 6.—The Petit Journal claims to have authority for the statement that representatives of Italy and Turkey, in conference here, have practically agreed upon peace terms, under which Turkey relinquishes Tripoli and Cyrenaica, the Sultan retaining spiritual control of the Mohammedans in these countries, and in addition Italy is to pay Turkey a war indemnity.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The Women's Institute will meet in the High School at 4 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 8th. "What Twenty Thousand Home-Makers Are Doing in Ontario," a report of the recent Provincial Convention in Toronto, will be given by the delegate, Miss Guest.

RINK WAS OPENED.

The skating rink was opened last night for the season and a large number availed themselves of the opportunity of indulging in skating. There was a good sheet of ice. The I.O.O.F. band was present and furnished appropriate music.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A young man named Robert Logan, who resides with his parents on Herchmer Avenue, was last nig't placed under arrest on a serious charge, namely indecently assaulting a little girl whose parents reside near Logan's place. The affair is alleged to have taken place on Wednesday afternoon of this week in close proximity to the little girl's home. The affair was reported to the authorities, with the result that Logan was apprehended. Before Magistrate Masson tdo-ay, after some evidence had been taken, the case was enlarged until Wednesday next, and Logan was committed to jail in the meantime.

BORNE TO THE GRAVE.

Despite the exceedingly cold weather, many citizens were this morning present at the obsequies of the late Mrs. M. Gillen, which took place from her late residence on George Street. At the house an impressive service was held conducted by the Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, of which church Mrs. Gillen was a member for many years. As evidence of the esteem in which deceased was held, many beautiful floral tributes were contributed by relatives and friends. At Belleville cemetery the interment took place. The bearers were relatives of the deceased, namely Messrs. A. Gillen, E. Donald, B. L. Hyman, W. E. Orr, A. McFee, and W. Hyman.

HIGHLY COMMENDED.

Mr. H. Corby has received from Mr. G. H. Allen, of Montreal, General Manager of the Travellers' Life Insurance Company of Canada, a letter highly commendatory of Miss Eva Mylott, the celebrated Australian contralto, who is to appear here on the 12th inst.

ELLIS COMMITTED.

Before Magistrate Masson this morning Clem Ellis was arraigned on a charge of stealing a tie pin from Edward Meehan. Through his counsel, Mr. Carnew, the accused made no election as to his trial. The evidence of the complainant was to the effect that some six weeks ago he was in a barber shop on McAnnany Street, and some time after he left he missed the pin. Ellis was employed in the barber shop and fixed Meehan up after he had been shaved. Last week the pin was recovered at the barber shop in question and the result was that Ellis was placed under arrest accused of theft. The Magistrate held that there was sufficient evidence to commit the accused for trial, and he did so. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown. In the meantime an effort will be made to have Ellis out on bail.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The first annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Talc & Silica Company, Limited, of Eldorado, was held in Toronto on Jan. 4th, 1912. The following gentlemen were elected to hold office for the ensuing year:

President—Harry B. Hungerford.
Vice-Pres.—Charles F. Milligan.
Secretary—David Plaut.

Mr. Otto B. Werner was elected Treasurer.

The shareholders were very much pleased with the retiring officers' report, and as large contracts for ground talc have been received, were very much encouraged with the prospects for this year.

The mill capacity will at once be increased and the general superintendent, Mr. Robert M. Phillips, received instructions to operate the mill at full capacity night and day.

A MAYORALTY RECOUNT.

An application asking for a recount of the Mayoralty ballots was signed and a deposit made late yesterday afternoon. This will come up before the Judge, possibly Monday or Tuesday. Messrs. Porter & Carnew are acting for Mr. George J. Thomas.

GAVE HIM A CHANCE.

William Hollis, a negro, who was arrested here a week ago on a charge of vagrancy, was this morning up before the Magistrate on remand. He asked to be allowed to go in order that he might go to Toronto, where he claims to have friends. The Magistrate gave him the opportunity of going westward.

THE NEW COUNCIL.

At 11 o'clock on Monday morning the inaugural meeting of the City Council for 1912 will be held in the Council Chamber. There are four Aldermanic vacancies, which will be filled as soon as possible after the Council has been organized. The composition of the Council at present is as follows:

Mayor—A. G. Vermilyea.
Foster Ward—Aldermen Panter, Robinson and Clarke.

Singleton, Smith's Falls; First Vice-President, G. A. Gillespie, Peterboro'; Second Vice-President, James A. Sanderson, Kemptville; Third Vice-President, Nelson Stone, Norham; Secretary T. A. ### CONGRATULATIONS.

The following editorial remarks of the Ottawa Journal will be read with interest by many in this city: "Ottawa will extend to Prof. John and Mrs. Macoun sincere congratulations on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day. Both have enjoyed a long and useful life, and in the evening of their days have the pleasure of seeing their numerous descendants occupy high positions in their different professions and spheres. The Journal merely expresses the wish of hundreds in giving publicity to the hope that Mr. and Mrs. Macoun will be spared yet for many years of health and happiness." Prof. Macoun was for several years a popular resident of Belleville. He came to this city in 1860 and was for some years Head Master of the Cannifton Road School. He was later engaged on the staff of Albert College, and for a length of time pursued his studies in botany, in which he was an enthusiast, many of the results of his explorations being contributed to The Intelligencer over his signature "Woodland Rambler." Finally he was engaged by the Dominion Government to make a series of annual explorations in the North-West as to the fitness of the territory for agriculture, and he was appointed to the position of Dominion Naturalist, with headquarters at Ottawa, to which city he removed and where he has ever since resided. Prof. Macoun was married during his residence in Belleville and some of his children were born here. The Intelligencer adds its congratulations to those of its contemporary to its old and esteemed friend, Prof. John Macoun and to his wife on the auspicious occasion of the golden anniversary of their wedding.

The Belleville Water Works Department has had a very successful and profitable year, as will be noted from the following report, which speaks for itself.

| Total revenue from water rates | | $27,051 00 |
| Expenditures, operating | $7,511 40 | |
| Salaries, repairs to mains, services, etc. | 1,762 62 | |
| Total operating expenses | | 9,274 02 |
| Gross profit from operation of plant | | $17,779 98 |
| Less sinking fund and debenture interest | | 11,130 00 |
| Net profit, 1911 | | $ 6,649 98 |
| Amount received from Canadian Northern Ontario Railway for right of way at pumping station | | 1,500 00 |
| Total net profit | | $ 8,149 98 |

It is interesting to note that after allowing 10% discount on the water rates this past year, and reducing the charge of hydrant rental to the city, $2,100, this department shows a new profit on operation of $6,649.98, together with $1,500 received from the C.N.O.R. for right of way at the pumping station, making a total net profit for the year of $8,149.98.

In view of this splendid showing, I would recommend that this year's Council make a reduction in the water rates to our citizens of 25%.

In recommending this reduction, I do so confident that with the further saving in our operating expenses since the installation of the electrical turbine pump at the pumping station, and the increased revenue from the hundred and fifty new services installed last year, will allow this department to give this discount, and still have for reserve at the end of this coming year at least $4,500 to $5,000.

It has been customary in the past to apply the profits from revenue account to extend our water works system.

This policy, in my opinion, should not be adopted in future, but we should issue debentures every year for the extensions made the year previous, and use our profits to improve the filtering system at the pumping station, and make still further reductions on our water rates, so as to place our city in a pre-eminent position with other cities of this size in Ontario.

Your Obedient Servant,
R. C. CHOWN.

DEATH'S CALL

JOHN H. PARKS.

Mr. W. E. Parks, Queen Street, yesterday received the sad intelligence of the death of his father, John H. Parks, which occurred at his home, Milton, Ont. The late Mr. Parks was about 74 years of age. His wife preceded him to the tomb nineteen years ago. He leaves a family of seven sons and two daughters. The daughters are Mrs. Robert Andrews, Coleman street, this city, and Mrs. R. Dunn, Cobalt; the sons are W. E. Parks and Ald. Parks, of Belleville; James W. Parks, Edmonton; Wilson Parks, of Winnipeg; M. E. Parks, of Milton; Harry Parks, of Blackwater, and Alfred Parks, of Toronto.

WALTER J. HAYWARD.

Mr. Walter J. Hayward, who died at his home in Toronto yesterday, was a resident of Belleville for several years. As Government inspector of weights and measures Mr. Hayward was well known throughout the western portion of Ontario. He is survived by his wife, who was a sister of the late Chas. W. Pole.

Our new serial, THE GOOSE GIRL by Harold McGrath, will be commenced in to-morrow's Intelligencer.

"TAKE CARE" OF THE BOYS

Have Fewer Criminals—Parole System Works Admirably, Says Warden Gilmour

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—"Take care of the boys," was the keynote of Warden Gilmour's address on 'Prison Reform' at a meeting of Riverdale business men and ladies in the R.C.B.C. large club room last evening.

"Cheap, trashy literature, and unfavorable home surroundings make youthful criminals. The earlier in life a boy started out to be a criminal the less hope there was of reformation." Dr. Gilmour paid a high tribute to C. J. Atkinson, late secretary-treasurer of the Broadview Y.M.C.A., and former superintendent of the Broadview Institute. "There is no one who has done more to keep Riverdale boys on the right road for the past twenty years than Mr. Atkinson," said the speaker.

He believed that a prisoner should not be sentenced to a definite term. "A medical doctor might as well send a patient to the Isolation Hospital for a certain period, irrespective of the nature of the disease, as a judge send a man 'down' for a stated fixed term and expect him to be reformed in just that period of time, no more, no less."

Since the Board of Parole has been formed he was pleased to say that of the 100 men released on parole only one had been returned to jail. This he considered a very strong argument for indefinite sentences. "All prisoners are not hardened criminals, and the trust the board have in these men has not been abused."

CURRENT COMMENT

"There aint goin' to be no Liberal party" in a little while.

"I wish you a happy New Year."
"Thanks, old man. It ought to be. There are fifty-three pay days in it."—Detroit Free Press.

1912 in Ottawa premises to be a strenuous year. The capital city contains 400 more women than men. Think of leap year under those conditions.—Galt Reformer.

Father to young Adonis who has begged for the hand of his daughter—"But, my dear sir, are you able to support a family?"

Adonis (softly)—"Yes, I could. But I'm only asking for the daughter."

"Provided always," and so forth in legal phraseology, the City Council for 1912 will be organized on Monday. Nothing is heard of any strenuous struggle for chairmanships. Public Works seems to be the most attractive.

Kingston received over sixteen million bushels of grain during the past year. How much of that grain would have gone to the seaboard through Canadian channels had the so-called reciprocity pact been accepted by the people of Canada?

Less politics in 1912 than in 1911 is what a Liberal contemporary hopes for. Well, the Grit party was badly battered in 1911, but it is up to its leaders to secure that end by dropping their senseless agitation over reciprocity which some of their inveterate newspaper organs and some of their co-workers across the lines are trying to keep up. If they wish to continue the fight they will find the Conservatives armed and ready for the fray.

"She holds peculiar views of matrimony."

"That so?"

"Yes. She says that even if her husband shouldn't make a fortune in five years she expects to stick to him until death."

According to Toronto advices the new policy for the temperance forces in Ontario will be license reduction rather than local option—this not only because of the success that has attended the license reduction movement but also because of the opposition that seems to be spreading against local option on the two-fold ground that it does not stop drinking and that it affects a city's commercial progress.—Kingston Standard.

The report that the next viceroy of India is to be Prince Arthur of Connaught partly bears out the idea that in future the governors of the great colonies and dominions will be princes of the blood. It has been said that King George wishes his sons to be trained for the duties of kingship, that any of them might be called on to discharge some day and that he plans to give them their training in Canada, Australia, India, South Africa and the other colonies.—Guelph Herald.

Jack (just engaged)—"Can you take the name Mabel off this ring and substitute Joan?"

Jeweler—"Yes, but it will cost you something; the name is cut so deep."

Jack—"All right, but don't cut it so deep next time."

Ireland is surely a thorny subject for British statesmen to handle. If he speaks kindly of the many virtues of the south of Ireland, then the Unionists assert that he is bidding for the Roman Catholic vote, and if he happens to laud the men of the north then the home-rulers call him an Ulster Orangeman. Mr. Birrell is just now experiencing a taste of what he may expect in days to come. The newspapers represented him as saying, in reference to the matter of Home Rule legislation, that the people of the north had no more religion than billiard balls. He declared that in the city of Belfast there was only one Roman Catholic employed by the corporation, and he was a scavenger. Naturally this was not allowed to go unchallenged, and now we are told that in Belfast there are at least 900 Roman Catholics in the employ of the corporation, and they receive $240,000 in wages annually. At the same time out of $1,710,000 paid every year in rates in Belfast, the Roman Catholics pay only $85,000. The Unionists compare this with Dublin, and assert that while the Protestants pay more than one-half the rates in that city, a Unionist has no chance of employment by the corporation. No doubt Mr. Birrell can fight his own battles, but so far, it looks as though the "religion and billiard ball' part of his speech would have better been omitted.—Christian Guardian.

TIRED OF LIFE, NOT YET 18

Drank Carbolic Acid—Margaret Grey Committed Suicide After Visiting Father

TORONTO, Jan 5.—Shortly before ten o'clock last night a lady boarder at 52 Elm street made the horrifying discovery that her room companion, Margaret Gray, had drank a quantity of carbolic acid. The girl who made the discovery had gone upstairs to bed at that time. She found Miss Gray lying on the bed and breathing heavily. Summoning medical assistance, it was ascertained that the girl, who was not yet 18 years of age, had taken carbolic acid and that there was little chance of her recovery.

The girl's father, who lives at 85 Trinity street, was sent for, and at his request the dying girl was removed to St. Michael's Hospital, but she expired in the police ambulance before reaching the institution. The body was thereafter removed to the morgue and intimation sent to the chief coroner.

Th deceased girl only went to board at 52 Elm street on Friday. She told the landlady that she worked in the stores. She appeared to the landlady to be a nice, quiet girl who lived a very respectiable life. She was never late out at nights, and last night she was in her room before eight o'clock Earlier in the evening she had visited her father's house at 85 Trinity street and on leaving there she had apparently gone straight to her lodgings.

Almost immediately she went upstairs, after asking to be supplied with a jug of hot water. She didn't get the water as quickly as she liked, and she came down for it herself. About a couple of hours later, when her companion went upstairs, the shocking discovery was made. The bottle which had contained the poison was lying beside her. Dr. Johnson, Elm street, was called in, but he could do nothing for her.

No reason is assigned for the girl's rash act apart from the note left in the room for her father, which said that she was despondent and tired of life.

POOL BALL STICKS IN "BIGGEST MOUTH."

Doctors Had to Pull Five Teeth to Remove it Following Boy's Bet.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Robert Wilson, a youth, made a bet with several companions that he had the largest mouth of any person in the crowd and to prove his assertion thrust a pool ball between his jaws.

He won the wager, but lost several teeth, for the ivory ball fitted the mouth so well that it took two hours' work on the part of physicians at the Children's Hemeopathic hospital to remove it.

That was accomplished when the pain from his distended jaws became so great that it was determined to sacrifice five front teeth.

The first zero weather of the present winter is now being experienced here. The cold wave continued to grow steadily colder, until the instrument registered 20 below zero, at which figure it stood until after 8 a. m., following which it gradually rose to 10 below at noon. ### Rescue Houses Established.

Winnipeg, Jan. 6.—The Presbyterian Church has purchased an eleven-room house to be used as a rescue home for young women desiring to escape from a life in the "segregated district." This is a part of the scheme to establish a chain of such homes all over Canada. One has been in operation in Toronto for several months and others are to be established at Montreal, Halifax and Vancouver.

Minister Suing City.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Rev. Prof. Jos. H. James of Burley, Eng., has issued a writ against the City of Toronto for $20,000, claiming damages to that extent for a broken knee cap sustained while he was attending the ecumenical council here. He fell into an excavation made by the Hydro-electric system on Queen street. The writ was issued yesterday morning by the firm of Rowell, Reid, Wilkie & Wood.

Civil Service Board Busy.

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—The Civil Service Inquiry Commission is settling down into its offices and will be busy for some time with the work of organization.

It is unlikely that the commission will appoint a general counsel. Instead, it will act as its own counsel and will save the expense. The next few days will be devoted to preliminary work and the formal investigation will not begin until next week. While nothing has been decided, it may commence with the Department of Public Works.

The commission ultimately may be expected to go west and investigate on the ground the work of the Department of the Interior.

Hamburg Liner Released.

New York, Jan. 6.—The Hamburg-American Line steamer Prinz Joachim, which went on the rocks at Atwood Bay, in the Bahamas, several weeks ago, was extricated from her position yesterday and will proceed under her own power, after making temporary repairs, to an Atlantic coast port, according to a wireless despatch received here yesterday afternoon by E. L. Boas, resident director and general manager of the line.

The GOOSE GIRL

That a wooden-shoed, simple minded goose girl should plunge monarchs and monarchies into a most mysterious confusion of affairs is a novelty. Yet the lovely Gretchen, the heroine of this fascinating old world novel, did just that, for no one can deny that Ehrenstein is a land of romance. There Carmichael, the dashing young American consul, learned of the dangers of falling in love with a princess; there Herbeck, the wily chancellor, tried a master stroke, evilly designed, to change the history of a throne; there royalty in disguise wandered and plotted and learned to know fellow human beings; there the treacherous Magyar gypsies lurked in the shadows to abduct a princess. And through all the little goose girl trod her lowly way toward a fate that the magic wand of chance had destined she must fill—a fate as amazing as it is fascinating to read about. —

CHAPTER I.

SOME IN RAGS.

AN old man clothed in picturesque patches and tatters paused and leaned on his stout oak staff. He had walked many miles that day. His peasant garb rather enhanced his fine head. His eyes were blue and clear and farseeing, the eyes of a hunter or a woodsman.

The afternoon glow of the September sun burned along the dusty white highway. From where he stood the road trailed off miles behind and wound up 500 feet or more above him to the ancient city of Dreiberg.

Across a lofty jumble of barren rock and glacial cleft, now purpling and darkening as the sun mellowed in its decline, lay the kingdom of Jugendheit. By and by his gaze wavered, and one particular patch in the valley, brown from the beating of many ironshod horses, caught and chained his interest for a space. It was the military field, and it glittered and scintillated with squadron after squadron of cavalry.

"The philosophy of war is to prepare for it," mused the old man, with a jerk of his shoulders. "France! So the mutter runs. There is a Napoleon in France, but no Bonaparte." He laughed ironically and cautiously glanced at his watch, an article which must have cost him many and many a potato patch. He stepped forward. He had followed yonder goose girl ever since the incline began. Oft the little wooden shoes had lagged, but here they were, still a hundred yards or more ahead of him.

The little goose girl was indeed tired, and the little wooden shoes grew heavier and heavier, and the little bare feet ached dully, but her heart was light and her mind sweet with happiness. Day after day she had tended the geese in the valley and trudged back at evening alone, all told a matter of twelve miles, and now she was bringing them into the city to sell in the market on the morrow. After that she would have little to do save an hour or two at night in a tavern called the Black Eagle, where she waited on patrons.

Presently there was a clatter of horses, a jingle of bit and spur and saber. Half a dozen mounted officers trotted past. The peasant on the parapet instantly recognized one of the men. He saluted with a humbleness which lacked sincerity. It was the grand duke himself. There was General Duewitz, too, and some of his staff, and a smooth faced, handsome young man in civilian riding clothes, who, though he rode like a cavalryman, was obviously of foreign birth, an Englishman or an American.

When the cavalcade reached the goose girl the peace of the scene vanished forthwith. Confusion took up the scepter. The silly geese, instead of remaining on the left of the road in safety, straightway determined that their haven of refuge was on the opposite side. Gonk, gonk! Quack, quack! They scrambled, they blundered, they flew. Some tried to go over the horses, some endeavored to go under.

The civilian looked casually at the girl.

"By George!" he exclaimed in English.

"What is it?" asked the duke, gathering up the reins.

"The girl's face. It is beautiful."

The duke, after a glance, readily agreed. "You Americans are always observant."

"Pretty figure, too," said one of the aids, a colonel. But his eye held none of the abstract admiration which characterized the American's.

The goose girl had seen this look in other men's eyes. She knew. A faint color grew under her tan and waned.

The troop proceeded with dust and small thunder and shortly passed the city gates. It traversed the lumpy cobbles of the narrow streets, often crowding pedestrians. One among those so inconvenienced was a youth dressed as a vintner. He was tall, pliantly built, blond as a viking, possessing a singular beauty of the masculine order. He was forced to flatten himself against the wall of a house, his arms extended on either side in a kind of temporary crucifixion. Even then the stirrup of the American touched him slightly. But it was not the touch of the stirrup that startled him. It was the dark, clean cut face of the rider. Once they were by the youth darted into a doorway.

"He? What can he be doing here? No, it is utterly impossible. It is merely a likeness."

He ventured forth presently, none of the perturbation, however, gone from his face. He ran his hand across his chin. Yes, he would let his beard grow.

The duke and his escort turned into the broad and restful sweep of the Konigstrasse. At the end was the Ehrenstein Platz, the great square round which ran the palaces and the royal and public gardens. The halt was made in the courtyard and all dismounted.

The American thanked the duke gratefully for the use of the horse.

"You are welcome to a mount at all times, Mr. Carmichael," replied the duke pleasantly. "A man who rides as well as yourself may be trusted anywhere with any kind of a horse."

The group looked admiringly at the object of this marked attention. Here was one who had seen two years of constant and terrible warfare, who had ridden horses under fire and who bore on his body many honorable scars, for the great civil strife in America had come to its close but two years before and Europe was still captive to her amazement at the military prowess of the erstwhile inconsiderable American.

As Carmichael saluted and turned to leave the courtyard he threw a swift, searching glance at one of the palace windows. Did the curtain stir? He could not say. He continued on, crossing the Platz, toward the Grand hotel. He was a bachelor, so he might easily have had his quarters at the consulate, but as usual with American consulates—even to the present time—it was situated in an undesirable part of the town, over a bierhalle frequented by farmers and the middle class.

Where had he seen that young vintner before?

Meanwhile the goose girl, now joined by the old man, marshaled her geese and proceeded.

"What was that song you were singing before the horses came up?" he asked her.

"That? It was from the poet Heine"—simply.

He stared at her.

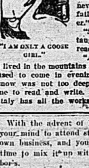
"Heine? Can you read?"

"Yes, herr."

A goose girl who read Heine?

"And the music?" he inquired presently.

"That is mine"—with the first sign of diffidence. "Melodies are always running through my head. Sometimes they make me forget things I ought to remember."



"I AM ONLY A GOOSE GIRL."

"Your own music? An impresario will be discovering you some fine day, and your fortune will be made."

The light irony did not escape her. "I am only a goose girl."

He felt disarmed. "What is your name?"

"Gretchen."

"What else?"

"Nothing else," wistfully. "I never knew any father or mother."

"So? But who taught you to read?"

"A priest. Once I lived in the mountains at an inn. He used to come in evenings when the snow was not too deep. He taught me to read and write. I know that Italy has all the works of art, that France has the most interesting history, that Germany has all the philosophers and America all the money," adding a smile. "I should like to see America."

"Do you live alone?"

"No. I live with my foster mother, who is very old. I call her grandmother. She took me in when I was a foundling. And what might your name be?"

"Ludwig. I am a mountaineer from Jugendheit."

"We are not friendly with your country."

"More's the pity. It is a grave blunder on the part of the grand duke."

"Wasn't it all about the grand duke's daughter?"

"Yes. But she has been found. Yet the duke is as bitter as of old. What is this new found princess like?"

"She is beautiful and kind."

The geese were behaving, and only occasionally was she obliged to use her stick.

He observed her critically, for he was interested. She was not tall, but her lithe slenderness gave her the appearance of tallness. Her hands, rough nailed and sunburnt, were small and shapely. Her hair, in a thick braid, was the tone of the heart of a chestnut bur, and her eyes were of that mystifying hazel, sometimes brown, sometimes gray.

"How old are you, Gretchen?"

"I do not know," she answered, "perhaps eighteen, perhaps twenty."

Arriving at length in the city, they passed through the crooked streets.

"Gretchen, where shall I find the Adlergasse?"

"I will show you. You are also a stranger in Dreiberg?"

"Yes."

They took the next turn, and the weather beaten sign Zum Schwartzen Adler, hanging in front of a frame house of many gables, caused the mountaineer to breathe gratefully.

"Here my journey ends, Gretchen, at the Black Eagle," he said.

They were passing a clock mender's shop. The man from Jugendheit peered in the window, but there was no clock in sight to give him warning of the time, and he dared not now look at his watch. He had a glimpse of the ancient clock mender himself, however, huddled over a table upon which sputtered a candle. The eyes of the two men met, but only for a moment. The mountaineer started to cross the street to the tavern.

"Good night, Gretchen. Good luck to you and your geese tomorrow."

"Thanks, Herr Ludwig. And will you be long in the city?"

"That depends; perhaps," adding a grim smile in answer to a grim thought.

He offered his hand, which she accepted trustfully. He was a strange old man, but she liked him. When she withdrew her hand something cold and hard remained in her palm. Wonders of all the world, it was a piece of gold! Her eyes went up quickly, but the giver smiled reassuringly and put a finger against his lips.

"But, herr," she remonstrated.

"Keep it. I give it to you. Do not question Providence, and I am her handmaiden just now. Go along with you."

So Gretchen in a mild state of stupefaction turned away. Clat-clat! sang the little wooden shoes. A plaintive gonk rose as she prodded a laggard from the dank gutter. A piece of gold! Clat-clat! Clat-clat! Surely this had been a day of marvels.

She was regarded with kindly eyes till the dark jaws of the Krumerweg swallowed up both her and her geese.

"Poor little goose girl!" he thought. "If she but knew she could make a bonfire of a thousand hearts. A fine day!" He eyed again the battered sign. It was then that he discerned another leaning from the ledge of the first story of the house adjoining the tavern. It was the tarnished shield of the United States.

"Two weeks tramping about the country in this unholy garb, following false trails half the time, living on crusts and cold meats! Ah, you have led me a merry dance, nephew, but I shall not forget!"

He entered the tavern and applied for a room, haggling over the price.

Rival Steamship Line.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—That the R. & O. Steamship Co. is to have a rival on Lake Ontario seems to be the prevalent opinion among steamboat men at the present time.

The recent increase in the authorized capital stock of the Niagara Navigation Co. from one million to three million dollars and following the purchase of the Hamilton boats, it looks very much like an effort on the part of the N. N. Co to control the steamboat business on Lake Ontario.

The Water Works

Belleville has in its water works department, capably managed as it has been since the City Council assumed control of its operation, a fairly profitable investment. Year after year, without increasing the rates which were charged before the plant was purchased by the city, a small amount of revenue has been returned after all liabilities had been met, and upwards of $20,000 has been expended in extensions which were paid for out of revenue.

Last year's operations, as outlined by Ald. Chown, chairman of the committee during the past year, were the most successful in the history of the plant. After providing for interest, sinking fund and all other requirements, as well as reducing hydrant rentals by $2,100, a net revenue of about $6,700 has been earned, which is certainly very satisfactory. Mr. Chown proposes to reduce the present rates to a very substantial extent, and his proposals to that end are stated in another column. It is certainly right and proper that a reduction should be made, as it is not desirable that a large profit should be made from public utilities such as water and gas, whereby consumers are taxed for the benefit of non-consumers.

Found a Mare's Nest

The Toronto Star has, to the regret of The Intelligencer, and, no doubt, other supporters of the Borden Government, ceased to use—unintentionally, of course—its best efforts in behalf of the Conservative party.

As was noted in a previous issue, The Star, with the object of infusing new life into the moribund project of reciprocity of the Taft-Laurier variety, of which it was one of the most ardent advocates and as to which it refuses to accept the verdict of the people of Canada, pronounced in September last, went to the expense of sending to Buffalo a commission, whose duty it was to ascertain prices in the markets and stores of that city for comparison with those current in similar establishments in Toronto. This commission completed its work a few days ago, and the result, as summarized by The Star, was that prices of leading articles of consumption are about 5 per cent. lower in Buffalo than they are in Toronto, especially in butchers' meats.

Thus The Star has found a veritable "mare's nest," and that it has recognized the fact is evidenced by its silence with reference to the subject, which is so deep as to be felt.

The net result of our contemporary's enterprise, which it announced with a grand fanfaronade on the reciprocity trumpet, at the blowing of which it is an adept, must be deeply disappointing to it as well as to its party confreres, which, however, preserved a discreet reticence on the subject. It is that, on the whole, the cost of the necessaries of life is no greater in Toronto than it is in Buffalo. Meat is higher in Toronto, but fish, bread, sugar, tea, coffee, flour and other articles which cost more in the aggregate in the expenses of a family than does meat, are considerably lower in price in Toronto than they are in the city chosen by The Star for its comparison. "Man cannot live by bread alone," nor by meat alone, which fact our contemporary and all others of the same ilk would do well to consider in dealing with this subject.

And for this apparent—not real, but imaginary—saving of a few cents on the daily expenses of a family for food, The Star would open to the rapacity of our neighbors our natural resources of pulp-wood, timber, etc., as raw material for their manufactures and deprive our country of the legitimate advantages accruing from their manufacture on our own side of the line, and also deprive our transportation lines of the revenue derived from the carriage of our products through Canada to Canadian ports.

Never, surely, was there a proposal made to sell a greater inheritance for a smaller mess of pottage; but the people of Canada will not have it so.

The Human Taft

President Taft and Almost President Bryan are credited with two very definite announcements touching the Presidency. President Taft is reported, says the Montreal Star, to have said that "nothing but death" can now keep him our of the "fight"; and Almost President Bryan intimates that nothing short of the death of all other Democratic possibilities, would bring him into the fight. The Peaceful Taft's "death or victory" declaration is aimed at the cheerful Roosevelt, and not at the Democrats. So far as Teddy is concerned, Taft is not even willing to "arbitrate" their differences. Arbitration may be a fine thing to talk about as between people who do not want to fight; but when it comes to a pugnacious "first-class power" like the exasperating Roosevelt, then nothing but "bloody war" will satisfy the man who is quite prepared to arbitrate "national honor."

This "nothing but death" sort of talk, though, can hardly be what President Taft's Toronto henchman would expect of him. Is not Taft a fellow apostle of Peace? Was he not a collaborator on that "chef d'oeuvre" of international amity, the late lamented Reciprocity proposals? He shouldn't be talking about "fighting" in this carnal and human manner. We have always been left under the impression that the beatific Taft was super-human. When he said that "Canada was at the parting of the ways," he meant something entirely different from the interpretation that occurred to those of us with worldly minds—just what it was he meant, according to the view of the Toronto "Globe," we have quite forgotten. Nor was there any mischief in his remark that "the bond uniting Canada with the Mother Country was light and almost imperceptible."

Still, we persisted in going on the theory that Taft, after all, might be human. And now it certainly looks as if we were right. That outburst about fighting unless death intervenes, was very human. It is possible, after that, that he meant what he said about "the parting of the ways." In any case, we are probably in for a pretty "fight" across the border. Roosevelt is no poor "fighter" himself. It isn't at all likely that he will insist upon arbitrating this little affair. We may expect him to continue to be obvious wherever public attention is likely to centre for the next six months, and to see his friends go to the Republican Convention in June determined to bring him "back from Elba."

And Elba suggests Waterloo. Napoleon returned from Elba. The fat Louis fled from Paris. Napoleon took command of the forces, including the Old Guard. He marched to Waterloo. There he met a gentleman whose name began with "W". Woodrow Wilson has two names; and they both begin with "W."

EXPRESSIVE AND PICTURESQUE SLANG OF THE TRAINMEN

The talk of trainmen is about as rich in picturesque slang as any in this land of free and fancy speech. A collection of these expressions is being made by the Railroad Man's Magazine, and is reaching astonishing proportions. Some of the lingo can be understood even by the outsider. A 'side door Pullman', for instance, is a rather common way of referring to a box car. But most of the phrases are Greek to the uninitiated. 'Taking her by the neck,' for example, is used when an engine is made to pull a heavy 'drag' up a steep hill or around a sharp curve.

Once at the top of the grade the 'hogger' just 'lets her drift.' 'Plugging her' is an old term, used when the throttle is closed by a quick motion of the left hand while at the same time the reverse lever is thrown back with the right hand. This is not calculated to do any good to engine frames and cylinders and is resorted to only in great emergencies. It isn't so common since the introduction of automatic air brake.

An old box car or a small building occupied as the yardmaster's office is known as the 'doghouse.' It is sometimes used to indicate the small four-wheeled caboose used by some roads at the tail end of freight trains. This is also called the 'hut,' 'crummie,' 'crum box,' or 'cage.'

'Hitting the grit' is what no trainman likes to do, but he sometimes has to when the train is running at full speed and his only chance of not being caught in a wreck is to jump. 'Getting her down in the corner' is setting the reverse lever down in the lowest forward notch of the quadrant so that the engine has the full length of the back stroke.

'Patting her on the back' is an expression used when the reverse lever is down in the corner and is gradually hooked up notch by notch on the quadrant as the saturated steam is worked off. 'Making her pop' is maintaining a fire so that the instant an engine stops working she blows off.

To 'keep her hot' is to maintain a fire at a steady heat, thus furnishing all the dry steam needed, no matter how hard the engine may be working or regardless of the condition of the weather. As every fireman knows, the weather often tests the mettle of a 'diamond pusher' on hard runs with a heavy drag of 'rattlers.'

A thin plume of dry steam escaping from the pop is 'carrying a white feather.' This usually occurs after an engine has been working hard and the condition of the roadbed and gradient permits of the engineer easing her off a little.

When an engine has to haul a particularly heavy load up a steep grade it is often necessary to 'pound her.' The engineer gets over the hill with her, but is apt to strain her in so doing. Working an engine to full capacity after she has been reported for light repairs which have not been given her or working an engine to a higher limit than her builders designed is also called 'pounding her.'

A 'dead engine' is one without a fire. Steam is sometimes known as 'fog.' The conductor of the switching crew is the 'drummer,' and the brakemen are 'chacks,' 'car catchers,' 'fielders,' or 'ground hogs.' The yardmaster is frequently known as a 'switch hog,' and sometimes as 'the big switch hog.' The yardmaster's office is the 'knowledge box,' and the yard clerk is the 'number grabber.' Switching cars is 'shaking 'em out.'

A new fireman or brakeman is a 'student.' A 'boomer' in the strictest sense of the term is a man who stays only about one pay day on a division. A locomotive engineer is known as a 'hoghead,' 'hogger,' 'eagle eye,' 'throttle puller,' 'runner,' or 'engineman.'

A locomotive is called a 'mill,' 'kettle,' 'scrap heap,' 'junk pile,' and frequently and familiarly referred to as the 'old girl.' A fireman is known as a 'tallow pot,' a 'diamond dealer,' 'diamond pusher,' and in this day sometimes as a 'stoker.'

Freight brakemen are called 'twisters,' 'shacks,' 'strong arms,' 'cullies,' 'brakies,' and 'dope artists.'

'Varnished cars' are passenger coaches. A 'gon' is a gondola or coal car. A 'steelgon' is sometimes called a 'whalebelly' or 'battleship.' A refrigerator car is a 'reefer.'

'The running board' or 'toe path' is made up of the two or three boards or planks running lengthwise on the 'deck' or roof of a box car. The floor of an engine cab or tender is also called the 'deck.' 'Decking' or 'deckorating' means that the trainmen are riding on the roof.

The heaviest type of a consolidation engine is known as a 'battleship,' the lighter type of consolidation is called a 'hog.' Although the term 'hog' is generally applied to all engines nowadays, in the strictest sense of the railroad language it should be used only when referring to engines of the consolidation type.

A car that is disabled or broken is a 'cripple.' A track for repairing 'cripples' is a 'cripple track.' Car inspectors are known as 'car tinks,' and 'knockers.' An overheated bearing or brass is what constitutes a 'hot box' and the oiled waste used to repack it is 'dope.' The pay car is commonly called the 'pay wagon,' and is frequently more familiarly known as the 'family disturber.' The injector of an engine is the 'gun.' The blower is the 'fireman's friend.'

Out in the Rocky Mountain country there is heard some of the most expressive slang in the railroad world. For instance, 'Hand me three!' 'Saw 'em off!' 'Sease three!' 'Amputate 'em!' would mean three cars were to be cut off. 'Tie 'em down,' or 'anchor 'em' means to set the brakes. Out in Colorado when they throw a switch they 'bend a rail.' When they cool a 'hot box' they 'freeze a hub.'

To 'pull the pin' is to leave the service. 'Flying light' is to 'flag' or miss a meal. 'Brass collars' means the officials. 'License' is the badge worn by trainmen. A 'snake agent' is a fireman. The 'main stem' is the main track. 'Shuffle 'em up' is switching. Observation Pullmans are known as 'rubberneck' cars. Passengers who ride on them are known as 'cinder snappers.'

To 'make a joint' is to couple cars. 'Give 'em the wind' is the term when the air is admitted to the train line. A 'bum screw' is a bad brake, and sand is known as 'seashore.' The above expressions are used in other States besides Colorado. One of the most general expressions used in the west is the appellation given to cars not equipped with airbrakes. They are known as 'jacks.'

In Colorado a 'boomer' is called a 'tourist.' The boys out there go to the 'beanery' to 'chew' and 'kid the hasher.' If the 'rear dog' is cooking on the buggy' then they go to the 'hearse' for the 'big mulligan.' This dish is a stew composed of any and all kinds of meat and vegetables cooked together. After that to the 'feathers' for a little 'shut-eye.'

There was once a smart 'hasher,' a red necktie sport, who was slinging hash in a railroad house where a certain fireman got his 'eats' regularly. It happened that the 'hasher' had it in for the fireman. On one occasion when the fireman came in from his run and sat down at the counter the 'hasher' said:

'What yer goin' to have? Cup of coffe and piece of pie?'

'No,' replied the fireman. 'Give me a locomotive covered with cinders, a couple of switchlights in a fog, and a string of flats.'

This was too much for the 'hasher' and the 'tallow' was obliged to explain that the 'locomotive covered with cinders' was a porterhouse steak covered with onions; a 'couple of switchlights in the fog' were a couple of fried eggs with grease poured over them, and the 'string of flats' was a plate of hot cakes.

The men of the suburban electric railways have a slang of their own. In their service 'head endsman' or 'on the head end' refers to the motorman, or as he is commonly known in the East, as the motordriver. The conductor is 'on the rear-end.' To become a 'rope or cord puller' means to secure a conductor's position.

'Had her in the corner' means that the motorman gave the car the full current. To 'jack her over, or to 'jack her' means to reverse. When a motor burns out on a four motor car, and the 'head end' shouts to the 'rear end' that she 'has lost a lung,' it is easy to tell just what he means. Sometimes he will say 'she has only three lungs.' On a two motor car the 'head end' would say 'She has only one lung.'

When the brakes are not working perfectly the head end will say that he made a stop by using 'the short handle.' This is used in reversing. 'Hit her hard, is a term used when a car goes into a curve a little too fast—and it is well known that some electric roads have some pretty sharp curves. 'Met on a single iron' does not refer to a smashup. It means to meet on a single track without having a wreck. 'Dancing on the pin' is the same as 'giving her sand' or sanding the rails.

ULSTER'S HOME RULE FIGHT NOT TO RESORT TO ARMS

Will Simply Refuse to Recognize a Dublin Parliament and so Create a Deadlock—So Sir Edward Carson Says—Unionist M. P. Who Leads the Orangemen, Has Receded from His Former Militant Attitude

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Sir Edward Carson, M. P., ex-Solicitor-General and chairman of the Ulster Orangemen's Association, will to-day address a monster anti-Home Rule demonstration at Omagh, Ulster.

Some Unionist papers have been predicting that Ulster will fight rather than submit to a Nationalist Parliament. Authorities unnamed, are cited as declaring that the Ulstermen are preparing for battle by gathering stocks of rifles and secretly drilling. These myths, which have already been exploded several times, persist in making their appearance at regular intervals.

Sir Edward Carson, in an interview given to a special correspondent of the Daily Mail propounds a new plan of resistance.

"We will not have Home Rule," said Sir Edward. "We shall fight in this way—the Ulster people will refuse to recognize a Dublin Parliament. For instance, farmers who owe instalments for land will not pay them to a Dublin executive. If sheriffs and officers come to Ulster and try to sell farms they will find no one to buy. We do not desire any avoidance of debt obligations, so resistance must be active, not passive.

"The only solution is that a Council in Belfast must take up the executive duties. There will not be a fight, but a deadlock. In the sequel it will come to this issue: The Dublin Parliament will have no troops. If they want troops to force us they must ask England to send them. The essential question is: Would the English Parliament accede to such a request from the Dublin Parliament, and send troops to enforce an executive order of which England had no official knowledge, and over which it had no control?"

The Daily Mail's correspondent adds: "Those who regard Sir Edward Carson as a sort of comic king from the pages of Anthony Hope should have heard his deprecating all mention of arms, and deprecating all talk of 'dynamiting in the last ditch.'"

The Belfast correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says he is informed that over 2,000 former military officers are with the militant Orangemen. The correspondent says, apparently on his own responsibility, that one of the first moves of the Ulstermen will by the seizure of the whole of the railway systems in Northern Ireland.

John E. Redmond, chief of the Irish party, and Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, will be the speakers at the Home Rule demonstration which will be held at Belfast on February 8, under the auspices of the Ulster Liberal Association.

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake?—your reward for using PURITY flour

When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dewittville, N.Y.—"Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. A. A. GILES, Route 44, Dewittville, N.Y.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS IN SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JAN. 7th, 1912.

The Birth of John the Baptist Foretold. Luke i:5-23.

Golden Text—Without faith it is impossible to please Him. Heb. xi:6.

(1) Verse 1—What significance is there in the fact, with respect to their children, when a man and wife are both of distinguished parentage?

(2) When a man seeks a wife, or a woman is considering before she accepts a husband, how much consideration should be given to the question of ancestry?

(3) Verse 2—It is stated that both Zacharias and Elisabeth were "righteous" and "blameless". What does that mean, and are there people living to-day of whom the same may be truthfully said?

(4) How much of the goodness of these people did they probably owe to heredity?

(5) Does God expect all His people to be "righteous" and "blameless" and if so, how may the average man fulfil God's expectation?

(6) Verse 7—Which is the greater blessing under present day conditions, a large or a small family and why?

(7) Is it either folly, sin, or crime for married people to arrange as to have a childless home, and why?

(8) Verses 8-10—What difference does it make in the moral or spiritual effect, when a minister conducts public worship, whether the people pray for him and the service or not?

(9) Verses 11-12—Angelic appearances are clearly recorded in the scripture, what, if any, reason is there to believe that angels still appear?

(10) Seeing many, if not, most people believe we are surrounded by spirits, why is it that so few of us have any ocular demonstration of their presence?

(11) Would it be desirable or not, and why, for all Christians to be so conscious of the spiritual presence of their departed loved ones, as to communicate with them?

(12) Why was Zacharias afraid when he saw the angel, and why is it that most people are afraid of any appearance which looks like a "Ghost?"

(13) Verses 13-14—If it is true that Heaven is all around us, have the people on earth any reason to fear spirits or angels? Give your reasons.

(14) Is it right, or wise, or of any use for people who have no children to pray for them?

(15) Is it God's intention that children in a home shall always bring joy and gladness, and what is the way to make certain of this being realized?

(16) Verse 15—What reasons are there, for training children in total abstinence principles?

(17) Given the right parentage and training, may children in these days be filled with the Holy Ghost from their birth?

(18) Why may, or may not, any devout mother so plan before and after the birth of her child, so he will be filled with the Holy Ghost from birth?

(19) Verses 16-23—Why had Gabriel any right to blame and punish Zacharias for doubting such an extraordinary promise? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

IN FOR A COLD SPELL

Low Temperatures Reported All Over the Continent.

Ontario With Eight Below Registered In Toronto Is Almost Tropical Alongside Winnipeg With 34 Below Zero and Regina With 35 to 40—Change Is Expected To-morrow—Miner Is Frozen to Death.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—At 11 o'clock last night the forecasters at the observatory could see nothing in sight for Ontario but coldness, until Sunday morning, when a change "for better or for worse" might be expected.

"It will be cold all over the province to-day," said the man at the observatory. "There is a strong cold wave all over the Dominion, and it is very cold in Western Canada. It was 34 below in the afternoon, and 26 below there last night. These conditions are general throughout Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Regina yesterday registered 35 degrees below, with 40 below at a late hour in the afternoon."

Toronto registered 8 below at midnight.

Down in old New York the people are also huddling about the fireside, or else flocking close in the restaurants where hearty food and red wine bedeck the tables. It was 10 above in Manhattan last night, and no prospects for heat are in sight.

But down in Jacksonville, Florida. There it is the people are, perhaps, beginning to look for the palm leaf fans, and the ice cold lemonade. It was 42 degrees above at Jacksonville last night.

Miner Frozen to Death.

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 6.—The coldest weather of the winter was experienced in this section yesterday, the thermometer in the mountain districts registered four degrees below zero. Fred Rice, a miner, was overcome by the cold while on his way to work and frozen to death.

Affects Natural Gas Pressure.

Galt, Jan. 6.—Thursday night marked the severest weather of this season, with a stiff snowstorm and severe frost. Yesterday morning the thermometer registered 10 below. The cold has had a serious effect on the pressure of the natural gas, so that the supply has been inadequate and much loss and inconvenience occasioned.

Four Below at Detroit.

Detroit, Jan. 6.—With a minimum temperature of four degrees below zero between 6 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning, and a maximum of only 4 above during the day, this was the coldest day recorded by the Detroit weather bureau since 1907. Many places up state reported the mercury down to 16 below, with heavy snow and high winds seriously impeding steam and electric railroad traffic.

Lowest In Eight Years.

Toledo, Jan. 6.—Four degrees below zero is what the Government thermometer registered at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. This is the lowest point reached here in eight years.

Lineman Blown From Pole.

Cleveland, Jan. 6.—The bitter cold caused one death and a probably fatal attempt at suicide here yesterday.

Edward Dosher, 40, a lineman, his hands numbed, was blown from a telephone pole and sustained injuries in a 35-foot fall from which he died later.

John Zeigler, 50, chilled and despondent, cut his throat and ankles with a pocketknife on the rear steps of an East 57th street house. He is expected to die.

The day is the coldest since 1907, the temperature ranging from two below to two above.

Prayer For Missions.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—January 21 has been fixed as the date for the day of prayer throughout the Dominion for the success of this year's plans of the Canadian Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The members of the special committee on the plans of work will be held to-night, preceded by a supper at McConkey's. S. J. Moore will preside. General Secretary H. K. Caskey, and the secretaries of the denominational boards will attend.

The vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. W. Anderson, secretary of the Presbyterian Laymen's Missionary Committee, who is taking up pastoral work at Orillia, will be one of the matters to be considered.

Sold His Sweetheart.

Toronto, Jan. 6.—"We have a case here," declared Mr. Adalia, police court interpreter, "in which a woman was sent over from Russia to marry a man who, on her arrival, sold her in this city for five dollars."

Mr. Adalia made the statement in connection with the case of Alex. Wolevitz, who was summoned for assaulting Miss Frances Kascoll of 15 Centre avenue.

The court adjourned the case a week, and the matter will be referred to the crown attorney, as it is a serious affair.

Ran Ashore In Storm.

Kingston, Jan. 6.—While trying to pick her way to Brophys Point, the steamer Wolfe Islander ran ashore in a fierce snow storm. The captain lost his bearings. Word was sent to Garden Island and the Calvin Company sent the tug Frontenac to the rescue. After several hours' hard work the vessel was released, undamaged. A span of ice is now stretched from Garden to Wolfe Island.

May End Lock-out.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 6.—Sir Geo. R. Askwith, the Board of Trade's mediator in the settlement of industrial disputes, conferred yesterday with representatives of the cotton mills and their employes in an endeavor to bring about peace in the cotton mill lockout. The conference was productive of a basis of agreement which, however, requires ratification by the masters and the unions.

THE COLOUR QUESTION

British Authorities Knew a Thing or Two When They Stopped the Johnson-Wells Scrap.

By Tom S. Andrews.

When England was agitated over the proposed Jack Johnson-Bombardier Wells contest for the heavyweight championship, something more than a hint was passed out that the government was the power whose objection stopped the match.

There was more truth than poetry in this. England is beginning to realize there is a race question. An illustration of what might be expected in a country where the blacks outnumber the whites, 10 to one, had Johnson defeated Wells, was brought home to me forcibly at Suva, Fiji Island, when I went around the world with the American boxers last year.

Arriving at Suva, we learned that Hugh McIntosh had arranged exhibition bouts between the American and native boxers. Before the show, which was held in the opera house, the man in charge of the arrangements, and by the way, a man high among the officials of colony, asked me to see that the American boxers did their best.

"Don't let them permit a native to lay a glove on them, if they can prevent," said he. "Send them out to win as quickly as possible. We would rather see every bout end in a round, than have one of the white boxers held even. If the natives get an idea they are equal to the white men, they become abusve and dangerous."

CONLAN
The Bantam Champion

The Yankees made good with a vengeance. Jimmy Clabby, who possesses the finest loop-the-loop punch in captivity, opened the show with a 185-pound native policeman, who stood six feet two. Clabby tore into the big fellow and used that loop-the-loop so effective that before the round ended the giant climbed out of the ring, jumped from the stage and tore out of the house at a 10-second clip. He was captured on the street and the gloves were taken from him, but he refused to go near the ring.

Billy Papke and Johnny Thompson stopped their men in three rounds each and Ray Bronson made his man quit in two. All the boys met big, husky opponents who were carried off their feet by the bewildering attack.

After the show the manager thanked the boys for the decisive way they handled the natives, stating the drubbing would prove more effective than sending a regiment of soldiers against them.

I believe the British government had some such idea as this in mind when it interfered with the Johnson-Wells match, knowing that in time the news would reach the colonies and make the natives troublesome, in case Johnson won.

To my mind Wells will prove a formidable opponent for any of the heavyweights with a little more experience and building up of the lower part of his body, just now his only weak spot.

ROBT. FOWLER THE AVIATOR

Mother's Loving Eyes Follow Fowler's Flight Every Inch of the Way Over the Mountains.

Robert Fowler, the aviator, knows how true is the mother-love expressed in Kipling's wonderful poem.

Some time ago he flew over the Sierra Nevada mountains, a tiny spec in the ether. But, every inch of the way the eye of his mother was fastened on him, as she followed by train. As he neared the famous Emigrant pass, through which the weary forty-niners made their way, his mother said to her fellow passengers in the train (for Fowler and his mother haven't a special train, with attendants, like Cal Rodger, the other transcontinental flyer): "Isn't it wonderful! Sixty-one years ago his great grandfather and great grandmother, with their daughter, my mother, went through this pass in a wagon, with oxen."

"Everybody knows how a fellow feels when he is flying," I suggested to Mrs. Fowler at the hotel while she was waiting for her son to catch up with her, "but how does a fellow's mother feel when he flies?" I asked.

"It depends on the son," she answered. "My faith in Robert is unlimited. We're more like partners than mother and son. I don't know any other flying men, of course, but anyhow, I'm sure that Bob is the best of them all. His nerves are iron. He has never tasted liquor or tobacco and home is the place he likes best.

"If I couldn't be with him to watch him fly, I suppose the worry would kill me. But, when I'm watching him, I'm perfectly contented."

WRESTLING

Jess Pedersen, the Danish heavyweight wrestler, and champion of Europe, met Raymond Cazeaux at Montreal and won. The bout was to a finish, the best two falls out of three to count.

Pedersen has surprised the promoters and wrestling fans in America as the result of his splendid showing during the past six weeks. The big Dane has given up hope of meeting Frank Gotch right away, but in order to prove that he is the logical opponent of the Iowan he will take on all top-notch men outside the champion, and, if successful in beating them, will follow Gotch until the latter consents to meet him.

THE STANLEY CUP

Successors of Lord Stanley Have Offered New Trophy.

The Hon. Arthur Stanley, son of the late Lord Stanley and Earl of Derby, donor of the famous old Stanley Cup, has written the trustees of this trophy, Messrs. P. D. Ross and Wm. Foran and made an exceedingly generous offer as regards the old mug for which so many battles on the ice have been fought.

Hearing that there was talk of replacing the cup with a more pretentious piece of silverware, the Hon. Arthur Stanley, and his brother Lord Derby, came to the decision that they would offer a new cup to the hockey teams of Canada to replace the old cup. They wrote Mr. P. D. Ross and Wm. Foran in regard to the matter and said they were ready to give $1,000 to be used in the purchase of a new trophy. Messrs. Ross and Foran in reply, stated that they would ask the hockey clubs of Canada their opinion as to the acceptance of the new trophy, and would then answer the generous offer of the donors. They are of the opinion that the old cup should be retained. It is still in good condition, and would last for many years yet, and they feel that it has a claim on the hockey world for its long service. The Stanley Cup has been in existence for 18 years and in that time over fifty matches have been played for its possession exclusive of the league games in the N. H. A. During the 18 years of the Cup's existence, there has not been one serious complaint as to the fairness of the trustees, surely a wonderful record for big league hockey in Canada.

Jeffries a Great Fighter

Jeffries was a great fighter. He was possessed of more abysmal brutishness, as Jack London calls it, than Fitzimmons, and had he taken care of himself he might have used it on the present champion with credit to himself and the Caucasian race. However, it is a good question, and a big one, if he could ever be as remarkable as the slugger from Cornwall.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

London. — London's lord mayor, Sir Thomas Crosby, is the first physician to be thus honored, and, too, he is one of the oldest lord mayors London ever had, having just celebrated his 81st birthday. The lord mayor has nothing to do but wear the robes of his office upon state occasions and hand the municipal key over to distinguished visitors occasionally. Sir Thomas is a spry old man, and it is expected that he will handle the robes and key as deftly as his youthful predecessors did.

LOST SEVEN HUNDRED

Imperialists Suffered Heavily in Battle at Hankow.

Reports From Scene of Recent Conflict Shows That Royalists Were Evacuating the City When Two of Their Trains Were Destroyed and Occupants Were Attacked With Great Loss—Reassuring Report.

Pekin, Jan. 6.—Seven hundred Imperial troops are reported to have been killed or wounded Thursday in a battle near Hankow, Province of Hupeh, with the revolutionists. The Imperial forces were evacuating the city when two of their trains were destroyed. From these trains 1,000 troops, independent of their commanders, were making an effort to return to Hankow. The revolutionists, however, attacked them vigorously, inflicting heavy loss.

This information reached Pekin yesterday in a consular report from Hankow. The report added that there was a conference in Hankow yesterday between the Imperialists and revolutionists, but that no agreement was reached.

It is believed here that the fighting will be resumed to-day. Government reinforcements are being rushed toward Hankow over the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. The Imperial commander reports a battle near Hwangpei, a short dstance north of Hankow.

The 3,000 Imperial Government troops, who were ordered from Paoting and Shih-Kaichwang to assist in the suppression of the mutiny of Chinese troops at Lanchow, arrived there Thursday evening. There was considerable fighting in the city during the night. The telegraphs were cut and the rail trains suspended until noon yesterday.

The commandant at Lanchow telegraphed to the legations in Pekin yesterday that only a portion of the 20th division of the Imperial army created the recent trouble. The mutineers have since been subdued and punished, and order has been completely restored. There is, he says, no cause for further alarm. The train service and the telegraphs are resuming immediately. The mutineers, the commandant declares, forged his name in sending telegrams to the foreign legations and the consuls.

The Imperial Government troops are now concentrating at Lanchow for the purpose of maintaining order and making preparations to meet a possible landing of revolutionists from Canton.

There is a marked revival of uneasiness in Northern China. The Imperial Government is circulating full reports of the negotiations with the rebels at Shanghai, showing that the revolutionists resent the Premier's determination not to accept Tang Shao Yi's arrangements in regard to the national convention to decide on the future form of government in China.

Yuan Shi Kai and Wu Ting Fang, realizing that telegraphic negotiations are unsatisfactory, are now trying to persuade each other to visit the rival headquarters and conclude an agreement.

Consular telegrams received here from Chung King state that at Chengtu, the capital of the province of Sechuen, the greatest disorder prevails. According to these telegrams the viceroy of the province, Chao Erh Feng, who was reported Thursday to have recaptured Chengtu, took refuge in his official residence on Dec. 20, but the revolutionaries seized and executed him, as well as the general of the Imperial troops.

One hundred and forty foreigners left Chung King for Pekin Thursday.

Japan Continues Neutral.

Tokio, Jan. 6.—The development at Shanghai are deeply deplored here. It is generally believed that Yuan Shi Kai has been playing a double game from the first, and now finds his plans frustrated by the election of Sun Yat Sen as president of the provisional government. Japan continues a policy of strict neutrality in China.

A report from Pekin that Yuan had applied to Japan for help is discredited in Tokio. Even if it were true the belief prevails here that it would be premature for any power to forsake neutrality at this juncture, except it were preparing against emergencies which might arise through the Manchus turning against Yuan.

Reducing Tax With Profits.

Berlin, Jan 6.—The new city council will start its business for 1912 with about $10,000 in the treasury, $9,000 of which will be applied toward keeping down the tax rate for this year. Town Treasurer Huber has been notified by the light commission authorities that $7,100 will be paid out of the profits of the light and power plant for 1911 and handed over to the town treasury. This amount is equivalent to one mill of assessment. The rate for 1911 was 22 mills and a reduction of two mills for the current year is predicted, notwithstanding increased expenditures for the new school.

BOSTON BADLY TIED UP

Longshoremen Walk Out With Demand For Increase.

Strike, Involving 2,800 Dock Workers, Results in Serious Blockade of Freight and Ships Are Unable to Get Their Cargoes Unloaded—Many Agents Plan to Send Their Vessels to Other Ports.

Boston, Jan. 6.—With wharves piled high with merchandise, loaded steamers arriving with no hands to unload the freight, partially empty steamers sailing and agents contemplating turning their boats toward other parts, the longshoremen's strike for a ten-cent increase in wages assumed a serious aspect last night, so far as Boston's foreign commerce is concerned.

It is estimated that 2,800 men left work at midnight Thursday and, despite the efforts of the city and state officials, who held several conferences with the steamship agents and the union leaders, the strike at sunset yesterday showed no signs of breaking up. It was even intimated that it might extend to the freight handlers, who take care of the cargoes of coastwise steamers, but last evening these men were still at work.

With the stroke of midnight Thursday the men ceased work. The steamer Devonian had her grain on board, but 30 carloads of merchandise remained on the dock. She sailed with half her cargo at noon yesterday for Liverpool. The Cambrian is scheduled to sail for London on Sunday, but will have only a few tons on board. The Loterdijk arrived yesterday from Rotterdam and will probably be ordered to Philadelphia to unload, while the Galileo is expected to-day from Hull and will also be diverted. The Michigan, which is in port from Liverpool, may be unloaded by Italians.

Mayor Fitzgerald, Chairman Bancroft, of the newly-created dock commission, and President Smith of the Chamber of Commerce, were active during the day in an effort to bring about a compromise by conferences with foreign steamship agents and union officials.

It was stated by the longshoremen's union leaders that they were willing to submit the claims to arbitration, but did not care to have the State Arbitration Board act. On the other hand, the steamship companies asserted that the men had left work without notice and that overtures looking to a settlement should come from them.

To Enter Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—Back River is said to have a railway. The Joliette and Lake Manuan, which is to connect the Grand Trunk Pacific with Montreal, will enter the city by crossing that stream, a route entirely new among the city's railroad connections.

The road, although now known as the Joliette and Lake Manuan, will not be so designated when it is running into Montreal, but will have "Montreal," somewhere in its nameplate. The right to continue into Montreal was only recently acquired by Dominion charter.

Grading work is now being done on the line, and will probably be continued all winter. It is planned to have sixty miles of steel down by October next. The entire length of the road will be 240 miles.

Newfoundland Prosperous.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—That there is not a poor man in Newfoundland, that the year which has just gone into history has been perhaps the most prosperous in the annals of the country, and that prices for fish are "way up" were statements made yesterday by J. W. N. Johnstone, general manager and ticket agent of the Reid-Newfoundland Co., who is at the Windsor Hotel for the meeting of railway men, who are discussing the question of excursion fares for the summer months.

Apropos of the conference, Mr. Johnstone said that there would be but slight changes in the rates, and that he expected to leave for Boston to-day on the same business.

Tong War In New York.

New York, Jan. 6.—In what is believed to be a renewal of hostilities between the Hip Sing Tong and the Ong Leong Tong, Chinese secret societies, in Chinatown last night, Leong You, vice-president of the Hip Sing Tong, was shot and killed, and Chong Pon Sing, president of that organization, was seriously wounded. Two Chinamen, who the police say were identified as the men who did the shooting, were arrested. The shooting occurred in a store conducted by Mock Duck, one of the best known of Chinatown's characters, on Pell street.

C.N.R. Anxious.

Montreal, Jan. 6.—The Canadian Northern Railway Co. sent an urgent letter to the City Hall yesterday, asking the mayor and controllers to at once meet the representatives of the company in order to arrange for the entrance of the company into the city.

The mayor has convened a special meeting of the Board of Control for Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock to discuss the great project.

A Martyr To Science.

Zurich, Switzerland, Jan. 6.—Dr. Simon, the bacteriologist, died here yesterday as a result of having been bitten by an inoculated mouse, with which he was experimenting in an endeavor to find a serum for curing food poisoning.

Dr. Simon was a son-in-law of Herr Bebel, the social leader in the German Reichstag.

Jail Damaged by Fire.

Vancouver, Jan. 6.—The Victoria provincial jail was badly damaged by fire yesterday. The loss is probably $50,000. All the men have been removed. All the jails are now overcrowded.

TWO MURDERS CHARGED.

Indian and His Wife Are Arrested at Port Lambton.

Chatham, Jan. 6.—Stephen Kiyoshk and his wife, Indians, were arrested on Thursday afternoon and lodged in Port Lambton lock-up charged with the murder of Charles Nahdee and Adam Johns, Indians, on Walpole Island. This action followed the finding of the bodies of both victims in the St. Clair River. Coroner Ferguson of Courtright is arranging for an inquest, which will be held on the island on Saturday, provided the necessary witnesses can be summoned, and also for a postmortem on the bodies.

As a result of investigation the authorities now claim to believe that Kiyoshk, believing his wife had been intimate with the two men, went to their cabin on Squirrel Island, fired through the window, killing Johns, and then, entering the cabin, pursued Nahdee to the upper story of the cabin, blowing out his brains with a shotgun. The bodies, it is thought, were then dragged to a rowboat, conveyed to a point opposite Sloman's Landing on the Michigan shore, and there dumped into the river. The cabin where the double murder was committed is in an isolated spot, surrounded by thick woods.

The crime was first discovered on Wednesday morning, when neighbors, knocking at the door and receiving no response, entered and found evidences of a terrible struggle. Outside bloodstains on the snow showed where the bodies had been dragged toward the river. Afterwards Kiyoshk's boat was found concealed nearly opposite the spot where the bodies were later discovered. It was remembered that Kiyoshk and his wife had not been seen since New Year's night. Kiyoshk was captured at dusk by the Island police while endeavoring to cross to the mainland. The woman was arrested at the home of her father on Walpole Island.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Charles Huggins, former chief of police of Niagara Falls, died in Detroit yesterday.

The Methodist Church will apply to Parliament for an act authorizing trustees of any Methodist congregation to administer property for endowment.

The barn and contents on the farm of Thomas Johnson, Howard-Oxford town line, was entirely destroyed by fire Thursday. Loss, $4,500; insurance, $2,500.

The Federal Cabinet held a lengthy council meeting yesterday afternoon and finished the work on the estimates, completing the interior list. The appropriations for the year have now been all decided upon.

Vancouver shingle manufacturers yesterday petitioned the Federal Government to impose an import duty on shingles from the United States. Shingles are now imported duty free, and forty million came in last year.

No official information as to the Government's intention in regard to the Toronto custom house is available but it is understood that an appropriation exceeding half a million dollars is likely to be included in this year's estimates.

"A Chinese cook, who was being sent from Chengtu with a letter to missionaries in the interior, was caught by bandits and beheaded," was one of the items in a letter received by Rev. Dr. F. C. Stephenson of Toronto from Mrs. Kilbom.

Transfer Invalid

Ottawa, Jan. 6.—Word was received in the capital yesterday from Winnipeg to the effect that the commission appointed by the Manitoba Government of the St. Peter's reserve, near Winnipeg, had declared the transfer of the property from the Indians to other parties to be invalid.

The first objection to the sale was taken by G. H. Bradbury, Conservative member for Selkirk constituency, in which the reserve is so called. He contended in the House that the Indians had been tricked of their lands, which had been allowed to fall into the hands of speculators.

The commissioners reporting against the validity of the transaction, find that the Indians, as wards of the Government, were not legally qualified to dispose of the land. They also find that the vote was not properly taken, a majority of the Indians not having declared in favor of disposing of the lands.

Pageant at Calcutta.

Calcutta, Jan. 6.—King George and Queen Mary yesterday witnessed a great pageant in their honor. There were two processions—Mohammedan and Hindu—in which there were fifty elephants, hundreds of camels and horses and elaborate state cars. Many of the contingents had retainers equipped with ancient weapons. There was a gorgeous display of jewels. Hundreds of thousands of natives gave Their Majesties an ovation.

EXPRESS LOOTED.

Masked Men Gag and Rob Three Mail Clerks In California

Reading, Cal., Jan. 6.—The mail car of the Oregon Express, on the Southern Pacific, was robbed early yesterday of all eastern registered mail by two masked men. Three mail clerks were bound and gagged by the robbers, who entered the car while the train was between Redding and Red Bluff. The train pulled into Redding at 6.40 a.m., and the robbers, carrying their loot, dropped off and escaped.

The train left San Francisco at 8.20 Thursday night. When it stopped at Red Bluff, 35 miles south of this city, early yesterday, mail sacks were thrown out and others taken on. One of the three mail clerks was about to leave the car, when the two bandits moved past him into the car and closed the door.

"What's up?" exclaimed Charles J. Rhein, a clerk.

"This is a hold-up," coolly responded one of the men, covering the trio with a revolver. Rhein, R. B. Warner and their assistant, were bound and gagged by the second bandit.

When the train reached Cottonwood, 17 miles north of Red Bluff, the bandits acted as clerks in exchanging mail, without arousing suspicion. At Anderson, five miles further, they repeated the performance, showing familiarity with the clerks' duties.

When the train stopped at Redding at 6.40, Geo. Westlake, the local clerk, was waiting to receive the mail. The bandits threw open the doors on each side of the car and walked in opposite directions. Westlake thought they were the regular mail clerks.

He threw a sack into the mail car and was surprise that no one received it. A moment later he heard a feeble cry and discovered the plight of the clerks. Mail sacks had been piled on them, but Rhein had managed to loosen his gag.

Strewn over the floor was the wrappings of hundreds of mail packages. Every sack of registered mail had been looted. Posses are seeking the bandits.

TURNED SOMERSAULT.

Street Car In Cincinnati Upsets Killing Four Persons.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 6.—Four persons were fatally injured while another was seriously hurt here last night when a South Bellevue street car jumped from the central bridge, which connects the city with Newport, Ky. The car landed on Front street after turning a somersault in its drop of fifty-five feet to the pavement below.

The fatally injured are: Harry Wessing, Newport, Ky., conductor of the car, skull fractured and internally injured; Benton Schröll, secretary-treasurer of the Central Bridge Co., Newport, Ky., skull fractured, internal injuries and broken bones; Edward Hapfel, Cincinnati, skull fractured and contusions of the body; Harry Finnan, Covington, Ky., motorman of the car, skull fractured and both legs broken.

Samuel Hollow, Newport Ky., the only other passenger, sustained scalp wounds and a contused body, but will recover.

The car left the tracks after crossing the Ohio River at a sharp curve in the bridge. It was making its first trip of the night from the barns in Newport, which accounts for the small number of passengers aboard.

It's foolish to hunt trouble. Sit down and it will hunt you.

Even the office towel is not as black as it is colored.

IMPORTED POTATOES.

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—A most interesting state of affairs is existent in the potato market. The failure of the crop practically throughout the Dominion has resulted in the price being exceptionally high, namely about $1.75 per bag.

The dealers in Ottawa are now obtaining their potatoes from four sources, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Alberta and direct from Ireland. The potato is one of the staple crops of the Emerald Isle and it is a remarkable fact that Irish potatoes can be shipped here and sold at the same price as the home grown crop. "This state of affairs is quite unprecedented," said Mr. A. P. Johnson of the Retail Grocers' Association, "and I see no prospect whatever of there being any reduction in price till the spring."

Our new serial, THE GOOSE GIRL by Harold McGrath, will be commenced in to-morrow's Intelligencer.

PROF MACOUN'S GOLDEN WEDDING

A Former Bellevillian who has Won High Honors in the World of Science

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—New Year's Day saw the celebration of the golden wedding of Pro. John and Mrs. Macoun at their residence, 98 James street. They were married at Warkworth, Northumberland county, Ontario, and are in as good health today as when they began their married life together. They have five children, all of whom are alive: James M. Macoun, assistant naturalist of the Geological Survey; William T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist; Mrs. A. O. Wheeler, Sidney, B.C.; Mrs. R. A. Kingman, Boston, Mass.; and Mrs. Wm. Everall, Graham, Ont. Only three of their children could be present at the New Year's celebration, but grandchildren and friends filled the house, and congratulations without number were received by mail and wire. Friends in Ottawa and elsewhere remembered the day by sending appropriate presents.

Prof. Macoun has received all the honors that can go to a man of science in Canada. As Dominion Botanist and Naturalist, practically the whole of the natural history work of the Dominion is in his hands. Born in 1831 at Marlin, Ireland, he came to Canada with his mother and two brothers in 1850, and settled in Seymour township, Northumberland Co. In 1859 he attended the Normal School at Toronto, and secured a first class certificate. Shortly before his marriage he began teaching school in Belleville, and went from one school to another until he was in charge of the Central School, and shortly afterwards was appointed Professor of Botany and Geology at Albert University. In 1872, while Prof. Macoun was botanizing in Lake Superior Sir Sandford Fleming met him and wanted him to accompany his party across the continent to the Pacific. This was his first work for the Government. The publication of his report in 1873 caused a great sensation, and from that time to the present he has been considered the authority on all matters pertaining to the North-west. In 1882 he joined the staff of the Geological Survey and in that year he was made a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

Mrs. Macoun, the eldest daughter of Simon Terrill, was born near Wooler, Northumberland Co., in 1841, and like her husband, has always enjoyed the best of health.

In the evening the family held a re-union supper, when a beautiful gold watch was presented to Prof. Macoun by his children and the equivalent in gold to Mrs. Macoun. The Journal hopes that Prof. and Mrs. Macoun may live to celebrate their diamond wedding, and that their children will survive to enjoy it with them.

The blast of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway contractors is echoing against the rocky walls of Tete Jaune Cache to make way for civilization and the shrill echoes of the locomotive whistle later on.

Going westward from Edmonton, along the Grand Trunk Pacific route the traveller sees the trail of the second comer already storngly marked, and Tete Jaune Cache is the objective point at present for the end of steel by the spring of 1912. At present the Grand Trunk Pacific steel is beyond the Great Divide, and over the summit of the Yellowhead Pass.

Historically, Tete Jaune is a centre of interest in Western Canada, as this point was the site of one of the Hudson Bay posts one hundred years ago, when the route from the Pine, the Peace and the Fraser rivers brought furs and merchandise through this gateway. At the present time there is only a band of Shuswap Indians camped on the south side of the Fraser, and as soon as the steel reaches this locality and civilization with its kodaks and pocket books will effect the establishment of a permanent order of things. ## MR. J. W. PEARCE MOVES TO BELLEVILLE

He Has Been Appointed Bursar of the Deaf and Dumb Institute

The Marmora Herald says:—"Marmore loses one of its foremost citizenes and one of its oldest residents this week in the person of Mr. J. W. Pearce, ex-M.P.P., who has been appointed Bursar of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, Belleville. Mr Pearce has been a resident of Marmora for many years and has taken a prominent part in every movement for the betterment of the village. He has been in business longer than any of the other business men of Marmora and has made an enviable reputation for square dealing. His liberality, sympathy for those in trouble, and kindliness have made him hosts of friends who will feel a personal loss in his removal. To very many, the first thing to do in case of difficulty or perplexity was to go to J. W. Pearce for advice, and he was always ready to give his time to help anyone in this way.

He has always been one of the most liberal supporters of the Methodist Church, and will be greatly missed in the Masonic, A.O.U.W., and Orange Lodges. While, as is the case with every one who takes a decided stand on public questions, he may have made some enemies, there are very few who will not feel that in his removal Marmora has suffered a loss which will not soon be regained.

At the same time all will join in congratulating him on his appointment and also wishing him success and happiness in his new sphere of labor."

FORTY-FOUR DOLLARS LOST EVERY MINUTE

Such was the Fire Waste in Canada During the Past Year

About $44 burned every minute during 1911 represented the fire waste of Canada that year. Mr. J. B. Laidlaw contributes an important article to the annual number of The Monetary Times, pleading for efforts to make a halt in the fire waste. The results of sixteen fire companies doing business the world over are compared in the columns of this issue, showing their business in Canada, the United States and the world, respectively. Mr. Henry Lye, the well-known adjuster of Vancouver, discusses the relation of fire waste to fire insurance. That there will be important developments in life insurance in Canada is the opinion of Mr. L. K. Fite, the well-known Canadian actuary. He gives an outline of what he thinks these developments will be. Mr. H. Pollman Evans contributes to this annual number an instructive article on industrial insurance. Another insurance article of interest, the respective merits of personal and coporate surety bonds, is treated by Mr. George Weir.

The issue is replete with statistics and information, and one of the striking features are the messages from the provincial premiers respecting the general outlook in the different provinces.

PROVINCIAL PREMIERS ARE UNANIMOUS

Their Opinion is that the Outlook for Canadian Trade is Promising

One of the most interesting features of the annual number of the Monetary Times gives a message from the provincial premiers, who are unanimous in their optimistic views of the Canadian outlook. Honorable Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, predicts activity in agriculture and fruit-raising. Honorable Walter Scott, who holds the premierial reins in Saskatchewan, will continue to confront with resolute courage any and all obstacles. Saskatchewan looks forward to 1912 with hopeful sentiments. Sir Lomer Gouin, premier of Quebec, says that while his province does not make a great deal of noise, it is busy at work all the time, as shown by the volume of exports, its industries, bank clearings, wealth, the happiness and content of its intelligent, industrious and frugal population. The premier of New Brunswick, Honorable J. K. Fleming, gives many details of the progressive programme of that province for 1912, while the other provincial rulers also all have a pleasing opinion of the results likely to be achieved during the coming twelve months.

THE RIGHT POLICY FOR CANADA

Three Pertinent Suggestions Which Deserve to be Carried Out

(1) Conservation of natural resources, the use of these resources as means of revenue and as a basis for the creation of communities in which Canadian capital and labor will be employed; and legislative restrictions which will compel those who may desire a share in these resources to bring themselves or their capital to the Dominion.

(2) Adjustment of customs duties so as to send trade from East to West through Canadian channels, development of industrial centres in which labor and capital will be profitably employed and in which merchants and traders will do business, and all measures necessary to create a diversity of interests and occupations and prevent movement of Canadians to the United States and elsewhere.

(3) A closer fiscal relation with Great Britain, co-operation in cable communication and in sea transportation and ultimately co-operation in defence of the Empire and through some form of Imperial Council or other central organisation the assumption and exercise of authority in Imperial Councils, always with good feeling for the United tSates, but separated unequivocally both fiscally and politically.

MUSIC and DRAMA

THE ROSARY.

The theme of the play concerns a man and a woman happily married and surrounded with every luxury that money and culture could procure. But the husband is an unbeliever, an atheist, without faith of any kind.

There is a jarring note in the household harmony, a personality at war with the peace and love of its members. No one notices this until a friend of the husband comes, Father Kelly, a priest of the modern world with a deep insight into human nature and a divine love for his fellowmen. And when the stress and trouble come, when the home is wrecked and husband and wife are brought down to the depths of suffering agony it is the priest's calm courage and faith that saves them; drives away the coluds of suspicion, doubt, mistrust, and brings them both into the sunlight of hope and love.

The play will be seen at Griffin's Opera House next Tuesday, Jan. 9th, as seen during its famous four months run in Chicago with elaborate scenic settings. John Meehan will be seen in the role of "Father Brian Kelly."

Seats now on sale at Doyle's Drug Store.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

"Fruit-a-tives" saved my Life

RIVIÈRE À PIERRE, Q., May 9, 1910.

"I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years, constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

I was treated by several doctors and they simply did me no good. During the latter part of my illness, I was so thin that I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate.

The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious. I received the Last Rites Of The Church.

At this time, a lady strongly urged me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again, and had gained 20 pounds. I have taken 13 boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am well."

Madame ARTHUR TOURANGEAU.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of intensified fruit juices and always cures Indigestion.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HON. ADAM BECK
Toronto.

Canada's water powers are greater than those of any other country in the world. Her known or estimated flow development is about twenty-six million horse power, but it is certain that this is but a fraction of her water power asset.

So far the computation has been dependent upon somewhat unreliable statistics, but the energy displayed by the Conservation Commission has had beneficial results. This important body has stirred to action some indifferent provincial authorities, and there is now the prospect that by next Spring a complete table of waterpowers in the Dominion will be ready to place before the public, along with much valuable information relating thereto. It may be said in passing that the provincial governments for the most part have been negligent in the matter, and it is only where the federal government has control and responsibility that accurate information has up till the present time been available.

HON. ADAM BECK

It is not the intention of the writer to convey the idea that all of the provinces have stupidly sat by and left the power question alone. There is the very notable exception of Ontario, where the Hydro-Electric Commission has done a wonderful work in developing cheap power for the people of that province. But none the less the province of Ontario has not gone to the trouble of accurately estimating the water-powers of New Ontario or the great hinterland beyond.

The Hydro-Electric Commission, with which the name of the Hon. Adam Beck will always be associated, has an immense scheme under way to give the people of the whole province the cheapest possible light, heat and power that electricity can give. In general the proposal is that the power at Niagara will supply western and southwestern Ontario, from the rapids on the St. Lawrence will be derived the power for eastern Ontario from the vicinity of Ottawa will come the power for northeastern and central Ontario, while there are enough water powers in New Ontario to supply the whole of the north and the north central. Thus Ontario will have, unless it is interfered with, a complete network of transmission lines to supply every village.

Mr. Beck who was born in Waterloo Ont. in 1857 is a successful business man as well as thorough sportsman and public man. He is member of many societies and orders.

BOXING

THREE FOR JOHNSON.

TORONTO, Jan 5.—"It's pretty hard to have the champion boxer of the world on your staff, and then not be allowed to use him in your own home town," querulously remarked Impresario Tom Flanagan on his return from Chicago this morning, where he had been on a mission to disentangle Jack Johnson's boxing affairs.

"Johnson would come here in a minute," continues Flanagan, "if I wanted him, but I am afraid to take a chance to show him here. I do not know what stand the authorities might take, and I am not desirous of jeopardizing the future of the game in this city."

The champion never looked better, according to the irresponsible promoter. He only weighs 221 pounds now, which is 11 pounds less than when he started to condition himself for his bout with Jeffries, and in that famous contest he tipped the scales at 209 when he entered the ring. All the reports that he is down and out financially are anything but true. The "chocolate drop" has $150,000 salted away, and more in prospect. He not only keeps his immediate relatives, but all his uncles, cousins and aunts.

One item of news which Mr. Flanagan brought home with him and that is that the champion will defend his title at least three times before next July. He will first take on Jack Flynn, probably in Nevada, if the latter trims all the other 'white hopes' in sight. Then he will battle with McVey in Paris, and follow it up with another contest, with either Langford or Carl Morris, probably the latter.

Johnson is coming to Toronto some time next week, and if Ed. Curley, the manager of Jack Flynn, is willing, he will referee the bout here between the former and Kubiak, the Michigan heavy, slated for a week later. Kubiak has fought two draws with Jeanette. He weighs 225 pounds and is 6 feet 3 inches in height, while Flynn strips at 185 pounds. While in Chicago Johnson showed some letters from a Toronto man offering him $5,000 to come here, but he laughed at the offer.

HOCKEY

BELLEVILLE WAS BEATEN.

At Trenton last night our intermediate hockey team suffered defeat at the hands of the Trenton team. A large number of hockey enthusiasts in the city accompanied the team to the neighboring town to witness the game which was played before a large crowd. The ice was in good condition, but the night was exceedingly cold. The result was a victory for the Trenton team, who scored 8 goals to Belleville's 4. At the conclusion of the first half of the game the score was 5 to 1 in favor of Trenton, and in the last half both teams found the net three times. Considering the fact that our players had had no practice together, they played an exceptionally good game. Mr. W. S. Hancock, of Toronto, was the official referee.

FRONTENACS WON.

KINGSTON, Jan. 5.—Mayor-elect Frank Hoag opened the first junior O.H.A. game here to-night between the Frontenacs and Picton. The game was rather crude, but the teams were very evenly matched. The Frontenacs had an all new team, while Picton had two of last year's players. The half time score was 4 to 4. The line up:—

Referee—Chancey Elliott.

Frontenacs gained a lead in the second half and commenced to show team work, and the game finished Frontenacs 8, Picton 5.

ACTED IN SELF-DEFENCE.

Exonerates Youth Who Shot Father to Death.

SEDALIA, Mo., Jan. 5.—Boyd Wollett, fourteen, who yesterday shot his father to death when the latter attempted to chastise him, was exonerated by a coroner's jury on the ground that he had acted in self-defence.

Evidence disclosed that D. M. Wollett, being out very late the night before, lay abed yesterday morning. The son, believing the parent asleep, remarked to his mother, "The old fool should be up and at work."

Springing from the bed, the father attempted to use force and the boy seized a shot gun and killed him. Testimony was given showing that the boy was studious and was educating himself to be a lawyer.

DOVER CLIFFS FALLING DOWN.

Landslide Sends Part of Shakespeare Cliff Into Sea.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Hundreds of thousands of tons of the white chalk cliffs of Dover slipped into the sea last night. Part of the slide was from what is known as Shakespeare's Cliff. There have in recent years been a number of slides from the lofty Dover cliffs, but none on such a scale as this.

Shakespeare Cliff, which takes its name from a well-known passage in "King Lear," rises sheer to a height of 350 feet. On the cliffs are large army barracks, the foundations of a "pharos" and an old circular church known as the Knights Templar church.

CAUGHT BY MARKED COINS.

Method Employed in Breaking Up Juvenile Gang.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 5.—Through the agency of marked coins the Y.M.C.A. officials last night succeeded in breaking up a gang of juveniles who have been operating in the thieving line in the locker rooms of the building for months. During that time many members lost small amounts from their pockets, and one man had $5 taken from his trousers. One lad was caught last night with the marked coins on him, and another was detected doing sentry duty. The police are now considering what corrective measures to apply.

FIREMAN A FIREBUG.

Caught in Act of Putting Match to a Building.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 5.—Call fireman Sweeney was arrested on a charge of setting fire to a building occupied by the Imperial Oil Company, Water street. A policeman caught him in the act and extinguished the fire. Fire Chief Broderick says a better man never handled a branch pipe than Sweeney. Call firemen are paid for the time they are on duty at fires.

Of course it is luckier to climb the ladder of fame than to walk under it.

The inaugural meeting of the City Council was held in the Council Chamber at 11 o'clock this morning. A number of spectators were present. Owing to the icy temperature of the Council Chamber the members were compelled to wear their overcoats.

The members of the Council present were Mayor Vermilyea, Ald. Panter, Woodley, Anderson, Black, McCurdy, Slater, Smith, Robinson, White, Bogle, Lucas, Canning, Wallace, Chown, Lott, Clarke and Parks.

After the Clerk had announced the result of the election and named those elected, he stated that Council was prepared to transact business.

Mayor Vermilyea was then escorted to the Mayor's chair by Ald. McCurdy and Smith, and was invested with the insignia of office.

His Worship then read the following address:—

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

Belleville, Jan. 8th, 1912.

Gentlemen of the City Council:—

I wish to congratulate you on your election as Aldermen and also to congratulate myself that I am permitted to preside over such a representative body.

The election is now a thing of the past. I think generally the best of feeling has prevailed. I trust now we will settle down to business and do all we can for the best interests of this, our fair city.

The Canadian Northern Railway is in our midst, and will no doubt pretty soon be carrying passengers, as well as freight, to and from the city. The Canadian Pacific Railway have already filed their plans with us and they will no doubt soon commence negotiations for an entrance into the city. This, with the completion of buildings already commenced and others proposed, will help to make the year 1912 an important one for Belleville. As it is only by united effort that most good can be accomplished, I trust this Council will put forth their best united efforts and wor kwith that end in view.

I understand the Dominion Government is definitely committed to the improvement of the Belleville harbor, and has placed $50,000 in the preliminary estimates to start the work this year.

We should put forth our best efforts towards securing manufactories in our midst, and nothing will work better to that end than first class railway and navigation facilities.

I would recommend that no goods be purchased for the city without an order from the chairman of the department requiring same, so that the chairman can see that all dealers are given fair treatment in the expenditure of the city money. Carbon copies of all orders should be retained in the order book so all accounts brought before the committees can be systematically checked.

Executive.—I would recommend that immediate steps be taken to collect all taxes remaining unpaid, also we should insist on all rolls being returned before the rolls of the year 1912 are placed in the Collector's hand.

Public Works.—The paving of Front Street seems to be the burning question of the hour, and I think this matter should be taken up by this committee at as early a date as possible and pushed forward; also an improvement of all city roads, especially where the streets have been dug up for sewers, and the constant use of a repair wagon with a generous use of our road roller. I would suggest that less sidewalks be built this season and careful atttention be given to the improvement of the streets generally.

Gas.—I would recommend an active canvass of the city for the more general use of this product. As wood for fuel is getting more scarce year by year, there must come a more general demand for gas for such purposes, and could a further reduction in the price be made, it would materially increase the sales.

Water.—During the year 1911 this department put in a large number of services, and made many extensions. Some of these were by contract. I would recommend that in cases where practicable the work of the Public Works Department, Gas and Water Works be done by the corporation instead of by contract, so as to insure employment of our own citizens, and as there is an increasing demand for water in localities where there are no water mains, it should be the aim of the department to get water to these citizens, and no doubt debentures will have to be issued with this object in view.

The completion of the new electric pump will save considerable money in the cost of pumping and should soon lead to a further reduction in the price to consumers. There is no doubt this department has come to the point financially where they can afford to take more chances without crippling the department.

Market.—As soon as the repairs are completed and offices re-arranged, matters will take on a more comfortable look around the building, but considerable work is still necessary in painting and decorating.

Fire.—This department seems to be in fairly good shape, and I wish to congratulate our Fire Brigade on the excellent work they have done. I am pleased to note that steps are being taken to carry out the recommendations of the Fire Underwriters' Association.

Light and Parks.—The city is pretty well supplied with parks. These should be gradually improved, as they are valuable assets to the city. Our city should be better lighted, and I believe the Trenton Electric & Water Co. have a proposition before the Council whereby it could be improved, and this matter will no doubt receive very careful consideration.

Abundant as is the prevailing prosperity, it behooves us to give most careful consideration to every proposal which means an increase in the city debt or in the tax rate. I would not have you deal in a niggardly manner with the various departments of the civic service or retard in any way the growth, development and improvement of the city. It is due to the citizens that the tax rate should continue to be kept as low as is consistent with the constantly increasing demand for necessary works and services.

At the conclusion of the reading of the address, Rev. A. R. Sanderson, pastor of Holloway Street Methodist Church, was called upon and delivered an appropriate prayer.

Ald. Woodley, moved, seconded by Ald. Canning, a vote of thanks to the Mayor for his able address, which was carried by a standing vote.

THE FUN BEGINS.

On motion, the Council went into Committee of the Whole for the appointment of chairmen and members of the various committee, Ald. Chown in the chair.

Ald. Lott said he understood that the chairmen had already been selected. Ald. Robinson and others had held a conclave in a secret room and selected the chairmen. In view of this there was no need for the committee to make appointments.

Ald. Robinson denied the assertion that he alone had selected the chairmen. A caucus was held and he considered good men had been selecteu. He had been chosen as chairman of Public Works, which would mean a sacrifice to him.

ALD. LOTT GOT HOT.

Ald. Lott claimed Ald. Robinson was the biggest schemer in the Council. A man that had to pay men to run around from Ward to Ward to have him nominated as Alderman was no good. He (Ald. Robinson) was a liar.

Ald. Robinson appealed to the chairman to call Ald. Lott to order.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

RECOUNT OF BALLOTS.

On Saturday Messrs. Porter & Carnew, acting on behalf of Mr. George I. Thomas, made application to Judge Deroche for a recount of the ballots cast in the recent Mayoralty election. Saturday next, the 13th inst., was the date set for the recount.

HARROW—BRICKMAN.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 6th, at the Tabernacle Methodist parsonage, by Rev. W. G. Clarke, B.A., Earl Edman Harrow and Mildred Irene Brickman were quietly married. They were unattended, and will reside in the city.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The service at the Baptist church last night was one of special interest and profit. The occasion was the first of a series of sermons Pastor Smith has commenced on "The Fundamentals of Faith." The sermon last night was a very able discourse on "The Bible," and was listened to by a large congregation, as the preacher showed what the Bible taught, and how its teaching should be incarnated in the life, till all Christians should become living epistles, known and read of all men. The other subjects for the month are, Regeneration, Freedom, and Individualism. There was a large choir and piece by the quartette. A solo by Mrs. McLaurin was rendered with much taste and feeling. A trombone solo by Mr. J. D. Cookson was also a feature of the evening.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERK.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, M.P., secured the appointment of Mr. Charles Moore of this city as Railway Mail Clerk on the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk.

MANAGER AT BELLEVILLE.

A telegram from Guelph says:—Mr. Stuart R. Saunders, youngest son of Police Magistrate Thomas W. Saunders, has been appointed Manager of the Union Bank at Belleville, and left yesterday to assume the position. Mr. Saunders was formerly accountant of the St. Catharines branch of the Imperial bank, but resigned and went south with his brother in Mexico. Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, who has been the highly efficient Manager of the Belleville branch, is retiring under the age rule.

THOMPSON—DALE.

At Madoc the marriage of Miss Isabel Van Kleck Dale, daughter of Mr. J. C. Dale, to Mr. John Allen Thompson, of Winnipeg, was solemnized by the Rev. H. V. Mountier. Only immediate relatives were present. There were no attendants, and the bride wore a pretty white brocaded satin, with lace and pearls, also a necklet of pearls and peridots from the groom. Miss Hattie Pringle, Belleville, played the wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for Chicago and Winnipeg, the going-away dress being of dark green, with seal coat and mink furs.

FALSE REPRESENTATION.

On Saturday evening an aged man named William Scriver went to Mr. Thomas Carter's house and represented that he was going to work in the rolling mills and had been sent to Carter's house to board. This proved to be untrue, and as a result of his act Scriver was arrested as a vagrant. A week ago Scriver was arrested here as a vagrant and was ordered to leave this city for Prince Edward County, where he belongs. The man is 55 years of age and apparently has no home.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Court St. James No. 505 C.O.F. elected the following officers for 1912:

Spiritual Director—Rev. Father Killeen.

Our First Really Big Sale For 1912

Such a saving in Carpet money has never been equalled before.

We are placing on sale our entire stock of Carpets, without reserve, at ridiculously low prices. As everyone knows, carpets, in the last few years have increased in value and price greatly, so these original prices will mean to-day nearly 25% more than the prices affixed. We may state that the reason for giving this big slash into carpet prices is not because of old stock, but as we need more room for our ever-increasing stock and trade, and are taking this means to enable us to use the space for our new department.

Below are a few prices, which will stand comparison:

In Brussels

Two qualities, $1.25 and $1.40 which would in these days be worth as much as that to the manufacturer. $1.25 line for 95c.; $1.40 for $1.15.

POISONED PIES?

Young Bride Accused of Trying to Poison Her Husband.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 6.—Mrs. J. Kulp, a bride of three months, is accused of trying to poison her husband, his father, aged 85, his mother, 80, and his sister, by mixing ground glass and strychnine in the sugar she sprinkled plentifully on two very inviting pies she made.

The motive attributed to the young woman is that her husband's family, with whom she lives, objected strongly to his marriage and that quarrels were frequent and bitter in the household.

The bride strongly denies the charge.

$5 AND $10 GOLD PIECES ADDED TO CANADIAN MONEY

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—That the Dominion of Canada will have in a very short time in currency $10 and $5 gold pieces, was the declaration of Mr. T. C. Boiville, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Finance, this afternoon. The design for the new gold pieces has already been passed and the work would have been commenced ere this but the authorities of the mint have been engaged in the half-yearly cleaning, which takes up several weeks.

The demand for the new gold pieces was more the outcome of a national pride on the part of a few Canadians who wished that Canada as well as the United States should have a gold coinage. It was also the result of the circulation of American gold coinage in Canada. This coinage has the same value in Canada as in the United States, and it was felt that if the circulation of the American coinage became very prevalent, that at least Canada should fall into line in the subject of a standard gold coinage. It was felt, as necessary that the people of Canada should become as well acquainted with the features of the King as those of an American President.

The demand for general gold and silver money is not widespread. According to the opinion of Mr. Boiville, the people of the country are in favor of paper money, and he does not think that the use of its substitute in gold or silver will ultimately supersede it. In the first place it is the experience of most people that paper money is light to carry and there is no bulging of the pockets when large amounts have to be carried about.

Questioned about the fulminations of the medical profession against paper money, giving as their reason its unsanitariness, the Deputy Minister of Finance stated that indeed there was very little danger about the dollar bill. If there was soiled paper money, then it was the fault of the bank teller, who would not take the trouble of laying it aside and demanding its equivalent in good money from the Government, as the instructions at present stood that way.

CURRENT COMMENT

It is understood that the Merchants Bank will issue its $1,000,000 new stock at 175. On the market the stock is quoted at 200.

Miss Footlight—I have here a certificate from a doctor to the effect that I can't sing to-night.

The Manager—Why go to all that trouble. I'll give you a certificate that you never could sing.

That $600,000,000 of new capital came into Canada in the past eleven years as the result of immigration, is a fact revealed in a story in the annual number of The Monetary Times.

Under instructions from the Farmers' Bank, $200,000 Keely mine shares, owned by George Wishart, were sold by the sheriff for $161 in Toronto on the 5th inst. A. G. Watson was the purchaser. This stock was one of the assets of the Farmers' Bank.

If, as stated, Mr. Perley is to negotiate with the British Admiralty, and get the advice of that body as to the best form a Canadian Navy may take, the most Canadians will believe the Canadian end of the negotiations are in good hands.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Havemeyer refineries, of the American Sugar Refining Co., in Williamsburg, shut down on the 5th inst and 5,000 men have been thrown out of employment. Over production is said to have caused the shut down. The officers are besieged with employes begging for work. This is the country that the workmen of Canada were to have benefitted if the Laurier pact had been approved of.

The Liberal party is in a beautiful state of mix with regard to reciprocity. For instance, the Montreal Herald says if the Liberals want to get back into power they must discard reciprocity, and the Toronto Globe is still banging away in favor of it. Meanwhile Conservatives must be excused if they indulge in a few ingrowing chuckles.—Brantford Courier.

How have the mighty fallen! One year ago the Liberal party seemed to occupy an impregnable position throughout Canada. Now that power seems to be dwindling so fast that the electors are only waiting for an opportunity to get at the few remaining provincial governments that are still doing business at the old stand.—Mail and Empire.

A valued contributor tells a story of the late Bishop Sullivan of Algoma which, he says, may not be new, but will bear repeating, as it recalls a pious and witty Irishman. The bishop was driving near Rosseau with a local incumbent and his churchwarden, when the cutter upset, and pitched the occupants into the snow, the bishop undermost. As he picked himself up and dusted off the 'beautiful,' the bishop said: "Hard lines, when a bishop gets clergy and laity down on him at once."—Orillia Packet.

A telegram from Toronto of the 5th inst says: 'It is said that the Minister of Customs has expressed himself with undoubted clearness on the question of an age limit admission to the Customs service, intimating that the new material for the Toronto staff must not exceed the 36 year maximum. There is said to be a 35 year line for the inside service, but Hon. Dr. Reid's ruling will apply to the various branches of the department. We have grave doubts as to the accuracy of this statement.

The American Secretary of War has caused a mild sensation by his criticism of the army and navy, in both of which services he says there is far too much dead wood. It appears in the army especially there is considerable favoritism shown, and for this ex-President Roosevelt is responsible, for he inaugurated the system of promotion without regard to seniority, the result being that many young officers are promoted over the heads of their seniors, nominally because they are better men, but actually because they are better politicians. —Mail and Empire.

The Montreal Star says: "A woman has written to Mayor Guerin offering to examine every alderman and every candidate for aldermanic honors with a view of ascertaining the just development of their individual brain, upward, forward and backward from medulla oblongata. She is a phrenologist and claims her examination will demonstrate whether the alderman or the man who seeks to replace him is fitted for the position." Bring her to Belleville and The Intelligencer will gratuitously publish her report of the bumpology of the aldermen who may have their craniums examined. What interesting reading it would make.

Changing the Council

Under the above heading the Kingston Whig had the following remarks in a recent issue:

> Belleville is, municipally, in some respects more progressive than Kingston. It has tried, and it is assumed, successfully, the experiment of an executive committee, that is a committee to which all other committees of the Council reported, and it has been revising the work of all these other committees' works. Kingston never had the advantage of this check, and so has not the chance to report upon it. Now the city on the bay proceeds to another experiment. The people have approved, in the election, of a reduction in the number of aldermen to ten. The city is getting away from old conditions, and is hoping for results it will get with the smaller administrative machine.
>
> Had Belleville discussed government by commission a little, enough to show the people its meaning, they would probably have approved it as cheerfully as they approved the smaller Council. In the absence of legislation, which the present Legislature may not concede, a city in Ontario cannot have a commission, but it can imitate Staunton, Va., in the employment of a general manager. Staunton had become weary of its municipal government—a board of aldermen and a common council—and as it could not dispense with them constitutionally, it did the next best thing. It hired a business man and engineer and gave him complete control.
>
> The result has been marvellous. "In three years," writes Henry Owen, in the World's Work, "the town has been lifted from mud to asphalt. A fine old town, which was sagging badly at its foundation, has been placed on a sound basis without any increase in city expenditures; and the fact has been established that under honest, capable business management the value of the people's money to the city is increased by at least 100 per cent." The story, as told in the World's Work, of the transformation, of the new place that Staunton has become in a sanitary and financial way, is the most interesting that can be written. There has been economy, efficiency, beauty, worth.
>
> The general manager's idea was "to make this the finest little city in America, bar none," and he has succeeded so well that the men who disliked the scheme at the outset are now supporting it, and the Legislature is being petitioned to wipe out the council of twenty-two and replace it with a commission of five.

Our contemporary's remarks are very much to the point, but it is mistaken in saying that Belleville is making an experiment in discarding the Ward System and substituting for it the General System, with ten aldermen elected by the electors of the city as a whole.

The General System is not new here. Belleville had it for ten years, with, on the whole, very satisfactory results, including the purchase of the water works and the gas works, which have proved themselves profitable investments. But three years ago, in "a moment of weakness," the people voted in favor of returning to the Ward System, and it is a fact that they had ever since regretted that action. The General System is certainly a vast improvement on the Ward System, but it is not necessarily the last word in the premises.

Wheat and Flour

In connection with the wheat and flour industry of Canada it is interesting to note the growth of the country's transportation facilities. During a period of sixty years Montreal harbor has been so improved that it can now accommodate 15,000-ton steamships, whereas, in the early forties of the last century it could only accommodate 500-ton vessels. Twenty-five years ago the Soo canal had neither telegraph nor railway, and if a vessel happened to freeze in there for the winter the crew dared not attempt to get out to civilization. Now there are 50,000,000 tons of freight passing through the canal yearly. The first steamer to load grain at Port Arthur was the Erin in 1882; to-day 75 Canadian steel ships convey 50,000,000 bushels of grain yearly to exporting ocean ports. Within a period of about 30 years Canada has provided herself with a magnificent railway system, and Mr. Rutter observes, "it may with justice be said that Canada's wheat future, so far as it depends on transportation facilities, promises to be bright."

Speaking of transportation facilities, the construction of the Panama Canal is bound to have a very beneficial effect, so far as Canadian business is concerned.

The nearest lake port for Alberta shipments is now Fort William, which is 1,400 miles on an average from the wheat district of the province, while the wheat fields of Manitoba and Saskatchewan are located something like 800 miles nearer to that port. From the districts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan the freight rates are 8 or 9 cents per bushel, while those from Alberta are 14 or 15 cents per bushel. The freight rates, however, from points in Alberta to Liverpool via Vancouver are just the same as via Fort William, but there is this advantage—that when the former port is open to traffic the distance to Europe will be cut in half and the freight rates will be greatly reduced. Again, it will be possible to ship grain to Europe all the year round. The recent increase of wheat exports from Vancouver is noteworthy. In 1907, 31,245 bushels of wheat was exported; in 1909, 196,983 bushels, and in 1910, 554,237 bushels.

MUSIC and DRAMA

"THE ROSARY" with John Meehan as "Father Brian Kelly" will be the attraction at Griffin's to-morrow night. At the start of the play Bruce Wilton is shown having amassed a fortune, which he lavishes on his wife, Vera. Their home is happy until there creeps into it a note of menace. No one heard it at first except Father Kelly, a priest and former tutor of Wilton. Quietly he goes about his business to find the person who is causing all the trouble and adverse influence in the household. Almost at the verge of discovering the cause, calamity descends upon the Wilton home. Bruce's fortune is swept away, and in such a manner that he believes his wife the cause of the ruin. The husband, a born atheist, and the wife, a devout woman, are separated and the home is destroyed, and yet the cause of all this disaster is unknown. Not giving up, and by sheer force of faith, Father Kelly, zealous in his work of helping his brother man and of saving souls, continues in his work. He discovers the person who is the cause of all the trouble and restores the husband and wife to each other's arms. Seats now on sale at Doyle's. Prices 25c., 50c., 75c., and $1.00.

The GOOSE GIRL

That a wooden shoed, simple minded goose girl should plunge monarchs and monarchies into a most mysterious confusion of affairs is a novelty. Yet the lovely Gretchen, the heroine of this fascinating old world novel, did just that, for no one can deny that Ehrenstein is a land of romance.—There Carmichael, the dashing young American consul, learned of the dangers of falling in love with a princess; there Herbeck, the wily chancellor, tried a master stroke, evilly designed, to change the history of a throne; there royalty in disguise wandered and plotted and learned to know fellow human beings; there the treacherous Magyar gypsies lurked in the shadows to abduct a princess. And through all the little goose girl trod her lowly way toward a fate that the magic wand of chance had destined she must fill—a fate as amazing as it is fascinating to read about.—

CHAPTER I.

SOME IN RAGS.

AN old man clothed in picturesque patches and tatters paused and leaned on his stout oak staff. He had walked many miles that day. His peasant garb rather enhanced his fine head. His eyes were blue and clear and farseeing, the eyes of a hunter or a woodsman.

The afternoon glow of the September sun burned along the dusty white highway. From where he stood the road trailed off miles behind and wound up 500 feet or more above him to the ancient city of Dreiberg.

Across a lofty jumble of barren rock and glacial cleft, now purpling and darkening as the sun mellowed in its decline, lay the kingdom of Jugendheit. By and by his gaze wavered, and one particular patch in the valley, brown from the beating of many ironshod horses, caught and chained his interest for a space. It was the military field, and it glittered and scintillated with squadron after squadron of cavalry.

"The philosophy of war is to prepare for it," mused the old man, with a jerk of his shoulders. "France! So the mutter runs. There is a Napoleon in France, but no Bonaparte." He laughed ironically and cautiously glanced at his watch, an article which must have cost him many and many a potato patch. He stepped forward. He had followed yonder goose girl ever since the incline began. Oft the little wooden shoes had lagged, but here they were, still a hundred yards or more ahead of him.

The little goose girl was indeed tired, and the little wooden shoes grew heavier and heavier, and the little bare feet ached dully, but her heart was light and her mind sweet with happiness. Day after day she had tended the geese in the valley and trudged back at evening alone, all told a matter of twelve miles, and now she was bringing them into the city to sell in the market on the morrow. After that she would have little to do save an hour or two at night in a tavern called the Black Eagle, where she waited on patrons.

Presently there was a clatter of horses, a jingle of bit and spur and saber. Half a dozen mounted officers trotted past. The peasant on the parapet instantly recognized one of the men. He saluted with a humbleness which lacked sincerity. It was the grand duke himself. There was General Duowitz, too, and some of his staff, and a smooth faced, handsome young man in civilian riding clothes, who, though he rode like a cavalryman, was obviously of foreign birth, an Englishman or an American.

When the cavalcade reached the goose girl the peace of the scene vanished forthwith. Confusion took up the scepter. The silly geese, instead of remaining on theleft of the road in safety, straightway determined that their haven of refuge was on the opposite side. Gonk, gonk! Quack, quack! They scrambled, they blundered, they flew. Some tried to go over the horses, some endeavored to go under.

The civilian looked casually at the girl.

"By George!" he exclaimed in English.

"What is it?" asked the duke, gathering up the reins.

"The girl's face. It is beautiful."

The duke, after a glance, readily agreed. "You Americans are always observant."

"Pretty figure, too," said one of the aids, a colonel. But his eye held none of the abstract admiration which characterized the American's.

The goose girl had seen this look in other men's eyes. She knew. A faint color grew under her tan and waned.

The troop preceded with dust and small thunder and shortly passed the city gates. It traversed the lumpy cobbles of the narrow streets, often crowding pedestrians. One among those so inconvenienced was a youth dressed as a vintner. He was tall, pliantly built, blond as a viking, possessing a singular beauty of the masculine order. He was forced to flatten himself against the wall of a house, his arms extended on either side in a kind of temporary crucifixion. Even then the stirrup of the American touched him slightly. But it was not the touch of the stirrup that startled him. It was the dark, clean cut face of the rider. Once they were by the youth darted into a doorway.

"He? What can he be doing here? No, it is utterly impossible. It is merely a likeness."

He ventured forth presently, none of the perturbation, however, gone from his face. He ran his hand across his chin. Yes, he would let his beard grow.

The duke and his escort turned into the broad and restful sweep of the Konigstrasse. At the end was the Ehrenstein Platz, the great square round which ran the palaces and the royal and public gardens. The halt was made in the courtyard and all dismounted.

The American thanked the duke gratefully for the use of the horse.

"You are welcome to a mount at all times, Mr. Carmichael," replied the duke pleasantly. "A man who rides as well as yourself may be trusted anywhere with any kind of a horse."

The group looked admiringly at the object of this marked attention. Here was one who had seen two years of constant and terrible warfare, who had ridden horses under fire and who bore on his body many honorable scars, for the great civil strife in America had come to its close but two years before and Europe was still captive to her amazement at the military prowess of the erstwhile inconsiderable American.

As Carmichael saluted and turned to leave the courtyard he threw a swift, searching glance at one of the palace windows. Did the curtain stir? He could not say. He continued on, crossing the Platz, toward the Grand hotel. He was a bachelor, so he might easily have had his quarters at the consulate, but as usual with American consulates —even to the present time—it was situated in an undesirable part of the town, over a bierhalle frequented by farmers and the middle class.

Where had he seen that young vintner before?

Meanwhile the goose girl, now joined by the old man, marshaled her geese and proceeded.

"What was that song you were singing before the horses came up?" he asked her.

"That? It was from the poet Heine" —simply.

He stared at her.

"Heine? Can you read?"

"Yes, herr."

A goose girl who read Heine?

"And the music?" he inquired presently.

"That is mine"—with the first sign of diffidence. "Melodies are always running through my head. Sometimes they make me forget things I ought to remember."

"I AM ONLY A GOOSE GIRL."

"Your own music? An impresario will be discovering you some fine day, and your fortune will be made."

The light irony did not escape her. "I am only a goose girl."

He felt disarmed. "What is your name?"

"Gretchen."

"What else?"

"Nothing else," wistfully. "I never knew any father or mother."

"So? But who taught you to read?"

"A priest. Once I lived in the mountains at an inn. He used to come in evenings when the snow was not too deep. He taught me to read and write. I know that Italy has all the works of art, that France has the most interesting history, that Germany has all the philosophers and America all the money," adding a smile. "I should like to see America."

"Do you live alone?"

"No. I live with my foster mother, who is very old. I call her grandmother. She took me in when I was a foundling. And what might your name be?"

"Ludwig. I am a mountaineer from Jugendheit."

"We are not friendly with your country."

"More's the pity. It is a grave blunder on the part of the grand duke."

"Wasn't it all about the grand duke's daughter?"

"Yes. But she has been found. Yet the duke is as bitter as of old. What is this new found princess like?"

"She is beautiful and kind."

The geese were behaving, and only occasionally was she obliged to use her stick.

He observed her critically, for he was interested. She was not tall, but her lithe slenderness gave her the appearance of tallness. Her hands, rough nailed and sunburnt, were small and shapely. Her hair, in a thick braid, was the tone of the heart of a chestnut bur, and her eyes were of that mystifying hazel, sometimes brown, sometimes gray.

"How old are you, Gretchen?"

"I do not know," she answered, "perhaps eighteen, perhaps twenty."

Arriving at length in the city, they passed through the crooked streets.

"Gretchen, where shall I find the Adlergasse?"

"I will show you. You are also a stranger in Dreiberg?"

"Yes."

They took the next turn, and the weather beaten sign Zum Schwartzen Adler, hanging in front of a frame house of many gables, caused the mountaineer to breathe gratefully.

"Here my journey ends, Gretchen, at the Black Eagle," he said.

They were passing a clock mender's shop. The man from Jugendheit peered in the window, but there was no clock in sight to give him warning of the time, and he dared not now look at his watch. He had a glimpse of the ancient clock mender himself, however, huddled over a table upon which sputtered a candle. The eyes of the two men met, but only for a moment. The mountaineer started to cross the street to the tavern.

"Good night, Gretchen. Good luck to you and your geese tomorrow."

"Thanks, Herr Ludwig. And will you be long in the city?"

"That depends; perhaps," adding a grim smile in answer to a grim thought.

He offered his hand, which she accepted trustfully. He was a strange old man, but she liked him. When she withdrew her hand something cold and hard remained in her palm. Wonders of all the world, it was a piece of gold! Her eyes went up quickly, but the giver smiled reassuringly and put a finger against his lips.

"But, herr," she remonstrated.

"Keep it. I give it to you. Do not question Providence, and I am her handmaiden just now. Go along with you."

So Gretchen in a mild state of stupefaction turned away. Clat-clat! sang the little wooden shoes. A plaintive gonk rose as she prodded a laggard from the dank gutter. A piece of gold! Clat-clat! Clat-clat! Surely this had been a day of marvels.

She was regarded with kindly eyes till the dark jaws of the Krumerweg swallowed up both her and her geese.

"Poor little goose girl!" he thought. "If she but knew she could make a bonfire of a thousand hearts. A fine day!" He eyed again the battered sign. It was then that he discerned another leaning from the ledge of the first story of the house adjoining the tavern. It was the tarnished shield of the United States.

"Two weeks tramping about the country in this unholy garb, following false trails half the time, living on crusts and cold meats! Ah, you have led me a merry dance, nephew, but I shall not forget!"

He entered the tavern and applied for a room, haggling over the price.

The nights were chilly. Carmichael in order to finish his cigar on the little balcony fronting his window found it necessary to put on his light overcoat, though he perfectly knew that he was in no manner forced to smoke on the balcony. But the truth was he wanted a clear vision of the palace and the lighted windows thereof and of one in particular. He had no more sense than Tom Fool, the abetter of follies. She was as far removed from him as the most alien of the planets, but the magnet shall ever draw the needle, and a woman shall ever draw a man. He knew that it was impossible, that it grew more impossible day by day, and he railed at himself bitterly and satirically.

He sighed and teetered his legs. Carmichael sighed for the Princess Hildegarde, understanding. It was sigh or curse, and the latter mode of expression wastes more vitality.

Arthur Carmichael was Irish. He was born in America, educated there and elsewhere—a little while in Paris, a little while at Bonn—and, like all Irishmen, he was baned with the wandering foot, for the man who is homeless by choice has a subtle poison in his blood. He was at Bonn when the civil war came. He went back to America and threw himself into the fight with all the ardor that had made his forbears famous in the service of the worthless Stuarts. It wasn't a question with him of the mere love of fighting, of tossing the penny. He knew with which side he wished to fight. He joined the cavalry of the north and hammered and fought his way to a captaincy. He was wounded five times and imprisoned twice. At the end of the conflict he returned to Washington.

Without any influence whatever save his pleasing address and his wide education he blarneyed the state department out of a consulate. They sent him to Ehrenstein at a salary not worth mentioning, with the diplomatic halo of dignity as a tail to the kite. Two years in any one place was not in reckoning as regarded Carmichael, yet here he was, caring neither for promotion nor exchange. So, then, all logical deductions simmered down to one—cherchez la femme.

The dreamer is invariably tripping over his illusions, and Carmichael was rather boyish in his dreams. What absurd romances he was always weaving round her! What exploits on her behalf! But never anything happened, and never was the grand duke called upon to offer his benediction.

It was all very foolish and romantic and impossible, and no one recognized this more readily than he. No American ever married a princess of a reigning house, and no American ever will. This law is as immovable as the law of gravitation. Still, man is master of his dreams, and he may do as he pleases in the confines of this small circle.

"How the deuce will it end?" musing half aloud. "I'll forget myself some day and trip so hard that they'll be asking Washington for my recall. I'll go over to the gardens and listen to the band."

He was standing in front of the hotel when he noticed a closed carriage hard by the fountain in the Platz.

"Ha, a fare!"

A woman in black, thoroughly veiled and cloaked, came round from the opposite side of the fountain. She spoke to the driver. The lady stepped into the carriage, the driver woke up his ancient Bucephalus and went clickety-clack down the Konigstrasse toward the town. To Carmichael it was less than an incident. He twirled his cane and walked toward the public gardens. The band struck up again, and he drifted with the crowd toward the pavilion.

Within a dozen feet of him, her arms folded across her breast, her eyes half shut in the luxury of the senses, stood the goose girl. He smiled as he recalled the encounter of that afternoon. It was his habit to ride to the maneuvers every day, and several times he had noticed her and her beauty.

"Why couldn't I have fallen in love with some one like this?" he cogitated.

Colonel von Wallenstein of the general staff approached her from the other side. Wallenstein was a capital soldier and a jolly fellow round a board, but beyond that Carmichael had no real liking for him. There were too many scented notes stuck in his pockets.

The colonel dropped his cigarette, leaned over Gretchen's shoulder and spoke a few words. At first she gave no heed. The colonel persisted. Without a word in reply she resolutely sought the nearest policeman. Wallenstein, remaining where he was, laughed. Meantime the policeman frowned. His excellency could not possibly have intended any wrong. The law of redress in Ehrenstein had no niche for the goose girl.

"Good evening, colonel," said Carmichael pleasantly. "Why can't your bandmaster give us light opera once in awhile?"

The colonel pulled his mustache in chagrin.

"Light operas are rare at present," he replied, accepting his defeat amiably enough.

And then a pretty woman rose from a chair near by. She nodded brightly at the colonel, who bowed, excused himself to Carmichael and made off after her.

Carmichael looked round for Gretchen. She was still at the side of the policeman. She came back.

"Did you get your geese together without mishap?" he asked of her.

The instinct of the child always remains with the woman. Gretchen smiled. This young man would be different, she knew.

"They were only frightened."

"We don't have goose girls in America," he said.

The magic word America, where the gold came from, flamed her curiosity.

"You are from America?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Are you rich?"

"In fancy, in dreams," humorously.

"Oh, I thought they were all rich. Did you fight in the war?"

"Yes. Do you like music?"

"Were you ever wounded?"

"A scratch or two. But do you like music?"

TO EXTEND ARMISTICE

Yuan Asks and Sun Agrees to Fifteen Days' Truce.

Republicans Take Over Tientsin Railway and Re-employ Foreigners—American General Must Not Participate In Insurrection Under Death Penalty — Powers Will Protect Tranportation—Yuan Seeks Delay.

Shanghai, Jan. 8.—There is reason to believe that the armistice will be extended for fifteen days. Yuan Shi Kai has requested the extension and President Sun Yat Sen is willing to agree to it conditionally. Terms are now being arranged.

The republicans Saturday assumed control of the Tientsin-Pekow Railway. They notified the foreign officials representing the British and German bondholders that the headquarters of the road have been removed from Pekin to Nanking. Foreigners are being re-employed.

By order of the president a prominent contractor was shot Saturday evening for extorting funds in the name of Sun Yat Sen.

Gen. Homer Lea, the American officer who accompanied Dr. Sun Yat Sen to China, it was said for the purpose of taking a responsible position with the revolutionaries as military adviser, has received official notification that there is a penalty of death attached to the participation by an American in the insurrection in China. Gen. Lea some time ago declined to act as chief of staff.

Powers to Act.

Pekin, Jan. 8.—The treaty powers have undertaken the protection of the railroad between Pekin and the sea. Interruption of traffic along this line, which has prevented the passage of the mails for four days, has resulted in this decision. Detachments of British, German, Japanese, and French troops have been stationed at intervals between Pekin and Chinwangtao, according to the plan devised two months ago. A Japanese general is in command, as he is the training officer.

The respective nations assume charge of different sections of the road, Great Britain taking care of the section between Pekin and Yangshan, the United States, Tangshan to Lanchow, and Japan from Lanchow to Chin Wang Tao. The United States has no troops in North China, except 800 legation guards, and has been unable to assume responsibility for the section alloted to it, but British troops are protecting that district until the Americans arrive. Just when additional American troops will reach China is not known, although Minister Calhoun cabled several days ago to the State Department at Washington, advising the despatch of a regiment on a peace footing. So far he has received no reply from the Department.

The legations regret that they cannot control the Chinese Imperial Railroad up to the Japanese junction in Manchuria, thereby ensuring a continuation of the trans-Siberian mails, but the protocol does not authorize anything further than maintaining communication to the sea, the nearest open port being Chinwangtao, as Tientsin is icebound.

Yuan Shi Kai is pleased at the action of the powers, because it relieves the Imperial administration of responsibility and ensures the maintenance of communication, which the Imperial troops might be unable to do. The powers do not assume the administration of the district, and consequently the Imperialists profit by the arrangement, the trains not being available to the rebels.

Premier Yuan has sent a telegram to Wu Ting Fang complaining that it is inconsistent with the national constitution to establish a republican government, the president of which has taken an oath to overthrow the Manchu Government. Yuan asks to be informed as to the object of the establishment of a republic and whether the president could be removed from office should the national convention decide on a constitutional monarchy.

It would appear as if the Imperial Premier is seeking delay, believing that time will cause dissensions in the south. Several generals are urging him to fight, but it is thought that he will await an attack. The people of Chili and Shantum Provinces, who are for the most part revolutionary, are organizing, but they find that they are not in a position to take part in a rising, as they are without rifles or military supplies. Should the Imperial army become disaffected, the case would be different.

The Empress Dowager has issued orders to the princes not to leave Pekin. Recently there has been a stiffening of the court's decision to hold out.

On the War Path.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—Nine Indian chiefs are in the city accompanied by J. A. Tell, interpreter, to interview the Government. They want retention of the land they now have and compensation for what they have lost. They will be received by the Premier this afternoon.

Many a small bottle has developed into a family jar.

TO ADVISE THE NAVY

Winston Churchill Appoints a Staff on Strategy.

Preparations For War and Naval Tactics Will Be Studied Continuously by Newly-Named Board, Whose Duties Will End With the Tendering of Advice to the First Sea Lord and Will Have No Authority.

London, Jan. 8.—The First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, has made further important changes in addition to those initiated in November last, when Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, Vice-Admiral Prince Louis of Battenburg and Captain Wm. C. Pakenham became first, second and fourth sea lords respectively. An Admiralty memorandum issued yesterday, completes the naval reorganization by the creation of a naval war staff, of which Admiral Ernest Trowbridge, heretofore private secretary of the First Lord of the Admiralty, becomes chief.

Sir Francis J. S. Hopwood, formerly Under Secretary of State for Colonies, who was on the staff of King George, then Prince of Wales, during his visit to Canada in 1903, is appointed an additional Civil Lord of the Admiralty Board. Rear-Admiral David Beatty, who, in 1901 married Ethel Field, daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago, succeeds Admiral Trowbridge in the secretaryship.

Capt. Geo. A. Ballard, of the battleship Britannia, and Capt. Thomas Jackson, assistant director of naval intelligence, have been appointed directors of the operations division and the intelligence division, respectively.

Mr. Churchill, in a long explanatory statement, says that the war staff is to be the brain, applied continuously to scientific and speculative study of naval strategy and preparation, and will be organized from the existing elements in the three divisions—intelligence, operations and mobilization. These divisions will be combined under a flag officer as chief of staff. The war staff will have no executive authority. Its responsibilities will end with the tendering of advice to the First Sea Lord.

A complete list of the officers forming the staff, which will comprise most of the grades, will be promulgated soon.

Mr. Churchill further explains that the new Civil Lord will be the "buyer and business manager" of the navy, while there will be close co-operation between the naval staff and the war staff of the army.

Capt. Alex. L. Duff, director of naval mobilization, has been appointed head of the mobilization division of the new war staff. The cost of the staff will be provided by abolishing four official Admiralty yachts, thus saving about $175,000 annually.

RICHESON CONFESSES

Minister Admits Murder of Miss Avis Linnell.

Driven on by Scourge of Remorse He Writes a Confession In Which He Says He Administered Cyanide of Potassium to His Former Sweetheart—Asks No Leniency as a Result of His Acknowledgment.

Boston, Jan. 8.—The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, formerly pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge, yesterday made a written confession to the effect that he poisoned his former sweetheart, Miss Avis Linnell. The statement was given into the hands of his counsel, who made the confession public at one p.m. Saturday.

As Rev. Mr. Richeson stands today before the law, he is indicted for the murder in the first degree of Miss Linnell, by giving her a quantity of cyanide of potassium. The penalty for such a crime in Massachusetts is death in the electric chair. If Richeson stands in court on Jan. 15 next, the date set for his trial, and acknowledges his guilt in accordance with his statement made public Saturday, the court, under the law, would be obliged to impose the death sentence, in the opinion of court house officials.

The confession of Rev. Mr. Richeson follows:

"Boston, Jan. 3, 1912.

"John L. Lee, Esq.:
"William A. Morse, Esq.:
"Philip R. Dunbar, Esq.:

"Gentlemen: Deeply penitent for my sin, and earnestly desiring, as far as in my power lies, to make atonement, I hereby confess that I am guilty of the offence of which I stand indicted.

"I am moved to this course by no inducement of self-benefit or leniency. Heinous as is my crime, God has not wholly abandoned me, and my conscience and manhood, however depraved and blighted, will not admit of my still further wronging by a public trial her whose pure young life I have destroyed. Under the lashings of remorse I have suffered and am suffering the tortures of the damned. In this I find a measure of comfort. In my mental anguish I recognize that there is still, by the mercy of the Master, some remnant of the Divine Spark of goodness still lingering with me. I could wish to live only because within some prison's walls I might, in some small measure, redeem my sinful part, help some other despairing soul, and, at last, find favor with my God.

"You are instructed to deliver this to the district attorney, or, to the judge of the court.

"Sincerely yours,
"Clarence V. T. Richeson."

Just before noon Saturday the judges of the Supreme Court and the district attorney went into conference at the court house, and about an hour later representatives of the press were called to the office of William A. Morse, the leading counsel for the accused clergyman. Typewritten sheets containing the confession were handed to the newspaper men, and those who paused to ask for some further explanation were told that there was nothing more to be said at this time.

The fact that the confession was dated three days ago was also pointed out to the counsel, but they refused to comment upon it at this time.

Big Firms Burned Out.

Toronto, Jan. 8.—Fire early Saturday evening and water did over $140,000 damage, it is estimated, to the premises and stock of the Boyd, Brumell Co., Ltd., fancy goods, 11 West Wellington street; Fowke Singer Co., Ltd., dry goods, 7 West Wellington; and the Merchants' Bank, 13 West Wellington.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. It appears to have started on the main floor of the Boyd, Brumell Co., near the elevator or at the foot of the elevator shaft, and was not extinguished until the $100,000 stock of the company was destroyed with their $20,000 building completely gutted, and the stock of the Robinson, Dale Co. damaged to the extent of $18,000 or $20,000 by water.

The stock of the Fowke Singer Co., 7 West Wellington street, was also damaged by water to the extent of about $2,000. The bank building suffered only slightly.

Galway May Be a Port.

London, Jan. 8.—The establishment of Galway, Ireland, as a trans-atlantic port is advocated by Lord Killanin in the forthcoming issue of The Empire Review. He predicts a revival of the trade of the Irish port which was at one time second only to London as a port of the United Kingdom.

Steamers leaving Galway could get under way at full speed The minimum loss of time would be the delay incident to the fog and traffic in the Irish Sea. The transatlantic ships built for high speed are delayed in the channel.

The harbor at Galway is wide, deep and free from obstructions, with two feasible channels leading to the sea, and the surrounding hills provide splendid shelter from storms.

Brutal Hangings at Tabriz.

Tabriz, Jan. 8.—Four more nationalists were hanged on Saturday near the Russian camp. The executions were carried out in a primitive and brutal manner. The ropes were placed around the necks of the condemned men and pulled sharply. Thus the victims were slowly strangled. Some of the victims lived fifteen minutes. No bandage covered the eyes, and in some case the arms and legs were unbound.

$30,000 Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Fire broke out on the second floor of the factory of the Dominion Button factory on Visitation street at midnight last night, resulting in damage from fire, smoke and water to the building and stock of from $20,000 to $30,000. The entire second storey was gutted and the rest of the building badly damaged. The cause of the fire is unknown.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Unchanged, Chicago Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 6.—The market was influenced by the steadiness in Buenos Ayres and opened unchanged to ⅛c higher. There was a good demand for spot, and expectations point to light world's shipments this week, with the continent bidding freely. Following the opening, there was some desire for profit-taking and prices lost ⅛c to ¼c. At the close, the market was dull and easier, with prices unchanged to ⅛c lower than yesterday. Just before the close, there was a slight recovery from the low on continued unfavorable crop advices from Argentine, but these are thought to be exaggerated.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Altho wheat traders refused to follow many of the sensational reports from the Argentine as to damage by rust and rain, the market to-day showed a stubborn tendency to move towadd a higher level. In the end prices varied from 1-8c off to a shade advance over last night. Corn finished 1-8c to 1-4c up, oats 3-8c down to 1-8c up, and provisions at an advanced cost of 2 1-2c to 5c.

More Afraid of Oblats.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Hon. Senator Legris tells in Le Pays yesterday why he sends his two sons to McGill University and replies to L'Action Sociale of Quebec, who claim that the Senator is hitched up with a Freemason, meaning, no doubt, G. Langlois, M.P.P., editor and proprietor of Le Pays. He says he does not care whether he had to do with Freemasons or not, all he wants is a sincere adherent to Liberalism.

The Senator points out that Sir John A. Macdonald was a man high up in the Masonic Order and asks what is the difference, as Sir John Macdonald was supported by the clergy of this province to a man. Then Senator Legris tells how an Oblat Father brutally assaulted his son Wilfrid while the latter was asleep in the dormitory, and that, although the boy lost an eye and carries a broken nose as a result of the attack, the college authorities pleaded that they were not responsible for the act of one of their number, and, consequently, Senator Legris affirms that he is more afraid of an Oblat than a Freemason, and regrets that his sons were not always at McGill.

Calls Contribution Insane.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—"Any contribution to these insane naval armaments is a backward step, and we should be careful in Canada," declared Dr. L. E. Horning, professor of Teutonic philology at Victoria University, Toronto, in the course of an address on the present day relations of England and Germany, before the Canadian Club, at its weekly luncheon, in the Grand Union Hotel, Saturday.

Of an optimistic nature were Dr. Horning's remarks regarding the relations between England and Germany. The close relationship of the two great nations in many lines made for peace to a greater extent than any fiscal difference of trouble with reference to colonization might counterbalance in the direction of war.

"It is not possible to think that these great Teutonic nations, with the same high ideals, the same love of home, justice, right and God, and the same high thought, can come to war," he said. "They cannot be separated and must be together if they are to continue their parts in the development of the world."

Session to Last Till March.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—The House of Commons gets down to work again on Wednesday and will be in session, it is expected, until the end of March. The Government is practically ready with all its important legislation and has finished up the preparation of estimates for the year.

The session's work is already for the House and it is up to that body to take a long or short time over it. There have been some rumblings within the last few days indicating a desire on the part of the Opposition to get up a series of fights on those subjects, which it thinks the Government is least willing to have discussed. The friends of the Government say that there are no such questions and that the Oposition is perfectly welcome to go ahead. In any event there is a general expectation of prorogation by Easter.

COLD COUNCIL CHAMBER BUT A HOT MEETING

CONTEST FOR HONORS.

Ald. Robinson and Ald. Lott were nominated as chairman of Public Works.

Ald. Slater said there were complaints made as to the conducting of the Public Works Committee. The way the men worked and the way it was done was what he complained of. We want new blood in this committee.

Ald. Panter refuted the assertion that the Public Works had not been properly done last year. He would support Ald. Robinson for that position.

Ald. Robinson said he did not want the position, but if selected would do his duty as best he could.

ROBINSON WINS OUT.

Upon a vote being taken, Ald. Robinson was elected.

OTHER NOMINATIONS.

Ald. Wallace and Parks were nominated as chairman of the Market and City Property Committee.

Ald. Wallace withdrew.

Ald. Clarke stated that he did not wish to have a chairmanship, if there was any other alderman who desired it.

Ald. Lott was nominated as chairman of Gas and was selected.

Ald. Slater and Clarke were nominated as chairman of the Claims Committee.

Ald. Robinson said that Ald. Clarke did not wish a chairmanship.

Ald. Clarke stated that while he appreciated Ald. Slater's ability, he (Ald. Clarke) thought he was better qualified to settle claims, as he had had considerable experience in settling of losses.

Ald. Slater was elected chairman upon a vote being taken.

On motion of Mayor Vermilyea, Ald. Canning, Anderson and Clarke were appointed a committee to select members for the various committees.

The committee retired to make the selections.

The Committee of the Whole rose and reported. The report was received and adopted and the Council went into Committee of the Whole on Accounts, Communications, etc., Ald. Chown in the chair.

The following accounts were passed:

| J. J. Shea | 1.00 |
| J. J. Shea | 4.00 |

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was read from Mr. H. J. Clarke, Secretary of the Library Board, stating that Mr. A. McGinnis was the representative from the city and his term of office is expiring and did not wish to be reappointed.—Referred to By-law Committee.

A communication in reference to the condition of the road leading to the bay bridge was, on motion, referred to the Public Works Committee.

An appeal for assistance for the Sick Children's Hospital at Toronto was read.

A motion prevailed that the Council give a grant of $15.

The City Clerk was authorized to procure a copy of the Municipal World.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

INRTODUCTION OF BY-LAW.

Ald. Panter introduced five by-laws, namely a by-law to appoint two High School Trustees; to appoint a Board of Health; to appoint a member of the Public Library Board; that election for Aldermen for Samson, Bleecker and Ketcheson Ward; a by-law regulating the Council.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on By-laws, Ald. Panter in the chair.

Messrs. A. McGie and L. P. Hughes were appointed as members of the Board of Health.

Messrs. Wm. Johnson and W. P. Hudson were appointed as High School Trustees.

Mr. Henry Pringle was appointed as a representative on the Belleville Public Library Board in place of Mr. A. McGinnis.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

The by-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered respectively—1686, 1687, 1688, 1689 and 1690.

The special committee appointed to draft the members of the various Standing Committees reported as shown above.

On motion, the report was adopted after Ald. Clarke had explained that when the other members are elected they can be substituted for some members that had been named.

Ald. Clarke moved, seconded by Ald. Black, that the Board of Education be reuested to declare the position of Col. Ponton as a High School Trustee vacant, as he was a non-resident of the city.

Ald. Clarke stated that Col. Ponton, who was an appointee of the Council as a High School Trustee, was not eligible for that position, as he was a non-resident of the city. He was a man of ability, but the Council must abide by the law. It should be a resident of the city appointed to that position.

Ald. Panter thought that the motion was not necessary, as the Council was not dealing with Col. Ponton's appointment at present.

The City Clerk said that this was a matter which would have to be looked into and he would have to consult the law.

The yeas and nays on the motion resulted as follows:

For the motion—Ald. Robinson, Lucas, Bogle, Clarke, Lott, Black, Chown, Parks, Anderson.—9.

Against the motion—Ald. Wallace, Canning, McCurdy, Smith, Slater, White, Woodley, Panter and Mayor Vermilyea.—9.

The motion was lost.

Council adjourned for two weeks.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PHILP

The Whitby Chronicle gives the following account of the funeral of the late Mrs. Philp, a lady well known in Belleville:

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. R. Philp, who died suddenly on Christmas morning, was held on Friday, Dec. 28th, and was largely attended. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, pastor of the Methodist church here, of which deceased had been a member and attendant for over half a century.

The pall bearers were Messrs. A. M. Ross, T. G. Whitfield, Fred Hatch, W. J. Luke, J. L. Smith, Wm. Ayers. Interment was made in Union cemetery beside the body of her eldest son who died some years ago.

Mrs. Philp's maiden name was Margaret Ann Moore, daughter of the late Jacob G. Moore, of Belleville. She was born in that city on February 2, 1839. In 1859 she was married to Mr. J. R. Philp, of Whitby, and at once came here with her husband, taking up residence in the cottage on Brock St., which had ever since been her home.

Mrs. Philp was a woman of sweet and lovable character, whom to know was to esteem and love. As a neighbor she was a good angel in times of need; as a friend she was unfailing and unchanging; as a wife and mother she was tender and affecitonate. Her sudden illness and death had not caused any change in her facial appearance, and as she lay in her narrow bed one would fancy she was just sweetly sleeping after the labors of the day.

The two living sons, Frederick Philp, of Oneita, N.Y., and John Bowell Philp of Omaha, Neb., with their wives, arrived as soon as express trains could bring them. Others present were: Sir Mackenzie Bowell, of Belleville, his daughter, Mrs. Jamieson, of St. Paul's; Charles J. Bowell, Harold Holton, of Belleville, a grandson, of St. Paul; Charles J. Bowell, Wm. Philp, wife and two sons, of Hamilton; Miss Ida Rose, Mrs. S. Pearcy, Mrs. Jos. King and daughter, Mr. Richard Hatch, Mr. Ed. Fielding, all of Toronto.

The late Mrs. Philp was the only sister of the wife of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who died 26 years ago. She was also the last surviving member of the Moore family.

MRS. JAS. COOK BURIED.

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Cook took place this afternoon from the family residence, Mary St., and many friends were in attendance Services at the house were conducted by the Rev. A. M Hubly, Rector of the Reformed Episcopal church. A number of floral designs were placed upon the casket by relatives and friends. Interment took place at Belleville Cemetery. The bearers were friends of the family.

WILLIAM ORMOND.

Mr. William Ormond, a well known resident of this city, passed away on Sunday after being ill for some time. Deceased, who was 72 years of age, was born in Scotland, but had resided in the city for many years. Mr. Ormond was a member of the Presbyterian church. Deceased was a bachelor. Four brothers and three sisters survive. The brothers are George, Abraham and John, of this city, and Alexander, of California. The sisters are Mrs. F. Arnott, Mrs. J. Taylor and Annie, all of this city.

WOULD ENRICH PRAYER BOOK

Suggested Additions for the Church of England Service

The question of the adaptation and enrichment of the prayer book of the Church of England in Canada is at the present time being laid before the clergy of the Dominion, with a view to obtaining the consensus of opinion upon proposed changes, and also with a view to obtaining suggestions as to its revision.

A committee of the general synod under the chairmanship of the Primate of Canada and the vice-chairmanship of the Lord Bishop of Huron has prepared a large number of questions which the clergy are requested to answer, and this is now being done.

Certain limitations have been imposed by the general synod which are to the effect that no change is to be made in either text or rubric, which will involve or imply a change of doctrine or of principle; to make only such changes as are necessary to meet the requirements of the Church of England in Canada, and to keep within the lines of the resolutions of the Lambeth conference of 1908. The principles laid down by that English conference were that there should be an adaptation of rubrics to present customs as generally accepted, the omission of parts of the service to obviate repetition or redundancy, additions to present services, the provision of alternatives in the forms of public worship and other minor changes.

There are in all seventeen questions asked and a number of suggestions made which the committee desire the opinion of the clergy upon.

The documents are to reach the secretary, Rev. Dean Bidwell, of Kingston, Ont., by the end of this month.

FIRED TWO SHOTS AT FRENCH JUDGE

Latter Had Recently Granted Divorce Decree Against the Assassin

PARIS, Jan. 6.—When M. Ditto, a judge of the Court of Cassation, was leaving his home this morning, he was startled by two revolver shots close to him. Turning he saw a man with a revolver pointed his way, and he made haste to get out of the way of more shots. The police were on the scene in a few minutes, and overpowered the man with the revolver. He was taken to the police station, where it was learned that his name was Solomon Isaacs. He declared that he fired blank cartridges.

On looking up his record it was discovered that Isaacs was recently divorced, and that he had been brooding over the case for some time. M. Ditte had given the decree against him. M. Ditte has for some time presided over the divorce court.

JACK JOHNSON GETS $31,000.

CHICAGO, Jan 6.—After eighteen months of idleness Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, to-day signed articles here to fight a finish battle with Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman generally regarded as one of the best 'white hopes.' The fight will take place somewhere in Nevada next July. As a tentative date July 22 was selected, but this may be changed any time. The fight will be staged either at Windward or Metropolis.

For his services Johnson is to receive $31,000 and one-third of the receipts of the sale of the moving picture rights. Flynn's share of the purse was not announced. He will be paid by his manager, Jack Curley, who represented the promoters. Their identity is a secret.

Each fighter agreed not to engage in a contest between May 1 and the date of this fight without the consent of the other fighter and Curley.

This means that Johnson's fight with Sam McVey may be shelved or postponed in favor of the Flynn battle. Before May 1, however, Flynn will fight Al. Kubiak in Toronto, on the 17th of this month, and possibly Al. Palzer in New York. Johnson protested to-day against the Palzer match taking place.

$20,000,000 FIRE IN NEW YORK CITY

Twelve Lives Lost—Three Firemen Leaped 150 Feet to Death—Equitable Insurance Building, an Enormous Structure, was the Scene—Loss on Building was Fourteen Millions

(Intelligencer Special)

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—A fire which started at five o'clock this morning, has totally destroyed the immense building of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which occupied the whole block bounded by Broadway, Cedar, Pine and Nassau Streets.

Several lives were lost, the number being placed as high as twelve. Five bodies have been recovered up to noon.

The monetary loss is placed as high as twenty million dollars, the building itself being valued at fourteen million dollars.

The Equitable Life building was in the heart of the financial and skyscraper district, and housed hundreds of brokerage, legal and insurance firms.

Three firemen, who had been cut off from the street, were driven to the roof on the Cedar Street side with no chance of escape. Kneeling in prayer for a moment, the men leaped to their death a hundred and fifty feet below to the pavement.

Four porters jumped from a fifth storey window, and were covered with tons of falling debris immediately after. They are believed to be dead.

The building was eight stories high on the Pine Street side and twelve storeys on Nassau Street.

All Will Have to Spend Five Days of Training Under Canvas

The city infantry regiments are to put in five days' training in camp this year, instead of undergoing the whole of their training in the Armouries, as they have done hitherto.

The order has come from the Militia Department anonuncing that the annual training of all the city corps is to be divided into seven days at headquarters and five days in camp. According to the present system, one night's drill at the Armouries constitutes one half day. Thus the five days in camp will take the place of ten night drills in their regular training, both the spring and the fall drill seasons will be shortened accordingly.

The need of city regiments for training in camp has long been felt, and was pointed out as one of their principal weaknesses by General Sir John French in his report on the Canadian militia. The need was also forcibly demonstrated at the Thanksgiving Day manoeuvres in Dundas Valley, in whic the city regiments of the first and second division took part last autumn.

The order will affect about forty city regiments of infantry throughout Canada, who have hitherto had practically no training in camp whatever. The sixty odd rural regiments will carry out their training in camp as usual.

NEW MAYOR ENTERTAINED THE NEW ALDERMEN

The Storm which Blew in Council Had Subsided—All Enjoyed Themselves as His Worship's Guests—A Pleasant Time was Passed by All Present

At the adjournment of the City Council yesterday afternoon the members, the city officials and representatives of the press were the guests of Mayor Vermilyea for dinner at Hotel Quinte. A fine spread was provided by mine host Jenkins, and it was capably served. His Worship occupied the seat at the head of the table. After due justice had been done to the good things provided, a few minutes was spent in speech-making.

Mr. Mikel, K.C., City Clerk, proposed the health of Mayor Vermilyea, which was heartily responded to, the company singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

His Worship replied briefly, thanking those present for the hearty manner in which the toast had been received. He was pleased with the result of the election, and while he was Mayor of the city he would do all in his power to promote its interest. He predicted a bright future for the city. He spoke of the paving of Front Street and the placing of other streets in good condition during the present year.

The health of Rev. A. R. Sanderson was proposed by the Mayor and most appropriately responded to by the Rev. gentleman, who said that it was the duty of ministers to look after the welfare of the city. Ministers should be interested in all matters which appertain to the city's welfare and advancement. He complimented Mayor Vermilyea upon his election as Chief Magistrate of the city and for the able and comprehensive address which he delivered at the opening of the Council proceedings. The address was one of thought, which showed the mental calibre of the man elected to the position of Mayor. He hoped the year 1912 would be the best in the history of the city, and that all members of the Council would do all that was in their power to make it so.

Ald. Chown proposed the health of the new members of the Council and Aldermen Smith, Slater, McCurdy, White and Lucas responded, each stating that they would do all in their power to promote the city's interests. Ald. Smith said he hoped the meetings would be business-like in their nature and not too much talk, as he was averse to being out too late at night. (Laughter.)

Ald. Bogle proposed the health of the city officials, and the toast was appropriately responded to by Mr. D. Price, City Treasurer; Mr. J. G. Lindsay, City Engineer; Mr. F. D. Diamond, Tax Collector, and Chief of Police Newton. All the speakers spoke in a eulogistic manner of Mayor Vermilyea.

The pleasing proceedings were then brought to a close.

OUT EAR MUSCLES TO AVOID SERVICE.

An Ingenious Device of German Who Wanted to Help Invalid Mother.

BREMEN, Germany, Jan. 8.—In order that he would not be eligible for military service because he was the sole support of his paralyzed mother and a seventy-five-years-old grandmother, whom he kept on his daily wage of thirty-eight cents, Musketeer Hoppe cut off the upper part of the muscles of his ears soon after he was ordered to join the Bremen Infanty Regiment as a recruit. For this the high court-martial of the 17th Army division has just sentenced him to one year imprisonment, the minimum penalty, because in the opinion of the court-martial, it was "child love" which prompted the act. At the same time the court-martial held that Hoppe had an "honorless mind" in having tried to avoid military service by crippling himself.

REVOLT BEGINS IN THE PHILIPPINES

Moros Have Declared War of Extermination Against Americans in the Islands.

MANILA, Jan. 8.—A revolt against American rule is rampant in the Islands of Mindanao and Jolo, and the Moros have declared "holy war" of extermination against soldiers and civilians.

A bloody warfare is being waged and already several citizens of the United States have been killed.

Military officials here learned today that modern fighting equipments have been smuggled in from the Straits Settlements and General Funston has been ordered from Manila to take charge of the situation. At least three hundred native "head hunters" have been killed in jungle fighting.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

CHOSE HIGH COURT.

Clem Ellis, who is charged with the theft of a tie pin from E. Meehan was yesterday brought up before Judge Deroche for election. He elected to be tried at the High Court before a jury. Unles he is admitted to bail the accused will have to remain in jail for some weeks before his trial takes place.

WENT ON HIS WAY.

John Stewart, a stranger in the city, was last evening arrested for being intoxicated. This morning he appeared before the Magistrate and acknowledged the offence, but asked to be allowed to go, as he desired to reach Napanee, where he was going to work. His Worship allowed him to go.

TRENTON WEDDING.

A LITTLE BLAZE.

Meek, Kingston, Grand Representative, will attend a joint meeting of Quinte Encampment No. 19 and Moira Encampment No. 59, and Mr. Branscombe, of Picton, District Deputy, will install the officers of both encampments.

ROADS ARE DRIFTED.

The country roads in this vicinity were to-day badly blocked up and in consequence stages arriving in this city were considerably behind time this morning. The trains, however, werd well on time. Yesterday morning it commenced to snow and continued until an early hour this morning. The beautiful was piled up indiscriminately by a strong wind which prevailed all day and night.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

On Sunday morning, while returning home from church, Mrs. Jesse W. Barlow, who resides on Charles St., was the victim of a painful accident. The lady was walking along Church Street, near the St. Michael's Academy, when she slipped upon the icy walk and fell. In falling the weight of her body came upon the right hand fracturing a bone between the thumb and index finger. The injury is of such a nature as to render the hand useless for some time.

REMANDED TO JAIL.

A young man named Ernest Wilson was arrested last night on a charge of theft. It is alleged that Wilson stole an overcoat from Mr. B. Chesher's place of business on the day that the store was burned, namely, December 11th. The Crown not being prepared to proceed with the case, the accused was remanded to jail until Friday. It is alleged that other parties are implicated in thefts of clothing from the same place.

HIS FORTIETH YEAR.

The re-appointment of Mr. Wm. Johnson and Mr. W. P. Hudson by the City Council yesterday morning at its inaugural meeting as members of the Board of Education completed that body for the ensuing year. This year will be a memorable one in school annals, as during it at least two schools will be completed and probably another. These schools have already so far proceeded in their erection as to give promise of being equal to the best in our province. For the past sixty years the gentlemen who have longest held continuous office have been Francis McAnnany, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Dr. Wm. Hope, Thos. Wills, Wm. Tennent, I. Diamond, Hugh Walker, Rev. Canon Burke and Mr. Wm. Johnson, who yesterday entered on his fortieth year and was for five years the chairman of the Board.

TRAMPS WITNESS A PLAY ON TRAMPS.

Court Theatre Entertains Two Hundred of London's Choicest Hobos.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Two hundred of the city's hobos had the time of their lives on Saturday when Arthur Phillips, the manager of the Court Theatre, gave them a feast.

Mr. Phillips made arrangements to entertain all of the city's destitute men, giving them a fine dinner and also a chance to see the show. The play is Tom Gallon's "The Great Gay Road," and in it Mr. Phillips takes the part of a gentleman hobo.

All joined in a song before the curtain was raised. Then two of the tramps arose and made speeches, in which thanks were expressed, and the speeches were of the most cultured sort. The picture man then came in and took a flashlight photo of the assemblage. Each of the men assumed a courtly pose when the flash went off.

The hobos will write their impressions of the play later on.

Many a fellow who never did anything else in his life is clever enough to have been born with a rich father.

No matter what a man may be, some woman is sure to think he is all right.

It's easy for a girl to convince a young man that she admires him if she doesn't.

AMERICAN JEWS AND RUSSIA

"American Diplomacy Spoke to Russia for Special Interests and Not for the Whole American People," Says Wilson.

(Publishers Press News Service)

New York. — Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, in an interview, says:—
Jersey, in an interview, says: —
"For some eighty years a treaty has existed between this country and Russia in which it is explicitly covenanted and agreed that the inhabitants of the two nations shall have the liberty of entering any part of the territory of either that is open to foreign commerce; that they shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of the territory thus opened to commerce in order to attend to their affairs; and that they shall enjoy the same security and protection as inhabitants of the country in which they are sojourning, on condition of course that they submit to the laws and ordinances there prevailing, and particularly to the regulations there, in force concerning commerce.

GOV. WILSON
of New Jersey

For some forty years the obligations of this treaty have been disregarded by Russia in respect to our Jewish fellow-citizens.

If the Russian government has felt through all these years that it could ignore the protest of American ministers and secretaries of state, it has been because the American government psoke for special interests or from some special point of view, and not for the American people. It is the fact that the attention of the American people has now been drawn to this matter that is altering the whole aspect of it.

A grateful manner, considered even from a sordid point of view, pays. Would you not be inclined to repeat an invitation to the grateful guest who laid stress upon heartful thanks for the pleasure received?

Certainly it is agreeable to be amply thanked, instead of feeling every entertainment is accepted as a matter of course.

CURRENT COMMENT

Belleville's Junior hockey team was off to a good start last night.

So they have "Black and White" in the City Council as well as—elsewhere.

That was a very good imitation of a snow storm which came to an end this morning.

The General System will close those back doors and side doors through which undesirables have, under the Ward System, slipped into the Council.

Says the Peterborough Examiner: —"The wave of temporary political insanity continues to set adversely to Liberal interests in Canada. The pocket edition of a province, Prince Edward Island, after twenty-one years' allegiance to Liberalism, has entered the Conservative fold." How the galled jade winces!

Further official returns record more failures for local option. Besides Barrie Township, which proved a defeat for the movement, Peleo Island turns out to be a loss by a vote of 92 to 61. Emo should have been placed in the list of defeats instead of victories, on account of the three-fifths clause, and Chandos township has not yet reported.

A telegram from New York on the 5th inst said. "There was much interest shown in a wedding performed at the City Hall by Alderman Smith. The participating parties were George E. Richardson of Buffalo, and Miss Leonore Schwartz of New York, and both are blind." Nothing unusual about that. Many thousands of people in many countries annually enter blindly into the marriage relation.

L'Union, the Liberal organ of St. Hyacinthe, has just gone out of existence in its 39th year. A new weekly will be substituted this month under the name of "Le Clarion." What is the trouble with L'Union? St. Hyacinthe is one of the most Rouge counties in Quebec. Is Rougeism declining?

It is good, the scriptures tell us, for brethren to dwell together in unity. How unpleasant it is for brethren to disagree, as even birds in their little nests sometimes do, was exemplified at the inaugural meeting of the City Council, when Ald. Lott impugned the veracity of Ald. Robinson, by hurling at him a little word composed of four letters. The gentlemen in question having been for several years co-workers in municipal affairs and in politics, the public can hardly come to any other conclusion than that they know each other thoroughly.

The Ontario Government evidently appreciates Methodist Ministers. Not long since one of them was appointed Governor of the Toronto Jail. Now the Rev. J. E. Starr has been sworn in by Magistrate Denison as Commissioner and Police Magistrate of the Juvenile Court of Toronto, following which the new appointee conducted his first case. The Children's Court is at present a cramped room in the police headquarters, but very soon suitable accommodation for proceedings will be ready. One law no child shall be confined in a police station before he appears in court. A good beginning.

It is well to have a practical man at the head of the Militia Department, as is evidenced by the practical work of the present Minister in adopting more widespread military training, not merely as a means of defence but for the upbuilding of Canadian manhood. This was strongly urged by Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, in an address delivered before the Chatham Canadian Club last evening on "Canada in the Empire." The development of cadet corps throughout Canada in connection with the schools, said Col. Hughes, was being conducted with a view to laying firm the foundation of later military training.

Bennett, one of the C.P.R. officials who defrauded the company out of sums of money while employed in the refund department, was sentenced to serve two years less one day in the Central Prison, by Judge Winchester. Restitution of the money amounting to $1,333.99, stolen by Bennett, was made by his parents. John McPherson, also implicated in the affair, was sentenced to three months' hard labor in the common jail. McPherson was only 18 years old, and was dealt with leniently on account of his youth. He was in custody a month as he could not provide bail. Men who betray the trust reposed in them as these men did should be more severely punished.

The best immigration agents Canada has ever had are her retired Governor Generals. Everyone of them has upon all occasions when addressing meetings in England extolled this part of the Empire as the place to which those desirous of securing for themselves and their children a home where comfort and plenty could be secured should go. Earl Grey never loses an opportunity to speak well of us. The Earl addressed the Educationists' Conference on the 5th inst., in Newcastle and delivered a warm eulogy of Canadian methods. In Canada, he said, they learned things by the sure way of actually doing them. Her modern methods were largely responsible for the Dominion's prosperity.

Earthquakes, it appears are not to be confined to tropical or semi-tropical climes. Winnipeg, and that, too, with the thermometer down to 30 or 40 below zero, has had a touch of them. The wires on the 5th inst. tell us that on the 4th inst, Winnipeg had three distinct earthquake shocks at St. Boniface observatory, the first lasting three minutes, and the second four minutes. Both these were sharp, but not very strong. The third tremor, which was very violent, occurred at ten o'clock in the evening. Father Blain estimated the earlier disturbance as originating about Nevada, and the evening one probably in the Pacific.

A VICIOUS DRUNK SMASHED WINDOWS

A young man named Gorman who is a stranger in the city at noon to-day to appease a spirit of vengeance, broke three plate glass windows at the Anglo-American Hotel. It appears that Gorman, who was drinking, was around the hotel yesterday, and was ordered out. Just before noon to-day he visited the hotel and was refused liquor He was also ordered out of the house. In going out he deliberately broke a large side light of the front window, and when outside broke both large plate glass windows. The police were notified and were soon upon the scene and placed Gorman under arrest. At the police station he gave his name as Gorman, but would not divulge his first name.

FOOTBRIDGE APPROACH

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir, When by order of the Council the covering over the eastern approach to the footbridge was removed it was, if my memory serves me right, with the understanding that the owner of the building, the roof of which overlaps the approach, was to provide a snow break to keep the snow from sliding down upon the pedestrians who might perchance be passing at the time. This has not been done. In my opinion the Council should see that its request is carried out before an accident occurs.

Yours truly,
PEDESTRIAN.

NEW YORK DOUBLE MURDER.

Aged Couple Slain After Having Been Tortured.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—As a sequel to the finding Sunday afternoon of the mutilated bodies of two aged East Side residents, Isaac Futterman and his wife, Rachael, in their home, victims of a double murder, Etke Futterman, the 40-year-old daughter of the slain couple, was late last night, after several hours' detention in a police station, taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation as to her mental condition.

Search of an apartment where she lived, some distance from her parents' home, revealed, according to detectives who visited the place, a bloodstained shirt waist and various other articles of apparel stained with blood.

The murder is one of the most shocking in details of any since the Guldensuppe dismemberment and the "Jack the Ripper" series of crimes. Isaac Futterman, 80, years old, and his wife, Rachael, 72 years old, were found dead in their rooms at No. 101 Norfolk Street, their bodies terribly mutilated.

The police believe that the aged couple were tortured to death.

INTENTIONS OF GREAT BRITAIN

Two Great Nations Must Not Be Embroiled by Actions of Any Individual, Says British Foreign Secretary.

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — Referring to the Persian question during a discussion of foreign affairs in the House of Commons, the foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, said that the Anglo-Russian agreement was not intended to impair the independence and integrity of Persia. A declaration to that effect had been made to the Persian Government, but, he added, Great Britain was not undertaking any abligation to protect the integrity of Persia.

The Russian Government, continued the Foreign Secretary, had demanded that Mr. Shuster should be withdrawn. The British Government had said that it did not object to that demand, Mr. Shuster's intentions in appointing British officials in Northern Persia were good, but the spirit and intention of the Anglo-Russian agreement could not be permitted to be upset, and two great nations embroiled by the action of any individual no matter how good the intentions were.

BY UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

TREASURER SHUSTER

After what had happened he agreed with Russia's demand that the consent of the British and Russian legations should be obtained for the appointment of foreign advisers to Persia.

In conclusion, Sir Edward said that as Persia was unable to pay any indemnity he hoped Russia would be induced not to press that demand.

Philip Edward Morrell, Liberal, said that a poorer excuse for taking away the independence of Persia than that advanced in the case of Mr. Shuster had never been put forward in the House of Commons. The exact crime committed by Shuster, said Mr. Morrell, was that he did not call at the Russian legation as often as he ought to.

A Frenzied Population

The Teheran correspondent of the Times says that a grave situation has arisen at Shiraz, capital of the province of Fars. The chief mollah, Mirza Ibrahim, has stirred popular fanticism against the British. He has declared that the imperial bank notes are unclean and as a result they are being presented at the bank wholesale for payment, while the shopkeepers refuse to sell even the smallest article to the Indian troops. The leaders of the religious bodies are urgent in their resistance to Russia and they are preaching a holy war. The Cabinet refuses to resign and it is difficult to see how Russia can obtain other than a poor victory against the frenzied population in their present state of mind.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

Cardinal Bourne, England's newest member in the sacred college probably attracted more attention during the consistory at Rome than did any other man. He has long been the Archbishop of Westminster, London, and is universally regarded as England's greatest Catholic churchman. At the vatican he is looked upon as a worthy successor to the English cardinals who have played such important roles in the making of religious and political history. Cardinal Bourne succeeded the late Cardinal Vaughan as Archbishop of Westminster.

PROF. HORNING ON ANGLO-GERMAN WAR.

Toronto University Official Declares Such a Clash Unthinkable.

OTTAWA, Jan. 8.—"Any contribution to these insane naval armaments is a backward step, and we had been careful in Canada," declared Dr. L. E. Horning, Professor of Teutonic Philology at Victoria University, Toronto, in the course of an address on the present day relations of England and Germany, before the Canadian Club at its weekly luncheon.

Dr. Horning is one of the best known students of German affairs on the continent.

Of an optimistic nature were Dr. Horning's remarks regarding the relations between England and Germany. The close relationship of the two great nations in many lines made for peace to a greater extent— than any fiscal differences of trouble with reference to colonization might counterbalance in the direction of war.

"It is not possible to think that these great Teutonic nations with the same high ideals, the same love of home, justice, right and God, and the same high thought, can come to war," he said. They cannot be separate and must be together if they are to continue their parts in the development of the world."

We should forgive our enemies, but we all have a sneaking desire to get square with them first.

No matter where you go, you'll find some one anxious to separate you from your hard earned wealth.

The GOOSE GIRL

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

Synopsis.

Gretchen, a goose girl, meets a mysterious mountaineer and Carmichael, American consul in Dreiberg, kingdom of Ehrenstein. Carmichael loves Princess Hildegarde.

"Very, very much. When they play Beethoven, Bach or Meyerbeer—ach, I seem to live in another country. I hear music in everything—in the leaves, the rain, the wind, the stream."

It seemed strange to him that he had not noticed it at first, the almost Hanoverian purity of her speech and the freedom with which she spoke. The average peasant is ignorant, diffident, with a vocabulary of few words.

"What is your name?"

"Gretchen."

"It is a good name. It is famous too."

"Goethe used it."

"So he did." Carmichael ably concealed his surprise.

He was willing to swear that she was making fun of him. Was she a simple goose girl? Was she not something more, something deeper? War clouds were forming in the skies. They might gather and strike at any time. And who but the French could produce such a woman spy? Ehrenstein was not Prussia, it was true, but the duchy, with its 20,000 troops, was one of the many pulses that beat in unison with this man Bismarck's plans. He was certainly puzzled, but a glance at her hands dissolved his doubts. These hands were used to toil. They were in no way disguised.

"You have been to school?"

"After a manner. My teacher was a kind priest. But he never knew that, with knowledge, he was to open the gates of discontent."

"Then you are not happy with your lot?"

"Is any one, herr?" quietly. "And who might you be and what might you be doing here in Dreiberg, riding with the grand duke?"

"I am the American consul."

Gretchen took a step back.

"What did Colonel Wallenstein say to you?" he asked.

"Nothing of importance. I am used to it. I am perfectly able to take care of myself," she answered.

"What did the policeman say?"

"What would he say to a goose girl?"

"Shall I speak to him?"

"Would it really do any good?" skeptically.

"It might. The duke is friendly toward me, and I am certain he would not tolerate such conduct in his police. My name is Carmichael. Now, listen, Gretchen—if at any time you are in trouble you will find me at the Grand hotel or at the consulate next door to the Black Eagle."

"I shall remember. Sometimes I work in the Black Eagle."

"Good night," he said.

Gretchen extended her hand, and Carmichael took it in his own, inspecting it.

"It is a good hand. It is strong too," he said.

"It has to be strong, herr. Good night."

Carmichael raised his hat again, and Gretchen breathed contentedly as she saw him disappear in the crowd. Suddenly she felt an arm slip through hers. Her head went round.

"Leo?" she whispered.

It was the young vintner whom Carmichael had pushed against the wall that day.

"Who was that?" he asked.

"Herr Carmichael, the American consul."

"Carmichael!" he gasped.

"What is it, Leo?"

"Nothing, only I grow mad with rage when any of these gentlemen speak to you. Gentlemen! I know them all to well. Ah, how I love you!"

"IT MIGHT. THE DUKE IS FRIENDLY TOWARD ME."

Gretchen thrilled.

"To me the world began but two weeks ago. I have just begun to live," he whispered warmly.

"I am sad and lonely tonight," she said gloomily.

"Why, indeed!"

"Leo, as much as I love you, there is always a shadow."

"What shadow?"

"It is always at night that I see you, rarely in the bright daytime. What do you do during the day? It is not yet vintage. What do you do?"

"Will you trust me a little longer, Gretchen, just a little longer?"

CHAPTER II.

FOR HER COUNTRY.

"COUNT, must I tell you again not to broach that subject? There can be no alliance between Ehrenstein and Jugendheit."

"Why?" asked Count von Herbeck, chancellor.

"One of my reasons is that I do not want any alliance with a country so perfidious as Jugendheit. What! I make overtures—I, who have been so cruelly wronged all these years? You are mad."

"But what positive evidence have you that Jugendheit wronged you?"

"Positive? Have I eyes and ears? Have I not seen and read and heard?"

"Your highness knows that I look only to the welfare of the country. In the old days it was a foregone conclusion that this alliance was to be formed. Now, you persist in averring that the late king was the chief conspirator in abducting her serene highness, aided by Arnsberg, whose successor I have the honor to be. I have never yet seen any proofs. Show me something which absolutely convicts them and I'll surrender."

"On your honor?"

"My word."

The duke struck a bell.

"My secretary and tell him to bring me the packet marked A. He will understand."

The duke was frank in his likes and dislikes. He hated secrets, and he loved an opponent who engaged him in the open. It was this extraordinary rectitude which made the duke so powerful an aid to Bismarck in the days that followed. The man of iron needed this sort of character as a cover and a buckler to his own duplicities.

Herbeck was an excellent foil. He was as silent and secretive as sand. He moved, as it were, in circles, thus always eluding dangerous corners. He was tall, angular, with a thin, immobile countenance, well guarded by his gray eyes and straight lips. He was a born financier, with almost limitless ambition, though only he himself knew how far this ambition reached. Twice had he saved Ehrenstein from the dragnet of war and with honor.

The secretary came in and laid a thin packet of papers on the chancellor's desk.

The secretary bowed and withdrew.

The duke stirred the papers angrily, took one of them and spread it out with a rasp.

"Look at that. Whose writing, I ask?"

"FORGERY!" ROARED THE DUKE.

Herbeck ran over it several times. At length he opened a drawer in his desk, sorted some papers and brought out a yellow letter. This he laid down beside the other.

"Yes, they are alike. This will be Arnsberg. But"—mildly—"who may say that it is not a cunning forgery?"

"Forgery!" roared the duke. "Read this one from the late king of Jugendheit to Arnsberg then if you still doubt."

Berlin After Industries.

Berlin, Ont., Jan. 9.—In his inaugural address Mayor Schmalz said: "In these growing times it is of importance that the name of the Town of Berlin—soon to be a city—be kept well advertised. Other places are securing new industries and we should receive our share as well. In order to accomplish this effectively, the appointment of a 'publicity man should be considered and possibly a committee of the Town Council could be selected to deal with all matters pertaining to the proper advertising of Berlin, and the securing for it more factories."

Rev. G. R. Turk Hurt.

Cobalt, Jan. 9.—Rev. C. R. Turk, pastor of Haileybury Methodist Church, and formerly of Toronto, came down to Cobalt to look at some of the curling stones at the Cobalt Rink. He went downstairs in the furnace room and picked out a set, and carried them upstairs to the men's waiting-room. The room was dark, and he stepped backwards after setting down the stones and fell through the trap-door into the cellar. His left shoulder was dislocated. Dr. Jackson attended him at his home in Haileybury.

Crowd Didn't Like Decision.

London, Jan. 9.—"Blink" McCloskey, the American pugilist, and Arthur Harman of London, fought twenty rounds at the National Sporting Club here last night. The referee declared the contest a draw, but the decision was badly received, the crowd favoring Harman. The men displayed much bad blood.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was much quieter, but the prices bid were steady. A fair trade continues to be done in oats for local and country account. There was a good enquiry from European sources for spring wheat flour and as the prices bid were 3d to 6d per sack higher in some cases, a few sales were made. A good business continues to be done on spot for the season of the year. Sales of bran were made for shipment to the United Kingdom at $22.75. The local demand for bran and shorts is good. ### Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 6 were 1700 cattle, 1400 sheep and lambs, 2775 hogs and 250 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 900 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 150 calves.

A feature of the trade continues to be the limited supply of good to choice cattle coming forward. The market for such is strong and the prices have scored a further advance of 25c to 40c per cwt., choice steers selling as high as $6.75. The scarcity of this class of stock is attributed to the increased demand from American exporters thruout Ontario for supplies on account of the fact that prices in the Liverpool and London markets have advanced 1c to 2c per lb. within the past two weeks, owing to the very small offerings.

The supply of medium or common cattle in the local market was ample to fill all requirements, but prices were firmer in sympathy with the above. This being the first good market after the holiday season and the fact that butchers and packers were well sold out of beef, the attendance of buyers was large, including some from Quebec, consequently the demand was good even at the higher range of prices and quite an active trade was done.

The feature of the small meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for sheep and prices advanced ½c to 1c per pound, owing to the small offerings. The demand for lambs was good and prices ruled firm. Sales of mixed lots of sheep and lambs were made at $6 per cwt. Owing to the scarcity of calves the market was strong and sales of good to choice stock were made as high as $15 to $20 each. The Liverpool market for lambs has been much stronger of late and prices are 2c to 3c per lb. higher and sheep, 1½c to 1¾c.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for hogs. Supplies coming forward are ample to fill all requirements and the feeling is firm with sales of selected lots at $7 to $7.10 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 per cwt.; medium, $5 to $6.25; common, $3.75 to $4.50; canners, $2 to $2.50; choice cows, $5.50 to $6; medium, $4.75 to $5.25; bulls, $4.50 to $5.25; milkers, choice, each, $75; common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $5; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.25; lambs, $6.75 to $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $7 to $7.10.

Calves, $4 to $20.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 3700; active and 10c to 25c higher. Prime steers, $7.75 to $8.60; shipping, $6.50 to $7.65; butchers, $5 to $7; heifers, $4.50 to $6.50; cows, $2.25 to $5.75; bulls, $3.10 to $5.60; stockers and feeders, $3.75 to $5.25; stock heifers, $3.50 to $4; fresh cows and springers, choice steady, others $2 to $3 lower, $30 to $65.

Veals—Receipts, 800; active, $5.50 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 1500; active, 15c to 20c higher; heavy and mixed, $6.85 to $6.85; yorkers, $6.70 to $6.85; pigs, $6.60 to $6.70; roughs, $6 to $6.10; stags, $4.75 to $5.75; dairies, $6.50 to $6.85.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 21,000; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 5c higher; lambs, $3.50 to $7.15; a few $7.25; yearlings, $5 to $5.75; wethers, $4.25 to $4.65; ewes, $3.50 to $4; sheep, mixed, $1.50 to $4.

McINTOSH BROS

McManigal On Stand.

Indianapolis, Jan. 9.—Whatever Ortie E. McManibal, the confessed dynamiter knows about the complicity of others beside the McNamara brothers in the blowing up of more than one hundred "open" shop structures in various sections of the country in the last five or six years, is believed to have been related by him in his preliminary story before the federal grand jury yesterday.

Taken from the cell in the federal building, where he had been lodged before daylight, after his secret trip in the custody of Government officials from Los Angeles, Cal., McManigal, confessed accomplice of John J. and James B. McNamara, went before the jurors after his written confession had been presented in detail.

McManigal professes to have personal knowledge of at least thirty of the explosions which destroyed bridges and other structures erected by firms employing non-union men.

Cheaper Power For Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 9.—The City Council at its inaugural meeting here yesterday passed a resolution that, in view of the fact that other municipalities were receiving power and light at rates less than at Brantford, a committee of the council with seven other members be named to enquire into the rates charged in other cities.

Engineer Sothman of the Hydro-electric Commission addressed the council, emphasizing the importance of action by Brantford in view of the fact that Paris, Blue Lake and St. George, immediately west, were clamoring for Hydro-electric power. If Brantford came into the union matters would be greatly facilitated and a power station would be erected outside this city.

To Boost Welland Canal.

Berlin, Ont., Jan. 9.—A large attendance is assured for the meeting called by Mayor Schmatz and Mr. Detweiler for next Thursday afternoon at Concordia Hall, opening at 2.15 o'clock, regarding Canada's inland waterways proposal. The information and the suggestions offered by the committee for a proposed movement have received strong and general approval.

The parties who organized the movement in connection with Niagara power have the matter in hand, and nearly all who attended the first power meeting here in 1902 will be present.

It's easier for a young man to write a satisfactory love letter during courtship than it is to write a satisfactory check after marriage.

GOOD MANNERS

One does not require nowadays the ultra-politeness of our forefathers; it would appear almost stilted and unnatural. At the same time the modern maid and youth are apt to err in the opposite extreme. Lack of courtesy is rather a growing evil, though it is often only the result of ignorance, owing to the transgressor having led such a free and easy life that the importance of manners has been left unconsidered.

Casual Manners

The older generation frequently complains of the treatment of the younger, and the following examples are not uncommon:

Accepting an invitation and throwing it up at the last moment.

Agreeing to meet at a certain time and keeping the other person waiting.

Accepting hospitality, and not troubling to repay by any appreciative and entertaining manner.

Failing to write a line of thanks after a week-end visit—old-fashioned perhaps, but a courtesy no hostess despises.

The New City Council

This body, minus four members, met, organized and gave evidence of how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Alderman Lott, after listening to an appropriate prayer offered by the Rev. Chaplain of the Council for the time being, gave his unvarnished opinion of Alderman Robinson in, if not over-polite language, plain Anglo-Saxon, not to be misunderstood. The idea of a man seeking and securing a seat in the City Council by paying a man to run from poll to poll for the purpose of nominating, so as to secure the seat without a fight, is a unique departure from the old style and tactics of politicians, who may draw an inspiration therefrom. It proved successful in Alderman Robinson's case; why not in others? As Alderman Robinson did not deny the soft, but cutting, impeachment, the charge must be accepted as true. Would it be out of place to suggest that the worthy Alderman secure a patent for the invention? It would not cost much and there might be thousands in it.

PRACTICAL. The Mayor's inaugural address covered nearly every subject with which the 1912 Council will have to deal. In short, it was practical, giving evidence of the Mayor's knowledge of the wants and requirements of the city. All that is required to secure them is money, and lots of it.

RAILWAYS. The entrance into the city of another railway requires more attention and determination of character in dealing with the manner in which the streets are blocked, than was given to the Canadian Northern operations. The present bridge disfigures the beauty of the scenery when looking down the river from the upper part of the city, hiding, as it does, a view of the park and the bay; hence a second bridge of the same character and style would be of little consequence.

A SUGGESTION. It may not be out of place, while considering the advantages which will accrue to the city by securing additional railway facilities, to suggest to the Mayor, as he did not refer to it in his address to the Aldermen, that, in view of the C.P.R. passing through the southern portion of the city, where it is understood a number of tax lots are still owned by the city, that, as in the case of the lots owned by the city in its northern parts, they may increase in value, would it not be well to order a list of unsold lots prepared and posted in a conspicuous part of the Treasurer's and Clerk's offices, not behind the counter, to enable the public or any individual desirous of investing to see and learn where the lots are located, and prevent the making of a little money at the expense of the city by securing them and selling to wives, daughters, sons-in-law and mothers-in-law, which would be highly commendable if properly done. No one should be more anxious to prevent this being repeated by city officials. Is not this suggestion, Mr. Mayor, worthy of your serious consideration? If you have any doubts as to the best way of dealing with this, we make an additional suggestion: consult the Mayor of 1909-10; he might help you out of the difficulty, as experience teaches. Alderman Robinson, looked upon as the watchdog of the Council, and the man to prevent any undue speculation in tax lots, give the subject your practical attention and immortalize your name in the municipal history of the city!

FRONT STREET. The paving of Front Street received the usual attention. The views of The Intelligencer upon the principle on which this subject should be treated are well known and have prevailed in the past. The work is to benefit the whole community; therefore, it should equitably be paid for out of the general funds of the city and not extracted from the pockets of the few who happen to be property holders on either side of the street which is to be paved. Under our present system of selecting Aldermen, the great majority of them own no property on Front Street and consequently hesitate not to impose additional taxes upon those who have. Be this as it may, let us have the work done, and that, too, at as early a day as possible, as the street is, and has been, a disgrace to the city.

THE MARKET. It will be noticed that the Mayor draws attention to the necessity of improvements in the market and suggests a little more "painting" and "decorating." All well enough, but what is wanted is more room and accommodation. Our market is now of sufficient importance to justify a little expenditure in this line.

There are other points in the Mayor's address deserving of notice, which may require a passing reference by and by.

Political Offenders

For the past fifteen years every department of government in Ottawa has been honeycombed with heelers, grafters and offensive politicians. The qualification for office or ordinary day labor was the work done at an election or abuse of Conservatives, thinking, no doubt, that a change was never to take place. A change did take place and now they are reaping their reward, or, as they may deem it, their punishment.

Those of the Public Works Department have been the greater sinners and are to be dealt with first. The Minister of Public Works has begun by ordering an investigation into charges of offensive partisanship against employees of his department at Ottawa.

Some time ago allegations of that character were made against one hundred and fifty men employed mainly at the workshops. Thirty-three of the number were laid off.

There will be an investigation into the remainder, which are the less flagrant cases. To conduct it, Mr. Hector Chauvin, K.C., barrister, of Hull, has been appointed a special commissioner.

In addition to an investigation into the conduct of officials, a general investigation into the management, etc., of each department is to be made. The Department Investigation Committee proposes to begin its labors in the Public Works Department. That, naturally, is the largest spending branch of the service, and offers the greater number of subjects and transactions for investigation and the widest field for suggestions of reform.

Counsel will possibly be appointed from time to time to assist the Commission. The Chairman, Mr. Morine, is busy arranging preliminaries for the enquiry.

SAYS NE TEMERE DECREE MUST GO.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—In deliberate, slow spoken words, twice repeated for emphasis, Rev. W. H. Hincks last night warned the Canadian Government that there must be no juggling or trafficking with the Roman Catholic Church in matters affecting the welfare and moral life of the Dominion.

In his address to the great congregation, which crowded the Broadway Tabernacle, the pastor declared that he had determined with others to "keep at it" until it was manifest to all concerned that in Ontario at least, "they cannot chloroform public opinion, and that the people are prepared to arise above party in their determination to make them bow to British ideals and British law."

"The Ne Temere must go," declared Dr. Hincks, "if half a dozen governments have to go with it."

What Does It Mean?

A telegram from Muscatine, Iowa, Jan. 5th, says: "An effort will be made to raise a $25,000 defence fund for Emmet Flood, of Chicago, national organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and O. C. Wilson, business agent of the Button Workers' Union, and Socialist member of the City Council, according to an announcement by labor officials here. Both men were indicted by the grand jury, charged with conspiracy to destroy property in connection with the button workers' strike."

That there has been an organization and a conspiracy in the United States, among a criminal class, to destroy property and lives has been clearly established in the Los Angeles trials, and this attempt to raise funds to defend those now accused of conspiracy is only following what was done in the McNamara case. Does this not tend to confirm the opinion formed that certain unions are in league with these criminals. If any further evidence were required to establish this charge it is to be found in a telegram of January 3rd, sent from Indianapolis, which says: "National labor officials, affiliated with Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor, were informed two years ago by Charles A. Bookwalter, who, as Mayor at that time, conducted a secret investigation, that John J. McNamara had directed a series of dynamite explosions. This was made known by Bookwalter to-day when he was informed that the Government's investigation here embraced an enquiry into the circumstances of the four explosions directed against Albert Von Spreckels, a general contractor, on account of labor troubles. William J. Berns, who is here in response to a subpoena to testify before the Federal Grand Jury, admitted that his detectives were working on the details revealed in the investigation by Bookwalter and the circumstances that attended the dropping of the inquiry by city authorities."

Swelling It.

"King Lloyd George the First" is the way in which a London morning paper, The Standard, describes the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who started on a continental holiday.

"Mr. Lloyd George," says The Standard, "is travelling incognito. There is something inexpressibly comical in this assumption of royal dignity by the most aggressive Radical politician of the age. Mr. Lloyd George, unwilling to mingle with the common mob, set out on his trip in a special saloon car, reserved for himself and his personal suite, quite after the manner of Imperial and Royal personages. A group of courtiers assembled at the station to bow their adieux to the departing potentate." The Standard concludes its editorial by a reference to the fable of the frog which tried to be a bull and burst.

This putting on of airs by anti-title democrats is not confined to English Radicals. George Dibbs, Premier of New South Wales, went to England a howling republican, and returned to his native land Sir George Dibbs, K.C.M.G. Wilfrid Laurier resented the word "Sir," when applied to him, at a public meeting in Ontario, vehemently declaring that he was a "democrat to the hilt and had no tinpot title." No sooner did he secure office and the power to add a prefix to his name than he became the Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, K.C.M.G., and, not satsified with that, he claimed one step on the ladder of titles higher and added a G.C.M.G., so that this despiser of what he denominated "tinpot titles" now revels in what he formerly denounced and is referred to in the Parliamentary Guide as "The Right Honorable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, K.C.M.G., G.C.M.G., K.C., D.C.L., (Oxon) LL.D., P.C. What does the reader think of that string of titles for a "democrat to the hilt"?

They are all alike. The frog is not a patch to them.

HIS SUIT REJECTED HE USES DYNAMITE, IS POLICE CHARGE

Explosion in Home of Denise Sarrazin is Blamed on Act of Salvatore Rosetti—Meant no Harm, Only Wanted to Scare

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—That, animated by a bitter feeling of hatred the result of scorned love and in a revengeful feeling towards the erstwhile object of his affections, Salvatore Rossetti placed a stick of dynamite with the intention of destroying the home of the girl and incidentally cause her grievous bodily harm, is the story told by the police to explain a dynamite explosion which occurred at the home of 15 year old Denise Sarrazin, 1509 Cadieux Street, late Saturday night.

Salvatore Rossetti contends that, in a playful spirit, he placed what he thought was a large size fire cracker near the kitchen of the home of his unreciprocated love, and that he was the most scared man in the City of Montreal when he heard the volume of the explosion and saw the extent of the damage. Until taken in charge by Captain Neagle, he had been inclined to regard the matter as a good joke, but the humor of the situation failed to apepal to him after he was locked behind the bars and he was a very sober-minded young man when he appeared before Judge Leet this morning and pleaded not guilty to a charge of wilfully destroying property and endangering the lives of several people by the setting off of explosives.

This is the first time in the history of the local police court that such a complaint has had to be drafted, and the clerks in the police court were puzzled as to what charge to lay against the man, and Judge Leet postponed the case to his private chambers so as to give him a chance to study the law and have the charge made accordingly. This offence of dynamiting is covered by Article III of Section 3 of the Criminal Code and carries with it imprisonment for life as a maximum and two yesar as a minimum.

About 11 p. m. last Saturday, the members of the household of Mr. Sarrazin, at 1509 Cadieux street, were engaged in a friendly game of cards. A terrific explosion shook the walls of the sitting room and in the kitchen the partition was absolutely shattered and the stove fell with a crash. Mr. Joseph Cousineau and wife, who were seated in the game, and the Sarrazin family, for a moment were at a loss to explain the phenomenon and thought that the end of the world had come.

They soon recovered from the fright, however, and began investigating. Little Denise Sarrazin then volunteered the information that her caller of the evening had asked her hand in marriage that very night, and upon being refused had waxed angry, and, after pleading for some time, had finally left in a burst of anger and uttering dire threats of vengeance. Denise was used to Salvatore's forceful ways and attached no importance to his threats, thinking them the idle threats of a disappointed lover.

But the connection between the explosion and the departure of Rossetti was soon made when the facts in the case were related to Captain Neagle, and he despatched two constables in charge of Sergeant Dennis to the house of the suspect.

They expected trouble and surrounded the house but Rossetti proved to be rather harmless and was a badly scared boy at the sight of the brass buttons. He followed the officers to the station without the semblance of resistance.

He freely discussed the explosion and told Captain Neagle that he only intended to scare the girl and make her come to his terms. What he failed to explain, however, was how he came to be in possession of the stick of dynamite. To all questions along that line Rossetti would retire behind the excuse that he was not very conversant with the English language but all other queries were thoroughly understood and freely answered.

Rossetti lives on Mance street, past the C.P.R. tracks, and for the last several months has been employed as a navvy on the repair work of the C.P.R. He has had access to the section foreman's supply shanty. But he could not obtain any dynamite from that source. To signal torpedoes a fuse is attached, and the explosion has the same effect on the dynamite as the "giant caps" on the infernal machines.

With this instrument in his coat pocket last night he sat by the girl and pleaded for the acceptance of his attentions.

While the court was drafting out the complaint against him Rossetti leaned out of the dock and asked Official Court Interpreter Viglino what they were going to do with him. He seemed to be in mortal fear of bodily harm and told Mr. Viglino that he had no idea that the small article could make such a big noise.

"God knows I did not want to hurt my girl," he said. "I just wanted to scare her. She broke my heart and I was despondent."

He said that he had had the stick of dynamite in his possession since working at Back River last summer.

He pleaded not guilty to maliciously destroying property and registered the same plea to the more serious charge of attempting to destroy human lives.

The preliminary enquiry was set for the 11th.

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM ALL WRONG SAYS MONTREAL'S MAYOR

Children in Most Cities are Taught Much that they Should Not Know and Little they Should Know—Newest Political Party May Organize With "Free Catsup" as Slogan—Holiday Week Brought Golden Harvest for Hotel Employees

(From our own correspondent.)

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—The modern system of education as practised in the public schools of most cities is all wrong in the opinion of Mayor Guerin, who does not hesitate to point out what, in his opinion, are its most serious defects. In the first place, according to the man who has given Epictetus renewed fame, children in the schools are made to study too hard; an attempt is made to teach a little of everything and as a result nothing is learned thoroughly. Another count in the indictment in the modern school system is that when the children emerge from it they are unprepared and unwilling to do useful work. The boys refuse to learn trades and the girls turn up their noses at housework. "We are now bringing boys and girls out of the common smhools who are taught so much, and think they know so much that they simply won't work with their hands," says the Mayor. "Unless they can get a job where they can sit on a high stool at books or at a typewriter they simply won't work." His remedy is to attempt less teaching of languages and general subjects and more drill in industrial lines and domestic economy. On one point His Honor will undoubtedly have the unanimous support of the school children themselves and that is on his assertion that their tasks should be made lighter.

NO MORE FREE CATSUP

One of the most curious developments of the increased cost of living is now making itself felt here in the loud cry of protest which has been raised by patrons of quick lunch counters over the abolishment of the free catsup bottle. It is even reported that free catsup may become a political slogan through the army of Montreal's hasty eaters who have come to look upon the condiment as one of their inalienable rights of which the trusts are now accused of depriving them. For many years the free catsup bottle has been an important feature of the lunch counters at which an army of workers are accustomed to snatch their noonday repast at a cost of from five to fifteen cents, and the amount which would be sufficient to float a good- would be sufficient t float a good-sized ship. Now, however, the edict has gone forth that because of the increased cost of food there will be no more free catsup served with low priced meals. Persons consuming only a five cent lunch will, if they want catsup, be compelled to pay five cents for it. Consumers of meals costing ten or fifteen cents will receive free of charge a full portion—so-called—consisting of two dabs. Probably no other curtailment of the midday meals, and there have been many of them during the past year, has met with such general denunciation, and already talk has been heard here of the establishment of a political body pledged to give its vote only to such candidates as shall work for the restoration of the free catsup bottle as the first step toward the reduction of the price of food.

BELL BOYS GETTING RICH.

That the week from Christmas to New Year's brought a golden harvest to hotel employes in this city in the shape of tips and presents is indicated by the records of the garnered soils which are more or less complete. So far the record for bell boys is held by an uptown hotel where the average amount collected during six days by each of the uniformed youngsters is reported as being $48. While lower figures prevailed at other hotels it is safe to assume that $25 would not be far from the bell boy average for the first-class hotels. Nobody is willing to venture an estimate on the extent to which Christmas enriched the all powerful clan of head waiters although it is known to be very large. Generally speaking ing the room clerks fared extremely well. An actual list of the gifts received by a popular clerk in a popular hotel included 6 suits silk underwear; 8 boxes cigars; 200 cigarettes; 3 fine neckties; $40 in cash; 1 scarf pin; 5 pounds candy; 2 pocket-books! ceived amounted to $146, while the 1 air cuff links; 1 jar preserved figs. But although this Christmas was a good one for hotel employes, it is of no modern growth. Twenty years ago according to a manager who was then an elevator boy on the only car at the old Windsor Hotel, his average gifts in cash approximated $200. During a period of four years the smallest holiday contributions he re- 6 pairs silk socks; 1 hat; 1 tie clasp; banner week set a high water mark of $296.

THE WORLD'S WORK DEPENDS ON THE WORLD'S DIGESTION

From the captain of industry to the hod carrier—from milady in the auto to the woman with the scrubbing brush—the accomplishments of every one of us depend absolutely on the accomplishments of our stomachs. Backed by a good digestion, a man can give the best that is in him. When his stomach fails, he becomes a weakling.

To this loss of power no one need submit. Right habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise, aided by Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, will restore and maintain the full efficiency of the human mind and body.

Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets contain the active principles needed for the digestion of every kind of food. They go to the assistance of the weakened stomach, and enable the sufferer, right from the start, to assimilate and get the benefit of the food eaten. With this assistance, the digestive organs regain their tone, and soon the use of the tablets is no longer necessary.

If your stomach is not working properly, try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, 50c. at your druggist's. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 145

Throat Becomes Diseased from NeglectinG Colds

THEN CATARRH SETS IN, MUCOUS DROPS INTO THE STOMACH, COUGHING, HEADACHES AND DEBILITY FOLLOW.

That the best method of curing catarrhal disease consists in using Catarrhozone is now freely admitted. Catarrhozone is infinitely superior to cough medicines, tablets, sprays and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough remedies contain opium, morphine and cocaine. With Catarrhozone you take no drugs—you employ Nature's way—just inhale Catarrhozone's soothing healing vapor and relief and cure follow promptly.

WEAK THROAT RACKING COUGH CURED.

"For five years I suffered from a severe bronchitis. A harsh, dry racking cough kept my throat in a raw condition from one year's end to another. Before going to sleep at night I always had a bad attack, and in the morning before each breakfast I suffered greatly. My voice was harsh and raspy, and sometimes I found it difficult to make myself understood. Catarrhozone seemed to soothe and heal from the first day. It cured me, and now I wouldn't think of being without a Catarrhozone Inhaler—it means life to me."

The above experience is related by Mr. Alexander P. Avary of Hamilton, Pa., and proves the effectiveness of Catarrhozone, which will cure every cough, cold, bronchial or catarrhal attack. The dollar size of Catarrhozone contains two months' treatment and is guaranteed. Smaller size 50c, sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

PROMOTERS INDICTED.

Son of Novelist and Associates in Trouble Over Cobalt Flotations.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—On indictments the existence of which were made public this afternoon for the first time, pleas of not guilty were entered in the United States District Court this afternoon by Julian Hawthorne, journalist, promoter; Josiah Quincy, a former assistant Secretary of State, ex-Mayor of Boston, and at present a member of the Transit Commission of Boston; Albert Freeman, a promoter; John McKinnon, treasurer and secretary of the Hawthorne Mining Companies, and Dr. William J. Morton, a nerve specialist of this city. All are charged with misuse of the mails in a scheme to defraud investors in the stock of mining enterprises.

Bail in the case of Freeman was fixed at $25,000; the others were required to give bonds of $10,000 each. All have until next Wednesday to withdraw or change their pleas.

The Post Office Department has been investigating the Hawthorne mining properties for some time and the sealed indictments were returned on Dec. 28 last.

They charge that by the sale of stock in the Temagami-Cobalt Mines, Limited; the Elk Lake-Cobalt Mines, Limited; the Montreal-James Mines, Limited, and the Hawthorne Silver and Iron Mines, Limited, the defendants netted nearly three and a half millions of dollars.

It is alleged that Hawthorne and his associates represented that the mines were being worked profitably and that the dividends would exceed the amount of the total capital of each of the various enterprises.

But the indictments assert these statements were false and the mines, instead of being profitable, never yielded ore in paying amounts.

Mrs. Geo. Boorman, of 906 Selkirk Avenue, Winnipeg, says:—"Pimples and sores broke out all over my little girl's face and hands. They spread, and set up inflammation. In the end her face was one mass of sores! We tried ointment after ointment, but there was no noticeable improvement.

"A neighbor advised my trying Zam-Buk and leaving off all other remedies. I did as she advised. Frequent applications of Zam-Buk soothed the pains and allayed the inflammation, and before long the sores began to look healthier. Gradually every scab and pimple disappeared and the sores were healed completely, leaving the child's face smooth and white as possible.

NOBODY IS PLEASED.

Lord Lonsdale's Tribute to Kaiser Wilhelm Raises Trouble.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The interview with the Earl of Lonsdale, concerning the German Emperor, published in The London Daily News, divides interest with the elections. The German newspapers carry long despatches, quoting Lord Lonsdale, but what comment has been elicited so far is unfavorable, with the recent Anglo-German difficulties fresh in mind.

The Post says that Lonsdale's references to the Emperor's greatness as a general or his genius for flattery were in the forst taste. The Emperor, added the paper, long since realized that he is no Frederick the Great, nor another Frederick William, the great elector, and has announced that if war came, although assuming nominal command of the army, he would refrain to the utmost from interfering with the professional leaders.

The references of Lord Lonsdale to His Majesty's 'anglophilism, says The Post, are insulting, in view of the summer's events.

France Is Uneasy.

Paris, Jan. 8.—The uneasiness felt by French financiers and diplomats relative to Great Britain and Germany is again voiced in the leading article in The Temps. Yesterday concerning the Lord Lonsdale interview on the German Emperor, The Temps regrets these repeated attempts to force the feeling of friendship between the two countries. Lonsdale's efforts in that direction, it says, like others, has failed lamentably and only increases the spirit of bitterness. Germany no longer believes what Englishmen say. On the other hand, the paper points out, the projected augmentation of the German navy strikes a blow at English national security and the English national purse.

"The most glowing words of the Emperor," The Temps says, "will never advance the cause of peace an inch, so long as this national menace hangs over the head of Great Britain."

The newspapers also give prominence to the statement in a German newspaper by M. Pichon, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, that the new year does not augur well for the disciples of peace and that the horizon seems obscured by difficulties and complications.

FOUR ARE DEAD.

Poison Is Suspected In Tragedy In Philadelphia Family.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—Mystery surrounds the deaths of four persons whose bodies, fully clothed, were discovered yesterday in the second storey back room of the boarding-house of Mrs. Bridget Flanagan, No. 1,323 North Twenty-fourth street. Mrs. Flanagan, who was among the dead, was deserted by her husband ten days ago, but was said to have been in fairly prosperous circumstances. She was 38 years of age.

Her daughter Anne Flanagan, aged 10 years, and Joseph Flanagan, aged 15 months, an adopted child, died with her. The fourth body was that of Catharine Murray, aged 18 years, a boarder in the house, who recently came to this country from Ireland. Her room was on the third floor, but she had evidently decided to sleep with Mrs. Flanagan, because of the greater warmth of the latter's room.

The police officials and coroner, who are investigating the case, are unable to determine whether the deaths were caused by coal gas or whether the poison had been administered in milk, of which all four had partaken. The latter theory is supported by the finding of some crystals in an empty milk pitcher. These crystals have not yet been analyzed.

Mrs. Hannah Curran, a sister of Mrs. Flanagan, who came with her family, was also found seriously ill. She was removed to a hospital, where it is said that she is suffering from pneumonia. They are unable to say as yet whether or not she was poisoned.

Crashed Into Pole.

New York, Jan. 8.—Fred Plougher, conductor of a Gravesend avenue trolley car, was killed and five other persons seriously hurt when the car was derailed and crashed into a telegraph pole early yesterday.

The motorman, James Hughes, benumbed with cold, was thrown from his post while the car was taking a curve at high speed and the car went without a driver for four blocks before it jumped the tracks. Conductor Plougher dashed to the forward platform of the car to stop it, but as he reached the controller the car jumped and struck the pole, smashing in the front vestibule. The man was crushed and is believed to have died instantly

Fatality on C.P.R. Crossing.

Glencoe, Ont., Jan. 8.—A double fatality occurred at the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing at North Glencoe Saturday night at midnight, when Henry and Walter Smith were struck and instantly killed by the Canadian Pacific express. Walter Smith, an employe of John Curnoe of London, had arrived by the Grand Trunk Limited Express, which was about three hours late, for a visit to his brother, Henry, a farmer of Mosa.

It is thought that they were heavily wrapped, as the night was very cold, and they did not hear the train. Their horse was killed and the bodies of the unfortunate brothers mangled almost beyond recognition. Walter was unmarried, while Henry leaves a young wife, the daughter of the late William Quick.

MURDER IN NEW YORK.

Old Man and Wife Slain and Mutilated by Fanatic.

New York, Jan. 8.—A case of double murder, found in an east side house yesterday is one of the most shocking in detail of any since the Guldensuppe dismemberment and the "Jack-the-Ripper" series of crimes. Isaac Futerman, 80 years old, and his wife, Rachael, 72 years old, were found dead in their rooms at No. 101 Norfolk street, their bodies terribly mutilated.

The police believe that the aged couple were practically tortured to death, and in the absence of any well-established motive for such a crime, the police think the Futermans were victims of some religious maniac.

Futerman was a retired manufacturer, who had accumulated a small fortune, but he had always refused to leave the east side neighborhood, where he settled when he came from Russia many years ago. He was a zealous church worker and aided in founding a synagogue in his district, at which he and his wife have been regular attendants for many years. The couple lived alone, with three children living in other parts of the city.

One of these, Aaron Futerman, superintendent of a brass factory, discovered the bodies when he called at the house yesterday for his regular weekly visit. He and the police forced an entrance and found the father's body on a sofa and the mother's on a bed, both only partially dressed. There were deep gashes across both faces and bodies, and the eyes of both were terribly mutilated. The nature of the mutilation led the police to believe that it had been begun while the Futermans were alive, and that death had actually been caused by blows over the head which fractured both skulls.

The bodies bore finger prints which police experts took photographs of. The key to the door of their rooms was missing, and a small bag in which Mrs. Futerman is said to have carried money, tied about her neck, and jewelry which Mr. Futerman is said to have worn, could not be found, but the police did not believe that robbery was the motive of the crime. The murderer evidently locked the door behind him and took the key with him and left no trace of his identity except the bloody fingerprints on the bodies.

The son, Aaron Futerman, declared that the murder was a complete mystery to him, for he did not know that his father had an enemy in all the world. He said that what money the murderer could have secured was comparatively small, as his father kept practically all his money in a bank.

A large number of central office detectives were at work on the case last night, but up to a late hour they had run upon no good clue. The police believe that the murder occurred several days ago, as decomposition had set in slightly, the neighbors do not remember seeing the aged couple since January 3.

HON. F. D. MONK

Montreal.

It has been said with a certain amount of truth that the political plums are not always given to the best men of the parties but in the Hon. F. D. Monk — the Minister of Public Works — the Premier has one of the strongest and highest minded public men to support him. Since he was first elected to the House of Commons sixteen years ago Mr. Monk has, season in and season out, attended to his parliamentary duties with that dogged persistency that reminds one of the British legislator who makes politics his religion. Be that as it may this single minded patriot has taken his parliamentary responsibilities so seriously that his large law practice had to suffer and only his sense of duty held him on.

HON. F. D. MONK

Mr. Monk has already convinced those who have come in contact with him in the Department of Public Works that he intends giving his whole hearted attention to his responsible duties.

Frederick D. Monk who was born in Montreal 1856 is the fourth son of the late Judge Monk whose family was originally a Devonshire (England) one, while his mother was of French descent.

After graduating at McGill he was called to the Bar in 1878 and made Q. C. 1893. Mr. Monk was for twelve years a school commissioner for Montreal.

Mrs. RODOLPHE LEMIEUX

Montreal.

While many of the leaders of public life in Canada receive the just credit due to them, their wives, in most instances, are content to keep in the background, though they have done much to inspire their husbands in their work. Such to a large extent is the position of Mrs. Rodolphe Lemieux, wife of the brilliant man who has won for himself a great name not only in this country but in a number of foreign countries where he was sent to represent Canada. But Mrs. Lemieux takes a large interest in the social life of Montreal and Ottawa and many institutions have benefited by her practical interest.

Mrs. Lemieux, who is the daughter of Sir Louis Jetté was married to the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux in 1894.

CHARLES BELL

Calgary

From newsboy to owning one of the finest hotels in Canada is quite a jump, isn't it? Yet that is what Charles Bell has done, and it has not taken him very long either. Born in the province of Kief, Russia, in 1874, he with his parents came to America in 1880 and settled in the state of North Dakota, where they took up a homestead, living there for three years. Young Bell's father, believing firmly in early education, immediately sent his son to school to learn the English language.

In the fall of 1883 the father decided to come to Canada, and moved to Winnipeg, but a calamity overtook the family there, in that the father died after being in the city only a week. Charles and his younger brother then started to support the family, which consisted of a mother, sister and two brothers and himself.

Today Charles Bell is one of Calgary's best known citizens and sports.

Nothing In Alliance Yarn.

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—A prompt, emphatice and comprehensive denial comes from Premier Borden and Hon. Robt. Rogers in regard to the story that they have been conducting negotiations with Roman Catholic archbishops with a view to an alliance between the Government and the heirarchy.

The story is regarded in Ministerial circles as a joke. It appears to have been imagined by an Ottawa man and to have no other foundation than the fact that Rev. Father Burke has been known to pay a couple of visits to Ottawa of late, that Premier Borden went to Montreal in connection with the public health conference, and while there was the guest of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and that on New Year's Day, Hon. Robert Rogers called at the palace of Archbishop Langevin, without, however, seeing the archbishop.

When Premier Borden was asked about the story he said briefly: "It is without foundation."

RECIPROCITY IN ORE

Spokane, Wash. — Resolutions were adopted recently by the Spokane Mining Men's Club, asking Congress to pass a bill for reciprocity on lead and zinc ore products which will admit ore from British Columbia mines to the United States free.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WOMAN PERISHES.

Mrs. Mulholland Catches Fire and Runs Out Into Snow.

Barrie, Jan. 9.—With the thermometer several degrees below zero at an early hour yesterday morning, Mrs. Frank Mulholland of Craigville, a village about ten miles from here, left the house to meet her death partly from burns and partly from exposure.

About four o'clock yesterday morning the young woman made her way down stairs in her night clothes, having slipped on her shoes and stockings and a sweater coat presumably to prepare some food for her five weeks' old baby. While lighting the lamp in the dining-room her clothes caught fire and and, without raising any alarm, the woman left the house, it is supposed, in the hope of putting the fire out. Her mother, finding her daughter was not in the house, awakened the young woman's husband, who located her lifeless body some distance from the house in a field.

Deceased was a woman about 33 years of age, and leaves four children, three boys, the oldest of whom is 6 years of age, and an infant girl, five weeks old. It is said the unfortunate woman had not been in the best of health since the birth of the infant.

Coroner Evans was called, but an inquest was not considered necessary.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Philip Mangano, formerly an interpreter, was electrocuted in Sing Sing Prison, yesterday for the murder of his daughter.

Alfred Ewert of Grana, Man., aged 20, and fourth year student at Wesley College, Winnipeg, has been selected as Manitoba's Rhodes' scholar.

Forrest F. Dryden, son of former U. S. Senator J. F. Dryden, was yesterday afternoon elected president of the Prudential Insurance Co., to succeed his father.

While hunting rabbits, six miles west of Calgary, Alta., on Saturday afternoon, Robt. Boakes, a young Englishman, was shot through the heart and instantly killed.

Suit was filed in the U. S. District Court at Macon, Ga., yesterday to dissolve the American Naval Stores Co. and subsidiary corporations, which has its principal offices in Savannah.

Frozen pipes resulted in gas leakage, which caused an explosion in H. B. Gardiner's office at Brantford yesterday. A window was smashed, and a young lady knocked off the sidewalk by the force of the explosion.

About 7.30 last night fire broke out in the public school buildings at Holland Landing, and although the firemen responded quickly they were unable to save the building, which is a complete loss. The building was insured for $3,000.

Indians Want Lands.

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—The Right Hon. R. L. Borden was waited on yesterday by a picturesque delegation of Indian chiefs from British Columbia, headed by J. M. Clark, K.C., Toronto, their counsel, in the long-standing dispute between themselves and the Government of British Columbia. The dispute, which extends far back of confederation, has relation to the Indian title to the greater part of the lands of that province. The claim of the Indians is that they were the aboriginal owners.

The speeches of the Indians were delivered in their native tongue, and translated to Mr. Borden. Hailing Mr. Borden as the great chief, the Indians declared that they did not want "consideration," but a decision.

The Prime Minister told them that he was a very new chief and that he wished they had given him a statement in advance, so as to enable him to reach a decision.

ARMISTICE IS BROKEN

Successful Revolutionaries Are Advancing on Honan.

Russia Has Demanded That China Recognize the Independence of Outer Mongolia — Peace Negotiations Are at a Deadlock—Pitched Battle Is Expected and Imperialists Are Sending Reinforcements.

Pekin, Jan. 9.—Two important developments yesterday intensified the interest in the situation in China. These were a renewal of hostilities and the demand of the Russian Government that China recognize the independence of outer Mongolia. Revolutionismts from Shansi and Shensi, having recaptured the town of Shenchow, are advancing on Honan, while reinforcements have been despatched to the Imperialists. The armistice has not been renewed, and there is a deadlock in the peace negotiations; so that early fighting may be expected between the opposing forces.

In addition to requesting China to recognize the Kutuktu of Urga, as the monarch of Outer Mongolia, the Russian Government has notified China that the independence of Outer Mongolia must be recognized as concerns internal affairs. The note adds that Russia will assist the Mongolians in maintaining order, and that she intends to build a railway from Kiakhta, Siberia, to Urga. Henceforth, China will not be permitted to maintain military forces or send colonists to Outer Mongolia, but may retain control of external relations. To this note China has as yet made no reply.

To the other powers, however, the Chinese Government yesterday communicated the substance of the Russian demands. Undoubtedly a strong protest will be made by the Chinese Government against the action of Russia, but China is unable to defend herself now or in the future with reference to Mongolia. Hereafter, the Desert of Gobi will mark the Chinese boundary on the northwest.

The statement that Russia will assist in maintaining order in Outer Mongolia, probably means that she will increase the number of troops in that territory, which heretofore have served merely as consular guards. It is believed that several railways will follow the Kiakhta-Urga line, and that much of the country will be developed.

Russia's permission to China to retain control of its external affairs is meaningless, because practically there are no dealings with any country except Russia. The general opinion held here is that the Chinese Government really suffers nothing from the loss of Mongolia, although Russia and the Mongols will probably be greatly benefited. Russia's position in Mongolia is stronger than in Manchuria.

Pekin officials look for British action in Thibet at a later date, as it is believed unlikely that Russia has taken the present step without previously consulting with Great Britain and Japan. Inner Mongolia, so far, has been left undisturbed.

Adopt Gold Standard.

Nanking, China, Jan. 9.—The republican assembly, which is now in session here, voted yesterday the introduction of a gold standard modelled on that of Japan. It also approved a bond issue of 100,000,000 taels (approximately $70,000,000) secured on the internal revenue for five years, with interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

Troops To the Front.

Shanghai, Jan. 9.—A body of 4,000 Cantonese troops has departed by train for Nanking. Five transports are in dock awaiting the embarkation of troops and the loading of supplies and ammunition. It is presumably the intention of the republican cabinet to initiate a movement toward Chinwangtao.

Look for Pitched Battle.

Pekin, Jan. 9.—The armistice between the opposing Imperialists and revolutionary forces has not been renewed and negotiations between the leaders have reached a deadlock. The Government expects and hopes that the revolutionary troops will move northward from Nanking and give an opportunity for a pitched battle on ground favorable to the Imperialists. The lack of funds prevents the Imperialists from despatching to the south a force sufficient in strength to assure the victory on which the Imperialists count to give them the command of the situation.

The merchants of Tientsin are making complaint that the foreign trade of China is imperilled by the needless sidetracking of freight trains on the railroad from Pekin to the coast by Imperial officers.

Stole Currency From Farmer.

Ottawa, Jan. 9.—Six men, from various parts of Northern Ontario, were sentenced yesterday to terms in jail for stealing currency from Jno. McIntyre, a Casselman farmer, who was returning home after working for a few months at Silver Junction, Ont. The men sentenced were Michael Kavanaugh, Francis Cote, Jos. Roylat, Alexander MacKenzie, Thomas Kennedy and Herbert Joyce. The first three were sentenced to three months and the others to one month each.

Pursued by Fire Fiend.

Cornwall, Jan. 9.—Mrs. M. Ross, proprietress of the Rossmore House, destroyed by fire about 18 or 19 months ago, seems to be pursued by the fire fiend. Shortly after noon yesterday the fine double residence at the corner of York and Second streets, owned by her, and occupied by S. Morgan Gray and A. L. Smith, barrister, was discovered to be afire. Mrs. Ross' property was damaged $1,000 or more, and as much damage done to Mr. Smith's furniture.

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED

Eight Others Badly Hurt In a Collision on C.P.R.

Montreal Train Is Run Into by Double-Header From Quebec at St. Vincent de Paul—Latter Was Expected to Take the Siding, But Plunged Ahead Into Train Standing on Main Line.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Four men were killed and eight others badly hurt, while the injuries of still another are likely to prove fatal, in a head-on collision on the Canadian Pacific Railway yesterday afternoon at St. Vincent de Paul.

The collision occurred at 2.20 in the afternoon, when the Montreal train was run into by the train that left Quebec at 8.30 in the morning.

It was a double-header from Quebec on account of the heavy track, and, instead of taking the siding at the station, it went straight ahead and plunged into the engine of the train from Montreal, which was standing on the main line, with the expectation that the train from Quebec would take the siding.

The dead are:

Arthur de Harnais, brakeman, aged 40, Quebec.

Galics Thibodeau, clerk, 22 years old, Lotbiniere.

Elzear Bedard, laborer, aged 45, Maskinonge.

Edmund Diopel, roofer, aged 52, 134 Dufferin street, Montreal.

The injured are:

Didier Dufresne, 33 years old, Three Rivers, both legs broken and serious internal injuries; not expected to recover.

Eugene Lanouette, employe at Mont St. Louis College, aged 48, legs injured and internally hurt.

Alfred Boulet, 15 years old, Quebec, contusions to abdomen.

Joseph Laverdue, Hull, general contusions.

Eugene Bedard, aged 22, Port Neuf, scalp wounds and general contusions.

Ernest Cloutier, aged 60, Three Rivers, right foot smashed.

Severe Comtois, aged 58, St. Barthelmy, right leg broken.

Andre Caron, aged 56, Three Rivers, general contusions.

O. Frechette, conductor, 43 years of age, Quebec, right foot cut off at ankle; compound fracture of left leg; severe scalp wounds.

James Hamilton, engineer; 23 years of age, Outremont, both legs broken and serious internal injuries.

It is stated that the cold weather was the cause of the wreck. The engineer of the first engine on the double-header from Quebec said that when approaching the siding at St. Vincent de Paul, he applied the air-brakes as usual. He suddenly found that they were not responding and made wild signals to the engineer of the second locomotive to use his air-brakes. But by this time the train was too close for effective application, and, apparently, the engineer on the second engine didn't discover what the trouble was until it was too late. The Quebec train did not slow down, but smashed into the waiting train from Montreal at twenty miles an hour.

The front engine of the double-header was a light one and the second a powerful locomotive. The lighter engine was badly damaged, but the other was scarcely hurt. The two front baggage and mail cars came out without serious injury, but the impact was so great that the third car, buckled in the middle and was partly telescoped.

It was here that the three passengers were killed. The brakeman, DeHarnais, was caught between the third and fourth car and crushed so badly that he died shortly afterwards.

Appeals For Quick Sentence.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The desire of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, who has confessed, to have the degree of his punishment for the murder of his sweetheart, Miss Avis Linnell, fixed by the governor and council, rather than by a court and jury, will find its first legal expression this afternoon, when the young Virginian will ask the Suffolk County Superior Criminal Court to accept his plea of guilty, as charged in the indictment.

While Judge Sanderson has the option of accepting the plea and pronouncing the death sentence at once, or holding it in abeyance until satisfied of Richeson's mental condition, it is to Governor Foss that Richeson's counsel will go with the confession itself, as their strongest argument for clemency and ask that the life of the clergyman be saved.

Rev. R. I. Felgate Murdered.

Shanghai, Jan. 9.—Word has reached here that the Rev. R. I. Felgate of the China Inland Mission at Mokanshan, Province of Chekiang, has been murdered, it is supposed, by robbers.

Toronto, Jan. 9.—The official list of missionaries attached to the China Inland Mission does not contain the name of Rev. R. I. Felgate. A. Langman and wife, according to the list, are stationed at Mokanshan.

Meat Packers In Collusion.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—A letter showing alleged collusion between Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. in bidding for the annual meat contract of the Old Soldiers Home at Togus, Maine, Nov. 6, 1905, was introduced in evidence yesterday by the Government in the trial of the ten Chicago packers charged with criminal violation of the Sherman law.

A Coaster Brake Trust?

Buffalo, Jan. 9.—That a trust without a name has secured control of 90 per cent. of the business of manufacturing and selling coaster brakes for bicycles and motor cycles and a large percentage of other bicycle accessories and thereby has violated the Sherman anti-trust law, is charged in indictments handed down by a federal grand jury here yesterday.

JAILED FOR BIG THEFT

John McNamara Charged With New Westminster Robbery.

"Australian Mack" of San Francisco Is Taken In Charge by New York Detectives on a Warrant Alleging That He Broke Into Bank of Montreal In B. C. City and Made Away With $375,000.

New York, Jan. 9.—John McNamara of San Francisco, known to detectives of half a dozen cities as "Australian Mack," was arrested here last night by central office detectives on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $375,000 from the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B.C., which was dynamited on Sept. 14. Eleven hundred dollars was found in his wallet and detectives are searching the city for $240,000 of the bank's funds which he is believed to have brought to New York with him.

For ten days McNamara has been under the shadow of the police here. For more than two months he has traveled over the United States and Canada with his pursuers apparently without suspicion that he was watched. Police headquarters here first learned of his arrival in New York through a tip that efforts were being made by someone to exchange a large amount of Canadian money for American currency. The police shadowed the money brokers and the men who approached them and the trail of the latter, they said, led them to McNamara's lodging-house. None of the money, however, was found there and none of the bank's bills were upon his person.

Exchanges for McNamara's arrest have been under way between the police here and the Canadian authorities. They ended yesterday afternoon with the issuance of a warrant by Chief Magistrate McAdoo. Four detectives surrounded McNamara on the street in Harlem late in the afternoon and placed him under arrest. He submitted quietly and asked to see the warrant. After he had read it he smiled and said:

"I am greatly relieved, I thought it was some serious charge."

In addition to larceny McNamara is charged with dynamiting the bank's safe and binding and gagging a Chinese watchman employed by the institution. McNamara joked with his captors when they urged him to confess. He admitted, the police say, that he was in British Columbia at the time the bank was robbed and that he had lived at the Strand Hotel at Vancouver afterwards.

McNamara will be arraigned to-day. Assistant Police Commissioner Dougherty said last night that the British consul here coincidently would ask for his extradition to Canada.

For nearly fifteen years, the police assert, McNamara has been known to the police of this country. His picture, they say, is in the rogues' gallery here and in Washington, Louisville and Chicago.

The crime with which McNamara is charged, the police say, was committed by four men, who entered the New Westminster branch of the Bank of Montreal on the night of Sept. 14 and, after binding the watchman and dynamiting the safe, departed so heavily laden with loot that they wrapped it in pillow slips and sheets and had to use an automobile to get away. They dropped a $5,000 bundle of bills in their haste, and finding that they had more than they could carry, hid $24,000 in gold and bills under a wooden sidewalk in New Westminster. Two hundred and forty thousand dollars of the stolen money was negotiable, lacking, however, the signature of the bank's officials. A world-wide warning was sent by the bank to other banks to be on guard against receiving this money.

This warning bore first fruit six weeks after the robbery, when a bank at Buffalo received $4,000 in the stolen bills, deposited, the police say, by a pool-room keeper. The bank is said to have asked the depositor where he got it, and upon his failure to give an answer identifying the men who gave it to him, the money was confiscated.

Daughter Is Arrested.

New York, Jan. 9.—The police yesterday gave up any further search in connection with the murder of Isaac Futterman, aged 80, and his wife Rachael, aged 72, who were found dead in their East Side flat Sunday. At headquarters it was declared that the police were satisfied with the detention at Bellevue Hospital of Etka Futterman, the 40-year-old daughter of the murdered couple, who, the police say, is acting in an insane manner.

When Police Inspector Hughes asked her yesterday what she thought of the mutilation of the bodies, she replied:

"Why, I suppose doctors cut people up, don't they?"

"Did you kill your father?" the inspector asked. The woman replied: "If I tell you that I suppose that you will cut me up, too."

River Seine Rising.

Paris, Jan. 9.—The River Seine, which was already much swollen by the continuous heavy rains of the past week, is again rising, although there is no immediate danger of a repetition of the great flood of January, 1910, when an enormous amount of damage was done.

The hydrometric service yesterday announced that there will be a further rise of three feet in the level of the water during the next 48 hours. Th steamer service between Paris and London has been suspended, as the vessels cannot pass beneath the bridges.

London Man Killed.

LAURIER IS DITTER.

He Assails Borden Government at Montreal Meeting.

Montreal, Jan. 9.—The Monument National, the scene of former triumphs of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was crowded last night, and for an hour and a half he evoked enthusiasm, asserting that he was in no way embittered by the defeat of last autumn, that he accepted it as the will of the people and that he only assumed the lead of the Opposition at the urgent request of friends. Once again the former Premier reiterated his adherence to the old program of Liberalism, which he declared to stand for the prosperity that marked the past fifteen years and once more he stated that he was neither Imperialist nor Nationalist, but simply Canadian.

The Government came in for some criticism, though chiefly in relation to the Nationalists, and the speaker spent a good deal of his energy in hitting at Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Monk, and the latter's position in regard to the navy.

The meeting, under the Association of Young Liberals, was presided over by Victor Beique, and on the platform with Sir Wilfrid were several of his late Ministers, including Hon. Sydney Fisher, George Graham, William Mackenzie King, also Messrs. Mederic Martin, R. W. Bickerdike, D. Lafortune, Roch Lanctot, Charles Marcil, M.P., Leon Garnau, L. Gauthier, M.P., Oscar Gladu, Victor Geoffron, ex-whip; Severin Letourneau, Ralph Smith, M.P., Charles Murphy and others.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King touched on the recent provincial elections in Ontario and marked two things that had been responsible for making the fifteen years Liberal regime famous, namely, the prosperity of the country and the personality of the chief.

Sir Wilfrid, who was the recipient of a couple of bouquets from a little girl and boy, and who was received with prolonged ovations, declared: "Never were our convictions more firmly founded than now. And what of our opponents? Already those who were victorious are experiencing regret and uneasiness of conscience, on account of the violated promises, troubles which began the day after victory was attained and which will more manifest as the days go by.

"Those who were to repeal the naval law and who pretended that they were serious, have already shown what their promises were worth, and you have seen during the past three months what they have done. You know I do not exaggerate when I say that what they have done has been to organize patronage and satisfy place hunters, and these are the people; who abused me and my friends for such things, while they themselves are the greatest corrupters Canada ever saw. It has been a formidable debauch of office-seeking. And their promises before the elections, what has become of them? What about their principles which they said they would follows? Those principles have gone and the naval law will perhaps be abolished at doomsday."

Montreal May Build Tubes.

KAISER FRIENDLY TO BRITAIN DECLARES LORD LONSDALE

Germany Has No Earthly Intention, and Never Had Any Intention of Attacking Britain

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Lord Lonsdale, whose intimacy with the Kaiser is well known, has just returned from a visit to His Majesty at Potsdam. In an interview to-night Lord Lonsdale sought to dispel the idea of German hostility to England, basing his views on what he saw and heard in Germany.

Lord Lonsdale said he could not possibly repeat anything the Kaiser had said, but he could tell thousands of things which would astonish Englishmen respecting the Kaiser's warm feelings for England and the English generally. He was quite sure that the Kaiser is able to understand the position which Great Britain took toward Germany in the Morocco business.

Knowing as he does exactly what the Kaiser's views are in regard to war, Lord Lonsdale profoundly disbelieves that there is any ground for a German scare in this country. Of course, he says, there is the strongest trade rivalry, but otherwise the Germans regarded the English as allies rather than enemies.

But, continued his Lordship, the feeling has now gone beyond trade rivalry in consequence of Lloyd George's amazing speech when the German gunboat, Panther, arrived at Agadir. That speech, he said, created such an effect in Germany that it will take many years to live it down. If the Kaiser had not been resolved not to have war with England, it would, said Lord Lonsdale, have been very difficult for any German Cabinet to have resisted the popular indignation at the speech, but the Emperor would do anything rather than create a war.

In conclusion, Lord Lonsdale said: "I defy anybody to prove me wrong when I say that Germany has no earthly intention, and never had an intention, of attacking England."

TIED DOWN.

20 YEARS' SLAVERY—HOW SHE GOT FREEDOM.

A dyspepsia veteran who writes from one of England's charming rural homes to tell how she won victory in her 20 years' fight, naturally exults in her triumph over the tea and coffee habit:

"I feel it a duty to tell you," she says, "how much good Postum has done me. I am grateful, but also desire to let others who may be suffering as I did, know of the delightful method by which I was relieved.

"I had suffered for 20 years from dyspepsia, and the giddiness that usually accompanies that painful ailment, and which frequently prostrated me. I never drank much coffee and cocoa and even milk did not agree with my impaired digestion, so I used tea exclusively till about a year ago, when I found in a package of Grape-Nuts the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

"After a careful reading of the booklet I was curious to try Postum and sent for a package. I enjoyed it from the first, and at once gave up tea in its favor.

"I began to feel better very soon. My giddiness left me after my first few days' use of Postum, and my stomach became stronger so rapidly that it was not long till I was able (as I still am) to take milk and many other articles of food of which I was formerly compelled to deny myself. I have proved the use of your statement that Postum 'makes good, red blood.'

"I have become very enthusiastic over the merits of my new table beverage, and during the past few months have conducted a Postum propaganda among my neighbors which has brought benefit to many, and I shall continue to tell my friends of the 'better way' in which I rejoice." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

LITERARY NOTES

CRYSTAL GAZING.

There are people as is well known, so peculiarly endowed that if they look steadily into a crystal, a bowl of water, or any substance with a reflecting surface, they are able to perceive in it pictures of persons, places and other objects, and frequently with great distinctness. The common tendency has been to look upon this ability as indicative of some superhuman action.

As soon as scientists began to scrutinize crystal hallucinations it was noted by them that nine times out of ten, the images in the crystal represented memories in the seer's mind, albeit perhaps memories of occurrences only subconsciously experienced. So true is this that we find one member of the Society for Physical Research, a lady who has deliberately cultivated the gift of crystal gazing, for the purposes of scientific investigation, often having recourse to the crystal to recover forgotten memories of more or less importance to her—names, address, etc.—H. Addington Bruce in January "Hampton."

JUNIOR HOCKEYISTS WON DECISIVELY

The Local Boys Played a Fine Game and Beat Picton 12 to 6

Belleville has a junior hockey team of which it naturally feels proud, and has every reason to do so. The boys, who are all Bellevillians, are certainly a husky lot and play hockey for all it is worth. Each member of the team vies with the others in playing the game as a team, and not as individuals, as is too often the case with teams. The forward line, composed of Whalen, Wallace, Wilson and Finkle, play a fine combination which is telling in effects. Fitzgerald in goal is all that could be expected for a junior, while Tuite at point and Moore at cover point defend well their positions.

The team went to Picton last night to play the first game of the series in this district. While it was anticipated by many that our boys would prove to be the victors, it was not expected that they would administer to the Pictonians such a defeat as they did. The final score was 12 6 in favor of Belleville. At half time the score was 7 to 3 in Belleville's favor, and in the second half the Picton players found the net but thrice while their opponents scored 5 goals. There was a large crowd of spectators present, but the result of the game did not by any means please the great majority present.

Mr. E. V. Illsey, manager of the Standard Bank at Trenton, was referee, and he was the right man in the right place. With his assistance the game was clean and a good exhibition of the game as it should be played was given. There was much rejoicing in the city amongst hockey enthusiasts when the result of the match was announced. The local players did not arrive home from Picton until this afternoon.

Much interest is being taken in the game here to-morrow night when the Juniors will cross sticks with the Frontenacs of Kingston. A good game is anticipated.

The line up was as follows:

SEES NO GOOD IN THE PROPOSALS FOR CHURCH UNION

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—Addressing the congregation of Crescent Street Presbyterian Church yesterday, in connection with the ballot which is to be taken this month on the question of Church Union, the Rev. Dr. Scott pointed out objections to the proposed union. He mentioned that he was not speaking from the negative point because of any sectarian prejudice, for, if circumstances demanded it, he could heartily join either the Congregational, Methodist or Anglican Church. It was his convictiion, however, that the churches could do their work best each in its own way.

He was of the opinion that the denominations of the Protestant Church are dishonoring their Lord and weakening their own influence by the constant whining about "unhappy divisions" instead of proclaiming that we are one army with different regiments under one King. We would strengthen our position immensely in the eyes of the world and in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church. All the leading Protestant denominations have had their origin in the struggle for some principle of liberty for which men were willing to sacrifice, and to these sacrifices the world owes the civil and religious liberty which it enjoys to-day. These divisions have almost invariably been twice blessed, blessing those who separated themselves, as all sacrifice for conscience's sake must do, and awakening to new life the churches left behind.

By the universal establishment of the principle of Roman Catholicism, denominationalism may be abolished; but, he stated, Rome represses thought. It does not permit people to think for themselves. One head thinks for and controls that Church and so uniformity is obtained and the Church thus becomes a vast machine. Protestantism, on the other hand, fosters thought and teaches that men are free in Christ.

All history shows that lands dominated by one religious body have been and are spiritually dead. The different Protestant denominations had done more on the whole for Canada than any one of them without the other would have done. Many bodies won and held more men and women than any one type could do alone. As an instance he stated that the Salvation Army were successful in winning those whom all other churches had failed to attract. On reaching this new land, Scotch Presbyterians and English Methodists looked to joining their own church.

He did not consider that the Church would benefit from the financial and business point of view by Union, although this was an age of business mergers. Business and the Church, however, could not be put side by side, as businesses were under definite control, which could unite at pleasure, but congregations were free. The points of overlapping of the various denominations at home and abroad were dealt with by Mr. Scott, and in concluding his address, he prophesied failure for the Union movement, as he was of the opinion that the minority of seceders would continue to carry on their respective churches. He advised his hearers to vote for the negative for an union which would really mean disunion.

Rev. Dr. Clarke will speak next Sunday from the affirmative point of view.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE ROSARY"

In "THE ROSARY, which comes to Griffin's Opera House to-night, Edward E. Rose, the author of the play, has taken an average set of people, and shows you first their outside; then deftly, subtly, with careful strokes and a firm hand, he takes you within the brains and mind of each character. You even see the result of their thinking.

How does it all end? Ah! that is too long to tell here, but he is brought to a knowledge of the supreme law of life by a priest, a modern priest, not of conventional stage character, but a real man, a big man of faith, strength and conviction, whose eyes see clearly and whose spiritual power is the moving force of the play.

This beautiful play had a four months' run in Chicago and was the sensation of the season in New York where it was played at the Garden theatre. Mr. John Meehan will be seen in the role of "Father Brian Kelley" here. Prices 25c., 50c., 75c., and $1.00.

THE CURE

By Albert Cleeve

Dara sat at the window looking out into the sunny street. The sky in places was as blue as any she had ever seen above the Riviera. The night before she had come back to her old home after having passed many years in foreign countries. She had gone to seek a cure and had not found it, for Dara had had an experience in love that had changed and spoiled her whole life.

She was a girl of twenty when Walter Kent came to Westmore to preach. He was just out of the seminary with the college interest still strong in him. He made friends with all the young people. There was not a girl in Westmore who did not admire him. After a while he singled out Dara for his special attention. Dara was elated and happy. She, too, was under the spell of the young minister's face and manner. She loved him. She began to dream dreams of the future and make little secret plans.

That fall Edith Mahan came home. Dara had known Edith in their childhood and now they resumed their friendship. People smiled at their intimacy. They said Dara Connell had better look out. If she did not Edith would get Walter Kent away from her. Finally that was what happened. Looking back now with the reasonableness of maturity, Dara could see how Edith had tricked her to win Walter Kent for herself. One day the truth came out.

Edith confided it. She was going to marry Walter Kent herself.

Before Dara had recovered from the shock of her revelation her father old Dr. Connell, died. And then Dara closed the house. She started out rather blindly. In New York, she joined a party of Cook tourists who were starting for Naples. She had plenty of money. The years slipped away. One day it came to her that she might as well go home.

She wrote to Johanna, the old German woman, who had been her servant, and had been left alone in the old house as caretaker. So it was last night when she arrived.

She got up and began to walk about the room. A great slab of mirror upon the wall caught her reflection at every turn. She realized that if Europe had not cured her wound it had at least hidden it away gracefully. The shy, rather awkward young girl had become a noble woman.

As she stood there the door bell rang, and she heard Johanna going to answer it. She had not expected visitors so soon. Of course she had known that Johanna would tell every one she saw that her mistress was coming home. Without any ceremony of announcement Johanna simply opened the door and let the visitor in. Then she withdrew. The woman stood waiting for Dara's recognition. She was small and faded. Her clothes had a look of not belonging to her. Against her shoulder she held with difficulty a large whimpering baby.

"I had to bring him," she panted in apology. "Dara, don't you know me?"

Dara braced herself against the shock of recognition. "Edith Ma—Edith Kent?" she exclaimed. Then out of her womanliness she bent over the little woman and kissed her, urged on by something pathetic in Edith's haggard eyes.

"Are you glad to see me, Dara?" she asked.

"Of course I am. But you mustn't stand holding that baby another minute. Let me take him. There! Sit down—relax. You do look so tired."

"I am," Edith said, obeying gratefully.

The baby had begun to cry. Dara touched a bell on the table, and Johanna appeared. Dara gave the baby into her arms.

"Take him away, Johanna," she commanded. When the German woman had obeyed she turned to Edith. "Now we can talk. Johanna is a good hand with children."

"I know she is. You don't care for babies, do you, Dara?"

"Why, I don't know. I've never had any intimate acquaintance with them. I suppose it makes a difference whether or not one is used to them."

"Yes, it does." There was a listless monotony in Edith's voice. As she spoke her eyes sought over Dara's ample perfection hopelessly. "I've had seven. I buried two; that makes five living. This baby's dreadfully cross most of the time. I actually dread taking him out. But there's no one to leave him with at home."

"If I had been you," pursued Edith, "I'd never have come back."

"Wouldn't you?" Dara was growing more and more bewildered.

"Not to Westmore. It's so dull, especially for a minister's wife. I'd rather be back in the convent. It's terribly wearing. And then one's household and a baby every now and then and a husband who's no better than a baby."

She had some swift mental pictures of the manse overrun with children like this heavy headed baby, of a half sick woman toiling dejectedly to keep the home going, of a soul worn man grinding out sermons in the dingy study at the head of the stairs. And she shuddered uncontrollably. She was very glad when at last Edith went away.

In the parlor Dara stood perfectly still, pondering and gazing at Edith's chair as if her weary, frail, comfortless body still filled it. A rumpled bit of white lay on the cushion. She picked it up and smoothed it out. It was a square of fine linen smelling faintly of sachet and monogrammed. In the centre was a hole! Dara caught her breath. To think of Edith Mahan carrying a ragged handkerchief. Edith who had always prided herself on being absolutely correct to the last detail!

Dara turned away and dropped the tell-tale bit of linen upon the table, and it seemed to her that she laid down with it all the years of heartache and disappointment she had known. The streak of sunshine that lay on the faded Brussels carpet, brightening it, seemed to brighten her future as well. She knew as well as if a charm had been said over her that the past was past. She had found the cure.

A FOOLISH QUARREL

By Joseph Barlow

The Sun Fairies and the Rain Fairies had a quarrel, because each said that they themselves were the most useful, and it grew so hot between them that they absolutely refused to work together as they were always meant to do.

So the Rain Fairies betook themselves to the West, where they felt quite at home, and sulked there among the beautiful mountains; and the Sun Fairies went to the Prairies, which they had rather neglected for some time past, and neither of them would so much as cross the Border to go either West or East.

Now the people of British Columbia are so well acquainted with the Rain Fairies that at first they took no notice of the constant showers, but when weeks and weeks went past without a gleam of sunshine, and every day was wetter than the one before, they became rather gloomy and said to each other, "This is the worst season we have ever had!" By and by they grew alarmed, and the farmers said, "If the rain doesn't stop we shall have no harvest," and the gardeners said, "This weather is spoiling the flowers, and there will be no fruit in the garden," and the children said. "It's no good having holidays when we can't go out and play. Oh! don't you hate the rain!" But the Rain Fairies took no notice, for they were still sulking, and when people sulk they don't care what anyone says of them.

Soon the country was laid waste, for the rivers overflowed and the fields were under water. A great many cattle and sheep were drowned, and the water came into the houses and made everything damp and unhealthy. And then the little children got ill, and the old people had rheumatism, and food was terribly dear, and a great many people were out of work. In fact it was the saddest, gloomiest summer that poor British Columbia could remember, and all because the Rain Fairies had quarrelled with their relations.

And in the meantime the Prairie was not much better off. When the Rain Fairies took their departure at first the people rejoiced, for everyone loves the sunshine, though it is possible to have too much of it. Day after day the sky was blue, and the golden Sun Fairies danced happily through the sweet air. The flowers bloomed, the fruit swelled, the harvest began to grow ripe, old people sat in their gardens rejoicing in the heat, and the children played and shouted from morning till night.

But all this happiness came to an end at last. The people got sick of the long, hot days, the cloudless skies, and the stifling air. The corn stopped growing, and the fruit shrivelled on the tree; the grass and the flowers were burnt up, and birds and beasts died for want of water. The country was bare and brown and shadeless, for the trees, getting no moisture either above or below, dropped their leaves as if it were autumn, and in the towns the dry, parched streets were almost empty, for no one walked in them unles they were obliged, and water was so scarce that the children could only have a bath once a week. Many people fell ill, and the doctors were going about from house to house both day and night. It was a terrible time.

At last the King of the Sun Fairies, who had really a kindly, bright nature, and saw things sensibly when he took time to think about them, came to the conclusion that he had made a great mistake. He sent a stray sunbeam hurriedly to Columbia to summon the King of the Rain Fairies, as he had something very important to say to him.

The Rain-King obeyed the summons reluctantly and met his shining brother with a dark and stormy face.

"What is it?" he said gruffly.

The Sun-King spoke gently.

"Brother, I wish to tell you that I feel we have made a mistake. Nay—listen!" for the other rose in a gusty way as if to depart. "I acknowledge that I have been in the wrong quite as much as you. More so, perhaps, for I am the elder, and ought to have known better. Our quarrel was a most foolish one. What was the use of arguing as to which of us is the more useful? We are equal, for the people of the earth require us both. The country where I chose to reign alone is suffering terribly from the drought and everyone is sick of the sight of my face. What has happened in yours?"

The Rain-King lifted his head, and the drops on his cheeks looked like tears. He had a soft heart under his stormy manners, and he also was feeling rather ashamed of himself.

"The land is lying desolate," he said sadly, "and the people are weary of me and mine."

The other sighed. "I fear we shall never be able to undo the ill we have done by our silly squabbling, but at least our folly is at an end. Let us forgive each other and work together for the good of the earth, as the Great Master always intended us to do. I will take my sunbeams to the North and you shall bring your cool showers Southward."

So the two fairies embraced and kissed each other. The Sun-King wept tears of joy, and when the people on the earth looked up they saw a glorious rainbow, but they did not know that the cause of it was two foolish fairies making friends.

And this is why Canada grows the best grain and the finest apples in the world.

THE CHAPERONE

By Diane Robson

Mrs. James Dix was looking out across the Rue de Rivoli at the morning's brightness of the Tuileries Gardens, when the boy in the hotel lift brought her a cablegram.

It was a message from her lord and master in Chicago declaring that her immediate presence was required. At once all the brightness faded out of the Tuileries; for the frivolous gaiety of Paris had been especially attractive to this portly, easy-going, good-natured matron of the West.

"But mother, you'll have to go alone. It'll be a whole month before my singing lessons are finished, you know," broke in Elya, who was having her flaxen hair shampooed by a real Parisian hardresser.

Mrs. Dix clasped her ring-bedecked, pudgy hands. She always clasped her hands when she agreed about anything.

"You'll have to have a chaperone, of course, dear," she added. "Now, who can we get on such a little notice?"

There was silence for a moment, while the deft fingers of the hairdresser ran through the flaxen hair with a soothing touch. Then Elya's girlish voice sounded in a delightful treble:

"Oh, mother! I know the very person. She's terribly nice and awfully ladylike." (Elya always emphasized her adverbs, and used indiscriminate ones, at that, "and she's an American, and that's the best of all—nouch!" In her eagerness she'd turned her head a bit too suddenly and some soap had gotten in her sapphire eyes.

"Oh, I know who you mean," helped out Mrs. Dix, while her daughter struggled with the soap. "You mean Miss Clemmens the governess to that little English boy who died last week? Yes, she's looking for another engagement, that's true. And she certainly is a lady."

So Miss Dorothy Clemmens, of New York, was engaged to chaperone Elya Dix for a month in Paris, and then bring her back to America.

To console herself for her mother's departure, Elya had Miss Clemmens secure tickets for that night's opera. She sat in a box, in her young beauty, set off by a $200 Paquin gown, and serenely allowed the audience to stare.

Already she was learning that the mission of the beauty is to support modistes and to be stared at. Behind her, robed in some soft, inexpensive gray stuff, with a narrow white lace collar sat her chaperone.

The opera was "Siegfried," the scherzo of Wagner's great symphony, as Lavignac has called it. Upon Miss Clemmens' music-parched soul (she'd not heard an opera for over a year) it fell like gracious dew and fetched a sweet refreshment. When the orchestra tells the mood of Siegfried in the second act, feeling the first fret of awakened passion, her eyes shone like stars, her lips parted slightly and just at that juncture a man in the audience caught her perfect profile as she leaned slightly forward.

That same look, downward and sidewise and smiling! That exquisite head in its cloud of wavy dark hair! Paul Demarest brushed away the years that had blurred it all, and then suddenly he remembered. Yes, he remembered. Oh it was so long ago, so many years ago!

And she was in the same box with that gay little butterfly, that American flirt, Elya Dix. Bless Elya Dix! — it was the first time he had ever felt grateful to her. He would make his way to her box at the end of the second act.

"Why, Mr. Demarest! I'm awfully glad to see you — I honestly am! Thought you'd forgotten me. And I'm all alone now — mother sailed unexpectedly for home this morning, and I'm all alone now." Elya greeted him in her young, untamed effusiveness as he entered the box.

"All alone?" he questioned gravely.

"Well, there's Miss Clemmens here, my chaperone. By the way, she's an American, too. Miss Clemmens, Mr. Demarest; you've heard mother speak of him, I'm sure — Oh, here come Dickie Marston and Bob Sawyer. How terribly jolly!" Elya reached out her daintily gloved hand to greet two new comers.

They were of the aggressive type, these two English chaps, and in a few seconds Demarest made his way to Miss Clemmens in the rear.

"Do you know, Miss Clemmens," he began curiously, "the last time I saw you you wore your hair in two braids, and I wrote a poem and dedicated it to the curls at the end."

His voice and mouth were grave, but there was a smiling gleam in his eyes.

Miss Clemmens glanced rather blankly from beneath her heavy lashes at this man well under [illegible].

"I think," she began, with a calm dignity befitting her position — but just there, on the very second word of reproval a flash of understanding radiated over her tired, lovely face. "You—surely, you're not 'Prince Paul'?"

"The very same—princess."

Paul Demarest bowed very low.

"But—but why Demarest—" pursued Miss Clemmens with puzzled uncertainty.

"A grand uncle over here, without any closer issue, left me his money and estates, providing I'd take his name in the bargain. I took them all." The light raillery in the voice changed to seriousness. "But I'd have known you, princess, if you went by any name under heaven!"

"For pity's sake!" dimpled she. Then she added, with a wistful dignity: "But I must have changed a deal since then. That was nearly twelve years ago — just fancy!"

"I don't see the changes," said he gallantly. "To me you're just the same."

But oh, how tired she looked, his gay, light-hearted little princess. And how he longed to fold her protectingly in his arms!

In six months he did.

GREAT STRIKE IS IN PROSPECT

Greatest Commercial Crisis in Britain's History is Impending

(Intelligencer Special.)

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Reports from the mining districts show that the men are voting almost unanimously in favor of the establishment of the minimum wage scale. Balloting continues until Friday, and if two-thirds of the miners vote favorably, a strike will be called for March 1st. With less than a month's supply of coal in the country, England is believed to be on the verge of the greatest labor crisis in her history.

CRIMES' PUNISHED

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Jan. 10.—David Mitchell, who stole King George's watch from the vestry of the Royal Chapel, was sentenced to fifteen months' hard labor.

Emily Davison, a noted militant suffragette, got six months for starting fires in several letter boxes.

TOOK CARBOLIC

(Intelligencer Special)

TORONTO. Jan. 10.—Nellie Day, a young girl living at 51 Brookfield street, drank carbolic acid this morning after being reprimanded by her father for telling falsehoods. She will probably die.

BROCKVILLE PROTESTS TO THE GRAND TRUNK

Against Removal of 50 to 75 Families from Island City to Belleville

A Brockville telegram of to-day's date, reads as follows:—"The G.T.R. has changed its booking office for conductors and brakemen from Brockville to Belleville, which eventually means the removal from here of between fifty and seventy-five families. The subject was made a matter of protest in the inaugural address of Mayor McLean to the Town Council, and a civic delegation will shortly wait on the officials of the Grand Trunk at Monteral to urge that no such change be made at this terminal.

"There is a strong feeling of resentment over the action of the company, which it is thought has been prompted by the disturbance caused here during the trainmen's strike."

MURDERER WEPT AS HE WENT TO HIS DEATH

Philip Mangano Executed at Sing Sing for the Murder of His Daughter in 1909—Twenty-seven More to Die

OSSINING, Jan. 9.—Philip Mangano, formerly interpreter in the marriage license bureau in New York was put to death by electricity in Sing Sing prison here to-day for the murder of his daughter about a year ago. The execution was without incident. Sheriff Harburger witnessed the execution to satisfy himself as to whether the electric shock or the autopsy caused death.

"Among medical men of the highest reputation," said Sheriff Harburger, "it has been a question whether the victim was not stunned in the chair and executed on the autopsy slab."

Mangano wept as he went to his death and big tears rolled down his face. Some have entered the death house laughing, some stolidly, others in fear, but Mangano was the first man to go to his death in Sing Sing prison weeping.

Sheriff Harburger said after the execution that he was convinced that the first shock killed.

Mangano shot and killed his daughter, Anna, on the morning of March 24, 1910, while she was on her way to a school in New York City, where she was employed as a teacher. There had been frequent quarrels in the Mangano family as a result of which Anna, who was 21 years of age, and her mother had left home. Testimony was to the effect that the father's treatment of his daughter was such that she could no longer remain at home and retain her self respect.

The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of conviction without writing an opinion, which is unusual, and Governor Dix refused to interfere.

TWENTY-SEVEN LEFT.

Albany, Jan. 9.—The electrocution of Philip Mangano at Sing Sing prison to-day leaves 27 condemned men in this State awaiting death or a determination of appeals in their cases by the Court of Appeals. Sixteen are confined in the death house at Sing Sing, eight at Auburn and three at Clinton.

Albert Wolter, murderer of Ruth Wheeler in New York City, will be the next to expiate his crime in the chair, the court of appeals having fixed the week beginnig Jan. 29 as the date.

Five of the six Italians convicted recently of the murder of Mrs. Mary L. Hall at Croton Lake, were sentenced to die during the same week as Wolter, but appeals have been filed in their cases staying the executions. Charles Swenton, who shot and killed Isaac Lee in New York City, will be electrocuted at Sing Sing the week of Feb. 5.

Col. Joseph F. Scott, superintendent of State Prisons, favors a separate institution apart from the prisons for electrocutions. Although electrocutions are usually performed at six o'clock in the morning before the prison population is astir, the fact that they are to take place is always known among the convicts and has a demoralizing effect upon the discipline.

HOLDS A MUSICIAN ON VERY SERIOUS CHARGE

J. E. Lynn, Arrested on Complaint of Girl, Is Known to Montreal Police.

MONTREAL, Jan. 9.—J. E. Lynn, who says that he is a musician in the orchestra at His Majesty's Theatre, and who before now has been through the hands of the Montreal police, was arrested last night by Detective Connors on a charge of attempting to procure young girls for immoral purposes in the United States.

It is alleged that he called a few days ago at a house in Durocher St., and asked if he could rent a room. Lynn is said to have agreed to rent the room. That evening he was seen in the vicinity and when he saw the housemaid, who had been sent on a message, he is said to have accosted her and told her that his sister in California wanted just such a girl and he would give her $150 and a diamond ring if she would go in February. Meanwhile she could have her place and he would pay her ten dollars a week.

The girl, Maggie Blythe, afterwards told her mistress and together they went to see Chief Carpenter, who ordered a warrant to be issued for the man's arrest.

Meanwhile the Chief discovered that a man, alleged to be the same one, had approached several other girls, one of them a nurse in the Infants' Home, Guy Street, with the same story. It was also found that he had a young girl living with him as his wife, at 271 Bleury Street.

Lynn is about forty years of age, clean shaven, but with flowing white hair and of a rather distinguished appearance.

He was held at police headquarters last night without bail. This morning he appeared before Judge Lafontaine and pleaded not guilty. His Honor would not grant an application for bail.

Four years ago Lynn was arrested by Chief Carpenter's men on an application from Chief Watts, of Boston, where Lynn had been found guilty of theft, and had skipped away while on bail awaiting sentence.

He was taken back to Boston and was not again recognized in Montreal until last night when the detectives quickly saw in their prisoner the same that they had sent to Boston.

INDIANAPOLIS JURY HEARS EVIDENCE AS TO DYNAMITE

Investigating Secret Supplies Kept by the McNamaras and McManigal.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 9—Evidence concerning the secret stores of dynamite and nitro-glycerine kept at Tiffin, Ohio, Rochester, Pa., Muncie, Ind., and Indianapolis, from which it is said Ortie E McManigal, John J. and James B. McNamara procured their supplies occupied the attention of officials to-day in the Federal grand jury's investigation of the alleged dynamite conspiracy.

Another question to be inquired into is, "who, if anyone besides John J. McNamara, knew the uses to which he put the $1,000 a month allowed him as secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers and for which he was required to give no accounting?"

McManigal was expected to appear before the investigators again to-day to continue his task of repeating in more detail his confession, which in typwritten form covers several hundred pages.

While it is believed the grand jury has progressed well, it will be three weeks or more before it is completed, as a mass of documentary evidence remains to be examined.

McManigal was taken from his cell in the Federal building yesterday, and went before the jurors after his written confession had been presented in detail.

That the prisoner will be kept in attendance on the grand jury for ten days or two weeks was indicated by United States Attorney Charles W. Miller.

McManigal professes to have personal knowledge of at least thirty of the explosions which destroyed bridges and other structures erected by firms employing non-union men.

The grand jury devoted much attention to witnesses from Tiffin, O., where last April 640 pounds of dynamite were found by detectives stored in a barn in the rear of the home of James L. McManigal, the father of Ortie.

CATS HIS RIVALS, HE ASKS DIVORCE

Veteran Says Thirty-Five Felines Make Home Worse Than Prison.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 9.—Averring that thirty-five pet cats and two dogs had superseded him in his wife's affections and ranked higher than he in the household, Samuel W. Odell, of Bethel, Kan., a civil war veteran, seventy-four years old, has sued Sarah L. Odell, for divorce.

His experience in Andersonville prison during the civil war were pleasent, he told his attorney, compared with the life which his wife's pets led him in the six weeks of their married life, which began last April.

"We met at church," he said, "and when we were married I wanted her to go to my home at Pomeroy, Kan. She refused, and insisted that I go to live at her home at Bethel. I did not know anything about the menagerie until I got there. She had thirty-five cats and two dogs. She allowed them to eat, sleep, drink, or do anything they wanted to in the house. She let the cats sleep in the beds and raise their kittens there. I couldn't move without stepping on one, or sit down without moving one or two off a chair.

She always cooked three times as much as would have been required for the two of us alone. Most of the food that was prepared was used for the cats. When I brought home fresh meat, or when meat was cooked the cats had to be provided for first. I ate afterward if I could, but as a rule I couldn't. They were allowed to put their noses and feet into virtually everything that had already been coked or was to be cooked.

"When I complained of the excessive number of pets and wanted to get rid of them she said they had been there before I came, and were there to remain, and if I didn't like it, I could get out."

Some men are born to trouble, but the man who makes love simultaneously to two girl chums has it thrust upon him.

A woman is always proud of her husband during the honeymoon.

DEATHS.

HUNTER—In Belleville, Jan. 10th, 1912, Robert Hunter, aged 30 years, 9 months.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Coleman street, on Friday, Jan. 12th, at 8.45 a. m. to St. Michael's Church, thence to Belleville vault.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

THEY SETTLED.

A charge of assault preferred against a Hungarian employed at Point Ann was to have been investigated by the Magistrate to-day, but the matter was satisfactorily settled between the parties by advice of counsel.

A GOOD PLAY.

Despite the inclement weather last evening there was a fair attendance at the Griffin Opera House to witness the production of "The Rosary," a four-act play, which is very realistic in its character. Mr. John Meehan, as Rev. Father Brian Kelly, has certainly an excellent conception of his part and plays it faultlessly. He is supported by a well balanced company.

A YEAR IN CENTRAL.

Richard Gorman, who yesterday afternoon, because he was ejected from the Anglo-American Hotel, deliberately broke three plate glass windows, will not indulge in that pastime for the next twelve months. This morning, before Magistrate Masson, he was convicted of the charge of deliberately, and maliciously damaging property to the extent of over $100. A sentence of one year in the Central Prison was imposed. Gorman claims Toronto as his home and stated to the court that he did not know, owing to being under the influence of liquor, that he broke the windows. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and the prisoner was undefended.

TRIAL IN PROGRESS.

The trial of Robert Logan, the young man who is charged with indecently assaulting a little girl, was continued before Magistrate Masson at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Carnew the accused.

UNANIMOUS CALL.

According to the laws of the Methodist Church, no pastor can remain longer than four years in the same charge. In June next the Rev. Dr. Bishop's pastoral charge of Bridge Street Church must for this reason cease. The Quarterly Official Board, therefore, early in 1911 appointed a committee on Ministerial Supply, who have since then been busy attending to their important duties, which terminated to-day when they learned that the Rev. H. S. Osborne, B.A., B.D., of Morrisburgh, had accepted the unanimous invitation of the Quarterly Official Board, and will enter on the pastorate of this important church in June next with its united voice. Mr. Osborne was called to the ministry of the Methodist Church in 1888; he entered Victoria College in 1889 and graduated with the degree of B. A. in 1892 and degree of B.D. in 1894. His ministry has been altogether in the Montreal Conference, and principally in the city of Montreal. He preached in this city two weeks ago and so favorable an impression did he create that his "call" was with one accord.

COLD, BUT HOT.

Yesterday afternoon two yeomen became engaged in a heated discussion on Mill Street, notwithstanding the fact that the day was cold. A police officer was sent for, but the parties had left before he arrived upon the scene.

INCENDIARY WORK.

At 2.35 this morning a fire was discovered in a building in rear of Mr. H. E. Fairfield's store on Front St. An alarm was sounded and the fire brigade was soon upon the scene and in a few minutes had the blaze extinguished. There apears to be no doubt but that a deliberate attempt was made to burn the building, as the fire was started on the outside at the door leading into the building, which is used as a stable, store house, etc. Had not the fire been discovered by the police at its inception a serious blaze would have resulted.

Sergt. Harman, who discovered the fire, was attracted to the building by the smell of smoke, which was emitted from the gangway leading to the rear of Mr. Fairfield's store. The police are confident that a deliberate attempt was made to burn the building, and had the fire gained headway it might have been a serious one.

Below are a few prices, which will stand comparison:

CURRENT COMMENT

It is said that Philadelphia has furnished the first two girls to take advantage of leap year. Here is the precedent for which, perhaps, some have been waiting.—St. Thomas Journal.

It begins to look from King George's universally courteous and enthusiastic reception in India, that most of those stories of India's proneness to disloyalty, and rebellion, are yellow press yarns.—Ottawa Journal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a 'bad loser.' He has been airing his woes in a speech which he delivered at Montreal on Monday night. Sir Wilfrid was vitriolic. His sunny smile was gone and he scolded like a fish-wife or a Dublin apple woman. "Pity the sorrows of a poor old man."

"The cook is going to quit," said young Mrs. Torkins.

"What's the matter?" asked her husband. "Doesn't she like us?"

"Yes, she's perfectly satisfied. But her family doesn't approve of the quality of what she brings home."

The excessively high price of meats of all kinds at retail leads to the belief that there is a combine in that business in Canada. The question is, whether the wholesalers or the retailers are "it." The matter is of sufficient importance to warrant a searching enquiry by a Government commission.

A contemporary suggests that this is a good time for the annual crop of arguments against holding municipal elections at the height of the Christmas season. So it is. Were the elections held early in December it would be much more convenient for all concerned, and the sooner that the change is made, the better.

Toronto has a startling record of deaths during 1911 from other than natural causes:

| | |
|---|---|
| Suicide | 26 |
| Drowning | 25 |
| Railways | 19 |
| Street cars | 19 |
| Autos | 6 |
| Murders | 5 |
| Wagons | 2 |
| | 102 |

On reading the above record one might be well led to enquire whether deaths from being struck by street cars and autos may not hereafter be numbered among those from "natural causes."

The new Civil Service Commission at Ottawa will tackle the work of investigating the Department of Agriculture first, and this is one of the branches where there is room for much improvement. Hon Mr. Fisher, the late Minister of this department spent a big sum of money each year but very little of it went to really help agriculture. The Department of Agriculture has been far from what it should have been, and it is hoped that the new commission will recommend many changes, which will benefit the farmer and fruit grower. It is then up to the government to see that they are carried out. —Peterborough Review.

Would you take it as a compliment if some one came up and accused you of cruelty. The average man would resent it quickly. And yet how many people countenance cruelty, and neglect to our four-footed friends. With severe weather like the present special attention should be paid to the patient horse who, in addition to being over loaded and often harshly treated, is often exposed for long periods of time without adequate coverings. The public can help remedy this. If they see the rig of a certain firm, and the horse standing without a blanket, report this matter to the head of that firm. And if he has not supplied a blanket for this purpose he will soon "take a tumble" and do so. But in the majority of cases the driver is supplied with a blanket, but is too lazy to use it. These individuals should be made come to time, and the only way to do it is to report them to their firms.—Peterborough Review.

TIMELY SUGGESTION

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—In commenting upon the Mayor's inaugural address, you agree with him that the market building would stand painting and decorating, and suggest on your part that more room and better accommodation might be in line.

I would like to draw the attention of the Mayor and chairman of the Market Committee to another important matter, namely the heating of the building, or rather the lack of heat.

If the Mayor and Aldermen for 1912 wish to help reduce the high cost of living and incidentally become immensely popular with the farmers' wives of this section, let them get busy with this matter at once.

I venture to state that if the purchasers had been compelled to change places with the sellers last Saturday, and in some cases stand for two or three hours in that frigid, draughty place, that the price of butter and eggs would have soared so high one would have required a step ladder to reach them. ## HELD FOR TRIAL WITHOUT BAIL

Young Man Charged With Stealing Goods at Cronk Block Fire

A young man named Frank Orr, was this morning arraigned before the Magistrate charged with having on the 10th of November, 1911, stolen an overcoat, sweater and neckties, the property of Mr. Benjamin Chesher. Through his counsel, Mr. Carnew, he pleaded guilty to taking some of the articles. It appears that on the night of the fire on Front street, when Mr. Chesher and two other firms were burned out by the blaze which destroyed the Cronk block, a quantity of goods were taken from Mr. Chesher's store. The latter claims that upwards of $100 worth of goods were stolen on the night of the fire and a day or two after the fire. The police have made diligent search, with the result that some of the articles stolen have been recovered. Mr. Carnew, stated that the accused admitted taking some of the goods produced, but that they were picked up upon the sidewalk and in other places outside of the burned building. Friends were willing to compensate Mr. Chesher for any loss he had sustained in so far as the accused was concerned in the taking of goods.

After Mr. Anderson, Crown Prosecutor, had spoken to the case, the Magistrate stated that he would reserve judgment and remand Orr to jail until Friday, when another party will be arraigned for stealing articles from the same place and at the same time. His Worship said it was a serious matter, and he desired to have it cleared up as fast as it was possible The more this matter is considered the more serious the case becomes.

Mr. Carnew applied for bail on behalf of Orr, but the Magistrate considered that it was better to remand him to jail until Friday, and did so. The other young man implicated is Ernest Wilson.

DID BRITAIN KNOW?

She Is Said to Have Been Aware of Mongolian Coup.

Pekin, Jan. 10.—To the Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin, M. Shekine, Mongolian independence is largely due. M. Shekine has always been aggressive. As soon as he assumed control of the legation here he began urging the administration at St. Petersburg to become active, declaring that the time was ripe for the assumption of control in Mongolia. The Russian action is known in but few quarters in Pekin, as the Russians are maintaining secrecy, and the Chinese Government first informed the American legation of the situation with respect to Mongolia, hoping for sympathy.

The opinion persists that Great Britain has been fully aware of Russia's intentions for some weeks. A Mongolian prince, who is now in Pekin, says that Russia has been increasing here military forces in Mongolia for the purpose of protecting Russian traders. Mutinies and revolts are reported among the various Chinese garrisons in Mongolia.

The Imperial Premier, Yuan Shi Kai, and Wu Ting Fang, representing the Republicans at Shanghai, have agreed to instruct their respective military commanders not to resume hostilities after Jan. 15 unless ordered to do so.

This, seemingly, is an agreement for a perpetual armistice, or until one side feels strong enough to defeat the other.

Yuan Shi Kai adheres to his demand that the proposed national convention to settle the fate of China shall consist of representatives of every district, and each province shall meet at Pekin. The Republicans are also obdurate, and the belief is growing that general hostilities are not far off.

The GOOSE GIRL

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

Synopsis.

Gretchen, a goose girl, meets a mysterious mountaineer and Carmichael, American consul in Dreiberg, kingdom of Ehrenstein. Carmichael loves Princess Hildegarde.

Gretchen's lover is Leo, a vintner. The prince regent of Jugendheit sends Hildegarde an offer of marriage from King Frederick. The princess was abducted in infancy and later restored to her father, the grand duke.

Herbeck read slowly and carefully.

Then he rose and walked to the nearest window, studying the letter again in the sharper light.

Herbeck returned to his chair. "I wish that you had shown me these long ago. You accused the king?"

"Certainly, but he denied it."

"In a letter?"

"Yes. Here, read it."

Herbeck compared the two. "Where did you find these?"

"In Arnsberg's desk," returned the duke—"Arnsberg, my boyhood playmate, the man I loved and trusted and advanced to the highest office in my power. Is that not the way? Well, dead or alive, 10,000 crowns to him who brings Arnsberg to me dead or alive."

"You are very bitter," said Herbeck.

"And have I not cause? Did not my wife die of a broken heart, and did I not become a broken man? You do not know all, Herbeck—not quite all. Franz also sought the hand of the Princess Sofia. He, too, loved her, but I won. Well, his revenge must have been sweet to him."

"But your daughter has been restored to her own."

"Due to your indefatigable efforts alone. Ah, Herbeck, nothing will ever fill up the gap between, nothing will ever restore the mother." The duke bowed his head.

Herbeck opened another drawer and took forth a long hood envelope crested and sealed.

"Your highness, here is a letter from the prince regent of Jugendheit formally asking the hand of the Princess Hildegarde for his nephew Frederick, who will shortly be crowned. My advice is to accept, to let bygones be bygones."

"Write the prince that I respectfully decline."

"Do nothing in haste, your highness. Temporize. Say that you desire some time to think about the matter. You can change your mind at any time. A reply like this commits you to nothing, whereas your abrupt refusal will only widen the breach."

"The wider the breach the better."

"No, no, your highness; the past has disturbed you. We can stand war, and it is possible that we might win, even against Jugendheit, but war at this late day would be a colossal blunder. Victory would leave us where we began thirty years ago. And an insult to Jugendheit might precipitate war."

"Have your way, then."

The duke departed, stirred as he had not been since the restoration of the princess. He sought his daughter. She was in the music room. "My child," he began, taking Hildegarde's hand and drawing her toward a window seat, "the king of Jugendheit asks for your hand."

"Then I am to marry the king of Jugendheit?" There was little joy in her voice.

"Ah, we have not gone so far as that! The king, through his uncle, has simply made a proposal."

"It is for you to decide, father. Whatever your decision is I shall abide by it."

"It is a hard lesson we have to learn, my child. We cannot always marry where we love. Diplomacy and politics make other plans. But fortunately for you you love no one yet, and the king is young, handsome, they say, and rich. Politically speaking, it would be a great match."

"I am in your hands. You know what is best."

The duke was poignantly disappointed. Why did she not refuse outright, as became one of the house of Ehrenstein?

"What is he like?" she asked.

"That no one seems to know. He has been to his capital but twice in ten years. The young king has been in Paris most of the time. That's the way they educate kings these days. They teach them all the vices. Your father loves you, and if you are inclined toward his majesty, if it is in your heart to become a queen, I shall not let my prejudices stand in the way."

She caught up his hand with a strange passion and kissed it.

"Father, I do not want to marry any one," wistfully. "But a queen!" she added thoughtfully. "Would it be for the good of the state?"

Here was reason. "Yes; my objections are merely personal," said the duke.

"For the good of my country I am ready to make any sacrifice."

"Very well, but weigh the matter carefully. There is never any retracing a step of this kind." He paused and then said:

"You are all I have, girl."

"My father!" She stroked his cheek.

The restoration of the Princess Hildegarde of Ehrenstein had been the sensation of Europe, as had been in the earlier days her remarkable abduction. For sixteen years the search had gone on fruitlessly. In a garret in Dresden the agents of Herbeck found her, a singer in the chorus of the opera. The newspapers and illustrated weeklies raged about her for awhile, elaborated the story of her struggles, the mysterious remittances which had from time to time saved her from direst poverty, her ambition, her education which by dint of hard work she had acquired. The duke accused Franz of Jugendheit. Search as they would, the duke and the chancellor never traced the source of the remittances. The duke held stubbornly that the sender of these benefactions was moved by the impulse of a guilty conscience and that this guilty conscience was in Jugendheit.

And was the girl happy with all her new grandeur, with all these lackeys and attentions and environs? Sometimes she longed for the freedom and lack care of her Dresden garret, her musician friends, the studios, the crash and glitter of the opera.

She was lovely enough to inspire fervor and homage and love in all masculine minds. She was witty and talented. Carmichael said she was one of the most beautiful women in all Europe.

She was still in the window seat when the chancellor was announced.

"Your highness," he said, "I am come to announce to you that there waits for you a high place in the affairs of the world."

"The second crown in Jugendheit?"

"Your father"—

"Yes. He leaves the matter wholly in my hands."

"It is for the good of the state. A princess like yourself must never wed an inferior."

"Would a man who was brave and kind and resourceful, but without a title—would he be an inferior?"

"Assuredly politically. And I regret to say that your marriage could never be else than a matter of politics."

"I am, then, simply a certificate of exchange?"

"The king of Jugendheit is young. I do not see how he can help loving you the moment he knows you. Who can?" And the chancellor smiled.

"But he may not be heart whole."

"He will be politically."

"Politics, politics—how I hate the word! Sometimes I regret my garret."

The chancellor wrinkled his lips.

"Will you consent to this marriage?"

"Would it do any good to reject it?"

"On the contrary, it would do Ehrenstein great harm."

"Give me a week," wearily.

"A week?" There was joy on the chancellor's face now, unmasked, unconcealed. "Oh, when the moment comes that I see the crown of Jugendheit on your beautiful head all my work shall not have been in vain. There is one thing more, your highness."

"And that?"

"There must not be so many rides in the morning with his excellency Herr Carmichael."

There was a sinister note of warning in the chancellor's voice.

(To be Continued.)

BOY TO FILL JOHN D.'S SHOES

Walter Clark Teagle a Smart Boy of Thirty Three the Possible Successor of Rockefeller.

New York. — A six-foot, 33-year-old chap has been picked, they say, to fill the John D. shoes — those shoes first cobbled out of raw oil by John D. Rockefeller and just lately turned over to another John D. — Archibold — the shoes of command in Standard Oil's mighty camp.

Archibold is of the same generation as Rockefeller and cannot live many years. When he was elected chief of Standard Oil the other day, replacing Rockefeller, one Walter Clark Teagle was named a director and vice-president.

Teagle is the six-foot 33-year-old. To be exact, he is six feet and two inches from scalp to heel. He is a large party, 240 pounds worth built like a "white hope," with a pink and white complexion, eyes like a matinee idol's and a mouthful of white teeth.

He's a living vindication of the Horatio Alger and Message-to-Garcia stuff. By rights he ought to be a third assistant instructor in a night school, or a station agent along the C. P. R., for really good boys invariably blow up on the home stretch.

Fathers Work Too Long.

It is a mistake for fathers to toil all their lives in order that their children may escape toil all theirs. Suppose the calculation correct, and permanent idleness secured for the next generation, what evidence is there that the boys and girls will be happier and better for it? The boys will be exposed to the devices of "sharks," and the girls to those of fortune hunters. Leave something for them also to do.

[illegible]ED THE KING OF SPAIN

Hurrah for Princess Eulalie! She Defies a King; She "Won't Be Sat On" By Her Royal Nephew.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Madrid. — Princess Infanta Eulalie has written a book advocating divorce. King Alfonso of Spain, on hearing of it, instantly telegraphed the princess, his aunt: "I order you to suspend publication until I have taken cognizance of the contents and give my permission to publish." The princess wired back that "I consider myself, so far as my private life is concerned, free to act as I deem fit," and to her friends she declares she will sell her property and leave Spain forever rather than suppress the publication of her book. "I will not be sat on," she adds. "The only things I value are my personality and my work. I do not attach any importance to my birth, because I cannot help it."

PRINCESS EULALIE

The Princess, who lives in Paris, was the guest of Canada and U. S. A. in May, 1893, during the world's fair, representing the queen regent of Spain in the Columbus celebration.

BUILDING OF A NEW DAM

Elephant Butte Dam, Biggest in America, to Reclaim Rio Grande Valley — "The Land of Lost Hopes."

Engle, New Mexico. — Here, in this land once known as "The Land of Lost Hopes," the United States government is building what will be, excepting the Assuan dam in Egypt, the biggest irrigation dam in the world. Certainly it will be the biggest in the new world.

This dam, known as the "Elephant Butte," will convert the land of Lost Hopes into the smiling land of fertile well-watered fields that it was 300 years ago.

For the upper valley of the Rio Grande Del Norte wasn't always the arid waste that it is now. Time was when this country was covered with the crude but effective ditches of pioneer Mexican agriculturists and green with their gardens and vineyards.

But that was when the Rio Grande was an all-year-round river. That was before the folks of the Colorado valleys, where the Rio Grande has its sources, had begun to impound water on their own account.

Since 1886 the Rio Grande is as dry as a bone.

The dam will be 1400 feet long, 185 feet wide at bed rock and 265 feet high. It will take 410,000 cubic yards of concrete to build it, and it will take 350,000 barrels of cement to make the concrete.

The work is now well under way. It is the biggest irrigation enterprise now being pushed by the United States and perhaps the biggest engineering job it has on its hands, excepting the Panama canal.

Browned Crumbs.

Keep all scraps of crust until there is a good quantity; cut off any black bits, and put the rest on a baking-tin in the oven until they are a bright golden brown all over and quite crisp. Then pound them in a mortar, or, if there is not one available, put them between two pieces of paper and crush them with a rolling-pin. Next pass them through a sieve—this ensures them being all of one size. Put them in a tin with a tight-fitting lid.

These crumbs are useful for shaking over boiled ham or bacon, and can often be used for puddings instead of white crumbs, giving the mixture a richer appearance.

Seared Round Steak

Have the butcher cut the steak thick. Lay it on your meat-board, sprinkle lightly with flour and pound until the flour disappears. Continue this, turning the steak over occasionally, until about half a cupful of flour to one pound of steak has been used. Put a little butter or suet in the frying-pan and heat smoking hot. Sear the steak on both sides, being careful not to burn. Now add a little hot water, about a cupful, cover closely, and set back to simmer for about half an hour. Add more water if necessary. Season with butter, pepper and salt just before serving. You will have a rich, brown gravy, which may be thickened if liked.

And many a man lives the simple life—because he has to.

The world owes every man a chance to earn an honest living.

PANTING FOR THE IDEALISTIC

Celebrated Suffragist Says Women Wore Pants First and Are Going To Wear Them Again. And Why Not?

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — "Because skirts are unhealthy, hideous and immoral. Unhealthy because they collect germs. Hideous because they take the name of nature in vain. Immoral because they leave the feminine figure to the imagination."

That's why they're going to wear pants.

Mrs. Stewart says that in primitive society trousers have ever been worn by women as well as by men, as they are worn today in some parts of the Orient, and she prophesies that there will come a time when they will be worn thus again — when woman will shake off her entrammeling skirts and step forth again with limbs as free from shackles as those of Artemis herself.

Of course the indictment is true. Skrts ARE "unhealthy, hideous and immoral." They DO take the name of nature in vain. They are inexpressibly graceless — ugly in the full sense of the word.

BUT — and here is a grim impasse that the anti-skirt-pro-pants reformers must face:

[illegible] PANTS!

If the ladies must get rid of skirts — as perhaps they should, and as no doubt they will sometime — may they garb themselves in some garment more pleasing to the eyes than this unspeakable brace of cylinders we've gone and got OUR legs tangled in.

THE IDEAL DRESS

May they don something inherently graceful, something suggestive of the lithe, chaste beauty of Diana, something that the modistes of Paris can't control, something everlastingly beautiful that shall be to us a joy forever, as the human form divine that it drapes is a joy forever.

Another Falsehood Nailed

A few days ago a despatch from Mildmay, Ontario, was published broadcast over the country, stating that the Postmaster at that place had committed suicide because of the fear that he was about to be dismissed for political reasons.

Thereupon the Grit press of the country enlarged upon the barbarity of the hated Tories, to satisfy whose greed, it was alleged, even human life was to be sacrificed.

Now, however, the truth has come out, and the facts of the case are given herewith on what ought to be, under the circumstances, excellent authority. They are contained in the following despatch:

> (Special Despatch to The Globe.)
>
> Ottawa, Jan. 8.—The Postmaster-General Hon. L. P. Pelletier, to-night handed out a statement correcting the recent press statements to the effect that the suicide of the late postmaster at Mildmay, Bruce County, was due to a threatened dismissal from his position consequent upon the change of Government. The facts of the case are that on December 23 last a complaint was received by the department that the Mildmay postmaster had opened a registered letter, a criminal offence. The postoffice inspector was instructed to investigate, and the postmaster admitted his guilt, asking for mercy and leniency. However, he committed suicide before the inspector's report reached Ottawa, and consequently before any communication whatever had been sent him from the department.

The question naturally arises, will the newspapers which have been abusing the Government on a false statement of the case, retract their unfounded comments or in any way make amends for their misrepresentations? Time will tell, and that very shortly.

Come to Their Senses

The British workmen have, upon reflection, come to their senses, and, like true Britons, recognize the fact that their fellow men are free and not slaves to any power or organization. It is now reported by telegrams of the 7th inst. from Manchester, England, that the trouble started over the refusal of a man named Riley and his wife and another woman to join a local union at Accrington, and has now been settled. The union ordered a strike unless the three above named applied for membership and the masters replied by locking out all the hands. A general lockout involving 160,000 persons followed and the mills have been shut down since Dec. 27. It is believed that under the settlement the operatives will undertake never again to hold up the mills on the non-unionism question.

This is a principle that might well be followed by the unions in Canada. It is not British to prevent a man or woman from earning a living because they decline to join a union.

The "Ne Temere"

A correspondent of the Toronto Telegram puts the following poser to the supporters of the Ne Temere decree:

> If the Ne Temere decree is intended to prevent sin against God's law, why should its application not be insisted on by the Roman Catholic Church in Germany?
>
> Can it be that Germans are above sin in the eyes of the Papacy? Or can it be that mere earthly considerations have greater weight with Christ's vicar on this occasion?

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

MANY CATHARTICS TEND TO CAUSE INJURY TO THE BOWELS.

If you are subject to constipation you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store.—J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

It takes an optimist to get more out of a thing than there is in it.

MORE TROUBLES IN PORTUGAL.

Peasants Attack Soldiers—Republicans Raid Church.

LISBON, Jan. 8.—The peasants in the district of Asambuja on the River Tagus, are greatly agitated over the decision of the Government that the vast area of land and woods in the vicinity belongs to the State, and that the inhabitants must either pay rent or abandon the territory. A body of peasants yesterday armed themselves and attacked the soldiers. Four of the peasants were killed and twenty wounded.

At Santarem, about four miles from Lisbon, a band of carbonaros, who belong to a secret republican organization, which is very powerful in Portugal, attacked one of the numerous churches at midnight, and arrested twenty-three priests on a charge of conspiracy. It is reported that some of the bishops intend to go to North America.

A CALL TO PRAYER

The following call to prayer has just been issued by the officials of the Canadian churches and the Chairman of the National Laymen's Missionary Movement. Such an occasion is certainly unique in the Church life of the Dominion, and in no other country at present would it be possible to unite all the communions for such a purpose.

Following the remarkable series of Men's Missionary Conventions recently held throughout Canada under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and the Church Missionary Boards, and as preparatory to entering upon the responsible duties of the coming year, this call is issued to the men of Canada for a season of united and definite thanksgiving and intercession.

The presence at the Conventions of distinguished representatives of all the Churches, the spirit of unity and co-operation ever manifest, the satisfactory attendance of men, the enlarged vision and new discoveries of duty, and pre-eminently the manifest presence and power of the Spirit of God, have constituted a clarion call to all who in any way participated in the Conventions to devote themselves to intercession above every other activity.

The deepest missionary need of our time is not any material or external thing. The deepest need is spiritual; a sense of responsibility to Almighty God for the great trust which He has committed to us in the evengelization of the world and a vitality in the Church equal to the task. The supreme need constitutes a challenge to prayer.

It is suggested, therefore, that on the afternoon of Sunday, January 21st, 1912, between the hours of three and six o'clock (as best suited to our local conditions), the Christian men of all communions, in every city, town village or country place throughout the Dominion of Canada, be called together for one hour in a service of thanksgiving and intercession; that the time be wholly given up to praise and prayer; that all men be encouraged to participate therein; that the clergy from their pulpits and in every other possible way seek to enlist the attendance of the men of their congregations; that the Sunday School Superintendents, Adult Bible Class Teachers, Brotherhoods and all forms of religious organizations be requested to co-operate in order that throughout the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, there may be gathered together a great company of Christian men in a simple service of thanksgiving and intercession.

It is further suggested that where it is not convenient to hold a public meeting, or where for any reason it is not possible to attend such a service, men individually, in twos and threes, spend one hour that afternoon in prayer and meditation, and enter into fellowship with brethren throughout the Dominion..

Signed:—

S. P. Rupert's Land, Primate, of Church of England in Canada.

A. L. Therrien, President Baptist Convention, Ontario and Quebec.

T. B. MacAulay, Chairman of Congregational Church Union of Canada.

A. Carman, General Superintendent Methodist Church.

R. P. Mackay, Moderator Presbyterian Assembly.

S. J. Moore, Chairman Canadian Council Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Within a very short time Prince Rupert, the Pacific Coast terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, will not have any occasion to import its supply of cement from England, Germany, China, or even Victoria. During the last summer there was located near Shames a large deposit of lime stone, that is considered perfect for the manufacture of cement. Accordingly the locators staked the property, awaiting an examination by an experienced mining engineer.

SEVERAL LIVES LOSS WHEN GREAT BLOCK WAS BURNED

Six-Million-Dollar Blaze Wipes Out Equitable Building.

Palatial New York Skyscraper Is a Mass of Ruins and Six Lives Are Lost In Its Destruction—Priceless Libraries Gone and Many Papers of Value — Chaplain Administers Last Rites to Man In Vault.

New York, Jan. 10.—The immense marble and granite home of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, covering a whole block in lower Broadway, an historic landmark of New York's early period of skyscraper buildings, and one of the city's important financial centres, was yesterday destroyed by fire, with a loss of six lives and probably $6,000,000 in property. A dozen persons were injured.

Valuable records, including the biography of E. H. Harriman, and two priceless law libraries, which cannot be replaced, went up in flames, and the fate of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of securities, stored in safe deposit vaults, was last night in question, although it was believed that fireproof construction would save them from damage.

The fire started about 5.30 yesterday morning in a storeroom in the basement of the building. The employes fought it unaided for a time, and before the firemen arrived it had burned its way through a partition into the elevator shaft. The blaze leaped with a roar to the top of the building and mushroomed into the upper floors, spreading thence rapidly down through the structure.

Occurring in the heart of the financial district, the fire upset the financial machinery of Wall street and business was practically suspended throughout the day.

The great structure, which, besides containing the main offices of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was the home of the Mercantile Trust Co., the Equitable Trust Co., the banking house of Kauntze Bros., August Belmont & Co., the Harriman Railway lines, the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., the Lawyers' Club, and many of the city's most prominent law firms, stands to-day a shell of ice-coated granite, with its once magnificent interior completely gutted.

Besides involving heavy financial loss and serious disturbance to big business interests, the fire, starting on one of the coldest and windiest mornings of the winter, was one of the most spectacular ever witnessed in the far downtown section. Its progress was replete with harrowing incidents, narrow escapes and brave rescues, the men who fought it did so under conditions that taxed both skill and endurance. The intense cold acted almost instantaneously upon the huge volume of water poured on the flames and a thick ice coating was speedily formed on the facades of towering skyscrapers adjacent and upon the surface of streets for blocks around. The bulwark of these modern fireproof structures, according to Fire Commissioner Johnson last night, was invaluable as a protection to the entire financial district. As it was the damage, except by water, was confined to the Equitable structure.

Of those who lost their lives in the disaster, three men were killed by jumping from a coping of the roof of the structure to which they were driven by the flames. They were employes in the building.

Battalion Chief William J. Walsh disappeared in a whirl of smoke and flame early in the progress of the fire when a cave-in occurred on the third floor where he was fighting the flames. No trace of his body has been found.

Two other men, William Campion, captain of the watchmen in the Mercantile Safe Deposit vaults in the basement of the burned structure, and Frank J. Neider, a special officer, whose bodies have not been recovered, complete the list of dead so far as known.

Several persons, watchmen and others, who were in the doomed structure when the fire broke out at an early hour, have not been positively accounted for but are believed to have escaped. The death total, however, may not be definitely fixed until the flames, which were still raging last night have been extinguished and the ruins cooled.

One man in another vault of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co., believed to be Campion, could be seen from the streets with his legs pinned down by a mass of debris, but could not be rescued because of the heavy steel doors which barred the way of the firemen. Through the smashed windows of the door he was given the last rites by Chaplain McGeon of the fire department just as he was swallowed from view by the dense smoke, and not seen again.

Some estimates of the loss run as high as $15,000,000, but more conservative authorities thought last night that the damage would not run over $6,000,000 at the most. The property was assessed by the city at $12,000,000, a larger sum with one exception than on any other building in the financial district, but by far the greater part is based on the value of the ground upon which the Equitable building stood.

An officer of the Equitable said that the society's own loss would probably not amount to over $300,000, covered by its own contingent insurance fund, and that duplicates of every record destroyed were stored in another part of the city. The company had planned to erect a new building on the site and as figured by the officers the expense of tearing it down will now balance well against the actual value of the building.

LONDON TO HEAR ARGYLL'S NEW OPERA

Hammerstein Considers Work of Great Merit and Plans to Produce it Next Spring

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Oscar Hammerstein is much interested in the Duke of Argyll's new opera which he intends to produce at the London Opera House in the spring and is now studying its dramatic possibilities.

"The opera, which is entitled 'Fionn and Tera,' is the second of a trilogy which the Duke intends to complete," he said. "The first was the opera 'Diarmid,' which was produced at Covent Garden in 1897, and 'Fionn and Tera' is another dramatic story of the Celtic heroes.

"The composer, Mr. F. Learmont Drysdale, died about a year ago, before he had time to orchestrate the score and this is being done by Mr. David Stephen, of Edinburgh. The Duke is now acting in conjunction with Miss J. C. Drysdale, the sister of the composer."

The Duke of Argyll's Irish ancestry has inspired him to write this "story of the morning" of Ireland. The Duke claims descent from Diarmid O'Duine, a mighty warrior, whose deeds came down through the centuries on the strings of herpers and it is of Diarmid's days or swords and wonders that the Duke sings in "Fionn and Tera."

Fionn, the hero, is the captain of the fabled fighting arm of the Fienne the mighty men who were not admitted to the ranks until they could jump as high as their foreheads and catch on their shields the javelins thrown by nine men at the distance of nine ridges of land.

His betrothal to the proud Grania is broken by his passion for Tera, a Greek girl, who comes with the merchants from the far lands across the seas; and Grania, flaming with wrath after a dramatic discovery of the intrigue, puts the Geasa, the black curse of the Druids, upon the girl. The first act ends with the flight of the Greeks, leaving their buried gold in charge of Grania's evil fairies.

The next scene is in Carthage, where Fionn has followed his love, and after winnig the prizes for spear throwing he comes back to Ireland with Tera, who is disguised as a page. They come back to meet all the vindictive fury of Grania, and in a weird scene, Tera takes the blow intended for her lover and dies in his arms.

Dave Smith

Funny some of the reports had Dave Smith, who fought Jimmy Clabby a draw in Australia the other day, fighting a battle with Georges Carpentier, the French champion middleweight, when in fact Carpentier was in Paris and is to be matched with Harry Lewis for the French title. Perhaps they mean Marcel Moreau, the Frenchman, who is supposed to be on his way to Australia.

FOLLOWING IN DAD'S FOOTSTEPS

Young Boy of Sixteen Possesses a Preacher's License and Supplies His Father's Pulpit Eloquently.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Mass. — "Frank W. Rollins of Bakersville, Mass., is the youngest boy preacher in the country if not in the world. Though only 16 years old he possesses a preacher's license. This he makes good use of by supplying his father's pulpit and preaching in different towns throughout the state. The boy is not out of school, having taken a post graduate classical course in the Torrington high school. He is preparing for a Wesleyan university and will follow with a course at the Theological seminary.

He is known in his vicinity as the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" and is perfectly at home in conducting prayer meetings. When he supplies his father's pulpit his sermons are of the sort to make the congregation sit up and take notice.

Francis is just like other boys. His nature is sunny and bright and his fondness for sports is very keen, but in spite of boyishness there is underneath a strain of earnestness forecasting his career. The people of his father's congregation accept his ministrations and sermons with as much seriousness as they do those of the parent. Throughout the state the "boy preacher of Litchfield county" is known and people flock to hear him whenever he comes.

Boasted of Having Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars and Federation of Labour Behind Him.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. It took only $30,000 to clear Vincent Altman, of Chicago, and if they could not convict him they can't convict me."

OSCAR LAWLER,
Assistant Attorney General of U.S.A. who is taking charge of federal activities.

This boast, attributed by Detective Malcolm McLaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago on the night of April 12 last, caused Ortie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angered with McNamara for his independent statement and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion, and eventually to confess his connection with various dynamiting excursions throughout the country.

The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day, laying the foundations for the probe into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies that extended from coast to coast in the last three years.

QUEER AD TO LAND BRAINS

Coffee King Arbuckle Put Queer Ad in American Papers to Get Men With Brains to do Big Things.

New York. — The following ad is appearing here: — $1,000,000 and over when he retired; came on salary $700 a year; $3000 salary when he came; retired with several million; $3 per week when he came; has large amount now to his credit.

I can make others rich if I can find the right kind of men. I want several men who have already shown ability, to relieve me in a very large measure so that I can give more attention to my Deep Sea hotel and my Colony for Cripples and Old People, and to start another Colony out west.

Ten thousand dollars salary for my first assistant per year; $5000 salary for my second assistant per year; $2500 salary for my third assistant per year.

Men from wholesale grocery house or mail order houses preferred. Answer only by letter marked "personal," which will be kept strictly confidential. JOHN ARBUCKLE, Arbuckle Bros., New York.

That "want ad" appeared in New York and Chicago papers. John Arbuckle is the millionaire coffee and sugar magnate. He has just come back from Europe, and explained his queer "ad." "It is like this," he said, "I want to get men with brains and ability to do big things. The best way, I have learned, to get such men is to let them know that you want them and tell them what there is in it for them, and the only way to do that is to advertise for them."

WRAP OF GRAY CHIFFON

With Richly Embroidered Cape

A deep flowing cape richly embroidered in colors gives character to an evening wrap of chiffon.

The color of this garment is delicate silvery gray and the floral hand work is in natural tones.

Weight is given the chiffon cloth by reason of the elaborate soutache braiding and applique trimmings. This is introduced into the skirt of the garment and also appears on the sleeves.

The chiffon cape is completely covered with the soutache of gray and the dainty, many hued flowers are of velvet.

Potato Puffs

To one pint of light mashed potato add two tablespoons of butter, pepper and salt to taste, the beaten yolk of an egg and two tablespoons of grated cheese. Beat well, turn out on a floured board and roll out one-fourth inch thick. Cut into oblong cakes two by three inches, place on a buttered pan or baking sheet, prick thoroughly.

English Lemon Tarts.

Remove the pulp from one lemon and grate the yellow rind. Add to this grated rind and pulp one large cup of white sugar, three eggs, and two tablespoons of melted butter. Beat all well together. Line individual tart tins with a rich pie pastry, pinked about the edges, and fill with the mixture. Bake until the paste is done and serve soon after making.

Potato Water

Potato water is excellent to use when washing ribbons, and the water used should be tepid. This water is made by putting scraped potato in hot water, and then straining it, and the ribbon can be left in the potato water and then washed with the fingers. A towel should be used for wringing purposes, and when half dry the ribbon must be ironed between cloths, and should then look crisp and fresh as when new.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

A GOOD HOUSEKEEPER

Lady Who Manages To Appear Affluent on Small Income, Says It's Through Repairing.

A housekeeper, who manages to appear affluent on an income that appears quite inadequate to less skillful managers says that the secret lies in keeping everything in good repair. If her Persian rug gets worn and shabby she finds a rug repairer and bids him renovate it. According to the size of the rug and the work required, his price ranges from $2 to $10, but the rug leaves his hands just as good as the day it was purchased, with colors brightened and pattern made visible once more. Never does she allow the glory of a handsome piece of furniture to be dimmed by stain or other damage. There are men, who for $3 a day and carfare will make these things as it they had never been, and a good man will do wonders in a day. The right men are also found when the china or silver needs the mender's and polisher's care. Frames are kept for curtains, and they are cleaned as often as they require the process, the purpose of the frame being to keep the corners from sagging and the middle from bulging.

"Care in these matters," says the wise woman, "will prevent your too curious neighbors from guessing the proximity of the wolf, and the wolf may be scared away by the sight of apparent prosperity.

[illegible] OF SHANGHAI

How One of the Worlds' Greatest Cities, with a Population of a Million, Was Captured by the Chinese Revolutionaries.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai, China. — Capt. Walter Kirton, Editor "National Review," Shanghai, China, writes: "The fall of Shanghai was the most important victory of the Chinese revolutionists up to date, a victory almost bloodless.

The city is divided into two parts, with a total estimated population of a million. One part holds the foreign population of about half a million and the other, consisting of some thirty old suburbs, run from a few thousand up to 30,000.

In the latter class is Chapel, where the native municipal government was located. It was here that the revolution started in Shanghai.

Three hours after the revolution in Chapel there began to be trouble at the arsenal. Parties of men armed with various patterns of weapons were seen approaching from various directions on the arsenal, and immediately the authorities made ready for defense. The foreign employes were told to leave, but they were hemmed in, and they awaited developments.

CAPT. WALTER KIRTON

The attack on the dock did not last long. It began at 4.55 p.m. and was over at 5.30. The gates had been covered by revolutionary fire, and the dock employes were with the revolutionaries to a man, so that the defense was none too spirited. When a sufficient show of defense had been made the place was handed over and the revolutionaries walked in. They first ran up the white flag and then interviewed the foreigners, whom they assured of every protection. The arsenal they left for a later attack.

Meanwhile there had been stirring times in the Chinese city, a walled enclosure occupied by some 30,000 Chinese. Here the local Manchu magistrate had his official residence or yamen. About the time of the attack on the arsenal the revolutionary body proceeded to the yamen and demanded the magistrate, but he was not to be found. Here as in Chapel the yamen was a sign that the old regime was done forever.

FIFTEEN YEARS PAYING OFF

Loan Shark Extorts $500 On Note of One-Twentieth of That Sum.

Chicago. — Fifteen years ago Mrs. John Murphy borrowed $25 from a loan shark, to settle a debt that her boy had incurred secretly, contrary to his father's command. The note has just been cancelled, through the interference of the Chicago Legal Aid society.

In the 15 years during which the loan shark has been nursing along the note, Mrs. Murphy has paid on it more than $500 — 20 times the original loan. She paid interest at the rate of 10 per cent per month, 120 per cent per year. Whenever she got the note nearly paid off the shark would bully her into a renewal. She did this many times — signing the new notes with her mark, for she can neither read nor write.

Finally the loan shark died and his son came to collect. Less circumspect than his father, he came when the son, John Murphy, Jr., was at home. The latter heard the collector bullying his mother about a debt that he had thought settled a decade or more ago. He chased the man from the house.

The legal aid society did the rest.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

J. W. RILEY

James Whitcomb Riley, the famous Indiana poet, has written his last poem. The paralytic stroke which he had two years ago has gone to his right hand, making it helpless. Riley says that poetry can never be written except with a pen in hand, not real poetry, he means, and for that reason refused to dictate a poem when asked to. It is learned that the noted bard hasn't long to live though it is hoped by all who know him personally and by reputation that the sweet tongued master of letters will yet give at least one other poem to the world.

Anyway, people who are frankly poor do not have to associate with the frankly rich.

LORDS DISCUSS PERSIAN TROUBLE

Lord Curzon Makes Enquiry and Lord Morley Says Difficulty Will Soon Be Settled Satisfactorily.

(Publishers Press News Service)

London. — In the House of Lords Lord Curzon raised the Persian question and inquired as to the Government's policy. He asked for the papers referring to Russia's first ultimatum, with regard to which Great Britain had advised Persia to comply. He thought that the advice was unpalatable but wise. With regard to the second ultimatum, there was evidence that Mr. Shuster had shown an unfortunate lack of acquaintance with diplomatic usage and language, but Lord Curzon wanted to know if Mr. Shuster's action was really an excuse for an armed occupation on the part of Russia. The Government, he said, could not wash its hands of all responsibility for the second ultimatum. He foresaw that an administrative partition would inevitably proceed to a political partition, and then to a geographical one.

Lord Morley said that the troubles of Persia arose not out of the Anglo-Russian agreement, but from the very nature of the experiment that was being tried in Persia. With regard to Shuster, he agreed with Lord Curzon that Mr. Shuster certainly had shown a want of tact. He ignored the position of the indisputable claim of Russia and Great Britain. Russia's object, he said, was the establishment of a normal and stable relations with Persia, the removal of elements of discord. Russia intended further proposals to that end, though she did not aim at a violation of Persia's integrity and independence.

"She assured us categorically," said Lord Morley, "that such measures as had been taken were purely provisional."

EMPRESS WON BY BOY'S PLAYING

EFREM ZIMBALIST

St. Petersburg. — The empress of Russia liked the violin playing of the boy, Efrem Zimbalist, so that she had him excused from military duty so he could study. When he graduated his diploma was marked "Incomparable." Unlike most foreign musicians his hair is short. He is in America giving concerts.

LABOUR LEADER IN UNITED STATES

British Labour Leader Predicts a World Wide Association of Labouring Men and Women With Strong Purposes.

Atlanta, Ga. — An international association of laboring men that will include the workmen of every civilized country, is predicted by G. H. Roberts whip of the labor party in the British house of commons.

Mr. Roberts, together with J. Crinon, of the English association of mill operatives, attended the recent convention here of the American Federation of Labor, as fraternal delegates from Great Britain. Mr. Roberts will remain in the United States for several weeks and will then visit Canada.

"In England," he says, "the labor party is striving for home rule for Ireland, reduction of the hours of employment in shops and mills, pensions for aged and disabled working men and women, and the abolishment of special taxes.

"Our purpose is to render the lives of working people comfortable and healthful. We shall not rest satisfied until all are well housed and well clothed; until they have the means of properly educating their children."

RECIPROCITY IN ORE

Spokane, Wash. — Resolutions were adopted recently by the Spokane Mining Men's Club, asking Congress to pass a bill for reciprocity on lead and zinc ore products which will admit ore from British Columbia mines to the United States free.

PEACE TALKS ONLY DESULTORY

Preparations Are Going On for a Winter Campaign Because of Doubt of Yuan Shi Kai the Prime Minister.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Shanghai. — The revolutionaries here say the peace discussion will be only desultory. After this conference, the Nanking National Convention will be held. Delegates representing eighteen provinces are now in Nanking. One of the leading members of the convention said today: "If Yuan Shi Kai bows to the inevitable within a week he will be elected president. If he does not, Sun Yat Sen will be the first president."

It is evident the Republicans are convinced that Premier Yuan in proposing peace negotiations is simply sparing for time and the Republicans proceed with preparations for winter campaign.

The leaders assert that if the Manchus abdicate and Yuan Shi Kai consents to their elimination, the entire country would be quiet and safe within a week.

The Foreign Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai has adopted a resolution protesting against all loans to the administration.

"FAT MEAT AND STRONG COFFEE" LIVES TO BE 100

Columbus, O. — "I ate fat meat, drank strong coffee, worked hard and kept cheerful — that's how I have lived 100 years," says Mrs. Ellen Mitchell who just recently celebrated her 100th birthday. For the past 70 years she has smoked the strongest kind of tobacco in a clay pipe. That helps her to be cheerful, she thinks. Another aid is her habit of never worrying. For 93 years she escaped doctor's medicine.

MRS. ELLEN MITCHELL

Mrs. Mitchell has outlived eight of her ten children. During her more active years she wove cloth, husked corn, laid fence rails, and did the housework. Now her activities are confined to playing blindman's buff with her grandchildren.

FINGER PRINTS POINT TO GUILT

Finger Print on Cigaret Case May Send Man to Chair for Murder For First Time in United States.

New York. — A fingerprint on a cigaret case — the only tangible bit of evidence against him — may send Joseph Roberts, West Indian negro, to the electric chair for the murder of Isaac Vogel, jeweler.

Vogel was killed in a cellar a short time ago and his clothes looted. There was no clue and detectives had given up hope of solving the mystery when Detective Hayes found the loot in a loft that only Roberts had access to.

Searching among the recovered effects of the dead man he found a cigaret case which Vogel, on the day of his death, had cleaned and burnisheded and wrapped in tissue paper to keep it spotless. When Hayes opened the package he found the tissue had been disturbed and a smudge on the case.

Capt. Faurot, fingerprint expert in the central office, compared the mark with that of many different ones in police headquarters and announced that it matched that of Roberts, whose fingerprint had been taken some time ago when detectives were trying to run down the perpetrator of a safe robbery.

At the time of the safe robbery Roberts was arrested because his fingerprint matched that around the safe door. He was indicted, but never tried and was finally discharged.

"This is the first time in this country that fingerprints will be used as evidence of the first importance in a murder case," said Inspector Hughes.

NEW CAPITAL OF INDIA

Emperor and Empress Laid the First Stone.

Delhi. — The King-Emperor and Queen-Empress laid the first stone of the new capital of India, which, as was proclaimed after the Durbar, is to be Delhi, today. There was a brilliant assemblage of ruling princes, governors and state officials. The foundation stone simply bore the date 15—12—11.

Their Majesties are both enjoying splendid health in spite of the great fatigue they have undergone during the lengthy ceremonies of the Durbar.

Burned to Death.

Montreal, Jan. 8.—Three-year-old Albert Gingras upset a lamp in his home on St. Timothe street yesterday while his mother was out, and the blaze thus started burned his nine-month-old sister to death. The fire was soon controlled by the firemen before much damage was done.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or women in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a- million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. ### SOCIAL TODIES

Many Women Take Pleasure in Mere Gazing at the Great and Then Talking About It.

One of the most amusing persons to be found upon the outskirts of the social world, is that simple nature which takes pleasure in merely gazing at the "great" who are and are likely to continue unknown, except by sight, to the gazer! This "eye" acquaintance is usually begun at some restaurant, or at the opera or theatre. The observer hears a stranger in the crowd identify some person present as a celebrity. Straightway she gazes at the celebrity in question, and afterwards takes pleasure in remembering him or her, and in tagging the admired personality to its name mentally.

Careful perusal of all news concerning the personage who has been recognized follows, and the number of the public characters added to this silent collection as the season wears on is limited only by opportunity. By and by, this knowledge can no longer be pent up in the bosom of the acquirer. Streams of chatty anecdote begin to be poured forth to any one who will listen. Sometimes, indeed, these recitals teem with inaccuracies, as she cannot always be correctly informed as to friendships and relationships. The speaker needs to trip wearily, when she talks to those who are at home in the world of which she speaks. For after a few misstatements, she will be a marked woman, recognized by all as one who dreams of a glorious social career not likely ever to be realized.

TO USE A PAPER PATTERN

Sort out the pieces and make quite sure which is which.

Try the pieces against some old well-fitting garment and notice where alterations in size, if any, are necessary.

If the sleeve is too long, cut the pattern in halves at the elbow, cut out the surplus length and paste the parts together again. Cutting from top or bottom throws the sleeve out of proportion.

If the back of the bodies is too narrow, tack a strip of paper the extra width required down the centre of the shoulder to the waist. If a skirt is the wrong length cut the pattern in two at the line of the knees and there either add or take from the length. Cutting off from bottom or top spoils the shape.

When allowing for seams, remember that half an inch should be left for a single seam, and an inch for a double one. A loosely-woven fabric requires that rather more should be left to allow for fraying.

See that the material is spread quite smoothly on the table before you pin the pattern to it. Use a very sharp pair of scissors and take long straight cuts with them.

The best way of marking on the material the notches on the part is to put in three or four big loose stitches in bright thread; chalk is apt to be difficult to brush off, and pins have a trick of dropping out.

To Remove a Bad Complexion

Cosmetics can never really help a poor complexion; often they are positively harmful. The sensible, rational way is to actually remove the thin veil of stifling, half-dead scarf skin from the face and give the fresh, vigorous and beautiful young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

This is best done in a very simple way, by merely applying mercolized wax at night, like cold cream, and washing it off in the morning. Good mercolized wax can be obtained from any well-stocked druggist. It absorbs the disfiguring cuticle gradually and harmlessly, leaving a brilliant natural complexion. Of course, this also takes with it all such facial blemishes as red blotches, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples, etc. As a freckle remover and general complexion beautifier this old-fashioned remedy is unequaled.

Substitue for Putty

A cheap substitute for putty suitable for stopping cracks in floors and other wood work, is made by soaking newspaper in a paste made by boiling a pound of flour in three quarts of water and adding a teaspoonful of alum. This mixture will be about the consistency of putty, and it should be forced nto the cracks with a knife. It will harden when it dries, and then may be painted to match the boards. If the cracks be neatly stopped they will, when painted, be hardly perceptible

HOMELY HINTS

If you have a good deal of ironing to do, a much better iron-chest than the ordinary metal stand is a brick, previously heated in the oven. In this way, the iron will retain its heat nearly twice as long, and you will save much time.

When stoning raisins it is a good plan to have a basin of hot water at hand in which to dip fingers and knife as they become sticky. Another good plan is to rub a little butter on the fingers before beginning the work and thus to prevent the raisins making them sticky.

When plaster casts or statues become soiled with either dust or finger-marks make a creamy solution of dry starch and cold water, and apply it with a soft brush, carefully wetting all crevices and depressions. Set the cast aside to dry, then remove the starch with a stiff brush, and it will look as if fresh from the studio.

On the War Path.

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPETITE, SLEEPLESSNESS.

NOTHING SO SURE TO "SET UP" A MAN, MAKE HIM FEEL BRISK AND VIGOROUS AS DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Lack of exercise and overwork were the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, jr., one of the best known citizens in Woodstock

In his convincing letter Mr. Stephens says:—

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip completely worn out. I was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of ever getting well. I was always tired and languid, had no energy and spirit, found it difficult to sleep for more than five hours. My appetite was so fickle that I ate next to nothing, and in consequence lost weight and strength. I was pale and had dark rings under my eyes that made me look like a shadow.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, languor and feeling of depression passed away, and I fast regained my old-time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well—thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort and good spirits there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Beware of substitutes, and don't let any dealer palm off some other pill on which he can make more money. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

INQUIRY INTO RATES

Dominion Railway Board Will Investigate Complaints.

General Examination of All Freight Tolls in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Western Ontario Will Be Undertaken by the Commission and If They Are Excessive Reduction Will Be Made.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—One of the most important orders ever issued by the Board of Railway Commissioners was made public yesterday, when it was announced that a general enquiry will be undertaken by the board into all freight tolls in effect in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, as well as in Ontario, west of, and including, Port Arthur. The order states that, if it is found that the tolls charged by the railways are excessive, the same shall be reduced as the board may determine.

The first sitting of the board in connection with the enquiry will be held in Ottawa on Feb. 13, to consider the procedure upon the enquiry. In the meantime, the board is applying to the Minister of Justice to appoint counsel to represent the public upon the enquiry.

The enquiry will not extend to British Columbia for the reason that the tolls of the railway companies operating in that province are already the subject of enquiry upon the complaints of the Vancouver Board of Trade and the United Farmers of Alberta.

The order states that many complaints have been made as to the rates charged by the railways, but the board had delayed taking action until the Regina rate case had been settled.

The Supreme Court having ordered in connection with the consideration of this case that the discrimination in favor of points in Manitoba, against points in Saskatchewan and Alberta, must be removed by the reduction of class rates to points in the two provinces further west, the board is now free to undertake a wide investigation as to the whole question of western freight rates.

Quebec Legislature Opens.

Quebec, Jan. 10.—The opening of the session of the Quebec Legislature was held at three o'clock yesterday afternoon and was marked by all the brilliancy which usually accompanies the event. Quebec was veiled yesterday by an old-time snowstorm, but the attendance at the opening was as large as usual.

After the usual formalities his honor, Lieut.-Governor Sir Francis Langelier, proceeded to deliver the speech from the throne, which in part was as follows: The colonization department has already begun the construction of a main artery in the Temiskaming region, and proposes to begin opening a road about 110 miles long in Abitibi next spring, along which road free grants of lots will be given. It is important, however, that these two regions be placed in communication with consuming and distributing centres by means of railway lines. Thus, for instance, a line with its terminus at James Bay would greatly promote the development of our farming and other industries, while aiding that portion of products exported to Europe by the western provinces. The Ministers therefore intend the construction of new railways through the north of our province.

Opened Inquest Into Wreck.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—In order to allow the calling of several witnesses who were not to be found yesterday, Coroner McMahon shelved the inquest into the deaths of the five men who were killed in the smash on the Canadian Pacific Railway at Vincent de St. Paul Monday for eight days. Yesterday's proceedings were purely formal, Drs. McTaggart and Dugas giving evidence as to the immediate cause of death, while Engineer Francois Paquette, Fireman Lomentagne and Baggageman Dufresne told of the smash.

At St. Vincent de Paul the wreckage gang, with its big steam crane, worked all night and all yesterday. The last of the wreckage will be cleared away to-day.

Among those who had very narrow escapes was George Delisle, M.P.P. for St. Maurice. Mr. Delisle had eleven relatives on board the wrecked train, yet not one was injured.

Bylaws Corruptly Carried.

St. Boniface, Man., Jan. 10.—According to ex-Mayor Bertrand, the bylaws authorizing large expenditures on pavements and other public works were actually defeated instead of being passed at the recent municipal elections. He charges that grave irregularities took place in the count of votes, the instigators being parties interested in the contracts.

Judge Prudhomme, who opens an investigation into the civic federation in February, will sift this charge.

A Children's Shelter.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hardy announced yesterday a munificent gift for the town in the form of a Children's Aid Shelter. The Steacey homestead was purchased by them and handed over yesterday.

Sir Charles Tupper Is Weaker.

London, Jan. 10.—Sir Charles Tupper is slightly weaker to-day.

Call For General Strike.

Boston, Jan. 9.—Efforts to cause a sympathetic strike of 6,000 men to aid the longshoremen's strike in this city were made yesterday. The Longshoremen's Trade Council voted yesterday to ask the support of all other transportation organizations of District Assembly 30, Knights of Labor, which includes freight handlers, freight clerks, and steamship carpenters.

The executive committee of the district assembly discussed the situation for several hours last night. Considerable opposition to a general strike was expressed.

The final vote upon a general strike will not be taken until to-night, and a decision to go out would have effect at midnight.

BLIZZARD AT SOO.

City Is In Throes of Storm That Is Tying Up All Business.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 10.—The Soo last night was in the throes of a blizzard and although the temperature is only five below zero, a northwest wind, accompanied by unprecedented snow, has tied up all business, and those who venture on the streets do so at great risk.

It is impossible to see across the street. All trains are tied up and the street car service is at a standstill, the tracks being snowed in immediately after the passage of a snowplow or car. The storm is the worst that has struck the Soo in many years. It is estimated that two feet of snow have fallen since 12 o'clock Monday night. The storm is gradually growing worse and temperature is falling.

It is reported that a man in the west end strayed from the sidewalk and, wandering on the road, was struck by a rig, which was also lost, and the man killed. Efforts to find the man in the storm failed and the body cannot be discovered until the storm subsides.

Other fatalities are likely to result as a party of men left yesterday morning on foot for the lumber camps on the A.C.R. and unless they reach shelter they cannot outlive the storm.

Blizzard In Kingston.

Kingston, Jan. 10.—Kingston has been the centre of a fierce blizzard for twenty-four hours. The street cars were tied up all day, but an effort is being made to open traffic.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union met yesterday at Gueiph.

The Chesley Town Council passed a resolution in favor of continuing the Flying Post mail service.

Reports of fierce blizzards, with intensely cold weather, have been received from Halifax to the Soo.

Mr. C. Grant's report that he has found diamonds in Keewatin district has not been substantiated at Ottawa.

Further arrests were made in the United States in connection with the New Westminster, B.C., bank robbery.

Six men were killed and two probably fatally injured last night by an explosion of dynamite in the Parrish colliery at Plymouth, near Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Premier Borden has no comment to make on the announcement that Britain has been unable to secure any moderation in the favored-nation treaties favorable to Canada.

A further serious attempt is to be made almost immediately by the Conservative members of the House of Commons outside the Cabinet to secure the retirement of the three Montreal harbor commissioners.

Benjamin Brass of Hamilton, 79 years of age, was found wandering around yesterday afternoon, in the snow without any clothing, except a pair of trousers, and was taken to the city hospital, where he is now in a critical condition.

Richeson Must Die.

Boston, Jan. 10.—A plea of guilty of murder in the first degree was made by Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson in the Superior Court yesterday and he was sentenced by Judge Sanderson to death by electrocution some time during the week of May 19, 1912.

Richeson had pleaded not guilty when arraigned after his indictment on the charge of poisoning Avis Linnell of Hyannis, Mass., his former fiance, but following a written confession, made public Saturday last, he yesterday retracted this plea. It is understood that a petition is to be presented to Governor Foss and the executive council of the state to commute the death sentence to imprisonment for life. Foss and many of the council are known to be opposed to capital punishment. Richeson's counsel will urge that he is insane.

C.N.R.'s Montreal Tunnel.

Montreal, Jan. 10.—The plans of the Canadian Northern Railway for improved passenger and freight facilities on the island of Montreal, were officially laid before the Board of Control yesterday.

The plans indicate that it is the intention of the railway to construct a tunnel three miles long through the very heart of Mount Royal and an elevated railway from Lagauchitiere street to the water front, where they will connect with the Grand Trunk. A freight line is to be built around the eastern end of the city to Longue Point to the present location of the C.N.R. station.

No mention was made of the possible Montreal station.

Schooner Wrecked, Crew Escaped.

Lunenburg, N.S., Jan. 10.—The schooner Virginia is a total loss at Rosehead, a rocky promontory between here and the mouth of the Lahave River, battered by a terrific gale, which swept along the coast, she went ashore yesterday morning. Capt. Leander Publicover and his crew of six men escaped. The Virginia was in ballast from Halifax to Liverpool to load lumber for Barbados. Her managing owner is A. C. Barnaby of Bridgewater. The vessel was built at Lunenburg several years ago and was insured in the Lahave Marine Insurance Co.

Norway Strengthens Navy.

Christiania, Jan. 10.—The Cabinet has resolved to propose to the Storthing that it vote an appropriation of 16,500,000 kroner ($4,125,000) for the development of Norway's naval defence.

The plan is to add to the present navy two armored cruisers and a flotilla of torpedo boats and includes also the construction of fortifications along the western coast.

Collision at Listowel.

Listowel, Jan. 10.—During the height of the storm yesterday, a passenger train from Palmerston ran into a freight near Listowel Station, the driver being unable to see for any distance in front. Considerable damage was done to the engine, but no one was injured beyond a severe shaking up.

M. DE SELVES RESIGNS

French Foreign Minister Refuses to Corroborate Premier.

The Framer of the Franco-German Moroccan Treaty Quits His Office In a Dramatic Manner and General Upheaval In Affairs of the Republic Is Threatened—Premier Denies Financial Negotiations.

Paris, Jan. 10.—The Franco-German Moroccan treaty, which ended the war crisis a few months ago, brought about last evening in a dramatic manner the resignation of the French Foreign Minister, Justin De Selves. This threatens to be followed by a general Parliamentary investigation and a Ministerial upheaval.

Charges that financiers of France and Germany were permitted to carry on secret negotiations relative to the Congo and Morocco caused the rupture. Premier Caillaux at a meeting of the Senate committee gave his word of honor that there had been no such negotiations, but the Foreign Minister declined to back the Premier, and refused to make a statement either pro or con.

The present crisis has been brewing ever since the treaty was signed and is due to repeated allegations that the French ambassador, Jules Cambon, did not have a free hand in the negotiations with Germany, and that other negotiations, of which the Foreign Office and the ambassador were ignorant, were being secretly conducted between the two countries, concerning railroad concessions in the Congo, Kamerun and Morocco.

The storm broke at the meeting of the Senate committee, with ex-Premier Clemenceau holding a great advantage. Premier Caillaux denied that there had ever been semi-official pourparlers before the interview at Kissengen. He had, he said, repudiated a contract for railroad concessions alleged to have been made between a Frenchman named Fondere and Dr. Semler, a member of the Reichstag.

The Premier narrated the negotiations relative to the proposed railroads in Morocco, and affirmed that he was happy to give his word of honor that there had been no negotiations except those of which the Foreign Office and M. Cambon were fully cognizant.

M. Clemenceau arose and looked fixedly at the Foreign Minister. "Will you confirm the statement of the Premier?" he asked.

M. De Selves at first refused to answer, but, pressed by Senator Bourgeois, chairman of the committee, finally said: "I cannot answer the question. I am tied between a double duty—to stick to the truth and tell all, and not to hurt the interests of the country by deserting the Cabinet."

These words created a sensation, and the committee adjourned in great confusion. Afterwards a second scene was enacted in the ante-room to which Premier Caillaux, Foreign Minister De Selves and ex-Premier Clemenceau withdraw. M. Clemenceau, according to friends of M. de Selves, reproached Premier Caillaux in violent terms for fostering secret negotiations, of which M. Clemenceau said he had been for a long time informed. The Foreign Minister, for his part, frankly told the Premier that he could no longer sit beside him in the Cabinet, and therefore resigned.

M. de Selves sent his letter of resignation to President Fallieres. In it he pointed out that he no longer wished to assume the responsibilities of the Foreign portfolio, with a split in the Cabinet. He added that he could not publicly protest against the statement of Premier Caillaux. On the other hand, his conscience forbade him to confirm it.

The Premier likewise issued a statement in which he insisted that he had told the whole truth. He had always refused, he said, to listen to people who approached him relative to the negotiations, saying that Ambassador Cambon alone had the right to speak for France.

Destroyer's Rough Time.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10.—Battered and crippled as the result of her severe experience at sea, the torpedoboat destroyer Terry limped into port yesterday with one engine working. A thrilling story of their battle with wind and wave was told by her crew.

The Terry had been assigned to scout duty in the war game manoeuvres and was somewhere off Cape Sable, on the Nova Scotia coast, when the storm struck her late Saturday. For 48 hours the little craft was almost at the mercy of the seas.

French Consul For Montreal.

Paris, Jan. 10.—Among the diplomatic appointments gazetted yesterday is that of Charles Jules Joseph Bonin, who has been nominated charge of the French consul-general at Montreal. At the same time he has been promoted to the rank of secretary of embassy of the first class. The principal part of his diplomatic career has been passed in the Orient and in the Far East.

Another appointment is that of Francois Marie Robert Dejean, who has been named commercial attache for North America.

Foreign Powers Suspicious.

London, Jan. 10.—The Canadian Press is informed that Sir Edward Grey's communication to the foreign Governments concerned conveying the desire of the overseas dominions to be allowed to withdraw from Great Britain's commercial treaties is not meeting with a ready response except in the case of Sweden. In some cases the communication was met with a demand for "further particulars."

Doughty Deputy Minister.

Ottawa, Jan. 10.—It is announced that Dr. A. G. Doughty, C.M.G., now in charge of the Dominion Archives, is to be given the rank of Deputy Minister and that he will be given more extensive quarters and additional employes to cope with the increasing work.

Socialists May Gain.

Berlin, Jan. 10.—The preparation for the general elections to the Reichstag, which takes place throughout the empire on Friday next, show a curious contrast to the procedure of a Canadian election campaign. Neither the parties, nor the newspapers of different shades of opinion, have yet ventured to give forecasts of the results of the elections. They content themselves with indicating what they expect to be the general trend of the voting.

This shows that a heavy defection of Conservatives is awaited, and corresponding gains for the Socialists, with the Centre party remaining practically unbroken, and Liberal and Radical gains from the Conservatives, balanced in part by losses to the Socialists.

A factor generally overlooked is that the Socialists and Centrists (or Catholics), stand to lose, owing to the rupture of the relations which existed between them at the general elections of 1907, when they stood together on the defensive against the campaign waged by Prince Von Buelow, who did everything in his power to cause their defeat.

One well-informed writer anticipates that the Socialists will lose all the twelve seats they secured at the second ballots after the general elections of 1907, with the assistance of the Centre. The latter party will, the same writer expects, forfeit approximately the same number which they gained with the assistance of the Socialists at the same period.

Gave Him New Eye.

Paris, Jan. 10.—An important operation in eye surgery and the grafting of a human cornea, has been successfully performed by the oculist, Magitot. He showed before the Academy of Sciences yesterday a patient who had become blind by the splashing of quicklime in his eyes. A thick film formed over the cornea. Dr. Magitot cut a small window in the opaque mass and grated a portion of the cornea from the living subject. Adherence of the tissue was complete in a week. The patient's vision is about one-tenth normal—sufficient to get about safely alone.

General Montero Gains Ground.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 10.—After a battle, which ended in favor of the troops from this city, who are supporting the provisional government proclaimed at Guayaquil on Dec. 28 by Gen. Pedro Montero, the inhabitants of the Province of Canar announced their adhesion to Gen. Montero's cause. The troops from Quito, under Gen. Placa, continue to occupy the heights in the vicinity of Alausi and Guaranda.

Battleship's Speed Record.

Devonport, Eng., Jan. 10.—The battleship cruiser Lion accomplished a record speed of over 31 knots during an eight-hour full power trial run in stormy weather, according to an official announcement made yesterday.

The German armored cruiser Moltke was hitherto the holder of the speed record, having accomplished 29 knots during her trials.

OBITUARY

MATTHEW SHETLER.

On Thursday afternoon, Jan. 4th 1912, the funeral of the late Matthew Shetler took place and was largely attended. The cortege left the family residence and proceeded to the Presbyterian Church, where an impressive service was held and conducted by the Rev. Mr. McArthur, of Iroquois, a former pastor and much admired friend of the deceased, assisted by Mr. Wickett, the Methodist pastor of the Shannonville circuit, another highly respected friend of the deceased. During the service the church was filled with sympathizing friends. Interment took place in Melrose vault. The bearers were neighbors of the deceased, namely Noble E. Clark, Wm. Busby, Isaac Sills, Wm. Sine, Frank Bennett and Frank Palmer. Deceased was in his 77th year and was born in Newburgh, Ont. In addition to the wife, a family of four sons and four daughters survive. The sons are Fred H., of Montreal; Matthew, of Prince Albert, Sask.; Harvey E. and Reginald Ross, at home. The daughters are Mrs. D. C. Paul, Macdowell Sask.; Mrs. Eliza Tise, at home; Mrs. Clem J. Bell, Wellington, Ont.; Mrs. Elmer Vivian, 2nd concession Thurlow.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

PROPOSED BY CONGRESSMAN.

To give every man and woman over 60 years old a pension from the United States treasury, is the surprising proposal of a congressman.

What most old people need is help in keeping up strength and vigor.

Thousands of them know that the greatest help they can get is our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, called Vinol.

Mrs. Mary Ivey, of Columbus, Ga., says: "If people only knew the good Vinol does old people you would be unable to supply the demand. I never took anything before that did me so much good as Vinol has done. It is the finest tonic and strength creator I ever used in my life."

Vinol renews the energy and strength of old people because it enriches their thinned blood and improves their appetite and digestion, and is also so pleasant to take that they like to use it. We guarantee Vinol to give perfect satisfaction and pay back your money if it does not. —Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

THE WORLD A GREAT TINDER BOX WHICH A MATCH MIGHT FIRE

AllMeans to Preserve Peace Have Failed—Mr. Flint Reviews the Situation of Affairs in Many Lands—All are Seemingly on the Verge of War—Labor and Capital are Likely to Fight

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—A great man said, war is hell. A short time ago the Czar inaugurated a campaign of peace. All nations were to submit disputes to arbitration. The sword was to be sheathed, the "spears beaten into pruning hooks." Carnegie's "Temple" at The Hague was to be the home of the white-winged evangel of peace. In fancy, we heard the song reverberating through the air, as it did centuries ago, "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men." But alas! instead of the white-robed angel, there has been a carnival of demons. Never since the earth began to spin around its orbit have there been so many wars, frightful cruelties and bloodshed. General Fred Grant said a good thing at a banquet recently. A war was going on, and one day the papers bring full accounts of the grim details of a bloody battle. A woman said to her husband, "This slaughter is shocking; it's fiendish! Can nothing be done to stop it?"

"I'm afraid not," her husband answered.

"Why don't both sides come together and arbitrate?" she cried.

"They did," said he. "They did, way back in June. That's how the whole gol darn thing started."

Russia has taken possession of Mongolia, with its million and a quarter of square miles, and millions of inhabitants, because of the defenceless position of China. Italy attacks Tripoli because of the unsettled and revolutionary state of Turkey. Russia enters poor harassed Persia and shoots and hangs Persian subjects trying to defend their homes, and expels Schuster, the financial saviour of that unfortunate land. Spain throws bombs at King Alfonso. Portugal shoots her King and Crown Prince. Leopold of Belgium has just gone to his account to meet the spirits of tens of thousands of murdered black men and women and mutilated little children, done to death by the greatest monster who ever wore a crown. Japan's great statesman, Ito, and Russia's Premier assassinated. Russian prisons full of men and women whose only crime was love for their poor country, bleeding under the oppressor's scourge. Mexico just passing through the horrors of a revolution. Nearly every great power filled with the lust of aggrandizement, robs the smaller and lesser power.

The Philippines have passed from Spanish rule, at a terrible cost in blood and treasure, to the United States. A rupture between England and Germany, just prevented by diplomacy. France and Germany hating each other (with the most intense bitterness) on account of the Moroccan dispute. India and her Mohammedans striving to force Britain to act against Italy. The Czar threatened with assassination. The world seems to be one great tinder box, which a single match may fire at any moment. Eight millions starving in Russia, millions starving in China; little children dying by hundreds. A million and a quarter of camels were employed by the Mongolians to carry tea from China into Siberia. Now, a Russian railway (secretly constructed) will get the traffic, and China powerless to prevent the robbery. Armenians massacred, Jews beaten, murdered, robbed and expatriated. The revolution and fate of China possesses intense interest to the Occidental nations as well as Oriental. Turkestan, Bokhara are immense territories. Thibet, a great country, now opened by Chinese troops and Chinese influences. If China is desmembered; if China loses Mongolia, nothing (apparently) can prevent Russia acquiring the great territories I have alluded to. Then the empire of the great White Czar would be on the confines of India. Now, evidently England holds India by a fragile tenure. The bond has been strained more than once. Disraeli succeeded in making what he styled a "scientific frontier" for India. But the people are inimical to the Christian religion. They are Mohammedans, Hindoos, Buddhists, etc. With Russia at her doors, and only an imaginary line separating Russia from India, the position must necessarily be a very grave one. The Manchu dynasty may pass. Dr. Tien may win. One thing is sure, progress and intelligence will mark the course of China. Intellectual, temperate, imitative, inventive, with five thousand of their young men at the best universities of the world, China, from being the sleeping giant, will, with her 400,000,000, awaken with a bound. Not an art or science known to the west but will be cultivated in the east. This civilization will force into the limelight the great peril of the Occident—"the Yellow Peril." If the yellow men of the east confederate; if the Mohammedans, Hindoos, Buddhists of China, India, Japan, Mongolia, Turkestan and Thibet preach a holy war, such as has been carried on in the Soudan by the Mahdi, what would happen?

In the meantime, all over the world, there is a war at this moment fraught with the most terrible danger to the commercial and financial prosperity of many countries, the war between labor and capital, the war which has created thugs who dynamite the finest buildings in the land and murder hundreds of innocent persons. Labor organiaztions denounce these thugs, but nevertheless it is the war that produced them. Labor shrinks in horror at these acts, but the dynamiting goes on without their directions, because thugs and murderers will continue their deadly work for plunder and booty irrespective of labor.

In the meantime, we are learning a great deal. We are journeying inwardly upon the wings of the microscope, towards the small, and outwardly with tte telescope towards the large. We thought and taught that the sky was a level plain, and our earth flat. We know it now to be a large earth, round, five continents (and as many oceans), flying around the sun, held by a string ninety-five millions of miles long. We take the invisible air and compress it into a liquid, which we carry in pails, and use for economical purposes. We are using the heat of the sun to run caloric engines of great power. We are harnessing our cataracts and waterfalls and with electric wires are making wheels turn and factories run many miles distant. We are lighting our houses and heating them with some invisible agent which we do not understand, and which we cannot see but which we capture and bend to our will. We perform miracles when we circle the world in a few seconds with the Marconigraph, and by it send succour and aid to ships in distress hundreds of miles distant. Prior to this invention, in early days, Indians communicated with each other by the means of fires on hills. An invention was used by Napoleon, which was much valued by him. Towers were erected, with a semaphore with arms These towers were continued to the French frontiers, and by moving the arms of the semaphores, messages were transmitted. If Napoleon had had one of these towers by which a message could have been conveyed to Genetal Grouchy (who, with a large army, was awaiting a messenger from Napoleon), the fortunes of Waterloo would (in all probability) have been of a different character and result For centuries, even from classic times it was the ambition of the great inventors to construct a flying machine with which to cleave the air like a bird. Their efforts resulted in failures. Now men rival the birds in height and rapidity of flight, and what was deemed an impossibility has now been achieved. What is there left for man to conquer? He has even caught the elements which compose the sun, ninety-five millions of miles distant, and tells us of what they consist. Surgery, bacteriology have brought forth their wonderful discoveries, until we is there anything else to discover. There remains one thing more, which is deserving of the best efforts of the wise men of our race, and that is the creation of some power which will control, with an iron hand, the great nations in their thirst for power and aggrandizement. Has not the world from the earliest ages been drenched with blood and gore simply to win some power other other and weaker nations, or obtain some land by force or brand?? The freedom from the "yellow peril" is to be found in the successful effort of some kind which will hold the nations in bonds of amity and friendship, even if it be a confederation of the white races against the yellow. I am,

Yours,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

CATHEDRAL A WAR CHEST.

St. Petersburg, as well as Moscow has some cathedrals which are marvels of eclesiastical architecture. St. Isaacs' Cathedral, for instance, in the centre of the city, cost 24,000,000 roubles, or $12,000,000.

Scores and scores of immense marble pillars adorn its four equal sides, while several of the beautiful green malachite columns within are worth a king's ransom. It is said that in the golden domes of St. Isaac's and the jewels within, Russia has a "war chest" that would defend her from her enemies for many a month if she should need the gold.—Christian Herald.

PERSONS OF TITLE FLOCK TO CANADA

Duke and Duchess of Sutherland are Among those to Move

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Canada is now waiting an "Emigration de Luxe," which is to take place this year. Several members of the British peerage are going to take up farming in Canada in the spring, and a large number of peers will make their annual tour of inspection of their Canadian estates. The explanation of the titled exodus to Canada is due, in part to modern legislation and in part to the fact that Canada affords freedom and natural life unobtainable in England, it is said.

"There are enough titled persons living in Canada or interested in the country to open a House of Peers of their own," said a leading railway official, "and with the Duke of Connaught as Governor General, we have all the material to go ahead and start a colonial kingdom.

"The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland will take up their residence for the coming autumn in their bungalow at Brooks, Alberta. It is a cosy little weather board house in the middle of the prairie holdings.

"Earl Grey keeps a hunting lodge in the Columbia Valley, B.C., and Lord Aberdeen owns one of the finest and most profitable fruit farms on the Pacific slope, the Coldstream estate.

"Lord Clanwilliam is a large land holder, and, with Hon. Edward Cole, is interested in the Saskatchewan Investment and Trust Company, which owns the leading hotel at Saskatchewan. Both men spend much time in Canada.

"Lord Hindlip is the landlord of a vast area of prairie and British Columbia land, and Lord Desborough is interested in the timber and lumber trade.

"Lord Sholto Douglas is, or was until recently, fruit farming in British Columbia, and the Earl of Stanhope frequently visits the Dominion. Among other members of the British peerage who are interested in Canada either for the hunting or its commercial opportunities, are Lord Bruce, Lord Mostyn, Lord Vivian, Marquis of Graham, Lord Wenlock, Earl of Macclesfield, Lord Clinton, Earl of Dunmore, Earl of Harrowby and Viscount Gort.

"Among the new settlers is Lord Somers, who recently left the Life Guards to go farming near Toronto, and he is coming home to take out Lord and Lady Hyde, sister and brother-in-law, who are to join him there. Lord Leconfield's brother, Mr. Reginald Wyndham, is another settler."

MYSTERY IN FOUR DEATHS.

Poison the Supposed Cause, but There Is No Clue.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—Investigations by the police and the coroner have failed to solve the riddle as to how four persons found dead in a north Twenty-fourth Street house in this city died. The dead are:—Mrs. Bridget Flannagan, 38 years old; her daughter Annie, 10 years; an adopted child, 15 months old; Catherine Murray, 18 years of age. Mrs. Hannah Curran and her daughter, who were taken ill during Saturday night, are recovering.

The four found dead slept in one room. The police are searching for Wm. Flannagan, husband of the dead woman, who disappeared about ten days ago.

It is believed that poison in the milk and tea Saturday evening caused the deaths.

TORONTO DIGNITARIES FEASTED WITH CHINESE

Mayer Geary and Others who Tasted the Strange Dishes All Wanted More

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—Probably the weirdest menu that ever passed the lips of Mayor Geary and sundry others used to dining in high society, was the bill of fare of the Chinese banquet last night. The dishes, as announced in The Telegram yesterday, included:

Mud Turtle Soup.
Flying Fish Wings.
Birds' Nests.
Chickens' Tongues.
Chicken Mushroom.
Chop Suey.
Roast Turkey.
Rice.
Steamed Duck.
Steamed Mushrooms.
Chop Soo.
More Rice.
Republican Chop Suey (a new dish composed of frogs' legs, Chinese bean root, celery, Chinese onions, and gravy, served with beautifully cooked white boiled rice in little separate bowls).
Tangerines.
Melon Seeds.

There was all sorts of fun, even though the facilities for making and hearing speeches were limited by the mutual failure of guests and hosts to command much of each other's language, but the Anglo-Saxons made a near attempt on tasting everything and were pleasantly surprised.

Mayor Geary, Crown Attorney Corley and J. W. Curry, K. C., were amongst the guests of honor and all made complimentary speeches.

The grand master of the Chinese Free Masons in Ontario, Low Yuen Yat, was at the head of the table with Mayor Geary on his left and Mr. Cor- Chinese merchant in Toronto sat be- ley on his right. Ing Young, the chief side Mr. Corley. Next was Mr. Hyvery, Mr. Drew McKenna, the marshal of the afternoon's paarde, Charlie Yomes, a very prominent Chinaman of Vancouver, Moy Yen of Toronto, King Tung Sung of Montreal. Mr King organized the celebartion. Beside him sat Hung Chong from Oshawa. Mr. Thomas H. Osborne, inspector; H. B. Gadsen of the Canadian Detective Bureau, F. C. Gorman, assistant superintendent and Mr. John Halliday.

KINGS TALKED OF A DUEL.

The personal enmity which existed between George II. and Frederick, King of Prussia, reached at one time to such a height that, as Baron Byfield was informed on good authority, the monarchs conceived the very singular design of gratifying it in a duel.

King George made a choice of Brigadier Sutton for his second, and the King of Prussia of Colonel Derschau. The territory of Hilderscheim was picked on for the meeting. His Britannic Majesty was then at Hanover, and his Prussian Majesty had come as far as Salzdahl, near Brunswick. Baron Borck, the Prussian Minister at London, and lately dismissed from the court in a very abrupt manner, having repaired to the King, his master at Salzdahl, found him in such a violent passion that he did not think it advisable directly to oppose his design, but to gain time feigned to approve of the extraordinary combat which his Majesty meditated, and he even offered to carry the challenge.

The challenge was not sent. Ministers on both sides gained time, the choler of both parties evaporated, and the following year the quarrel was made up.—The Percey Anecdotes.

CHANGE IN THE BASIS OF UNION

Presbyterian Amendent to Eliminate Complications in the United Church

TORONTO, Jan. 9.— One of th most important amendments to th basis of the proposed union of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational churches was introduced b Prof. J. Ballantyne, of Knox College and unanimously passed by the Toronto Presbytery assembled in th Temple Building to-day. As th clauses in the projected constitutio read in the original, it was though that much confusion would arise, an to do away with complications afte amalgamation the amendments we proposed and passed.

All morning was occupied with th union question, the members dealin with the department of polity in committee of the whole.

The first section taken up was "Who shall constitute the Church, an who shall manage?" The first subsection under this heading was adopted to the effect that all members o the now existing congregations woul become members of the Unite Church.

The second section that the unit o organization shall be the pastora charge was also approved, but th matter of the courts of the church was deferred meantime. In this department only three courts were suggested, but it was thought that a fourth should be added. The origina basis of union included the Presbytery, Annual Conference and General Council.

The general feeling of the member was that the fourth court, to be called 'the session" should also be added. The latter and added cour should be the court of the congregation.

The next section came under th heading of "Pastoral charge or congregation." Here is where Prof Ballantyne thought a much neede amendment should be submitted. I was agreed to substitute the followin resolution:—

"That in the opinion of this Presbytery it is desirable that all pastora charges in the United Church shoul adopt a uniform mode of organizatio such as is proposed for charges to b formed subsequent to the union, and that the privileges granted in Section 7, 5 and 9 should be withdrawn an that in any event, where congregations belong to different denomination, unite to form one charge, they shall be required to adopt the plan that may be prescribed for the congregations subsequent to the union."

In the sections 4 and 5, any congregation may amalgamate with the United Church, but retain their old form of organization. They could unite at any future date, to suit themselves, adopt the policy of the Union Church policy.

According to section nine, any congregation formed subsequent to the union may, if they wish, adopt any form of organization—Presbyterian, Methodist or Congregational, and later adopt the Union Church system This latter clause was thought to be particularly confusing, and would lead to complications for all churches whether now organized or to come into existence after official amalgamation.

Not Protected by Gunboat.

Hankow, Jan. 10.—One hundred and seven Europeans and forty-five Japanese from Chengtu, Szechuen Province, who for a long time were practically shut off from the rest of China, because of disorders and the activities of bandits, arrived at Hankow yesterday. Members of the party complain that the British gunboat Widgeon, which met them on the way to Hankow, failed to give them escort. As a consequence the fugitives were exposed to firing near Hukianghsien, where a boatman was wounded. Bullets struck the boats several times. It is understood that a protest has been lodged with Admiral Sir Alfred L. Winsloe, commander-in-chief of the British eastern fleet.

Esquimaux Beliefs

Esquimaux believe that earth and air are filled with spirits. The one drags men into the earth by the feet from which they never emerge; the other strikes men dead, leaving no mark. They often stop and listen and say that Tuna of the wind is passing by, imagining that the air is full of voices.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

McVEY AND LANGFORD.

A correspondent at the ringside of the Langford-McVey bout at Sydney describes it in the London Sporting Life as follows:—

Langford was all aggression from the start; McVey would not take the slightest risk; he was nearly all for defence. He would let Langford come for him, and then he would shoot out his left, and oftener than not land and land effectively, too.

McVey in the first round disclosed his plan of campaign, which was to play the waiting game, making the most of his superior height and his reach, content always to make points instead of going out to fight. And he never budged an inch from his idea. He was quick on his feet, though not so quick as Langford. Rather did he suggest the stereotyped boxer—a man who pinned his faith on the efficacy of his left hand; he was not the great two-handed boxer Langford was.

Here was Langford leaving himself open, taking risks with delightful unconcern so as to reach the body. Handicapped as he was in the matter of height that was nearly all that he could do. It was hard, indeed, for him to reach McVey's face.

McVey's Long Left.

So Langford kept boring in, not infrequently landing, but though he showed wonderful cleverness in dodging blows, there were many times when he could not escape the long left of McVey.

McVey did not appear to try for a knockout at all; he was Job-like in his patience; just waiting, waiting for an opening for his left.

The people, because Langford ever carried the fight to McVey, were taken to him completely and in this way they did McVey an injustice; they rather belittled his magnificent defensive work, and they forgot that when he sent out his left he usually landed and with power, too. Round followed round—one very much like the other.

Right Eye Closed.

In the 18th round McVey kind of wakened up, and shook Langford terribly with two hard lefts, and when the round was over, Langford's right eye was completely closed. Besides, Langford had obviously taken a great deal out of himself, and thereafter was a different man, so that McVey made points fast.

And then we got to the last round, in which McVey fought with superb judgment. Langford with but one eye went all out for a knockout, but McVey kept out of danger, and then the end came with McVey, in the opinion of the referee, the winner.

Cry for Langford.

There was much excitement—almost wildness. People screamed "Langford" by way of letting it be known that they thought he had won. But the decision was a good one.

I would add that McVey proved, beyond all question, that he is wonderfully clever; he boxed like a champion; he is a boxer with brains.

Langford, for his size, is a wonder, and a fighter to the last gasp. But I would say his courage, his capacity for taking punishment, and even the deep knowledge he has of ringcraft, could not neutralize the greater height and weight of such a worthy man as Sam McVey.

DEADLIEST POISON IN THE WORLD

Is Being Used Against British Tooops by the Abor Tribemen in Asia

The fact that the Abor tribesmen, against whom the Government of India have sent a punitive expedition to punish them for the recent massacre of Mr. Noel Williamson, are chiefly armed with bows and arrows, has led people to imagine that the natives will inflict but little damage on our soldiers.

As a matter of fact, however, the arrows used by the Abors are often more dreaded than bullets, for they are usually dipped in a poison which is probably the most deadly in the world. This poison is known as curare, and is so virulent that savages have been known to smear it on their nails and to kill an enemy by merely scratching him.

"Three years ago a young doctor was convicted at Vienna for supplying curare to a married woman, who touched a little raw place on her husband's body with it and he died," says the Field. "In effect he had been struck by a poisoned arrow."

Curare is an artificial compound, the secret of which is most jealously guarded by the priests and medicine men of the savage tribes, and travellers have told fascinating tales of how old women of the tribes assist the priests to make the stuff, and regard it as an honor to test its strength upon themselves.

Another test is to bore holes in trees and inject a quantity of curare. If the leaves have not fallen off before morning, more deadly ingredients are added.

Curiously enough, the domestic fowl and the Argos pheasant are the only creatures said to be immune from the effects of this deadly poison.

BRITANNIA MADE OVER INTO PLEASURE CRAFT

King Edward's Famous Cutter Will eB Used by His Grandsons Next Summer for Cruises in the Solent.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—King George's famous old cutter, the Britannia, is gradually losing her familiar appearance as one of the most successful English racing yachts ever built.

Last year her bulwarks were raised for the convenience and safety of the King and his guests while on deck. Now the Britannia is hauled up at East Cowes and underneath a large tarpaulin which almost covers the yacht, workmen are busy putting in new decks. In addition a large companion deck house, about eight feet long by seven feet has been fitted. This will afford seating accommodation for about six persons and will be used exclusively by the King and his guests.

It is expected that in future King George and his sailor sons will make much use of the Britannia for cruising in the Solent. When the yacht is next fitted out in the coming summer she will present an appearance very different from that of the graceful Britannia of old. There is no likelihood, however, of her being yawl-rigged, as has been hinted.

The Britannia is commanded by Capt. John Carter, whose father was her skipper in her racing days.

NO JEWELS FOR PRINCESS MARY

Will Not Allow Her Ornaments Until She Is 17.

Though Princess Mary is very fond of jewellery, she is not allowed to wear any ornament except a string of perfectly matched pearls on state occasions and a little gold chain and locket, which contains a piece of white heather in the home circle. The pearls were her mother's gift to her at the time of the coronation, and the locket was presnted to her by the Prince of Wales, who bought it when he was at Cowes for the regatta.

Queen Mary has let it be understood that no one is to give Princess Mary jewellery of any sort till she is 17, and before the Royal party left for the Durbar, the Queen repeated her wishes on this score, so whatever Princess Mary may receive for Christmas she can be quite sure that no gems, not even the modest and childish turquoise, will come her way.

The Princess has confessed to some of the ladies of the court that she does not mind not having rings and pins and chains, but that she yearns for long gold earrings set with rubies and diamonds, and that when she is 17 she hopes a set will be given to her and if not she will buy them herself.

Water cannot extinguish some men's burning desire for something stronger.

HARDEST HOCKEY MATCH EVER PLAYED HERE

Belleville Juniors and Kingston Frontenacs Had Thrilling Encounter—Teams Tied Three Times—Thirty Minutes Extra Time Had to be Played in Order to Break the Tie—Play was Clean and Fast—Visitors Finally Won

The best—because the most closely contested—hockey match which ever took place on Belleville ice was that which was played here last night between the Belleville Juniors and the Frontenac Juniors, of Kingston. For the regulation hour they battled to a tie, and two extra periods of ten minutes each led to an equally inconclusive result. Then the effects of the local boys' drive to Picton on Monday through snow storm, gale and extreme cold, a game with Picton at night, and a tramp eight or ten miles of drifts of snow by some of the team yesterday, told their inevitable tale, and the visitors, who had not had any such troubles to encounter, won easily from their exhausted opponents in the final period.

It was a clean game withal, very few penalties being imposed, and those only for minor offences. One unfortunate accident happened, Gunn, of the Frontenacs being struck in the eye early in the first half by the puck, which made a very nasty wound and laid him off for the remainder of the game. Belleville had to even up by laying off a man, which was rather to the advantage of the visitors. Wallace, of the home team, was struck in the face by the puck, but pluckily continued and played an excellent game until he became exhausted.

THE CROWD AND THE PLAY.

There was a large attendance, despite the cold weather, the crowd numbering probably from 800 to 1,000; and they were, although enthusiastic, fairly impartial. The general expectation was that Belleville would win owing to the showing made by the contesting teams against Picton. Faith in the local boys was maintained, owing to their brilliant work, until the last five minute period, when it was easily to be seen that some of them were "all in." There had been some thrilling moments at different stages of the game when they had pluckily won their way out of seemingly hopeless positions by splendid play, and in defeat under such circumstances they suffered no disgrace. And this is not said with the object of decrying the visitors, who played a hard, fast and clean game, the credit of which was largely due to Cook, their goal man, who was called upon to stop at least four times as many shots as were aimed at the Belleville goal.

THE PLAY.

At 8.20 Lou Marsh, of Toronto, the referee, rang the bell and the members of the team gathered in the centre of the rink to commence what proved to be a battle royal. Wallace, of the local team, and Little, of the Frontenacs, who played centre for their respective teams, faced off. The puck was dropped by the referee between the two sticks at 8.25, and the game was on, Belleville's team playing for the east net and their opponents playing for the west net. Before a goal was scored the unfortunate accident, above recorded, to Gunn, the Frontenac left wing player, took place, delaying the game for a brief interval. The game was continued, and the local aggregation made every effort to score the first goal, and did so, but not before 18 minutes of actual play had taken place. During the first part of this period Belleville certainly were to the front, the puck being for the greater portion of the time in the vicinity of their opponents' net. Many shots were made at the nets, but Cook, the Frontenacs' goal tender, was there for the purpose of preventing goals being scored and he certainly performed his duties to the admiration of all. The second goal was scored by Belleville after 7 minutes' play, and the opinion generally was that the local team would lead, but such proved not to be the case. In the remaining time of the first half of play the Frontenacs secured three goals within a period of 8 minutes' actual play, namely in 5, 1 and 3 minutes, respectively. The score at half time was 3 to 2 in favor of the visiting team.

SECOND PERIOD.

After 5 minutes rest the teams again assembled upon the ice, and in less than a minute's play the puck was landed into the Kingston net, tieing the score, amid deafening cheers and shouts from the spectators. In 3 minutes' more play the locals again placed the puck into their opponents' net. The Frontenacs at this stage of the contest made a desperate effort to tie the score, and did so after 10 minutes more of actual play. With about 16 minutes more of play the score was a tie, and both teams played hard to break the same. After 1 minutes had elapsed Belleville scored another goal, and by many it was thought the game was won, but the Frontenacs were urged on by their admirers to score, and just before the bell was sounded they succeeded in doing sco, tieing the game, each team having scored 5 goals.

OVERTIME PLAY.

According to the rules of the O.H.A., when the actual time of play for a match has expired and the score is a tie, five minutes each way has to be played, with 5 minutes intermission. In this period both of the teams scored a goal, Belleville scoring the first and Kingston the second goal.

After 5 minutes' rest the teams were again called out, and it is needless to state that the players showed unmistakable evidence of the arduous strain, the local players especially so. In the first 5 minutes of the second period Kingston scored the first goal and Belleville the second.

Another 5 minutes' rest was given the boys, when the battle was renewed. At this stage of the game it was apparent that the visitors were the fresher of the two teams, and they went in to win and did so. In quick succession they scored goal after goal, until four were recorded in their favor, one in the first five minutes and three in the second five minutes. To the delight of their friends they won the hard earned match by a score of 11 to 7.

THE OFFICIALS.

The officials for the game were as follows;

Referee—Lou Marsh.

Goal umpires—A. Davidson for Kingston; C. Burrows for Belleville.

Timekeepers—James T. Sutherland, of Kingston, and Jas. Connolly, of Belleville.

Penalty timekeeper—Wm. Thomson, of Belleville.

The line-up was as follows:—

| Belleville. | Position. | Kingston. |
|---|---|---|
| Fitzgerald | Goal | Cook |
| Tuite | Point | Campbell |
| Moore | Cover Point | Stanton |
| Whalen | Rover | Purtell |
| Wallace | Centre | Little |
| Wilson | Right Wing | McGuire |
| Finkle | Left Wing | Gunn |

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Lou Marsh, the Referee, was much pleased with the quality of hockey shown by both teams.

Much of the credit for the Frontenacs' victory is due to their able and experienced General "Jim" Sutherland and his faithful and competent aide-de-camp, Sam McCullough, whose advice and assistance were of great service to the boys.

Referee Marsh handled the game in a masterly manner.

Those men who throw their cigar butts on the ice ought to refrain from doing so in future.

The new rink is in some respects an improvement on the old one.

HYDRO MERGER WANTS TO QUIT

Electric Co Will Come to Terms With Commission —Wants to Sell

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—As the result of a conference with Hon. Adam Beck yesterday, Cecil B. Smith is in Montreal to-day arranging, it is reported, for the disposal to the Hydro-Electric Commission of the holdings of the Electric Co., Ltd., the concern that was merging electric power companies in the Trent Valley. Now that the Federal Government, under the Borden regime, have held that the water powers on the Trent Valley Canal sysetm may be developed by the public as well as by private corporations, the monopoly held by this concern is now broken. It has to meet the competition of the Hydro-Electric Commission which aims to supply consumers at cost.

The Electric Co., Ltd., is reported to be financed almost entirely by the Sun Life Assurance Co., of Montreal. The Sun Life hold $2,370,000 in stock T. P. Macaulay and J. W. Ross of the company hold in trust stock valued $198,300. His partner, W. G. Chase, holds a block valued at $5,800. Strachan Johnson holds stock valued at $80,100 for himself and stock worth $120,000 in trust.

Mr. Macaulay of the Sun Life made a proposition recently to the Provincial Government to sell out to the Hydro-Electric Commission. His offer has been under consideration, and it is reported that it will be accepted if he can induce Mr. Smtih and his associates to accept the terms.

DIED AT BUFFALO.

The Buffalo, N.Y., papers mention the death of Mrs. Chas. F. Westlake, in that city, on Jan. 4th, at the age of 34 years, leaving a husband and two daughters. The deceased lady was the wife of Mr Charles Westlake a former resident of this city, and a nephew of Capt. Sid Vandervoort.

DROWNED IN A MINE.

While Manley Easton, an employee of the Cordova Mining Company, in Belmont Township, was engaged in fixing a pump in shaft No. 1 yesterday, he fell into the water in the shaft, which is of great depth, and was drowned. The mining inspector and coroner were notified and an inquest will be held.

BLAZE IN A BANK.

At 8.30 last night the Union Bank of Canada, situated in the Centre Block, Front Street, had a baptism of fire, which fortunately was not of a serious nature. The blaze originated in a rear room of the premises and was confined to that part of the building. The bank department proper was not damaged and business went on as usual to-day. When the fire brigade arrived upon the scene there was a dense smoke and at first it was feared the blaez would be a disastrous one, but the seat of the fire was located and a stream soon quenched the flames. How the fire originated is not known. The loss to the building, which is owned by Mr. S. Burrows, who occupies the office adjoining the bank, is covered by insurance.

THE C.O.O.F.

Dr. Thompson, of Galt, Grand Master of the Canadian Order of Oddfellows, is in the city and, with other prominent members of the society, will this evening assist in the installation of the officers of the local lodge.

TRIAL ADJOURNED.

The trial of the young man Robert Logan, charged with indecently assaulting a little girl, was continued before Magistrate Masson yesterday afternoon, but was not concluded. It was further enlarged until to-morrow. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Carnew defended the accused.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, manager of the Union Bank here, was last evening, owing to the fire in the premises, the victim of a painful accident and one that will confine him to the house for some time. It appears that Mr. Phillips was about the bank after the fire, and went into the rear part of the premises, where, unnoticed by him, a trap door was open. He fell through the opening to the cellar beneath, a distance of six or seven feet. The result of the fall was that the unfortunate gentleman broke his right leg, the break occurring between the ankle and knee. Mr. Phillips was conveyed to his home as speedily as possible and medical aid summoned.

PROF. DENMARK'S SERIOUS LOSS

Early on Friday morning fire broke out which destroyed three buildings—the Cote Hall pool room and barber shop, Geo. Moore building, occupied by Meyers Land Co., Singer Sewing Machine Co., and Mr. and Mrs. John Gans. The third building was owned by E. Windsor and was occupied by two different families. The hall above the pool room was used by three different lodges.

Prof. Denmark also had his studio in the hall and suffered severe loss in the losing of his valuable musical instruments. Several members of the band who left their instruments in the hall lost them. A light wind from the north alone saved the Russell Hotel building which at the time was filled with guests, including the Harry St. Clair Co. All were quietly called, and no undue excitement prevailed.

The buildings destroyed were owned by T. Faulkner, G. Moore and E. Windsor.

The loss was partly covered by insurance.—Kamsack, Sask., Times.

KITCHENER IS PRAISED.

All Classes of Egyptians Praise British Agent.

CAIRO, Egypt., Jan. 10.—The new British agent continues to inspire the liveliest satisfaction among all classes of the Egyptian population, and a recent leading article in the semi-official journal, Ahali, not only points to this fact, but contains a rather piquant reference to the mixed feelings excited by Lord Kitchener's appointment.

"It was Egypt's good fortune," says that journal, "to be given such an excellent British agent as Lord Kitchener, a man of whom we were afraid and whom we supposed to be a rigid conservative."

This belief appears, however, to have been deceptive, for the article goes on to admit that his lordship "really appears to be the generous friend of Egypt and of the Egyptians, and more liberal than the liberals."

Finally the journal states that "if he continues to maintain the attitude he has adopted since his arrival here he will be the truest servant of Great Britain, whose interests require that she should have the friendship and confidence of the Mohammedan peoples."

The new British battleship cruiser Lion, in an 8-hour speed trial, Tuesday made over 31 knots an hour, equivalent to about 36 miles. This eclipses by a knot and a half the record made by the big German warship Moltke. That is the claim made, at least. The German Dreadnought cruiser made 281-2 knots in a speed trial on Sept. 13, which was over four knots better than was expected. In a trial over a measured mile on Nov. 23, however, it is claimed that the Moltke developed 50,000 horse-power and went over the course in something better than 30 knots an hour. The Lion has a displacement of 26,500 tons and her turbine engines are expected to develop 70,000 horse-power.

A THREE CENT PIECE THAT COST A MERCHANT $75

"See that three-cent piece?" said John M. Gardner, a retired merchant who formerly lived near Kansas City. He was at the Union Depot on his way to visit friends in Wichita. "That coin cost me $75 right here in front of this depot and I would not take a hundred for it.

"Twenty years ago this month I was waiting for a train here. Along came a stranger with a smile, and held out his hand. He said he knew me, but I convinced him he didn't and after he apologized we went to get a drink. When we came out we saw a young man directly in front of us pull out a handkerchief, and as he did so something fell from his pocket. The stranger who we will call Bud, called my attention to it. He picked up the article, which proved to be a heavy piece of cardboard folded several times and tied with pink ribbon. Bud untied the paper and inside was a three-cent piece, the very one you see here. Bud told me to put it in my pocket and tie the paper again without the coin inside. We thought we would have some fun. We went over to the depot and found the fellow.

"'Lost anything, stranger?' asked Bud.

"'Not that I know of,' was the reply.

"We insisted on him searching. Suddenly he looked up with disappointment written all over his face.

"'Yes, boys, I lost a piece of paper tied up with ribbon. Have you fellows seen it?'

"'Is this it?' I asked, holding out the paper.

"He made a grab for it. Bud asked him what he had inside the paper. The fellow said it was a keepsake, a three-cent piece which his grandmother had given him. Bud nudged me and laughed.

"'You mean to say you carry a three-cent piece in that paper?' said Bud. Bud then offered to bet there was not a coin in that paper. They bet $20. Bud did not have any more to bet, he said. Then I thought I saw a chance to make some easy money, so I bet the fellow $10. He raised me $20 and we argued back and forth until I had $75 up. I knew I couldn't lose as I had that three-cent piece in my pocket. Then the fellow took the paper and without untying it, tore it in two. When I saw a three-cent piece come out of that paper I was madder than a hornet. But was holding stakes.

'Several years after I learned that the two were working that game as a regular business. Now every time some one approaches me with a scheme I don't know much about I reach into my pocket and rub this three-cent piece just as a matter of precaution, you know."

Princess Tells How She Caused a Rival to be Killed

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Princess Cherfia, wife of Prince Gaoud and niece of the Sultan of Wadai, is to be tried for murder in the French colony of Abecher, a desert region of the Soudan.

She has admitted the truth of the allegation that she caused a rival for her husband's affections to be stabbed to death. There is a flavor of the Arabian Nights in the response of the Princess to the accusation of the authorities. Here it is in her picturesque language:—

"I am Cherfia, wife of Gaoud the Handsome. When he took me to wife I was so light that the wisest scribes could not read the traces of my feet upon the sand.

"Toma was my rival. So on the night of the day that you consecrate to your God I sent messengers to her to say that Gaoud wanted her. She suspected and came not. Three times did she refuse. But at last she followed my messengers, who offered her as a gift a silken robe.

"When she came before me I bade my slave Abdallah to strike and he struck. She shrieked and her blood formed a crimson lake before her. I ordered my slaves to wash her wounds and throw her wretched corpse far from the palace.

"Now, white chief, if you want my life, take it. I do not repent. I am the Princess of Wadai, and I have the right to punish those who offend my majesty."

In Paris, where news of the killing and the prospective trial had been received, it is believed that the Princess will be allowed to go free on payment of the traditional blood money to the parents of the dead girl.

ALD. ROBINSON MAKES DENIAL

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—In your comments on "The New City Council," in The Intelligencer of last Tuesday, I find the following in reference to myself:—"The idea of a man seeking and securing a seat in the City Council by paying a man to run from poll to poll for the purpose of nominating, so as to secure the seat without a fight, is a unique departure from the old style and tactics of politicians," etc. And further, "As Ald Robinson did not deny (in the Council) the soft, but cutting impeachment, the charge must be accepted as true."

Now, Mr. Editor, in answer to the above, I can truthfully say that I did deny "the charge" in emphatic terms and this I am prepared to prove by men who were present at the Council meeting, whose word in this or any other matter would not be doubted for a moment.

Your report of the nominations shows that my nominator and seconder in Samson ward were Ald. Parks and ex-Ald. Wallbridge. For Murney ward, Ald. Parks and Mr. Brown and in Foster Ward, Mr. P. J. Wims merchant, and Mr. Donald Paterson. Are you prepared to say that any one of these gentlemen named would accept pay for the purpose you mention. As far as Foster ward is concerned I may say that I went almost immediately, after the nomination, to Mr. McGinty and offered to withdraw my nomination if he desired to enter the Council, and consequently he would not stand; and his partner, Mr. Lynch, very strongly expressed himself similarly. Trusting you will insert the foregoing in The Intelligencer, I am,

Yours, etc.,
A. ROBINSON.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Certainly, Ald. Robinson, we publish your disclaimer and leave you and Ald. Lott to settle the question of veracity. Our comments were based upon the report as furnished of the proceedings of the Council, and as there was no statement in that report of a denial having been made, it was reasonably inferred that none was made. Read our comments again and you will see that the words "in the Council" were not used by us. When you write again don't put words in our mouth which we never used.

The gentlemen whose names you give as witnesses of the truth of what you say are reputable citizens, whose statements would not be doubted, and you had no right to leave the inference as you do by the way in which you put the question, that we would cast reflection upon any statements which they might make.

Let's have no more disingeniousness, Mr. Alderman.

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Synopsis.

Gretchen, a goose girl, meets a mysterious mountaineer and Carmichael, American consul in Dreiberg, kingdom of Ehrenstein. Carmichael loves Princess Hildegarde.

Gretchen's lover is Léo, a vintner. The prince regent of Jugendheit sends Hildegarde an offer of marriage from King Frederick. The princess was abducted in infancy and later restored to her father, the grand duke.

* * *

The Black Eagle (Zum Schwartzen Adler) in the Adlergasse was 200 years old and had been in the Bauer family all that time.

Had the manager, Frau Bauer, or Frau Wirtin, as she was familiarly called, been masculine she would have been lightly dubbed Bauer VII. She was a widow. She was thirty-eight, plump, pretty and wise.

Tonight the main room of the tavern swam in a blue haze of smoke, which rose to the blackened rafters, hung with many and various sausages, cheeses and dried vegetables. Dishes clattered, there was a buzzing of voices, a scraping of feet and chairs, a banging of tankards.

Gretchen came in, a little better dressed than in the daytime, the change consisting of coarse stockings and shoes of leather, of which she was correspondingly proud.

"Will you want me, Frau Wirtin, for a little while tonight?" she asked.

"Till 9. Half a crown as usual."

Gretchen sought the kitchen and found an apron and cap. These half crowns were fine things to pick up occasionally, for it was only upon occasions that she worked at the Black Eagle. In an obscure corner sat the young vintner. His face brightened as he saw the goose girl. In the very corner itself was the mountaineer who possessed a Swiss watch and gave golden coins to goose girls. He was busily engaged in gnawing the leg of a chicken.

Carmichael was often a visitor at the Black Eagle. Later he stepped into the big hall in his evening clothes.

"Good evening, Frau Wirtin."

"Good evening, your excellency." She was quite fluttered when this fine young man spoke to her. "What is on your mind?"

"Many things." He saw Gretchen. "The goose girl," he murmured suddenly. "Is Gretchen one of your waitresses?"

"She comes in once in awhile. She's a good girl. I'm glad to help her."

Gretchen saw Carmichael and nodded.

"I shall be at yonder table," he said, indicating the vacant chair. Carmichael made his way to the table. Across the room he had not recognized the vintner, but now he remembered. He had crowded him against a wall two or three days before. The vintner turned back the lid of his stein and drank slowly.

"ALL AMERICANS ARE RICH," SHE SAID SOBERLY.

Carmichael sat down. Now, this vintner's face was something familiar. Carmichael stirred his memory. It was not in Dreiberg that he had seen him before. But where?

Gretchen arrived with the tankard, which she sat down at Carmichael's elbow.

"Will you not join me, herr?" he invited.

"Thank you," said the vintner.

Gretchen took up the empty tankard and made off. Carmichael was first to speak.

"She is the handsomest peasant I ever saw or knew."

"You know her?" There was a spark in the vintner's eyes.

"Only for a few days. She interests me." Carmichael produced a pipe and lighted it.

"Ah, yes; the pretty peasant girl always interests you gentlemen." There was a note of bitterness. "Did you come here to seek her?"

"You seem to possess a peculiar interest."

The vintner flushed. "I have that right," with an air which rather mystified Carmichael.

"That explains everything. I do not recollect seeing you before in the Black Eagle."

"I am from the north; a vintner, and there is plenty of work here in the valleys late in September."

"The grape," mused Carmichaeel, "you will never learn how to press it as they do in France. It is wine there; it is vinegar this side of the Rhine."

"France," said the vintner moodily. "Do you think there will be any France in the future?"

Carmichael laughed. "France is an incurable cosmic malady; it will always be. It may be beaten, devastated, throttled, but it will not die."

"You are fond of France?"

"Very."

"Do you think it wise to say so here?"

"I am the American consul; nobody minds my opinions."

"The American consul," repeated the vintner.

Gretchen set the tankards down, and Carmichael put out a silver crown.

"And do not bother about the change."

"All Americans are rich," she said soberly.

The vintner laughed pleasantly.

HOUSE GETS TO WORK

Branch Lines For I.C.R. Are Subject of Discussion.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson Urges That Hon. Frank Cochrane Do What Laurier Government Failed to Do In Securing Feeders For Country's Road—Minister Indicates That He Will Do So—Commission Defended.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—Parliament got down to business with a rush when it met yesterday afternoon after the Christmas adjournment.

The estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1913, were laid on the table and the House indulged in a debate on the advisability of purchasing branch lines as feeders for the Intercolonial, the question being brought up by a resolution of Hon. H. R. Emmerson. Hon. Frank Cochrane, intimated that the Government favored the suggestion.

Alfred Thompson, the new Conservative member for the Yukon was introduced and took his seat.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked if a writ had been issued for an election to fill the vacancy in South Renfrew. The Premier replied that the matter was under consideration.

Sir Wilfrid took exception to a memorial presented to the Government under date of Nov. 24, 1911, criticizing the work of the Ottawa Improvement Commission. It was not accurate, he said, to say that the commission had proceeded in a haphazard way. They had done a good work, in which not only the citizens of Ottawa, but of all Canada could take pride.

Mr. Borden stated that the memorial in question dealt not only with the work of the commission, but with the sites for new Government buildings, etc., as well. In a matter of this kind there had been the widest co-operation between the commission, the Government and the city authorities.

The motion of Hon. Wm. Pugsley for papers in connection with the appointment of boundary waters commissioners and despatches between the Governor-General and the British ambassador at Washington or the British Government on the subject stirred up the Premier to enquire whether the late Government dealt with the Home Government through the ambassador at Washington. He did not see why a recommendation to the Imperial authorities should not go through the regular channels.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson proposed the following resolution: "That, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable in furtherance of the transportation interests of this Dominion that the sphere of influence of the Intercolonial Railway as a Government operated railway should be widened and extended by securing by lease or otherwise such of the branch lines of railway now connecting the Intercolonial, as will serve as direct and profitable feeders to the traffic of the said railway."

There should be no difference, he said, between the methods of the C.P.R., the G.T.R., and the Government railway system. As a business proposition the I.C.R. should acquire feeders the same as the other systems. It had suffered from the lack of them in the past by the diversion of traffic to other roads. The sooner action were taken the better.

Hon. Frank Cochrane declared that the ex-Minister did not make the reforms he now advocated when he was in power. The present Government would investigate and take over all branch lines that would be profitable.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley expressed regret that the Minister limited his acquisition of branch lines to those that were profitably operated. The revenue point of view was not the only one. Would the Government deal with the Georgian Bay Canal merely as a revenue-producing proposition?

Very few of the branch lines of Ontario were paying their way until they were taken over by the great railway systems. It would be the same with the Intercolonial, which was the most profitable venture the country had ever made, even though as a matter of bookkeeping it might not show a balance on the right side.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) has no use for Government owned railways. He wanted the Government, instead of buying branch lines, to consider selling or leasing the I.C.R. to a private company, which he claimed would develop the system as no Government could.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

Hon. R. L. Borden introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the Department of External Affairs, to place that Department under the Premier instead of the Secretary of State.

In asking J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) to allow his bill to amend the Railway Act, by providing for the submission of special tariffs to the Railway Commission to stand pending the consolidation of the Railway Act, he gave no hope that this would be undertaken at the present session.

In answer to a question by J. A. Barrette (Berthier), the Premier declared that the administration of the marine yards at Sorel would be included in the investigations of the commission recently appointed to enquire into the civil service. Mr. Lemieux was informed that an order-in-council had been passed making the usual grant to the dismissed annuities' agents.

Victim of Persecution?

Chatham, Jan. 11.—A. W. Green, ex-reeve of the Township of Zone, charged with the theft of $99.10 of township moneys, got his preliminary hearing before Magistrate Stanworth yesterday afternoon, when he was committed for trial at the June sessions.

Four charges were preferred by the crown. One for the theft of $18, another for $19.10, another for $21, and the fourth for $41.

The defence did not attempt to put in any evidence yesterday, but J. M. Pike, K.C., solicitor for Greene, declares they have a strong case, and that it may be proved that the prosecution was pushed by interested parties, because of a certain political antipathy.

It's 46 Below at Edmonton.

Edmonton, Jan. 11.—The coldest weather this winter now has Edmonton in its grasp. At six o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer registered 46 below zero. The cold wave was general, as the following readings from various points indicate:

Peace River Crossing, 60 below; Criorard, on Lesser Slave Lake, 65 below; Fort Saskatchewan, 55 below; Saskatoon, 51 below; Lloydminster, 50 below.

Traffic is carried on under increasing difficulties, and telegraph wires have been snapped all over the west.

Population of France.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The official returns of the census of France taken last year, which have just been published show that the population now numbers 39,601,509 as compared with 39,252,245 at the last census in 1906, showing an increase of 349,264.

The figures show a steady movement of the population from the country districts to the cities. Paris now has 2,888,110 inhabitants.

The population of France in the past forty years has increased only 3,500,000.

Small Fire, Large Panic.

Newark, N.J., Jan. 11.—With Tuesday's Equitable fire fresh in their minds, scores of girl stenographers and men clerks rushed from the Prudential Insurance Co.'s big building here yesterday when fire broke out on the ninth floor. The fire started in an electric switchboard and caused a great deal of smoke, but with the prompt arrival of the firemen, the damage was confined to a trifle.

Woes of Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 11.—With a poor supply of natural gas and the coldest weather in years, this city is suffering terribly to-day. Because of the cold, the separate school was closed yesterday. In the city building gas stoves were yesterday supplemented with oil stoves. A majority of citizens who heat and cook with natural gas have their sufferings intensified by diminished pressure.

Russia Bars Foreign Cotton.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—A bill containing measures to be adopted for the extension of the growth of cotton in Turkestan has been drafted by the Minister of Agriculture. His desire is to make Russia independent of foreign cotton and especially of American cotton and the bill he has introduced has given an impetus to efforts in this direction.

Some Sickroom Rules

The doctor's orders must be scrupulously obeyed. The patient should be in a room as remote as possible from the "bustle" of the house. The window should, as a rule, be kept open, but there must be no draughts. The fire must be mended quietly — not with tongs, but with gloved fingers. The nurse's dress should be simple, washable, and make no rustling sounds. The patient must not be regaled with minute accounts of the terrible illnesses of other people. The household worries must not be mentioned in the sick-room. The patient's meals — no matter how simple they are — must be served up daintily, with specially attractive tray-cloths and china. Flowers must be taken out of the room at night. Visitors must be admitted with the doctor's permission, and not otherwise.

A Mother's Creed

Mrs. Ozora S. Davis gives the following beautiful "mother's creed":

I believe in the eternal importance of the home as the fundamental institution of society.

I believe in the immeasurable possibilities of every boy and girl.

I believe in the imagination, the trust, the hopes, and the ideals which dwell in the hearts of all children.

I believe in the beauty of nature, of art, of books, and of friendship.

I believe in the satisfaction of duty.

I believe in the little homely joys of everyday life.

I believe in the goodness of the great design which lies behind our complete world.

I believe in the safety and peace which surround us all through the over-brooding love of God.

To Cure Forehead Creases

A perfectly smooth brow is not the least of youth's enviable possession, and it is one of these tiresome accidents which makes a "fringy" style of hairdressing best becoming just when the forehead begin, to record the wear and tear of time.

For the heavy lines known as "frown marks" the beauty doctors advocate what they call "wrinkle plasters." The lines are pressed out with the fingers, and the plaster is applied while the "frown mark" is thus forcibly held in abeyance. The plaster should be applied, it seems, every time one proposes to go into a "brown study," as well as during sleep.

To eradicate the fine lines, flannel wrung out of hot water and laid on the forehead for ten minutes at a time, and followed by a similarly lengthy dabbing not rubbing, with olive oil is the treatment prescribed. Adopted twice a day for a fortnight, these means are said to ensure a smooth white brow. The oil must be freely applied, as it is the oil which feeds the wasted tissues that cause the lines.

Milly: "You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married."

Tilly: "Oh, I don't know, dear. If you really love him you'll let him be loving for a little longer yet."

Brockville and the Grand Trunk

Brockville is at present much concerned, and quite naturally so, over a recent order issued by the Grand Trunk Railway management, that hereafter Belleville is to be substituted for Brockville as the booking place for conductors and brakesmen. As the effect of that order will be the removal to Belleville of from fifty to seventy-five families, the Brockville people are protesting to the Grand Trunk managers against its being carried into effect. It is alleged on behalf of Brockville that the company have taken the action in question because of the occurrence at their town of disturbances during the great strike of 1910; but that allegation is, we have not the slightest doubt, without foundation. Great corporations such as the Grand Trunk Railway Company are not actuated by petty feelings of revenge or by favoritism, but by business reasons. The Company having chosen Belleville as one of their most important divisional points and having built here the second largest roundhouse on their system, have no doubt found it desirable to concentrate as much as possible of their working staff here in order to save expense, and to avoid confusion. That, we take it, is the reason why the change indicated is to be made.

The employees of the Grand Trunk and of other railway companies are, generally speaking, an intelligent class of men and highly desirable citizens, and Belleville will gladly welcome as many of them as the company may see fit to locate here.

Airships or Aeroplanes

There are critics in England who apparently think that the decision said to have been come to by the Admiralty to attempt the construction of yet another airship is one of doubtful wisdom. Neither the English nor the German experience of the rigid dirigible has been fortunate, and experimenters are certainly still a very long way from that ideal airship in which substantial bodies of troops are to be conveyed over land and sea. There may be no actual harm in continuing the experiment with this particular type of vessel, but at present there does not seem to be much good at any rate from the naval point of view. The experts would prefer to see the airship left to the soldiers, who may, perhaps, succeed eventually in making a serviceable military machine out of it. The attention of the Admiralty would be more usefully focussed upon the aeroplane, which has given solid proofs of its value. If the energy of the naval department is divided between the airship and the aeroplane, it may end by failing to make the best of either. The great thing to do is to determine which is the best variety of the type that has already proved so successful, and to see that there are plenty of men trained to use it. Admittedly, the British are still much behind the French in the science of aviation, and they will not make up leeway by continued experiments with the doubtful dirigible. On the other hand, there are plenty of aeroplanes to choose from, and the difficulty is, not to find an efficient machine, but to man it.

Snow Ploughs and Equipment

A telegram from Ottawa conveys the information that two important circulars have been sent out by the Railway Commission to the roads under their jurisdiction in connection with the operation of snow ploughs and locomotives. The first, which will be considered by the Board on February 1, asks all railway companies subject to its jurisdiction to show cause why they should not be directed to equip their snowploughs, in which men are required to ride for the purpose of operation, with direct connection between the plough and the locomotive's steam whistle; to equip each plough with an air gauge and air controlling valve, and also proper air connections between plough and locomotive; to have snow ploughs which are run as push ploughs, without cupolas and with no men in charge, fitted with air-pipe connections between plough and locomotive, so that the air might be applied automatically in case of accident where the plough is derailed and the air connections broken, and, lastly, that all ploughs should have automatic couplers.

The other circular is in connection with the requiring of all railway companies to equip locomotives with the dump ashpans or other apparatus to avoid the necessiy of enginemen or others going underneath the engine to clean it. This is, of course, designed for the safety of enginemen, and will be heard on February 6.

Federation Scores McNamaras

Washington, D. C.—Branding James B. and John J. McNamara as "recreants to the good name and high ideals of labor," and expressing the satisfaction of organized labor that the "culprits have been commensurately punished for their crime," the McNamara Ways and Means Committee of the American Federation of Labor, after a two days' conference here, issued a statement vigorously condemning the McNamaras for their "inhumanity," and declaring that organized labor should not be held "either legally or morally responsible for the crime of an individual member."

The labor leaders assert that they "will welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake."

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the new seaport on the Pacific Coast which has been founded by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for the western terminus of the National Transcontinental Railway through Canada, continues to demonstrate the stability with which the enormous resources in that part of the world have endowed her. The population of about five thousand people who have settled there, thus forming the beginning of this future city, have shown their faith in its unquestioned future by building permanent homes and business establishments in almost every line of trade and commerce. Not alone is this faith confined to the citizens of Prince Rupert, but foreseeing the important factor she must early become in the commerce of the world, the leading banks, viz.: the Bank of Montreal, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Bank of British North America, the Royal Bank of Canada, etc., have located branches there. In all of our new Canadian towns and cities in the West and on the Pacific coast, the buying and selling of real estate constitutes an item of much local importance and value, which, however, in the case of Prince Rupert has extended beyond the confines of the locality itself and even beyond the Province and Dominion to other parts of the world, for which large sums of money have been sent for investment and development. When the first lots int he townsite When the first lots in the townsite a little moer than two years ago the prices realized exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine by reaching figures in many cases several hundred per cent., and in numerous instances as much as one thousand per cent. above what was estimated to be a fair valuation, and events since that time have given no cause to change the confidence then shown, as reports have just been received of the sale of an additional section of the townsite containing about six hundred lots, for which there was an increasing demand and which realized prices of about two hundred per cent. above what was considered a conservative valuation. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through to the Pacific Coast is rapidly approaching, when trans-Pacific steamships will sail from this new seaport, and in order to be prepared for the increased accommodation and facilities that will be required large additional capital expenditures will be made within the next two years to provide commodious hotel accommodations and also a dry dock and ship repairing plant, the latter of which will be constructed under a subsidy granted by the Dominion Government.

During the past year the principal thoroughfares in the business section of the city have been constructed to grade, and extensive plans are at present receiving the serious consideration of the city council for municipal improvements in the way of heat, light, power and water, and from the energy which has already been shown by the citizens there can be no question that her many natural advantages will be availed of in building a city at Prince Rupert that will be a model of utility.

Challenge the Judge.

It was a case in an Irish court, and, the prisoner seeming hard to satisfy, juryman after juryman was asked to leave the box. However, all things come to an end, even in Ireland, and at last the swearing of the jury was completed. And then the prisoner leaned over the dock and sought the ear of his counsel.

"The jury's all right now, I think," he whispered; "but ye must challenge the judge. I've been convicted under him siviral times already, and maybe he's beginnin' to have a prejudice."

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

CANADIAN CLUBS' MEN

The Canadian Clubs afford an invaluable machinery for educational work among the Canadian people upon the topics of social and economic importance. The spread of the Juvenile Court idea is largely due to the facilities they have presented. The Conversation Commission is now co-operating with the new Association of Canadian Clubs with a view to a great educational Campaign for the suppression of forest fires, excessive destruction of game and fish; and many other evils which threaten to eat up the national resources. Nearly all of the delegates to the Imperial Press Conference of last year made known the results of their trip to the Canadian Clubs, and the influence thus extended was perhaps the largest part of the fruits of the Conference. The clubs have enabled the men of the extreme East to talk face to face with the men of the extreme West, and have contributed immensely to the better understanding between the different parts of Canada.

WILLIAM GODFREY
Vancouver
Canadian Club

The chief limitation that now faces the Canadian Clubs in this day of their great prosperity is the difficulty of getting good speakers for the smaller clubs in the more out-of-the-way cities. It is easy to get distinguished men to address the big clubs, for there is no better way of reaching the people of Canada as a whole, and moreover the honor of addressing a club like that of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Halifax, St Johns, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Vancouver, London or Victoria more than compensates for any trouble involved. But distinguished visitors to Canada do not always stop over in the smaller cities, and "men with a mission" are apt to think that when they have spoken in Toronto and Montreal and been pretty fully reported they have done about all they need do. To remedy this is one of the chief aims of the new Association, of which Mayor Sanford Evans is president and Mr. R. Wilson Reford of Montreal vice-president, and of which Mr. William Godfrey of the Vancouver and Major Griesbach of Edmonton Clubs are active supporters. The plan is to "book" speakers whenever possible for a series of addresses including not only the big cities but a proportion of the little ones.

J. A. MACDONALD
Calgary

J. A. Macdonald, the well known architect of Calgary, is an old westerner. A brief history of Mr. Macdonald's career since he came to the west would not be out of place, so we herewith give it.

Coming from Eastern Canada to Winnipeg in 1872, he remained there for ten years. From there he removed to the United States, practicing his profession in the cities of Chicago, Ill., and Minneapolis, Minn. He then came back to Canada for a while, and then went to the States, where he stayed for five years, then came back to Canada again, and went to Nelson, B. C., where for years he was supervising architect for the government. From there he went to Lethbridge, where under his supervision the majority of the best buildings were erected. Seeing a wider field in Calgary, he removed there eighteen months ago, during which time he has put up a good many buildings.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

HEAD DRESSES FOR PIQUANT FACES.

Elaborate head-dressing offsets simple coiffures. With the incoming of demure hair-dressing, the indoor decorations of fair heads increase. For formal evening events, it is the rule for the feminine crown of glory to be decked in varied ways.

A PRETTY HEAD DRESS

Bands of gold or silver lace is a favorite decoration for pretty girls. If the hair of the maid is dark, then gold sets off its raven hue. Silver is becoming to blond hair and the lacey bandeau is usually held in place by a knot and bow of some gay ribbon.

A bizarre whim of Mlle. Fashion is ostrich pompoms with a far extending osprey. These bunchy feather decorations are becoming to the piquant youthful face, but let the older woman beware! The girl who wears this form of head dress is supposed to choose the color of the pompom in contrast to her party dress.

CHILDREN'S BRUISES AND CUTS

Children when beginning to walk are apt to have many tumbles, and bruises, often on the forehead, are the results. A tender swelling appears, gradually increasing in size; later on it turns blue, then green and yellow, and finally disappears. If the bruise is very painful — and the skin is not broken — arnica is a useful lotion to apply. Eau-de-cologne is also effective, and the application of plenty of grease, say, butter, helps to lessen the discolouration. Cuts also frequently occur — with scissors, knives, and even tin play-things. A cut should always be well bathed with tepid water to remove any — possibly invisible — dirt. Then a small piece of linen should be placed over the wound. If the bleeding is prolonged, a tight bandage must be wrapped round the affected part. But this must be released when the bleeding stops, or the part may mortify through the pressure employed. The chief thing is to keep the wound clean and well covered until it heals.

Sprains generally occur when rough play is being indulged in. A joint may become twisted or strained and will then become swollen and very painful. The remedies are rest and warm compresses. If the swelling does not go down in a few hours a doctor's advice should be obtained in case a more serious injury than a sprain has occurred.

SILKEN SNOODS OF LONG AGO GIVE A DEMURE LOOK.

Silken snoods are revived from the early Victorian days to deck the heads of winter maids. Ribbons, velvets and flowers are used to form these circlets. All that is needed is nimble fingers to make a coquetish head dress, and then it must be placed demurely upon the head.

Chiffon and cloth of gold and silver are concocted together into becoming theater caps. And theater caps are worn many places besides the playhouse. Girls dance in them, dine in them and lunch in them, dine in them and lunch in them. Each cap that is made must have a soft fall of lace to edge it, and into this is tucked away delicate tiny flowers of varying shades.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

Pineapple Trifle.

Soak an ounce of gelatine in a cupful of cold water; put into a bowl with two cupfuls of white sugar, one peeled and chopped pineapple, a grated nutmeg, and the juice and rind of a lemon. Mix and let stand an hour, pour on it three cupfuls of boiling water; strain and squeeze hard. When the mixture jellies, whip the whites of four eggs and drop in a spoonful at a time; beat well and let all harden. Cover the top with meringue in which is mixed grated pineapple.

Scrambled Eggs with Cheese.

Take five eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Beat eggs slightly, using fork. Add salt, pepper and milk. Heat frying pan, put butter, and when melted turn in mixture. Cook until a creamy mixture, scrape up from sides and mix. Make a sauce by blending in a double boiler two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and the same quantity of flour; add a cupful of sweet milk, and when smooth stir into the sauce a half cupful of grated cheese. If the sauce is too thick, add a little more milk and stir until smooth. Pour this over toast and then the scrambled eggs.

Blue Foulard

A deep blue foulard with large ring spots of white, touched with black, makes up charmingly with a deep border of plain blue satin, with yoke and sleeve hems of the plain colour on the kimono bodice; or a striped black and white foulard in similar style has the black satin parts decorated with those smart striped buttons with velvet rims which appear on so many dressy toilettes.

HOMELY HINTS

For mildew stains cut a lemon in half, rub in salt, and then with this rub the spots. Lay in the sun, then wash as usual.

For a bad case of mildew use soap (made with lye), mixed with salt; rub well into the stain and lay in the sun. A second trial will usually do the work completely.

To clean lamp burners boil them in milk and scour with bi-carbonate, or baking soda.

Coal oil will whiten a "porcelain" bath tub or a white sink, cleansing it from all discolorations.

A piece of pearl-ash the size of a pea, in half a cup of water, will remove a grease spot from woollen goods or a carpet, if the spot is well moistened with the solution and rubbed nearly dry with a cloth.

To whiten tea-stained table linen, rinse, after the usual washing and boiling, in water containing a teaspoonful of oxalic acid to a bucket of water. Hang in the sun.

A short woman should never adopt a wide-stripe pattern, and a young girl must remember that a gown with wide stripes will add many years to her appearance.

Irish lace is delightful in the better imitation type, and is now tinted in Paris and antique tones, which is a boon to the dress-maker, as dead-white lace is rarely becoming, and gives a hard effect when used on coloured gowns.

Girls of 14 and up are wearing their skirts short. This, of course, means pretty shoes and hosiery, as black or tan shoes or cotton stockings and pumps.

MOTHER NATURE'S LESSON

Before baby can walk it will have to be thoroughly acquainted with the means at its disposal. This is gained by the practised use of the muscles in kicking, stretching, and sprawling till it learns to attain a sitting posture; from that it progresses to the creeping and crawling stage, and eventually manages to raise itself to a standing position by holding on to a chair, table, or mother's dress. At this stage the weight is only just borne by the legs, which baby is unable to balance without additional support. To learn to move the legs, and preserve its balance, is a matter of some week's work, and must not be unduly expedited. It can very well be left to the growing child and the teachings of Mother Nature. Babies growing up with other children generally walk and talk earlier than children brought up alone.

Perhaps fewer bachelors would make fools of themselves if they had wives to do it for them.

LORD STRATHCONA Canada

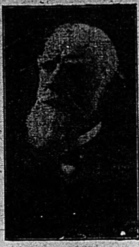
A few of the men whose life story is practically the history of Canada's rise to prominence are still living and many have gone to their reward. Of the former class Lord Strathcona stands out conspicuously. His is a remarkable story. From an obscure start in one of the most distant and uninviting posts on the North American continent Donald Smith hewed his way along until to day he occupies one of the most distinguished and honorable positions in the gift of his adopted country — Canada's High Commissioner at the seat of Empire. When the full story of his achievement comes to be written, which in the natural course of events cannot be many years removed now, it will constitute a volume of intense and thrilling interest, a striking demonstration of the adage that truth is stranger than fiction. How he rose from a position of penury and privation to be a peer of the realm, with the wealth of a Croesus, combined with the philanthropy of a judicious but extremely generous nature, affords material for a narrative of intense human interest. His early association with the Hudson Bay Company, his part in the stirring events of the troubles in the northwest of a quarter of a century ago, his connection with Canada's great railway enterprises and numerous industrial ventures, and his parliamentary associations, will each furnish chapters refreshing and absorbing in their attractiveness.



LORD STRATHCONA

Lord Strathcona, whose full titles are Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., F.R.S., LL.D., P.C., D.L., High Commissioner for Canada, was born in Scotland in 1820 and first came to Canada in his teens to enter the Hudson Bay Company's employ. His Lordship was married in 1886 and his only child (Hon. M. C. Howard) is heir to the title.

THE ROMANTIC HAPSBURG FAMILY

Archduke Henry Ferdinand Abandons His Rank and Title in Order to Marry a Bavarian Girl of the People.

(Publishers' Press News Service)

Vienna. — Another romance connected with the imperial house of Hapsburg is contained in the dry official announcement that the Emperor Francis Joseph has placed the Archduke Henry Ferdinand, brother of the Princess Louise of Saxony, and of Archduke Leopold Salvatore "on leave, with the stoppage of all emoluments."

Archduke Henry Ferdinand, who is a painter, with great distate for court life and military duties, has been living for some time in Munich. He has desired for a long time to abandon his rank and title in the same way as Archduke John Orth, Archduke Leopold Salvatore, and, more recently, Archduke Ferdinand Charles in order, as is reported, to marry a Munich girl belonging to family not of noble rank. Finding this to be most difficult, the Archduke has taken the easier course of throwing up his military career.

A Romantic Family

The family of the Hapsburgs has experienced a series of romances. The first among the more recent was that of the Archduke John Salvatore, known as John Orth, who completely disappeared after giving up his rank and title and marrying an actress named Milly Stiebel. He was said to have sailed for Chile on board the Santa Margaretha in July, 1890, and no trace of him has since been found.

Then came Princess Louise of Saxony, who disappeared from Dresden in 1902, leaving her husband, the present King of Saxony. She was forbidden to use her title of archduchess by imperial decree. She was divorced from the King of Saxony in 1903.

Archduke Ferdinand Charles this year ran away from his military duties and married a daughter of a court chancellor, afterwards assuming the name of Burg and living as a private citizen.

Archduke Leopold, who was a major-general in the Austrian army, renounced his career in 1902 in order to marry a Bavarian actress named Adamovich, whom he later divorced. He lives in Switzerland under the name of Woelfling.

APPOINTMENT BY SEC. MEYER AROUSES NAVY.

Washington, D. C. — The appointment by Secretary Meyer of Lieut Com. Philip Andrews as chief of the bureau of navigation has aroused the ire of navy men. Rear Admiral Nicholson was practically forced out of the job by his appointment to sea duty as commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet so Andrews could get the place. Charges of favoritism are made against Meyer.

Best Cure for Skin Sores

—IS ZAM-BUK.

An illustratoin of the way in which Zam-Buk cures even the most serious and chronic cases of ulcers, eruptions and sores is provided by Mr. R. H. Barker, of Glencairn, Ont. He says:

"I would not have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly, and at the same time so effectively as Zam-Buk cured me.

"My face became covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. The rash then turned to sores which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and the eruption got worse and worse, until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad), my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when some one advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and, marvellous as it may sound, within a little under a month every sore on my face was healed. I was so amazed that I have told the facts to several persons, and I have no objection to your stating my experiences for the benfit of other sufferers."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal in composition, and is the ideal balm for babies and young children, for whose tender skin coarse ointments are so dangerous. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, blood poison, ringworm, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries genearlly. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

Throughout the Dark Ages of Europe an accused person had to carry a piece of red hot iron for some distance in his hand or to walk nine feet barefooted over ploughshares at white heat. # WOMAN DEALS IN XMAS TREES

Woman Builds Up Fine Business as a Dealer in Christmas Trees From Small Beginnings. With Hard Work.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Cincinnati. — Miss Mildred Brandon of Cincinnati is a wholesale dealer in Christmas trees. Every recurring holiday season carloads of her trees are shipped to New York, Cleveland and other cities. She has built a successful business on the pleasant thought of Christmas cheer.

Her work sprang from a small beginning. As a girl, her home was on a farm in Tennessee. Its fertile acres were far outnumbered by those of unproductive rocks and evergreens.

MISS MILDRED BRANDON

Enterprise and initiative are among Miss Brandon's leading traits. She decided the evergreens were valuable. With the aid of a small brother she felled a number of trees and hauled them eight miles to market in the nearest large town.

The first of November this girl dons a short skirt and stout shoes and is in the timber with her men. She oversees the felling and grading of her stock. Each tree is bound so that the limbs are held firm against the main trunk. This prevents trees from being torn and injured. In December they are packed and forwarded to city merchants.

Resolutions Presented by British Delegates Adopted by International Conference.

The Hague. — The International Opium Conference adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first resolution declares that it is desirable that the governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegation referred to a future conference a proposal that the governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

Why a Chinese Republic?

The statement that the revolution is likely to result in the formation of a Chinese Republic has caused a good deal of surprise in the Western world. When one thinks of it, however, this seems the most natural solution of the problem that will be presented by a successful revolution. The Manchu, a foreign dynasty, which has held power in China for some 300 years, is, of course, impossible since, as a matter of fact, the present revolution is for the purpose of driving that dynasty from power. On the other hand, the old native dynasty has been out of business for so long that it would probably be impossible to find any legitimate claimant of the throne in that quarter. The natural aversion to Japanese tutelage shuts that country out of consideration as the source of possible supply for a king, and of course a European prince would be altogether out of the question.

You are the judge, and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

The above is C. E. Brooks, the inventor, of Marshall, Mich., who has been curing rupture for over 30 years. If ruptured write him to-day.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks.
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture, if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliances and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely.

Recommend From Texas Farmer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.,
Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen:—

I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Yours sincerely.
Bald Prairie, Texas. J. E. LONG.

Othess Failed But the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On May 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
SAM A. HOOVER.

Child Cured in 4 Months

Gentlemen,—The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks. Yours very truly,

Andrew Eggenberger.

4. Unlike the ordinary so called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.

5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

6. The soft pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

ESTIMATES FOR 1912

Hon. W. T. White Brings Down Proposed Expenditures.

Main Figures Are an Increase on Similar List For Last Year—Public Works Outlay Shows a Marked Cut Amounting to Over Four Millions—Naval Service Is Another Item In Which a Decrease Is Shown.

Ottawa, Jan. 11.—The first main estimates of the new Government were laid on the table of the House yesterday afternoon by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance. They show a total appropriation of $149,789,677, as against $156,079,538 for the year 1911-12.—As compared with the total estimates presented to Parliament by the Laurier Government last year, this shows a decrease of $6,289,861, but as compared with the main estimates brought down by Mr. Fielding, there is an increase of $10,926,477.

Mr. Fielding's main estimates totaled $138,863,200, to which were subsequently added three supplementaries aggregating $17,250,980. Until the supplementaries of the present are brought down later in the session it is impossible to make a definite comparison as between the expenditure for the current year and the year which will commence on April 1 next.

The total for 1912-13, as brought down yesterday, is made up of $104,919,314 on consolidated account and $44,870,372 on capital account. As against $109,616,917 and $46,462,621 respectively in 1911-12, showing decreases of $4,697,612 on consolidated revenue account and $1,592,248 on capital account.

The largest decrease occurs in the Public Works estimates, amounting to $4,038,650, the total for the year being $14,530,380. Under the heading of arts, agriculture and statistics, there is a decrease of $910,000 accounted for by the absence of the appropriation for the census. The total for this year amounts to $1,945,500 as against $2,855,500.

Another large decrease is shown in the naval service column amounting to $885,000. The appropriation amounts to $3,091,500 as compared with $3,976,500. The principal decrease in the naval service is one of $1,340,000 in the item including the purchase and maintenance of ships, upkeep of dock yards and maintenance of training schools, the drop being from $3,000,000 to $1,660,000. Most of the other items in this service show increases in part accounted for by the proposed purchase of two new fisheries protection vessels for the Pacific, and a new survey ship for the Atlantic.

Capital expenditure shows appropriations of $2,000,000 for the Hudson Bay Railway, $25,000,000 for the National Transcontinental, $3,000,000 for the Quebec bridge. There are no large appropriations for either the Georgian Bay or Welland Canals, though in connection with the latter there is a vote of $50,000 for surveys.

Trent Canal appropriation is $1,000,000 as against $2,250,000. The promised car ferry across the strait of Northumberland and the standardization of gauge of the P. E. I. Railway are provided for in an appropriation of $400,000.

Militia appropriations include an increase of $405,000 under the heading of drill, and another $25,000 under the heading of cadet corps.

Provision is made in the estimates of the Department of Agriculture for additional branch experimental stations, to cost $200,000, an increase of $100,000. There is also a new vote of $100,000 toward the erection of a Dominion building in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

There is a capital expenditure of $15,000 under railways, for the purchase of the car Canada for His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught.

The Port Colborne elevator is to be enlarged, at a cost of $200,000, and the breakwater extended at a cost of $75,000, in addition to which there is a vote of $145,000 for general improvements at Port Colborne.

Proposed capital expenditure on harbors and rivers include $1,000,000 for harbor and river improvements at Port Arthur and Fort William, $150,000 for a deep water wharf at Levis, Que., $500,000 for navigation improvements in the River St. Charles, $1,000,000 for St. John, N.B., improvements, $137,000 for Tiffin Harbor, Ont., $164 for Victoria Harbor, Ont., $50,000 for Victoria harbor, B.C., and $500,000 for Vancouver, B.C.

Under income there is an expenditure of $195,000 for harbor improvements at Toronto. That city also gets $300,000 for a new customs examining warehouse and a similar amount will be spent on an examining warehouse for Ottawa.

The only charge in the votes for mail subsidies and steamship conventions is an addition of $5,873 for the steam service between Sarnia and Sault Ste. Marie.

The appropriation for the St. Lawrence ship channel in the marine estimates is decreased by $59,000, but there is an additional $77,000 to the vote for the construction of a dredging plant for the River St. Lawrence from Montreal to Father Point.

Twenty thousand dollars is appropriated to provide expenses of delegates to the International Association of Navigation Congress to be held in Philadelphia and the entertainment of members of the congress while in Canada.

Following the recent census the subsidies of all the provinces with the exception of Manitoba and Prince Edward Island are increased. Manitoba loses $4,604. The total increase amounts to $1,188,570, divided as follows: Ontario, $267,657; Quebec, $285,125; Nova Scotia, $26,207; New Brunswick, $16,614; British Columbia, $191,704; Alberta, $87,653; Saskatchewan, $318,213. Prince Edward Island's subsidy remains stationary.

There is an appropriation of $355,000, an increase of $100,000, for the protection of timber in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the territories and the British Columbia Railway belt.

There is a new vote of $100,000 provided for the national battlefields commission. The cost of the new public service commission which is to investigate the civil service is provided for with an appropriation of $75,000.

There are several heavily increased expenditures provided for in the postal service, including $15,000 for the administration of the annuities branch salaries $278,064, and $100,000 for the railway mail service.

China Has to Disband Troops.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 11.—An explicit statement on the course of Russian diplomacy in the Mongolian controversy was made last night at the direct instance of M. Kokovsoff, the Premier, and Minister of Finance, who is the author of Russia's announced policy with regard to that province. The alleged distorted account of Russia's action, as given out at Pekin, which affected the bourse unfavorably, hastened the publication, which is tantamount to the recognition of the Mongolian Government.

The statement says that the interest of Russia began with efforts at mediation with the rebels. The Russian consul at Urga sought to save Chinese institutions and to safeguard the Chinese governor through Russian territory. The official appointed by the Chinese Government to carry on negotiations in Mongolia, requested mediation by the Russian legation at Pekin, and Mongolia made the same request. Russia responded that one ground for an understanding between Mongolia and China lay in the preservation of Mongolia's autonomy, including the disbandment of the Chinese troops in that territory, and that such recognition on China's part would be of advantage to Russia.

The Seymour Company has reached Napanee, and a transmission line will be run from there to this city.

CAILLAUX STEPS OUT

French Cabinet Resigns to Avoid Total Overthrow.

Resignation of M. De Selves Results In a General Row—Delcasse Accepts the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on Condition That a Big Man Be Found For the Navy—Several Are Named to Form Government.

Paris, Jan. 11.—The downfall of the Caillaux Cabinet came suddenly last night. That the Ministry would be overthrown in the Chamber of Deputies in the next few days was the general belief, but the announcement of the Ministry last night caused considerable surprise. It was logically due, however, owing to the failure of Premier Caillaux to secure timber to complete a political combination which was practically confronted with the certainty of speedy collapse.

The resignation Tuesday night of the Foreign Minister, Justin De Selves, resulted in immediate dissensions in the Cabinet. Theophile Delcasse, the Minister of Marine, accepted the portfolio of Minister of Foreign Affairs, but M. Millerand, ex-Minister of Public Works, Admiral Germainet and Pierre Baudin, to whom the Marine portfolio was successively offered, in turn declined the honor.

Finally, M. Delcasse sought the Premier and declared that he had agreed to accept the Foreign Ministry only on condition that a Parliamentarian of distinction could be found for the important portfolio of the navy, for the regeneration of which he had labored for months. M. Caillaux therefore accepted the inevitable and went to Elysee Palace and announced to President Fallieres the retirement of himself and colleagues. Later he issued a statement regretting that he was unable to retain the Premiership and mount the tribune and defend himself against charges and calumnies.

Among the names mentioned as most likely for the new Cabinet are Mm. Delcasse, Bourgeois, Raymond Poincare, Millerand, ex-Premier Briand, and possibly ex-Premier Clemenceau.

The Paris newspapers, which unanimously regret the De Selves-Caillaux incident, as likely to do harm to the prestige of France abroad, quickly lined up for and against the Premier. The Liberte accuses M. Caillaux of secret negotiations with Germany before the despatch of a German warship to Agadir, and while he was Minister of Finance, and after the Agadir incident, while he was Premier, the result of which would have been the transference of the Congo to Germany, the overthrow of all French foreign policies, the compromise of the dignity and security of France both in Africa and Europe and the abandonment of the triple entente, through the entente with Germany.

Protecting Railway.

Pekin, Jan. 11.—Capt. J. H. Reeves, the military attache of the American legation at Pekin, and Capt. Thomas Holcomb, jr., a special attache, have returned here after making an inspection of the section of the Chinese Railway between Tangshan and Lanchow, which American troops will guard. They say it will not be necessary for the Americans to go into camp. The British troops, who are guarding the American section, in addition to their own, are occupying the railway buildings.

The British commander at Tientsin, Brig.-Gen. E. J. Cooper, informed Captain Reeves that the foreign force is not intended against serious attack. The several nations, in the event of attack, could send sufficient reinforcements from Tientsin to resist a large body of troops. At Tientsin there are 1,500 British soldiers, 700 Indian, 900 French, 250 German, 800 Japanese and 200 Russians.

Youthful Outlaws Sentenced.

Cornwall, Jan. 11.—The winter assizes held here this week by Mr. Justice Clute was principally concerned with the trial of three boys, Fred White, William Arthur Tyo and Jas. Tyo, against whom there were two charges of assault with intent to murder, and assault occasioning serious bodily harm with intent. The victim was George Gallinger, aged 81, a resident of Cornwall Township, and a brother of Jacob Gallinger, U. S. Senator from New Hampshire, who on Nov. 26, 1911, was badly beaten.

White, being 18 years of age, and the Tyos, who are not relatives, being both under 16 years, they had separate trials. White was sentenced to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary. Arthur Tyo was sentenced to St. John's Industrial School, Toronto, for three years, and James Tyo, who had previously a good record, was let go on suspended sentence.

Minnesota Hard Hit.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 11.—Cook, Minn., forty miles north of Virginia, broke the cold weather record yesterday with 56 below zero. All the thermometers there burst at that figure.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—Twenty-two below and no relief in sight was the word given out from the weather bureau last night.

At Minneapolis the cold was intense, the thermometer recording 22 degrees below.

Will Be Buried In New York.

New York, Jan. 11.—It has been decided by relatives of the late Alfred Tennyson Dickens, son of the English novelist, that the body of Mr. Dickens shall be buried in New York. It was placed in a receiving vault at Trinity cemetery, following his recent death here, and as soon as weather conditions permit, it will be buried.

Not True, Says Guthrie.

Guelph, Jan. 11.—In regard to the story that Hugh Guthrie, K.C., M.P., will become leader of the Opposition in place of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Guthrie characterizes it as a "deliberate falsehood, every word of it."

He has not been in Ottawa, and has had no communication with anyone there.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts for the week ending Jan. 6 were 850 cattle, 350 sheep and lambs, 925 hogs and 200 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 800 cattle, 450 sheep and lambs, 1350 hogs and 150 calves.

There was no further change in the condition for cattle since Monday, prices being firm at the advance noted, owing to the fact that the supply was not large and the percentage of good to choice stock was small, as compared with the requirements of such. The demand was good, owing to the favorable weather for keeping stock and the fact that butchers had no surplus supplies on hand. A few choice steers sold as high as $6.75 per cwt., but the bulk of the trading was done in good stock at $6.25 to $6.50, while choice cows brought $5.50, and good bulls $5.

The market for sheep was firm under a good demand, but lambs were stronger and prices ruled 10c per cwt. higher, with sales at $7.10 per 100 pounds. Calves were scarce, there being no good to choice stock on the market and the highest price realized for the best was $10.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs and prices scored an advance of 10c to 25c per cwt., owing to the good demand from packers and butchers and sales of selected lots were made at $7.10 to $7.25 per cwt., weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75; medium, $5.50 to $6.50; common, $4 to $5; canners, $2.50 to $3.50; choice cows, $5.50 to $6; medium, $4.75 to $5.25; bulls, $4 to $5; milkers, choice, each, $75; common and medium, each, $30 to $60; springers, $30 to $10.

Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $5; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.25; lambs, $7.10.

QUALITY IS LOW.

Much of Year's Wheat Is of Poor Grade, Says Milling Man.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—In reviewing the present Northwestern crop situation, F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., said:

"The total quantity of wheat marketed to date exceeds 100,000,000 bushels. The bulk of what is now remaining in the country is low grade. A large proportion of this, variously estimated at from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels, is totally unfit for milling.

"From a milling standpoint the grading of this year's crop has been most disappointing. Up to Dec. 31 less than 4 per cent. of the total crop inspected was No. 1 and not over 18 per cent. No. 2.

"In view of the existing conditions the question naturally arises as to there being a sufficient quantity of good wheat for seed requirements next spring. It may become the duty of the Government to make a thorough and early investigation of these conditions.

"Even Canadian millers may experience considerable difficulty in getting sufficient high grade wheat to fully meet their requirements and the question of an export duty on the high grade wheats as a matter of protection to home requirements and seed may with every justification be seriously considered."

Five Burned to Death.

Quebec, Jan. 11.—Fire, due to an overheated stovepipe, destroyed the home of Joseph Desrochers at Notre Dame du Sacre Cocur, Lotbiniere County, and took the lives of four children and a man.

Desrochers was awakened about one o'clock yesterday morning by smoke in his bedroom. He aroused his wife, who was partially suffocated, and made for the room where their four little children were sleeping. He found his way cut off by the flames, and had to seek the open air, which was ten degrees below zero.

By this time Mrs. Desrochers had revived, and rushed into the burning house in an attempt to rescue the children. She fought her way through the flames and would have sacrificed her life had not neighbors who had arrived dragged her back.

The hired man also lost his life, and all the bodies were practically incinerated. Mrs. Desrochers' life, too, is despaired of, while the husband is in a bad way.

The fire could not be fought because no water was available. It quickly spread to the house next door and destroyed it. A new church, 20 feet away, was saved by men and women covering the side and roof with snow.

Securities Are Safe.

New York, Jan. 11.—More than $50,000,000 in stocks and bonds was recovered from one of the smaller vaults in the burned Equitable Life Assurance Society building late yesterday, but it will probably be a week, perhaps two weeks, longer before the great vaults of the society and the Mercantile Safe Deposit Co. give up their half billion or more in securities.

Further examination of the gaunt, ice-shrouded building, swept on Tuesday by fire, showed more conclusively yesterday afternoon that the vaults are still intact. In the opinion of those who have inspected the premises—an opinion reinforced by the revelation yesterday, that the smaller vaults had kept their treasure safe—their contents will suffer little, if at all. But, buried as they are, under hundred of tons of ice and debries, it may be a matter of weeks before it will be advisable to open them.

When a straight man strays into crooked paths he is apt to go lame.

WHY SNIFFLE AND SNEEZE WITH CATARRHAL COLD?

BY BREATHING THE HEALING VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU GET RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a sneeze and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say in half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhozone. You inhale its balsamic vapor, and feel as if you were among the Norway pines. This is because Catarrhozone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold; sneezing and catarrhal cough cease, bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy, free from sedaitves and irritants.

That Catarrhozone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Pulos, one of Brockville's best known merchants:

"In the fall of 1903," writes Mr. Pulos, under date of June 10th, 1910, "I contracted a very severe cold which developed into Catarrh. At that time I was living in New York State and treated with four different physicians, who afforded me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhozone. I bought the dollar outfit, and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhozone, and have used it since to check a cold with unfailing results. It is the grandest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow-sufferers."

(Signed) George Pulos.

An ideal protection for the chest, lungs, nose and throat is the frequent use of Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment (the large size) costs $1.00, medium sizes 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

BELLEVILLE HAS LOST MOST WORTHY CITIZEN

Sergeant-Major Blaind Dead at the Patriarchal Age of 91 Years

Another link between the past and present history of this city was broken yesterday afternoon when Sergt.-Major William Blaind, one of Belleville's oldest and most respected citizens passed to the Great Beyond. Although the deceased had been, owing to advanced age, in comparatively feeble health for some time, he was confined to the house but a few days. On New Year's Day he was able to go out and record his vote in the municipal election. Since then he had been rapidly declining and at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon he peacefully slept away.

The Sergt.-Major was born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, December, 11th, 1820, and was consequently in his 92nd year. When a lad of twelve years of age, he came out to this country and for over three-quarters of a century was a resident of this city. In early life the deceased was imbued with a military spirit, and evidenced the same until his death. In the years 1837-8 when but 17 years of age he went to the front in defence of Canada when foreign foes sought to invade our borders to aid the rebels. He went to the frontier as sergeant in the Belleville Rifle Company in 1861 and was stationed at Amherstburg, whither troops were sent to prevent an alleged attempt of Southern sympathizers to invade the United States. He also did active service during the troublesome times of 1866, when the Fenian invasion took place, and was on the frontier. The Sergt.-Major was identified with the Hastings Rifles when that military organization was formed in the county many years ago, and was for many years the Sergt.-Major of this corps. He was a member of the Veteran's Association, being the second oldest member of that body. He was not only a true soldier, but a man of great personality and indomitable perseverance. His memory will be revered by his surviving comrades in arms.

Mr. Blaind was the possessor of three medals which he dearly prized. They were a long service medal, the veteran's medal and a medal which was presented to him by his comrades of the Fotry-ninth Regiment.

Deceased was a member of St. Andrew's Church, and in politics was a staunch Conservative. While he never aspired for any municipal honor, he always took a deep interest in the city's welfare. For many years he followed his occupation as a painter, in which profession he was an adept.

Surviving are two sons, Robert and Thomas, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Louis Lessard, of Southey, Sask. Mrs. Blaind preceded him to the tomb many years ago. To the bereaved family will be extended the sincere sympathy of all citizens, in which The Intelligencer unites.

KING'S PERSONAL TRIUMPH.

W. Maxwell Writes of His Conquest of India.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The New York Times publishes the following despatch from William Maxwell, of the London Daily Mail from Calcutta:

Calcutta's farewell to the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress was even more crowded and impressive than her welcome to them. It gives a true measure of the succes of the Royal visit. From Bombay to Calcutta it has been a personal and progressive triumph. At every stage of the journey the popular enthusiasism had a new force and a new significance, but it was at Delhi that the real impulse was felt.

The fellow that patronizes the races doesn't always go broke, but he is apt to come home that way.

SLEEP DESTROYERS.
TEA AND COFFEE.

She suffered from nervousness by day and sleeplessness by night.

"Up to three years ago," writes a young woman, "I was in the habit of drinking coffee freely and did not realize that it was injuring my health," (tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee) "till I was suddenly made the victim of nervous headaches so violent that I was compelled to give up household activities and stay in bed much of the time. Then insomnia came upon me and the wretchedness of sleepless nights was added to the agony of painful days.

"This lasted until a year ago, when I was persuaded by a friend to give up coffee entirely and use Postum. The result was, in less than a week I began to feel the change for the better, my nerves grew stronger and I began to sleep nights. Day by day the improvement continued and in a short time, I was restored to health. My headaches left me, the nervousness passed away entirely, and I enjoy good, sound sleep at night.

"This is what I owe to Postum, and I feel it but right to tell you of it." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

A CARLIER MODEL

A fur scarf that is wrapped around the body and then hangs gracefully over the arms is one of the latest freaks of French femininedom. This confection is as charming as it is unusual. The model from the French modiste Carlier was of sealskin trimmed with white fox. The color and fabric scheme were carried out in the hat and muff.

The scarf was about three-quarters of a yard wide and long enough to enfold the body twice. In this way it forms a complete wrap. It has a band of white fox on one side and is lined with salmon pink satin. The muff is perfectly flat and has the fox on either end, in this way differing from the scarf

The tall crown of the hat of this three-piece fur set, is of sealskin. The narrow brim where it turns up is touched with the white fox and on top of the high crown saucily toss a bunch of Prince of Wales feathers. This is of salmon pink. This set could easily be copied in black velvet and swansdown. This combination would be pretty and inexpensive.

NEW CAPITAL OF INDIA

Emperor and Empress Laid the First Stone.

Delhi. — The King-Emperor and Queen-Empress laid the first stone of the new capital of India, which, as was proclaimed after the Durbar, is to be Delhi, today. There was a brilliant assemblage of ruling princes, governors and state officials. The foundation stone simply bore the date 15—12—11.

Their Majesties are both enjoying splendid health in spite of the great fatigue they have undergone during the lengthy ceremonies of the Durbar.

A Children's Shelter.

Brockville, Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hardy announced yesterday a munificent gift for the town in the form of a Children's Aid Shelter. The Steacey homestead was purchased by them and handed over yesterday.

Every Other Treatment Failed But "Fruit-a-tives" Cures

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"My wife was greatly distressed for three years with chronic Eczema on the hands, and the disease was so severe that it almost prevented her from using her hands. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, but none of them did any good. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves and she wore out three pairs without getting any benefit. As a last resort, I persuaded her to try "Fruit-a-tives", and the effect was marvellous. Not only did "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cure the Eczema, but the Asthma, which she suffered from, was also completely cured.

We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives". N. JOUBERT.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Eczema or Salt Rheum because "Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood, corrects the Indigestion and Constipation, and tones up the Nervous System.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics, and is the greatest of all blood-purifying remedies.

NEW CARDINALS. THEIR CHURCHES

American Cardinals Appointed Protectors of Some of the Oldest Roman Churches in Existence.

(Publishers Press News Service)

Rome. — Pope Pius, in conferring the title of protector of an ancient Roman church upon each of the new American cardinals, has assigned them to churches particularly famous.

The custom of naming cardinal protectors dates from the early days when all the cardinals lived in Rome. There are 72 ancient churches, corresponding with the number of seats in the college of cardinals. The cardinal protector was expected to spend large sums in rebuilding and beautifying his church, to officiate at the more solemn ceremonies there and to confer upon it all the dignity possible. Upon his death his read hat is hung in the church.

CARDINAL FARLEY

Cardinal Falconio was made protector of the church of Santa Maria in Aracoeli, one of the oldest in Rome, standing on Capitoline Hill. It contains the shrine of "Bambino," a famous miraculous image, the altar of Caesar Augustus and many relics. Down the steps leading from this church Julius Caesar descended on his knees after his conquests in Britain.

Cardinal O'Connell was assigned to the protectorate of the church of San Calisto, famous for its catacombs, in which 170,000 early Christians were buried.

To Cardinal Farley was given the title of the church of Santa Maria in Sopra Minerva, famous as the only Gothic edifice of the 400 churches in Rome. It contains the tombs of St. Catherine and Fra Angelico. Michael Angelo's statue of Christ and famous pictures.

CARDINAL VINCENZO VANNUTELLI
One of two brothers, Both of Whom Are Princes of the Catholic Church.

Every time a man has a cold in the head he is expected to take a lot of advice.

NORTH ONTARIO TO SUPPLANT GERMANY

Seed Peas to be Got from Temiskaming for Vegetable Growers

Northern Ontario is to supplant Germany as the source from which the farmers and vegetable growers of older Ontario and other parts of the Dominion will secure their seed peas In Temiskaming, where the pea weevil and moth are unknown, peas grow luxuriantly, and the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association at its annual meeting in Toronto on Tuesday decided to give the north country a trial. A quantity of seed peas will be purchased in Germany, and forwarded to farmers in Northern Ontario to be grown under contract for the members of the association.

At present the price paid by vegetable growers for seed peas is $13 a bushel. It will be possible to secure them from the north for only a fraction of this price.

As the result of the success that has attended the growing of seed potatoes in Northern Ontario the association has made arrangements to largely increase the quantity grown there for the members. It is confidently expected that seed potatoes grown in the north will in the near future take the place of those from New Brunswick and several States of the Union.

Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, attended the annual meeting He complimented the members of the association upon the good work they had accomplished. The Minister was urged to take up the question of providing increased greenhouse space at the Ontario Agricultural College farm for the growing of vegetables, and to set aside fifty acres of the Monteith Expcimental farm in Temiskaming for the growing of potatoes, peas and other garden crops.

The following officers were elected:

President, Thos. Delworth, Weston; First Vice President, C. W. Baker, Tamblings; Second Vice President, W. J. Kerr, Ottawa; Secretary-Treasurer, J. Lockie Wilson, Toronto.

Executive—Thos. Delworth, W. J. Kerr, C. W. Baker, J. Lockie Wilson, F. F. Reeres and C. N. Weaver.

Representative to Canadian National Exhibition—James Dandridge, Humber Bay. Representative to Horticultural Exhibition—Messrs. John Rush, F. F. Reeves, Thos. Delworth and James Dandridge.

WANT MODEL SCHOOL.

Deputation From Hastings County Called on Premier Whitney.

To persuade the Ontario Government to establish a model school in the village of Madoc, where once there was such a school, a large deputation from the County of Hastings called on Sir James Whitney yesterday afternoon at the Parliament buildings at Toronto.

Incidentally they urged the Premier to grant financial assistance towards the building of more bridges in the county. It was not necessarily for bridges on county roads that the deputation asked, but just for bridges on roads wherever they were most needed.

Among the visitors were: Robert Cook, M.L.A., North Hastings; Sandy Grant, M.L.A., East Hastings; Reeve Charles Ketcheson of Sidney, Reeve T. H. Thompson of Madoc, and Reeve Vermilyea of Thurlow.

WAR IS WAGED.

A Crusade in Order Against "Daylight Dances."

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 10.—Mrs. John B. Henderson, for many years one of the real leaders of Washington society, has inaugurated a crusade against "daylight dances," in which she has the support of many notable society women here.

The practice of starting to dance about midnight and keeping it up until the early hours of the morning has become prevalent in Washington. The whole trouble, according to Mrs Henderson, lies in the fact that guests do not arrive at social functions until outrageous hours. As one hostess expresses it, "If they keep up this pace they will arrive in time for breakfast next morning."

One complaining witness against daylight dances told of her experience at the Draper bal masque during the holidays. She and the debutante whom she was escorting arrived at the Drapers' shortly after 10.30 o'clock. The butler told them that no guests had yet arrived. To avoid being the "first guests" the party autoed away, but returned at eleven o'clock and found only a few guests there. The dancing began at 11.30 stopped at twelve for supper, and at two o'clock only a small part of the dance programme had been completed.

MARRIED AT 13 IS GRANDMOTHER AT 29

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 10.—A grandmother at twenty-nine, mother of 8 children and a sister-in-law of her own daughter, is Mrs. William Golden, of Norris, a mining town six miles from here. Mrs. Golden has been married twice. The youngest of her children are twins, born a short time ago. Her grandchild is 6 months old.

Mrs. Golden was married when thirteen years old to Henry Burd. There are six children living as a result of that marriage. Burd died, and in July, 1910, Mrs. Burd and her eldest daughter, then fourteen years of age, were married to Floyd and William Golden, brothers.

Mother and daughter are sisters-in-law. William Golden is step-father to his brother's wife and the twins born to Mrs. William Golden are both aunts and cousins to the child of Mrs. Golden.

SENATOR LEGRIS' CHARGES.

Takes His Son From Ottawa University Because Priest Beat Him Brutally.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.— The action of Senator J. H. Legris, as a Roman Catholic in sending his sons to McGill University has been the subject of articles in the French newspaper, L'Action Sociale, lately. Senator Legris has written to Le Pays, a local French newspaper, defending his course. In the course of a long letter addressed to Mr. Godfrei Langlois, the proprietor of Le Pays, Senator Legris declares that his action was brought about by the fact that his sixteen-year-old son was brutally assaulted by an Oblat Father in the university at Ottawa on the night of May 28, 1907. As a result of the assault, for which no extenuation could be found even by the priest himself, the boy lost the sight of one eye. Senator Legris says that he brought an action for damages against the university, but that in spite of the sworn statement of the boy's assailant that he had brutally beaten him in a moment of anger, the directors of the university refused to give any compensation.

AWARDED $6,000 DAMAGES.

Dr. Ashton Jilted Detroit Woman to Marry Belleville Girl.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 10.—Miss Viola Schram was awarded a verdict late this afternoon for $6,000 damages for breach of promise against Dr. Frederick B. Ashton, 2381 Woodward Ave, by a jury in Judge Hally's court. The evidence adduced showed that Dr. Ashton, after paying attention to Miss Schram for nearly ten years, threw her over, and married Miss Marguerite Gailey, a Belleville, Ont., girl.

MAKING GOOD USE OF VISITS

A Well Known Lady Takes a Note Book With Her and Dots Down Interesting Items.

When paying a visit in a part of the country where there are many old inhabitants, of a class well worth cultivating, the guest went calling one day with her hostess, and she was told beforehand that she would have a great treat. Just before the start the hostess exclaimed: "My note book!" and the maid went hurriedly to her boudoir, to return with a somewhat bulky leather-covered volume which looked to be well used and earmaked. Once in the motor, the hostess vouchsafed the information that her notebook always went on these calls, for from them she gleaned much valuable information on many interesting subjects. In lore of this kind she is so much interested that her old friends was very eloquent in their reminiscences, and have even allowed her to photograph their beloved souvenirs. After each call the chauffeur turns into some shady lane where a stop can be made, and incidents and facts and also old recipes for drinks like nectar and food even better than manna all go into the notebook before a word of them escapes.

Several of the old homes in the neighborhood have seen generations of the same name raised within their spacious walls, which in several instances are of brick brought from Holland, along with the carved wood mantels and wainscotting. Wonderful collections of furniture are here which the writers of furniture books have never seen. The world will hear of all and there will be many other things about them when the notebook appears in it which will be of interest the country over.

HALIFAX HERALD BURNED OUT

Many Other Business Places Destroyed by Great Fire This Morning

(Intelligencer Special)

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 12.—A fire, which destroyed The Herald building and Munny's store, is still raging at nine o'clock this morning, the firemen striving to confine the blaze to the block bounded by Barrington, George and Granville streets. Schaefer's jewelry store, Legg Bros., hardware, and several other business places on Barrington street have been burned. At 10 o'clock the fire was under control. The loss is roughly estimated a half a million dollars.

LAWYER'S SUICIDE

(Intelligencer Special)

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 12.—Thomas Stephens, aged 76, a prominent lawyer, suicided here to-day by cutting his throat rather than testify against his son, who had brought an action for defamation of character, the elder Stephens having accused the young man of misappropriating funds from the family estate.

HORSEM ANDEAD

(Intelligencer Special)

BARRIE, Ont., Jan. 12.—Johnny Dyment, trainer of the Brookland stable for a dozen years and well-known as a supporter of sports of all kinds, died this morning after four days' illness from a blood clot on the brain.

DIED FROM COLD

(Intelligencer Special.)

PETERBORO', Ont., Jan. 12.—Alfred J. Cameron, an Ontario land surveyor, was overcome with cold on the outskirts of the city last night and died this morning from exposure. He leaves a large family.

SEVEN YEARS EACH FOR HIGHWAYMEN

Judge Bazin Administers Stiff Sentences in Court of Sessions

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—In terms of loathing towards the two whimpering cowards who stood before him in the prisoner's dock, convicted of one of the most dastardly hold-ups ever perpetrated in the city, Judge Bazin to-day, in pronouncing sentence for the first time in his new capacity as a Judge of the Court of Special Sessions, demonstrated that he had set his face hard against crimes with violence.

Pierre Vezeau and Albani Laramie will leave to-night for St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, where they will abide for seven years each. It is not their first visit there.

Two young men, out of the penal institution for three weeks only, strong and healthy, severely beat up and robbed a harmless and respectable working woman as she was returning from her work on the night of December 16th.

As Mrs. F. Sharkey was crossing the Buffalo bridge at 6.30 p. m., Vezeau struck her across the face and while Laramie held her down he snatched her purse from her wrist and both ran away with the few pennies that the purse contained.

"You are coardly, worthless, heartless men," said Judge Bazin. "It is such men as you who deserve to be lashed, and I am going to rid the city of a pair of highwaymen who would beat a poor old lady and rob her of the few dollars earned by her hard toil. Seven years each in the penitentiary, and I trust that you will not come begging to be let out on ticket-of-leave in a couple of years, because as far as I am concerned you will serve every day of your terms."

Judge Bazin pronounced sentences aggregating twenty-one years this morning, more than has been given at any of the last three terms of the Court of the King's Bench.

Alfred Dupont, burglary at 710 St. Catherine street east, will do four years.

Albert Beaudry, theft as a servant, two years; T. Ryan, theft, one year.

ALLEGED DYNAMITE OUTRAGE AT ACTINOLITE HAS PETERED OUT

Investigation by Detective Reburn Shows its True Nature—It was not Intended to Injure Temperance Workers—Explosion was in Honor of New Year's Advent—Explanation of Parties Concerned in it Accepted as Satisfactory

Detective H. Reburn, of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Province of Ontario, was in the city last evening en route to Toronto. The well-known detective was on his way home from Actinolite, where he spent a couple of days investigating the alleged dynamiting of the Methodist church at that place on New Year's Eve.

It will be remembered that the affair caused considerable excitement at the time. A local option campaign was in progress in the municipality. On the Sunday night in question special temperance addresses were delivered in the church, and it was decided to hold a watch-night service as well. A large number participated in this, and many earnest prayers were offered for the successful outcome of the fight. During the progress of the meeting the worshippers were startled by a loud report and the shattering of glass in the large windows. It is said there were three explosions. Considerable damage was done to the fine building, but no one was injured.

In conversation with the clever Provincial officer, The Intelligencer learned that the affair was not intended to be aimed at the temperance people, nor was it intended to do any damage. Two young men named Frederick Scrimmage, aged 21, and William Plue, aged 18 years, secured some dynamite and conceived the idea to explode some of it when the New Year was ushered in, as they state, just to celebrate the event. The dynamite was frozen, and the young men took it to a Mr. Wm. Douglas, who, by the way, is a county constable, and he thawed it out. Scrimmage and Plue then contrived means to explode the dynamite, and were successful in their efforts. They were, however, rather unwise in exploding the dynamite so close to the church premises, but, as they told the detective, they did not think it would do any harm, but simply make a loud report.

The explanation was most satisfactory to all concerned, and the parties implicated in the affair are to make good the damage done the sacred edifice.

Douglas, we are informed, has sent in to the proper authorities his resignation as a county constable. The whole matter has been placed before the County Attorney here, and will also be reported to the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto.

It is not anticipated that prosecution will follow, as it was apparently an unwitting episode.

CLOTHING STOLEN WHEN STORE BURNED

Extensive Thefts at Fire in Cronk Block--More Cases Likely to Result

Ernest Wilson, a young man, was this morning arraigned before Magistrate Masson, charged with having on November 11th, last, stolen an overcoat, the property of Mr. B. Chesher. The latter's place of business was destroyed by fire on that night, with two other business concerns which were located in the Cronk block. Mr. Carnew, who appeared for the accused, said that a plea of not guilty would be entered in order that the facts of the case might be brought out.

Sergt. Harman testified that he arrested Wilson on a warrant, and that the coat alleged to have been Mr. Chesher's property was found at Wilson's house. The prisoner, after his arrest, admitted that he had taken an overcoat and had traded it with Frank Orr, who also is accused of the theft of a coat.

Mr. Chesher, in his evidence, testified that upwards of $400 worth of goods were taken from his store on the night of the fire. Articles were taken from the window and other portions of the store. All that had been recovered amounted in value to $15 or $20.

The Magistrate found Wilson guilty but deferred judgment in his case and also in Orr's case until the 26th. In the meantime the police will endeavor to find out more of this case, and the probabilities are that before the case is concluded several additional persons will be implicated.

Wilson and Orr were boh admitted to bail, substantial bondsmen having been secured.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

HE WENT UP.

James Smith, a young man, was this morning by Magistrate Masson fined $5 or 10 days in jail for being drunk. Not having the money, Smith went up on the hill for 10 days.

Drummond, $1.00; five friends, $5.00; friend, $1.00; total, $28.05.

Bird, of Stirling, son of Morden Bird, has been appointed to the position in the Customs at Belleville rendered vacant by the promotion of Mr. Arthur McGinnis to the position of Collector. Mr. Bird assumes his duties on Monday next. Mr. Donald Patterson, of this city, has been appointed Customs Officer at the Grand Trunk, Belleville, in succession to Lieut.-Col. P. H. Hambly, who voluntarily resigned the office owing to ill health.

BELLEVILLE'S BUILDING BY-LAW

In reference to the Building By-Law passed 15th May last year, the City Engineer states that contractors and others interested in building propositions can have copies of same by applying at his office between 9 and 10 a.m. It must be understood that before any building or structure is commenced, the Engineer must pass on plans of same and issue permit accordingly, the neglect to obtain such permit being a penalty of $50.00 and the stopping of the work. Further, on general lines, the Engineer is anxious to have an accurate record of the building development in Belleville during 1912, so that Belleville can be boosted same as other cities of the same size in the municipal journals of the country, and especially as heavy building operations are anticipated in the city this year.

A WEEK'S RESPITE.

William Hughes, a laborer, was arrested last evening for being drunk. This morning the Magistrate enlarged the case for a week and allowed Hughes to return to his work in the meantime.

HAD TO GO.

At 11.40 last night Mr. Connors, proprietor of the Hastings House, reported to the police that three men were in his sitting room and would not vacate the same. When they found out the police had been communicated with they left the place.

GIVEN THIRTY DAYS.

Alfred Way, who some years ago had the misfortune to lose both legs, was this morning before the Magistrate charged with vagrancy. He pleaded guilty and was sent to jail for 30 days, which was his desire.

LARGE FUNERAL.

This morning at 9 o'clock the funeral of the late Mr. Robert Hunter took place, and despite the severe cold weather, many were in attendance. The C.M.B.A., of which deceased was a member, attended in a body. The remains were taken to St. Michael's Church, where requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Killeen. Upon the casket were a number of beautiful floral designs, also many mass cards, showing the deceased had very many friends. The body was placed in the Belleville vault. The bearers were Messrs. H. Boyle, W. Britton, Wm. and P. Smith, B. and J. McGuire. Following is a list of the floral tributes: flower pillow, family; cross, Miss Mamie Keating; cross, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ketcheson; cross, employees of Marsh & Henthorn; wreath, friends at Windsor Hotel; wreath, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gilbert; bouquets, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shea, Miss Nellie McCarthy, Dora and George Tarlington, Mrs. Capt. Williams.

TO REFOREST HASTINGS.

Hastings is the first county to undertake reforestation of waste lands under the terms of the legislation of last session of the Legislature. Hastings County Council submitted to the Minister of Agriculture yesterday its by-law to undertake the work and asked Hon. Mr. Duff's approval as the statute provides. The county has acquired several thousand acres. In one township 3,000 acres were purchased by the municipality at tax sales and turned over to the county to be reforested.

KEEP YOUR EYES BRIGHT

To keep the eyes clear and bright they should be well bathed once or twice a day with rose-water into which a few grains of borax have been dissolved.

A well-known beauty gives the following reason for the brilliancy of her eyes:—Before dressing for the evening she invariably rests for five or ten minutes, during which time she closes her eyes and lays a soft bandage soaked in rose-water over them. By the time her toilet is finished, her eyes look as clear and bright as though she had just indulged in a long sleep.

A mere man was once heard to observe that a woman with good teeth and a pretty mouth could never be considered plain. Whether he will find many to agree with him I do not know, but there is no doubt that both of these features contribute very largely to a woman's attractiveness, and although one cannot alter the shape of one's mouth, or one's teeth, much can be done to improve their general appearance.

Women Students in Vienna.

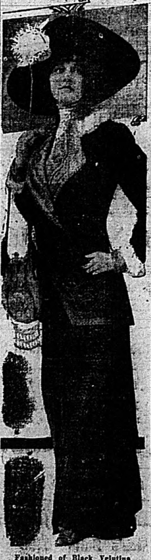
In answer to an inquiry from an old classmate, a girl writes: — "The woman student has ceased to be an object of unusual interest here, she is just a student, and has become so numerous that no one stares at her. The catalogues for last year show that there were at the three Austrian universities 24,804 students, of whom 1993 were women, about 8 per cent. In the medical department there were 271, and in the philosophical — which includes the school for teachers — there were 1949, while only 44 heard lectures in the law department, where all doors have not yet been opened for women."



Fashioned of Black Velutina

An apron front edged with knitted silk fringe is the feature of a street costume of velutina.

This walking suit is of black, old blue satin being the contrasting tone in the revers upon the three-quarters-length jacket. The revers, too, are edged with fringe and are embroidered with soutache braid of the blue tone.

The coat is trimmed with Hercules braid. A touch of white is given this walking costume with marabout. This delicate feather outlines the collar and cuffs.

The lines of the skirt show a slight tendency to fullness and in length it just escapes the floor.

The model would be pretty in corduroy or cloth.

CURRENT COMMENT

A telegram from England conveys the gratifying information that Sir Charles Tupper's condition has slightly improved.

The week which is now closing has been the coldest that Belleville has experienced since January, 1901. Here is the record: Jan. 6th, 20 below; 7th, 10 below; 8th, 10 below; 9th, 8 above; 10th, zero; 11th, 10 below, and the mean temperature for the week has been 4 below. Most people will hope that it may be long ere we look upon its like again.

The Lady—How much does the old cow give a day, Tom?

Tom—About eight quarts, ma'am.

The Lady—And how much of that do you sell?

Tom—About twelve quarts, ma'am.

It is singular how opinions differ. Sir Wilfrid in his recent speech at Montreal said that "he has had the greatest revenge public man ever had, that he has seen all the pre-election pledges of the Nationalists, navy and all, swallowed up in Toryism." And yet most of the Liberal newspapers assert that Mr. Borden has been swallowed by the Nationalists. You pay your money and take your choice as to which of these positions you accept.—Kingston Standard.

"I started to work on my twentieth story yesterday," said the hustling man, "and I tell you I am making it pay!"

"You are an author?"

"Certainly not! I am an architect!"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is rather premature in his criticism of what the new Federal government has accomplished, especially when he went out of quite unexpectedly to himself, leaving the public business at loose ends and giving his successors an enormous amount of additional work of a routine character. We cannot help thinking that his speech at Montreal might have been more to the point had he postponed his criticisms until the new government had settled down to business, and had seized the opportunity to clear himself, for instance, of the nasty allegations in connection with such jobs as the Quebec bridge contract and the Chats Falls steal.—Ottawa Citizen.

Only nine per cent. of Western Ontario, which has an area of 20,000 square miles, is in woodland, according to Professor Zavitz, at a meeting of the experimental union held in Guelph last night. Contrasted with this Prussia, with an area of only 10,000 square miles, has 23 per cent. There is plenty of waste ground unavailable for agriculture that could be utilized to reverse this undesirable comparison. The advantages of reforestation are also so manifold and easily acquired that this expert is engaged in a worthy work in presenting them to Ontario farmers, who will be standing sadly in their own light if they continue to treat them with indifference.—Hamilton Spectator.

In July 1910, Messrs. Dryden and Ritch were appointed, as a special commission to investigate the conditions affecting sheep raising in this and other countries. It is believed that the report in which the Commissioners have embodied the results of their investigations is by far the most exhaustive treatise which has yet appeared in Canada, relative to the raising of sheep and the production of wool. In view of the indifferent attitude, with respect to the keeping of sheep, manifested by too many Canadian farmers, this report appears at a very opportune time. The Commissioners, at the end of the report, have made a number of recommendations, the adoption of which would, in their opinion, lead to the development of the whole industry The report is now available for distribution and a copy may be obtained by any interested party, upon addressing the Live Stock Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Simple Hospitality

Sometimes a wife settles down into a dreary, domestic routine, honestly believing that until her husband's improve there is no other course for her to pursue. The very fact that many people cannot afford elaborate entertainments does not imply that they cannot enjoy simple ones. Novelty is the charm of life, as variety is its spice, and very often the guests who come from luxurious homes are the most easily pleased. The young housewife who, through fear of criticism, refuses to invite her richer or more experienced friend to her home is cheating herself of much pleasure

LOCAL SPORT

Lou Marsh, who refereed the game on Wednesday night, gives the following account of it in the Toronto Star: Fighting to absolutely the last gasp and with two boys so weary that they were almost hanging to the sides of the rink, Dick Arnott's Belleville juniors were beaten 11 to 7 by Jim Sutherland's Kingston Frontenacs here last night in the first home game. The Belleville youngsters were right there. They fought the heavier and stronger team from Kingston like bull terriers, and there is honor even in their defeat, for it was a case of the terriers up against more terriers with a couple of mastiffs thrown in to help them out, and the big fellows' strength told on them.

Belleville, with three of her last year's team doing duty, went at the novice crowd from Sutherlandville as if they were going to eat them for a light lunch. They nailed the first two goals, but Frontenacs took the next three and made it 3 to 2 at the halt.

In the second half Belleville grabbed two in a row, and the big crowd shouted and stamped so hard that Dick Arnott went out and put an extra brace against the east end of his new arena.

The Kingstons tied it up again. With two minutes to go, Belleville, which had been shooting from all angles, sifted another one by and led, 5 to 4. It looked all over but the shouting, when Campbell, the sturdy Frontenac point, sailed up the ice and poked a lazy shot by Fitzgerald, and tied it up at full time.

In the first extra period Belleville grabbed one, and again the crowd went crazy with delight. In the second five minutes Frontenacs evened again. In the third five minutes they took a lead but Belleville came right back as game as pebbles and tied it up for the sixth time. Then their light forwards who had been exchanging bumps with Kingston's heavy defence, weakened, and Kingston forged ahead. In the final five minutes Wallace and Whalen of the Belleville team were dead to the world. Little "Cap" Moore of the Belleville team took a dying chance and led everybody but the goalkeeper to the attack, but it was futile, and Kingston, facing a wide-open goal, notched three more and cinched it. It was one grand game—a battle royal, in a hockey sense—from gong to gong. Only one boy was hurt at all seriously—Gunn, of Kingston, who was cut in the eye with a lifted puck, and Wallace, of Belleville, got a bad bump in a scrimmage, but continued play.

The most spectacular player on the ice was Moore, the Belleville cover. He was tireless, as busy as a bee, and as game as they grow 'em. He had good boys behind him in Tuite and Fitzgerald The forwards were fair, but were inclined to shoot from too far out.

Campbell and Staunton, the Kingston defence, are extra good. Both are big fellows. The forwards were fairly speedy and had a good idea in combination.

HOCKEY NOTES.

The New Edinburghs lost all their games on tour, but had a surplus of $200.

There are 24 O.H.A. games scheduled for to-night.

"Where do you dig up all these new hockey players?" Jim Sutherland, manager of the Kingston Frontenacs was asked, after his 1912 team had defeated Belleville. "Well, I'll tell you," replied Jim. "We hadn't a man of the old champions left this year, so on January 1, Mr. Trotter and I just trotted down to the ponds away out in the outskirts of the town and looked over the kids down there, with and without skates, and most of them with shinneys, selected thirty, held a practice, cut them to ten, held another practice, picked seven, and here we are. Some of those lads didn't know whether a shin-pad went on their elbow or was a reinforcement for their pants, and a glove was an object of worship. We may not win a championship, but we'll get out of the district anyway."—Globe.

Synopsis.

Gretchen, a goose girl, meets a mysterious mountaineer and Carmichael, American consul in Dreiberg, kingdom of Ehrenstein. Carmichael loves Princess Hildegarde.

Gretchen's lover is Leo, a vintner. The prince regent of Jugendheit sends Hildegarde an offer of marriage from King Frederick. The princess was abducted in infancy and later restored to her father, the grand duke.

Gretchen and Leo are to wed after the vintage. Hans Grumbach of America reaches Dreiberg.

CHAPTER III.

THE YOUNG VINTNER.

CARMICHAEL thirstily drank his first tankard, thinking: "So this vintner is in love with our goose girl? Confound my memory! I would give 20 crowns to know where I have seen him. A fine beer," he said aloud, holding up the second tankard.

The vintner raised his. There was an unconscious grace in the movement. A covert glance at his hand satisfied Carmichael in regard to one thing. He might be a vintner, but the hand was as soft and well kept as a woman's. Could a man with hands like these mean well toward Gretchen? Gretchen was both innocent and unworldly. To the right man she might be easy prey; never to a man like Colonel von Wallenstein, whose power and high office were alike sinister to any girl of the peasantry. But a man in the guise of her own class, of her own world and people, here was a snare Gretchen might not be able to foresee.

A tankard rapping a table nearby called Gretchen to her duties.

"Gretchen is beautiful enough to be a queen, and yet she is merely a Hebe in a tavern," remarked Carmichael.

"Hebe?" suspiciously.

"Hebe was a cup bearer to the mythological gods in olden times," Carmichael explained. He had set a trap, but the vintner had not fallen into it.

"A fairy story." The vintner nodded. He understood now.

Carmichael would lay another trap.

"What happened to her?"

"Oh," said Carmichael, "she spilled wine on a god one day, and they banished her."

"It must have been a rare vintage."

"I suppose you are familiar with all the valleys. Mosell?"

"Yes. That is a fine country."

The old man in tatters sat erect in his chair.

"You have served?"

"A little. If I could be an officer I should like the army." The vintner reached for his pipe, which lay on the table.

"Try this," urged Carmichael, offering his pouch.

"This will be good tobacco, I know." The vintner filled his pipe.

Carmichael followed this gift with many questions about wines and vintages, and hidden in these questions were a dozen clever traps. But the other walked over them unhesitant, with a certainty of step which chagrined the trapper.

By and by the vintner rose and bade his table companion a good-night. He had not offered to buy anything. This frugality was purely of the thrifty peasant. But the vintner expressed many thanks. On his way to the door he stopped and whispered into Gretchen's ear.

The press in the room was thinning. A carter sauntered past and sat down unconcernedly at the table occupied by the old man, whose face Carmichael had not yet seen. A little later a butcher approached the same table and seated himself. It was then a dusty baker came along and repeated this procedure, and Carmichael's curiosity was enlivened. Undoubtedly they were Socialists, and this was a little conclave, and the peculiar manner of their meeting, the silence and mystery, were purely fictitional.

Had Carmichael not fallen a-dreaming over his pipe he would have seen the old man pass three slips of paper across the table. He would have seen the carter, the butcher and the baker pocket these slips stolidly. He would have seen the mountaineer wave his hand sharply and the trio rise and disperse. Carmichael left the Black Eagle, nursing the sunken ember in his pipe.

Intermediately the mountaineer paid his score and started for the stairs which led to the bedrooms above. But he stopped at the bar. A very old man was having a pail filled with hot cabbage soup. It was the ancient clock mender across the way. The mountaineer was startled out of his habitual reserve. The clock mender had the aspect of a weary, broken man. He shuffled noiselessly out. The mountaineer followed him cautiously. Once in his shop the clock mender poured the steaming soup into a bowl, broke bread in it and began his evening meal. The other, his face pressed against the dim pane, stared and stared.

"Gott in himmel! It is he!" he gasped chokingly.

• • • • • • •

Krumerweg was indeed a crooked way. It formed a dozen elbows and ragged half circles as it slunk off from the Adlergasse. It was half after 9 when Gretchen and the vintner picked their way over cobbles pitted here and there with mudholes. They were arm in arm.

"Only a little farther," said Gretchen, for the vintner had never before passed over this way.

"Long as it is and crooked, heaven knows it is short enough!" He encircled her with his arms and kissed her. "I love you! I love you!" he said.

Her bosom swelled, her heart throbbed, and she breathed in ecstasy the sweet chill air that rushed through the broken street.

"After the vintage," she said, giving his arm a pressure. For this handsome fellow was to be her husband when the vines were pruned and freshened against the coming winter.

"Aye, after the vintage," he echoed. But there was tragedy in his heart as deep and profound as his love.

"My grandmother—I call her that, for I haven't any grandmother—is old and seldom leaves the house. I promised that after work tonight I'd bring my man home and let her see how handsome he is. She is always saying that we need a man about, and yet I can do a man's work as well as the next one." I love you, too, Leo!" She pulled his hand to her lips and quickly kissed it, frightened but unashamed.

"Gretchen, Gretchen!"

She stopped. "What is it?" keenly. "There was pain in your voice."

"The thought of how I love you hurts me. There is nothing else, nothing, neither riches nor crowns, nothing but you, Gretchen."

They proceeded until they came to the end of their journey at No. 40 in the Krumerweg. It was a house of hanging gables, almost as old as the town itself.

Frau Schwarz, Gretchen's grandmother, owned the house. It was all that barricaded her from poverty's wolves, and, what with sundry taxes and repairs and tenants who paid infrequently, it was little enough.

Gretchen opened the door, which was unlocked. There was no light in the hall. She pressed her lover in her arms, kissed him lightly and pushed him into the living room. Gretchen ran forward, lighted two candles, then kissed the old woman seated in the one comfortable chair.

"Here I am, grandmother!"

"And who is with you?"

"My man!" cried Gretchen gayly.

South African Football

The South African Football Association are anxious to have another team from England in their country before they seriously consider the project of sending an eleven to the Mother Country. The F. A. lost $1,150 on the last trip, but it is expected that the South African Federation would arrange matters so as to prevent any loss to the visitors. Gate receipts for the last tour netted $16,500, twenty-seven games being played.

SALARY OBJECTED TO

Opposition Protest Increase of $450 to Col. Anderson.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Twits Hon. Mr. Foster For Lavishness—Good Start Made With the Main Estimates—Four Dollar Bills Cause Trouble and Must Go Says Hon. W. T. White—To Amend Patent Act.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Quite a substantial beginning was made in the passage of the main estimates under the head of civil government, with the exception of those of the Department of Interior being approved when the committee of supply rose and reported progress.

The only item that stirred up much debate was the increase in the salary of Col. Anderson, chief engineer of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, from $3,550 to $4,000. The Government was charged by the Opposition with riding a coach and six through the Civil Service Act in this regard. If a jump of several years statutory increases were to be made in his case, it was argued there were many other officials, who through long service and ability, were equally deserving of recognition.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in particular, twitted Hon. Mr. Foster with no longer being the watch dog of the treasury, to which Mr. Foster retorted that Sir Wilfrid would now have a chance to transform himself into a watch dog.

When the House went into committee of supply yesterday afternoon Hon. William Pugsley voiced an objection to the issue of $4 Dominion notes. They were easily mistaken for $1 notes and were generally disliked.

Hon. W. T. White agreed as to the objectionable nature of the notes and stated that within the last few days he had been considering the advisability of issuing a $5 Government note.

In answer to a question of Mr. Pugsley, the Finance Minister stated that the contract with the American Bank Note Co., for the printing of Government notes, would expire on Oct. 1, 1912. The Government was now considering advertising probably in the next week in Canada and Great Britain, for tenders for a five-year contract.

Hon. Col. Hughes got his civil government estimates through almost without a hitch. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier enquired what the Militia Department wanted with an architect, the Minister was able to retort that the gentleman in question had been secured from the Public Works Department before Sept. 21, and he did not think he could be held criminally or otherwise responsible for this appointment.

Hon. J. D. Hazen announced the intention to appoint a general inspector of the agencies of the Department of Marine and Fisheries at a salary of $2,400.

Hon. William Pugsley objected to the proposal to advance the salary of Col. W. P. Anderson, chief engineer of the Marine and Fisheries Department, from $3,550 to $4,000 as an evasion of the law, and liable to cause jealousy among other officials who were not permitted to take several years statutory increases at once.

Hon. J. D. Hazen thought there would be no jealousies as Col. Anderson had been in the service since 1875.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster declared that all general rules must have exceptions. He was just as strong as when he was in Opposition for keeping to the spirit of the law, but once in a while justice would be done by something that seemed to be not quite in compliance with the act.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier accused the Government of seeking a wilful violation of the Civil Service Act. "Let us have the law and adhere to it," he said. "There were good and efficient officers in every Department who might complain that they had been overlooked. It would be an opening of the door to this sort of thing."

A. C. Macdonell (South Toronto) introduced a bill to amend the Patent Act by raising the time limit within which a manufacturer in Canada of a patented article must be commenced from two to four years, and the time with an importation of the article is prohibited from one to two years.

The bill of Hon. J. D. Hazen to reduce the number of harbor commissioners of the City of Quebec from nine to three was read a second time.

Mr. Borden introduced a bill to amend the Civil Service Act, founded on a resolution which was passed by the House, to permit the private secretary of a Minister to be appointed a clerk in subdivision B of the first or A or B of the second division, and paid a salary not exceeding the maximum in such subdivision.

Hon. F. D. Monk declared that $4,000 a year was a grossly inadequate salary for an official of the standing of Col. Anderson. No later than next session, a definite plan of remuneration of departmental engineers would be laid before the House.

Hon. J. D. Hazen declared that Col. Anderson had last summer been given greatly addition work by the late Minister of Marine, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, he being entrusted with the entire construction work of the lighthouse branch.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) claimed that the Government was driving a coach and six through the civil service act.

Hon. J. D. Hazen cited the provision in the civil service act that the salary of a Deputy Minister should be $5,000, and added that the late Government had added $1,000 to the Deputy Minister of Naval Affairs, making his salary $6,000.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that he was shocked and horrified to find the Minister of Marine and Fisheries taking refuge in the example of his predecessors.

Col. Anderson got his increase of $450 on a standing vote of 57 to 37.

Victim of Cold Wave.

Virden, Man., Jan. 12.—Thomas Boyd, a carpenter, who had been drinking, was found frozen stiff in Canadian Pacific Railway freight shed yesterday.

Alleged Bank Robber Held.

Los Angeles, Jan. 12.—Charles Dean, under arrest as one of the men who robbed the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, Canada, was arraigned yesterday on a statutory charge. Trial was set for Jan. 19 and bail fixed at $1,000. Dean was arraigned as C. W. Howard, which he asserted was his true name.

The arraignment was formally observed to prevent habeas corpus proceedings and to hold the prisoner until a Canadian officer arrives.

New Customs Building for Toronto.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The appropriation of $300,000 for a customs examining warehouse at Toronto is believed to be the first half of a sum with which the Government will erect an entirely new building on a site to be selected.

The plans have not yet been approved, but it is probable that the new buildings for Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa will be put upon uniform lines.

Edmands Backs Richeson.

Boston, Jan. 12.—It is expected that within the next two weeks an appeal will be sent to Governor Foss and the executive council, in an effort to save the life of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson. The fight for a commutation of the sentence will be financed by Moses Edmands, father of Miss Violet Edmands, the former fiance of Mr. Richeson.

The Favored Nations Clauses

It will be remembered, particularly by those who attended the public meetings held during the elections in September last, how persistently those who spoke in favor of ratifying the Fielding-Taft reciprocity pact declared that the favored nations clauses in the different treaties into which Great Britain had entered would be repealed so far as they affected the over-seas self-governing portions of the Empire; that in fact Sir Wilfrid Laurier had procured their repeal through the Foreign Office in England. The latter statement was repeatedly denied, and the fact pointed out that Sir Wilfrid had only succeeded in procuring the adoption at the Colonial Conference of a resolution, asking the British Government to intercede with the powers with whom these treaties had been made to consent to the abrogation of those portions of the treaties which affected the self-governing portions of the Empire. It was also pointed out, in reply, by those who had given the subject any consideration, that there was little probability of such requests being favorably received by those who were profitting by the clauses being retained in the treaties. These predictions have been verified, as will be learned on reading the following telegram from England:

> London, Jan. 9.—Sir Edward Grey's communication to foreign Governments conveying the desire of the overseas dominions to be allowed to withdraw from Great Britain's commercial treaties, is not meeting with a ready response, according to information received by the Canadian Press.
>
> Sweden is the one exception. Already it has formally agreed to the proposal.
>
> In the cases of other nations, however, the communication either has been entirely rejected, or has been met with a demand for further particulars.

There is every reason to believe that neither President Taft nor our astute treaty makers, Messrs. Fielding and Patterson, knew of the existence of these treaties or how they affected the treaty-making powers of both the United States, England and the outlying portions of the Empire. It were more charitable, however, to suppose they had forgotten the existence of any such treaties. Whether Mr. Fielding knew or not, the presumption is that, being a Free Trader, he did not care how the door was opened to others than the United States, so long as he could establish his reputation as a free trade statesman.

Life Insurance in Canada

From the recently issued reports of the superintendent of life insurance some interesting facts about the business may be gleaned. Life insurance was transacted in 1910 by forty-three active companies, of which twenty-five were Canadian, seven British and eleven United States. The number is greater than that of the preceding year by one Canadian company and one fraternal society. The amount of insurance taken during the year 1910 was $152,762,520, an increase over the amount taken in 1910 of $21,023,442. The increase in the business of Canadian companies in 1910 was $11,240,701; of the British companies $240,332; of the United States companies, $9,542,409. The total insurance elected in 1910 was divided as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Canadian companies | $90,362,678 |
| British companies | 4,170,562 |
| United States companies | 58,229,280 |

Life insurance is a great business in Canada, the total amount of the policies in force at the date of the statements being $856,115,059, divided as follows:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Canadian companies | $565,669,110 |
| British companies | 47,816,775 |
| United States companies | 242,620,174 |

Showing a total increase during the year of $75,756,079, the Canadian companies' increase being $50,251,673.

The amount of insurance terminated in natural course in 1910 by death, maturity or expiry was $13,570,019. The amount terminated by surrender and lapse was $72,700,096. These amount are, relative to the amounts of the risk, somewhat in excess of the previous year, giving for every $1,000 of current risk, $15.85, terminated in natural course, and $84.92 by surrender and lapse, making a total of $100.77. In 1909 the rates were $14.56 and $79.94 respectively, making a total of $94.50, thus giving a difference of $6.27 for each $1,000 at risk.

The total termination amounts to about 56.47 per cent. of the amount of new policies. The actual amounts of termination were distributed as follows:

| | Naturally. | By sur'der and lapse. |
|---|---|---|
| Canadian | $7,479,800 | $40,975,543 |
| British | 1,330,696 | 2,138,124 |
| United States | 4,759,523 | 29,586,438 |

The death rate during the year, as accurately as can be gathered from the return of the companies show 12,892 deaths in 1,237,263 lives exposed to risk, the death rate being thus classified:

| | |
|---|---|
| Active companies, ordinary | 7,830 |
| Active companies, industrial | 12,561 |
| Ass't and fraternal | 8,904 |
| Non-active and retired | 39,216 |
| Total rate | 10,419 |

The inclusion of the non-active and retired companies, with death rate of 39,216, serves greatly to disturb the average of the companies.

The income of the Canadian companies was $36,988,707, derived as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Premiums and annuity sales | $28,048,457 |
| Interest and dividends | 7,829,404 |
| Sundry | 1,010,856 |

Of the expenditure of $21,838,001, there was:

| | |
|---|---|
| Paid to policy holders and annuitants | $13,816,303 |
| General expenses | 7,334,245 |
| Taxes | 292,345 |
| Dividends to stockholders | 395,101 |

Out of every $100 of income they have paid to policy holders $37.35; in general expense, $19.83; in taxes, 79 cents; in dividends to the stockholders, $1.08; leaving $40.96 to be carried to reserve to provide for meeting engagements. The business of life insurance in Canada would appear to be in a healthy condition.

CANADIAN VS AMERICAN FOOTBALL.

"Reddy" Griffith, the famous Varsity coach, writing on American football, says:

So much has been written and so well written during the last few days about the American football game that it is almost impossible to add anything to the criticisms. Still, the writer in a moment of weakness, promised to give a few of his views in the way of comparison between the game as it is played in Canada and in the United States.

The great outstanding difference is in the matter of offside interference. To the average Canadian offside interference is something to be avoided as destructive of most that is highly cherished in his game; to the American it is the essential, the pivot around which the whole games swings. Take it out of American football and you have at once eliminated practically every means of attack and defence known to American coaches. In fact, it is a very difficult matter to convince American footballers that gains can be made, kicks pulled off, or anything else effective done unless the runner or the kicker be protected by his interference. In itself, interference is not so awful as it sounds, particularly in the open field; as a matter of fact it often is one of the prettiest and cleverest parts of the game, and the team with this department highly developed is always the one most feared by others.

RAICEVICH THREW SIX.

Giovanni Raicevich, holder of the Italian heavyweight wrestling title, threw six heavyweights in less than twenty minutes actual wrestling time at Madison Square Garden, upon his first appearance on the mat in America. The Italian champion undertook to throw all the men in two hours at catch-as-catch-can style, with only a moment's rest between bouts, and to forfeit $1,000 to each man he did not throw in twenty minutes.

His first victim was Harry Petopsky, who succumbed to a half-nelson in 2.02. A body hold and a half-nelson brought August Faust to the mat in 1.40. George Sandele was disposed of with a hack hammerlock in 2.35. Oom Paul Schmidt, a 265-pound German, put up quite a tussle, and lasted 4.40, being pinioned with a half-nelson. A double nelson forced Hans Lehner to the mat in 4.55. Fritz Moll, a stock Hollander, was the victim of a wrist hold and a half-nelson in 2.55.

Poverty may be no disgrace, but it takes a lot to disgrace a rich man.

If you are paying cut rates you are only getting cheap insurance, but if you are paying established rates why not get the best security your money will purchase? It is unwise and unnecessary to take an inferior article when you can get the best for the same price. # A BRITISH EXPERT ON CANADIAN NAVY

Mr. Archibald S. Hurd Roundly Condemns the Local Navy Plan and Warmly Supports the Policy of Contributing to the British Fleet—Britain Needs Help—Collapse of the British Sea Power Would Expose Any Canadian Navy to Destruction "as Chaff Before the Whirlwind"

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—On this side of the Atlantic all who realize what sea-power means to the British people all the world over are watching with strained interest Canada's action with reference to naval defence.

None who have read the Montreal Star can failed to be moved to admiration by is courage in placing the "larger policy of the Empire," as opposed to the narrow policy of a small Canadian navy, which could exercise no influence on the fate of the Empire, and could not even protect the Dominion's own interests afloat.

We who live in the United Kingdom have never asked the Overseas Dominions to assist in the up-keep of the fleet which defends them as much as it defends us in the British Isles. At this moment, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are protected, not by any local ships that may be off the coasts of these Dominions, but by the great fleets in the North Sea, the English Channel and the Mediterranean. It is in these waters that the navies which can injure the British Empire are concentrated, and it is in these waters that the British fleets are maintained, so that as long as they are thus maintained in adequate strength they "contain"—to use a military term—any possible enemy. In addition, the metropolitan fleets under the British flag are supported by squadrons on the trade routes superior to any possible combination of enemy-squadrons.

This defence of British interests is costing this year £40,204,739, of which India, the Commonwealth of New Zealand, Cape Colony and Natal contribute £601,700.

"Well," Canadians may say, "that is your burden in the United Kingdom, you have shown that you can bear it; the naval crisis is over, and you have smooth water ahead." That is not true. The naval crisis—the really grave naval crisis—is still ahead, and French-Canadians may be reminded that on the issue of this crisis will depend not only the safety of the interests of the whole of the people under the British flag, but in large measure, the safety of the French Republic. In August, the British fleet, by its strength, defended France, though not a shell was fired. It is doing so to-day. French and British in extraction, all Canadians have an interest in maintaining the entente cordiale and supporting the British fleet, which is the peacemaker hardly less for the French people than for the British people.

The position of the British fleet is not assured; a grave crisis—a continued crisis—is imminent. On this aspect of the matter I cannot do better than quote from an article from my pen which appeared in the Daily Telegraph to-day. There I directed attention to six dominant factors of the situation; which were as follows:—

1.—In the past three years the expenditure of the United Kingdom, Germany and the United States on new men-of-war has been as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| United Kingdom | £34,531,000 |
| Germany | 29,365,000 |
| United States | 20,209,000 |

These are official figures. They reveal that in this period Great Britain has spent, on an average, only slightly more than the next greatest naval power, though the cost in construction in the two countries is about the same.

In the present year an attempt was made to improve the situation, and the British shipbuilding vote rose by over three and a half millions sterling, while in Germany the increase was only about £320,000. But there is still leeway to be made up.

2.—Austria-Hungary and Italy—the two other partners of the triple alliance—have in this three years spent on new ships:

| | |
|---|---|
| Italy | £6,659,209 |
| Austria-Hungary | 6,616,664 |

Consequently in that period the sums spent on new ships for the fleets of the Triple Alliance and for that of the United Kingdom have been:—

| | |
|---|---|
| United Kingdom | £34,531,000 |
| Triple Alliance | 42,640,000 |

3.—Construction has hitherto proceeded quicker in England than abroad, and the British naval authorities have taken credit for this celerity in framing their programmes from year year to year. There are no arrears, consequently, to be covered, and the new shipbuilding programme must be framed in the light of former programmes.

4.—The Birtish naval programme for 1912-13 must be based on the requirements in 1915, when pre-Dreadnought vessels will be almost a negligible quantity in British and foreign fleets, and for practical purposes only Dreadnoughts will count.

On March 31 next the ages of the pre-Dreadnoughts of the British and German fleets will be:

| | B | G |
|---|---|---|
| Under ten years | 9 | 8 |
| Under twelve years | 14 | 12 |
| Under fifteen years | 28 | 18 |

In serviceable pre-Dreadnoughts in 1915 England will have no numerical superiority over Germany alone.

5.—The German fleet concentrated in northern waters, will be organized in 1915—at latest, and probably in 1914 in three division, the two divisions consisting of sixteen Dreadnought battleships, the third division of the eight best pre-Dreadnought battleships, with at least five battle-cruisers of the Dreadnought type, besides probably four armored cruisers, twenty modern protected cruisers, and 132 torpedo craft of less than eleven years of age.

By this date the Austrian and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean will be formidable.

6.—The British Navy with its world wide duties, cannot be concentrated in northern waters. Provision must be made for a considerable armed force in the Mediterranean; a large number of cruisers and torpedo craft must be detached for service in the West Indies, the Cape, the East Indies, and the Far East; and at this date, moreover, the Panama canal will be open for traffic.

These factors, in association, prove how grave the situation is becoming and as it becomes perilous for us, who live in the United Kingdom, so it will become perilous for you who live in Canada. If the German, Italian and Austrian programmes are not varied by a single comma, the strain on the British finances will be overwhelming. In 1915 the ships now building will be ready—ready for war. In 1915 the position in completed Dreadnoughts will be as follows:

| | Battle-ships | Battle cruisers |
|---|---|---|
| United Kingdom | 22 | 8 |
| Overseas Dominions | 0 | 2 |
| Germany | 16 | 5 |
| United States | 12 | 2 |
| France | 4 | 0 |
| Japan | 3 | 6 |
| Russia | 7 | 0 |
| Italy | 4 | 0 |
| Austria | 4 | 0 |

In Dreadnoughts of the heaviest class, the British fleet will have 22 plus the number to be begun next year, if the keels are laid at early dates, while the Triple Alliance will have 24, the United States 12, and Russia, 7. In battle-cruisers—swift Dreadnoughts—the British position will be more satisfactory. In pre-Dreadnoughts still more or less serviceable, the British fleet will have ten, Germany 10, France 6, United States 6, Japan 4.

If Canada determines at once to aid the British fleet, her assistance can be translated by 1915 into an additional power to defend British and Canadian interests at the stragetic centres where they will be threatened: if Canada determines to found a small navy of her own, she can possess nothing of fighting value for many—very many—years, and in the meantime if the British navy suffers defeat what will be her position? She will be a part of an empire whose right arm has been broken, and her nucleus of a fleet—a few small cruisers and half a dozen torpedo craft—would be as chaff before the whirlwind of a victorious enemy.

This is a matter for the people of the Dominion. We in the Mother Country have never asked for assistance. But, let there be no mistake—the progress of foreign naval armaments is an imminent peril not merely to us in the United Kingdom, but to you in the Dominion. We in this country have the plant and the men ready and can produce naval power far more quickly and fifty to sixty per cent. cheaper than you can do even when you have created the necessary machinery and recruited the necessary men as crews.

Once you found a navy, moreover, under Canadian conditions, it can do nothing material in the defence of Canadian interests—much less contribute to the strength of the Empire—until you are spending on it about one hundred million dollars—because within the two long coast lines, anything less than a fleet of the size of the United States could not seriously affect the ultimate fortunes of war.

One final word. Any contribution to the strength of the British Empire—its dominant battle fleets—is a contribution also to the strength of France, and is, moreover, an insurance of the "open door" for Canadians and Canadian produce all the world over.

Yours faithfully,
ARCHIBALD S. HURD.

HAIR POWDER

The first English ladies who had the courage to wear powdered hair were as much pointed at for their singularity as the wearer of a crinoline would be to-day. It was in the beginning of the reign of George the First that the pioneers ventured to make themselves so conspicuous, and at the time when the next King was crowned there were only two hair-dressers in London; but in the year 1795 it was calculated that there were in Great Britain no less than fifty thousand hair-dressers! A writer with a turn for statistics reckoned up the probable amount of flour these fifty thousand would use in a year, and arrived at the conclusion that it was equal to what would make 5,314,280 quartern loaves.

Apart from the question whether the flour might not have been better employed, it must be owned that there was more excuse for the artificial production of grey hair than there is for the dyeing of the hair when nature decides that it is time for it to be grey.

A little outside assistance might have improved some self-made men.

OLYMPIC PROGRAM

Short Distance Races at Stockholm Next Spring Conspicuous by Their Absence.

Surprises for athletes are found in the Olympic games programme for next spring. The first is a 200-mile bicycle race, the only wheeling event listed. The short distance races expected are conspicuous by their absence. The 200 mile event will be a road race around Lake Mair, open to teams.

The football competition is limited to the Association game and teams affiliated with the International Football federation.

The track and field contests, under the head of athletics, consist of the 100, 200, 400, 800, 1500, 5000 and 10,000 metres flat races, the marathon, a 110 metre hurdle, running and standing high and broad jumps, hop, step and jump, pole vault, throwing javelin (right and left hand) throwing hammer and two all-round events, the pentathlon and decathlon, the former consisting of five events and the latter of 10.

Team competition consists of 400, 1600 and 3000 metre relay races and a tug of war between teams of eight. Combined team and individual competition consists of a cross country race 8000 metres. The bicycle race, 200 miles, is also a combined team and individual affair.

SOCCER ON THE WANE

Association Game Not Very Popular in English Universities Today.

The statement that I. P. F. Campbell, the Surrey cricketer and Association Blue, has declined the captaincy of the Oxford University Association eleven simply crystalizes the general opinion at Oxford and Cambridge as to the low depths to which Association football has sunk at both universities.

The reason suggested for Campbell's refusal — a thing which has probably never happened before in the history of university sport — is the low standard of play and the general lack of interest and enthusiasm which the game now arouses.

Indeed, the feeling of pessimism is so acute that it is seriously suggested that the full Blue be taken away from Association football, and only a half-Blue awarded. What must be the feelings of G. O. Smith, still regarded by many as the greatest centre forward England ever had; C. B. Fry, W. J. Oakley, and other famous stalwarts of amateur Association football!

There is little interest in Association football at the universities. Many men from the famous Association schools, such as Charterhouse, Malvern and Repton, have nearly all taken to hockey.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

MRS. FLORENCE HUESTON
Toronto.

Canadian women have shown a genius for establishing national societies. They have organized nationally so much as a matter of course and so quietly that hardly anyone has noticed as yet this unusual ability of Canadian women. They do not seem to be aware of it themselves, which, perhaps, is just as well. Women in Great Britain are noted outside of home life for their activity as political canvassers. It would be difficult to estimate the extensive work carried on by political organizations of women in England and Scotland. Women in the United States have made a name for clubs to persuade culture to come and live with them. Browning clubs, Mendelsohn clubs, Sorosis Clubs, May-flower clubs, Daughters of the Revolution clubs, are means by which women in the United States are fitting the women of the past and present to be women of the future. But the Canadian woman, as it seems almost unconsciously, has measured the distance between Halifax and Victoria, and has said to herself: "We must find some why by which the word of the woman in the West may reach the woman in the East and the word of the woman of mid-Canada must come to both East and West." Not only national comradeship, but national betterment and help are the aims of these societies formed by Canadian women.

If it is asked how Canadian women first learned to organize nationally, the most reasonable answer is that thirty years ago a woman's movement for foreign missions began among Canadian women. There are great missionary societies to-day among the women of all the Canadian churches. These leading women of twenty-five years ago learned how to extend their missionary societies nationally. They said: "The world for Christ," and along with that softly-spoken women's battle-cry there came, without any special summons, the soundest aspirations towards Canadian nationalism. The boys of the women who began the Canadian women's missionary societies are the originators of the Laymen's Missionary movement. Their daughters are still interested in missionary societies. They have added to their responsibilities other national womens' societies as well. It should be noted that the National Council of the Women of Canada, the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Women's Canadian Clubs, the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, the Aberdeen Society, Women's University clubs, Women's Institutes and Women's Historical are not political organizations, nor societies for acquiring culture.

MRS. FLORENCE HUESTON

And no woman has done more to help in the many movements for the betterment of her sex than Mrs. Florence Hueston of Toronto. She has [illegible] much of her time and her money to the different causes. She holds amongst other posts, a prominent place on the National Council for Women in Canada.

LEON GARNEAU
Montreal.

When Leon Garneau read the address of welcome from the combined Liberal clubs of Montreal to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on his return from his coronation trip, many of the thousands who listened to the young man's words on the historic Champ de Mars felt that they were listening to a coming public man. Mr. Garneau is an opportunist of the right kind

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S PROTEGE

At the age of three, planists in the making take more interest in toys than in sharps and flats. But Fitz Scavenius, the famous young Grieg player, who will visit Birmingham during his coming concert tour, and who is one of the favoured few to have his name entered in the book in which Queen Alexandra writes down the names of her favourite artists, on his third birthday astonished his family by clambering on to the piano stool and playing "Ding dong bell" and "Mary, Mary, quite contrary," hammering away at the notes till he struck the right ones. Later at the age of 14 he achieved another record by being the only competitor to obtain full marks at the senior Trinity College examination. Shortly after this exploit Queen Alexandra sent in young Scavenius, who is of Danish descent, and immediately set the seal of her approval upon his playing.

The Healthy Pose.

"If the proper pose of the body be retained in all the ordinary duties of life, whether sitting or standing, it will minimize the fatigue of the daily routine. When double work is thrown upon some muscles, while others are idle, the result is the pain in back and limbs with which so many woman suffer. To walk upstairs with the figure erect and not like a half-shut jack-knife, legs and joints flexible and lungs breathing properly, will not only contribute to a woman's appearance but also to her health.

ABOUT QUICK TEMPERS.

"Just a word about quick tempers," writes a friend. "I hope many of the sisters are honest enough to own up — confession is good for the soul, you know. If we were always as ready to own our faults there might be less wrangling in the world. I should like to see my rule a little more practiced. It is, to think twice before I speak, the bitter words that rise to my lips when things do not go right. It works like a charm, too. Of course I am not conceited enough to say that I always practice what I preach, but I am trying to and I know that I am succeeding pretty well. Half the trouble in this world is 'made' trouble, don't you candidly think so? All women can help one another. This is an excellent suggestion, and I commend it to all the readers of this page, excellent suggestion, and I commend it to all the readers of the page, especially in this holiday rush, when tempers are often tried. Think twice before speaking, and remember that many troubles are 'made' troubles.

HINTS AND ADVICE ON BABY REARING.

To an intelligent observer nothing could be more fascinating than the stages and methods by which an infant learns to use its eyes, ears, muscles and brain. Of course, no calendar of such events has ever been, nor can ever be, compiled, but this uncertainty as to the times and seasons of fresh developments makes the study of each individual child more interesting. There is no absolute law claiming that a baby should begin to walk and talk at given times. ame Nature will "gang her ain gait" and refuses to be hustled.

Baby's First Steps.

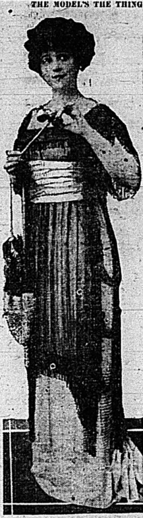
There is a tendency on the part of many mothers to force the pace where the development of baby's muscle powers is concerened. They are so anxious for baby to walk that many are guilty of the indiscretion of "teaching baby to walk" by leading the tiny toddler to indulge in efforts too great for its strength. This causes undue strain, and if the child is heavy frequently leads to bow legs and other permanent deformities. A bandy-legged child is a disgrace to its mother or nurse, providing there have been facilities for proper attention. If the muscles are allowed to gain strength naturally, and the child uses them as desire dictates, there will be little danger of crooked limbs or deformity of the spine. Attempts at walking are generally made at about the age of twelve months, but except in the case of a very thin, light baby the effort should not be over-encouraged. Fifteen or eighteen months is quite early enough for the ordinary plump baby to begin walking, and no anxiety need be felt if it attains the age of two years before reposing the confidence in the legs which are to lead it into so much "mischief."

MATERIAL IMMATERIAL. THE MODEL'S THE THING



Black and white continue to be the mode; whether frocks are of silk, chiffon, satin or cloth.

An exquisite model for an evening dress is composed of black chiffon over the same fabric of white. A lot of jet is used on the black tunic. The foundation of the gown is cream, veiled with the sheer white. A blue satin girdle gives a touch of color.

This gown would serve for a model in marquisite or it would be charming in any simple limp material. The mode is the thing.

Princess Mary's Rebuff

The following little story of the Queen and Princess Mary was told by one who could vouch for its truth. Princess Mary, when a younger child, ran one day into the sanctum of a certain well-known private secretary at Court. "I am sorry," said the much-harassed individual, "that I have no time to spare this morning for you, my little lady." The Princess, in high dudgeon, ran to her mother. "Sir So-and-So called me a 'little lady,'" she complained, "and you know, mother, that I am a Princess." The Queen replied laughingly, "Run back, Mary, to Sir So-and-So, and tell him that you are a Princess who has not yet learned to be a little lady."

THE PALE GIRL.

The pale girl is she to whom a bright complexion is natural. Pallor is constitutional with some people, and their health is at its best when they have least colour. To those it may be a consolation to know that pallor is just now fashionable, especially for brunettes. (She is not, however, on that account advised to cultivate it.)

Lack of healthy colour is due primarily to the thin condition of the blood — which means that the red constituents of the blood are below the normal in quantity. To increase the red corpuscles, the diet must be carefully chosen, and should include all specially nourishing items, such as meat, milk, eggs, etc.

Next in importance to the food taken comes fresh air and sufficient exercise. The latter must not be taken to the extent of producing excessive fatigue. A little fatigue — enough to induce sound sleep — is health-giving.

Bedroom and sitting-room should be kept open whenever the weather permits, and even during wet and windy weather it is better to place the bed out of the draught, wrap up well, and keep the window open.

Freedom from worry, cheerful society, and some pleasant occupation are then all that are needed to complete the cure and restore the apple-bloom of good health.

THE VALE OF HARD FOODS

Habitually eating soft foods, even soft bread, to the exclusion of everything else that is hard and crusty, is not only weakening to the digestive organs, but it also leads to the rapid decay of the teeth. When they are not used in the mastication of the harder foods, the teeth even if carefully cleaned, gradually become covered with tartar and sometimes loosened in their sockets. The use of hard, long-masticated food. The old mastication is a better preservation than all other means, usually adopted, put together. The free flow of saliva consequent on continued mastication results in improved digestion, which in turn effects beneficially the whole physique. Contrary to general ideas, sloppy, quickly-swallowed foods are not good for sufferers from indigestion. Instead they should take a little hard, long-masticated fed. The old custom of eating nuts with dessert had distinct advantages in this connection. They needed much chewing, and so induced an abundant flow of saliva just when this was most needed to prevents ill-effects from a heavy meal. Nut-eating is little practised now except by vegetarians, who have in this respect at last hit upon a truly hygienic item of diet.

In ruby colored velvet, elaborate with metal trimming, comes a French model. There is almost as much metal decoration to this gown as the groundwork velvet fabric.

The overskirt has a deep band of metal insertion about the hips and it also edges the overskirt. This band has a foot deep of metal fringe. The neck is cut square and is untrimmed, while the insertion of metal crosses the bust and is used again at the waist line.

Esquimaux Beliefs

Esquimaux believe that earth and air are filled with spirits. The one drags men into the earth by the feet, from which they never emerge; the other strikes men dead, leaving no mark. They often stop and listen and say that Tuna of the wind is passing by, imagining that the air is full of voices.

No, Alonzo, it isn't difficult for a woman to keep a secret going.

MAKING GOOD USE OF VISITS
A Well Known Lady Takes a Note Book With Her and Dots Down Interesting Items.

When paying a visit in a part of the country where there are many old inhabitants, of a class well worth cultivating, the guest went calling one day with her hostess, and she was told beforehand that she would have a great treat. Just before the start the hostess exclaimed: "My note book!" and the maid went hurridly to her boudoir, to return with a somewhat bulky leather-covered volume which looked to be well used and earmaked. Once in the motor, the hostess vouchsafed the information that her notebook always went on these calls, for from them she gleaned much valuable information on many interesting subjects. In lore of this kind she is so much interested that her old friends wax very eloquent in their reminiscences, and have even allowed her to photograph their beloved souvenirs. After each call the chauffeur turns into some shady lane where a stop can be made, and incidents and facts and also old recipes for drinks like nectar and food even better than manna all go into the notebook before a word of them escapes.

Several of the old homes in the neighborhood have seen generations of the same name raised within their spacious walls, which in several instances are of brick brought from Holland, along with the carved wood mantels and wainscotting. Wonderful collections of furniture are here which the writers of furniture books have never seen. The world will hear all and there will be many other things about them when the notebook appears in it which will be of interest the country over.

Why a Chinese Republic?

The statement that the revolution is likely to result in the formation of a Chinese Republic has caused a good deal of surprise in the Western world. When one thinks of it, however, this seems the most natural solution of the problem that will be presented by a successful revolution. The Manchu, a foreign dynasty, which has held power in China for some 300 years, is, of course, impossible since, as a matter of fact, the present revolution is for the purpose of driving that dynasty from power. On the other hand, the old native dynasty has been out of business for so long that it would probably be impossible to find any legitimate claimant of the throne in that quarter. The natural aversion to Japanese tutelage shuts that country out of consideration as the source of possible supply for a king, and of course a European prince would be altogether out of the question.

Work is better for most people than most people are for work.

SILKEN SNOODS OF LONG AGO GIVE A DEMURE LOOK.

Silken snoods are revived from the early Victorian days to deck the heads of winter maids. Ribbons, velvets and flowers are used to form these circlets. All that is needed is nimble fingers to make a coquetish head dress, and then it must be placed demurely upon the head.

Chiffon and cloth of gold and silver are concocted together into becoming theater caps. And theater caps are worn many places besides the playhouse. Girls dance in them, dine in them and lunch in them, dine in them and lunch in them. Each cap that is made must have a soft fall of lace to edge it, and into this is tucked away delicate tiny flowers of varying shades.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS
Pineapple Trifle.

Soak an ounce of gelatine in a cupful of cold water; put into a bowl with two cupfuls of white sugar, one peeled and chopped pineapple, a grated nutmeg, and the juice and rind of a lemon. Mix and let stand an hour, pour on it three cupfuls of boiling water; strain and squeeze hard. When the mixture jellies, whip the whites of four eggs and drop in a spoonful at a time; beat well and let all harden. Cover the top with meringue in which is mixed grated pineapple.

Scrambled Eggs with Cheese.

Take five eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Beat eggs slightly, using fork. Add salt, pepper and milk. Heat frying pan, put butter, and when melted turn in mixture. Cook until a creamy mixture, scrape up from sides and mix. Make a sauce by blending in a double boiler two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and the same quantity of flour; add a cupful of sweet milk, and when smooth stir into the sauce a half cupful of grated cheese. If the sauce is too thick, add a little more milk and stir until smooth. Pour this over toast and, then the scrambled eggs.

Western Ontario Men Urge Welland Canal Scheme.

Association Called the Canadian Great Waterways Union Is Formed at Berlin With Eighty Representatives of Towns In Western Part of the Province—Protest Against Georgian Bay Canal.

Berlin, Jan. 12—An important movement in the history of Canada was launched here yesterday afternoon, in Concordia Hall, when 80 earnest men, representatives of the Ontario towns, assembled to organize the Canadian Great Waterways Union, with the aim that the scheme of men of vision may be realized.

The project launched yesterday afternoon, if hopes are realized, will connect the ocean with the great lakes by a ship canal and the great ocean liners in a few short years will toot their whistles at Toronto and Port Arthur and Montreal.

The meeting was opened at 2.30 o'clock by Mayor Schmalz, who called on the meeting to appoint a chairman. Mayor Thorpe of Guelph, who was voted to the chair, said he was in strong sympathy with the plan to improve the waterways. He and four aldermen, together with President J. W. Lyon of the Board of Trade, and Alex. Stewart, president of the Guelph Junction Railway, were present to lend aid in the movement, and it was time to be up and doing. It was a national question and the grain of the Northwest should be brought down to the seaboard through its natural source, which could be made available.

The chairman then called on B. D. Detweiler, the father of the movement, who expressed his gratification at the great interest manifested in the meeting, and read a pamphlet, which has been pretty widely circulated throughout Canada, and which outlines the project and tells of the great advantages to be obtained through its adoption.

The necessity for immediate action, Mr. Detweiler held to be urgent and he strongly advocated the institution of a movement to secure the expression of public opinion, and the organization of an influential deputation to wait upon the Ottawa authorities and relieve them from the pressure "manufactured by contractors and others in favor of the impracticable Georgian Bay route."

At the conclusion of Mr. Detweiler's address a resolution was unanimously carried by standing vote. It declared among other things: That is is of the utmost importance that the Dominion Government proceed to develop, with the least possible delay, an ocean ship waterway by means of this natural route to the head of the lakes at Port Arthur and Fort William.

"Further that this meeting protests against the apparent attempt to stampede the people in favor of the so-called Georgian Bay Canal, which, in the opinion of this meeting and in the opinion of eminent engineers and experts, is not practical, is, in fact, a waste of money, and a waste of time as well as involving a tremendous expenditure for totally inadequate results.

"That something should be done of a practical nature, is emphasized by the fact that the Erie Barge Canal from Buffalo to New York is fast approaching completion and will be ready for actual business within three years from date, increasing the size of barges from 250 tons to 3,000 tons and lessening the cost of transportation on grain by from 2 to 3 cents a bushel or sufficient to capture the entire business and put out of commission the inland marine of the Dominion of Canada.

"That transportation of grain, merchandise, etc., from the great west would be reduced in cost by from one-half to two-thirds, increasing the value of every acre of land in the Canadian northwest."

President J. W. Lyon of Guelph, in speaking to the motion, said the time of action was now, and we should prepare for the future by making a waterway to the seaboard.

Mayor Graham of London seconded the resolution.

Subsequently, on motion of Alex. Stewart, president of the Guelph Board of Trade, seconded by Ald. C. H. Mills, Berlin, the meeting resolved itself into the Canadian Great Waterways Union of Canada, with the mayors and presidents of the Boards of Trade of the towns and cities of Canada constituted a general committee, and an executive committee of nine members, appointed with power to add to their number. The following gentlemen were named the committee: D. B. Detweiler, Geo. Lang, Berlin; J. W. Lyon, Alex. Stewart, Guelph; Geo. Pattison, M.P.P., Preston; Mayor Graham, London; Mayor Scott and Mr. Dobie, Galt, and Alois Bauer, Waterloo.

The committee met later and appointed Mr. Detweiler chairman, and J. W. Lyon, Guelph, secretary.

Speeches strongly favoring the scheme were made by Geo. Pattison, M.P.P., W. G. Weichel, M.P., Geo. Lang, Berlin; Ald. Burgoyne, St. Catharines, and Mayor Scott of Galt.

C.N.R. Sells Lands.

Toronto, Jan. 12.—One of the largest land deals in the history of Canada, affecting Montreal, Winnipeg, Port Mann (the new Pacific terminus of the C.N.R.) and about seventy divisional points of the C.N.R. in the west, was concluded yesterday, when John F. Hansen, representing a coterie of English capitalists, purchased on a cash basis from Col. A. D. Davidson, representing the Canadian Northern land to the value of $5,500,000.

The C.N.R. a short time ago concluded arrangements whereby they assumed control of a large tract of land in Montreal in the vicinity of Dominion Park, where they will lay out railway yards, erect shops, grain elevators, and build their own docks. It is understood that this deal has been pending for some time, but owing to the incompletion of the Montreal deal nothing could be done.

Detective Burns Vindicated.

Indianapolis, Jan. 12.—Complimented by the federal court for having "rendered a great service to his country," William J. Burns, the detective, yesterday was released from the charge of having kidnapped John J. McNamara, the convicted dynamiter. All the charges in the indictment against Burns for having captured the labor leader in Indianapolis last April and taking him to California for trial were held to be null and void.

"If I or this court had had anything to do with the arrest of Mr. Burns in this instance, I would certainly now tender him an apology," said Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, in dismissing the indictments brought by the country grand jury under which the detective had been held in $10,000 bail.

Settlement In Sight.

Manchester, Jan. 12.—The outlook is brighter to-day for a settlement of the trouble between the mill owners and the operatives. The Cotton Manufacturers Associations of Lancashire issued a manifesto of a peaceful character, in which they deny any desire to humiliate the operatives or the labor leaders and express an earnest wish for a peaceful and honorable settlement. They declare that the employers' only desire is not to be involved in a quarrel between unionists and non-unionists.

CHURCH BURNED DOWN

St. John's of Ottawa and Other Buildings Suffer.

Historic Edifice In Which Several Governors-General Have Worshipped Is Damaged to the Extent of $40,000—Halifax Herald Office Is In Ruins as Result of a Disastrous Blaze.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—Shortly after one o'clock yesterday morning fire was discovered in St. John's Church and damage to the extent of $40,000 was done. Simultaneously an alarm was sounded for a serious fire in the lower part of the city. The latter spread rapidly and it is not known as yet how serious it will be. It is at the corner of Clarence and Dalhousie streets.

The fire at St. John's Church started in a rubbish pile behind the building. The church and property were recently sold to the Dominion Government. It was one of Ottawa's most historical edifices, the Earl of Dufferin, Lord Lansdowne, Lord Aberdeen and other Governors-General having worshipped there. No other buildings were burned, although Le Temps newspaper building and the A. E. Rae building had narrow escapes. The fire in Lower Town is not as bad as was at first feared. Several small shops and dwellings were gutted, but no lives were lost.

Three firemen were hurt at St. John's Church, Lieut. McConnell, Buck Sarazin, the lacrosse player, and Schooner, the man who performed heroic work at another fire Wednesday. Part of the cupola fell and almost buried them beneath the ruins. Several were also overcome by smoke. While the St. John's fire was in progress it was impossible to get hose and apparatus down at the other blaze and the fire raged fiercely. It looked for a time as if several blocks would go.

Halifax Herald Burned Out.

Halifax, Jan. 12.—The Halifax Herald's five storey building, its presses and most of the other contents, together with several adjoining buildings, lies in ruins, fire having devoured it shortly after midnight. The blaze did not originate in The Herald building, but in W. S. Munny's dry goods store. Little could be done to abate its progress, and within a few minutes The Herald building, which almost adjoined Munny's store, and others were completely enveloped in flames and at 3 o'clock this morning lay in a mass of ruins.

An effort was made to save the files and other valuable papers from The Herald building, with the result that little was lost.

William Dennis, managing director of The Herald is in Ottawa.

Among the tenants burned out in The Herald fire are the offices of the Canada Life Insurance Co., and the United States consulate.

The loss and cause of the fire are unknown.

Oppose Arbitration Treaties.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The Lodge amendment to the resolution for ratification of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France has stirred unexpected opposition from Democratic Senators. It is favored, however, by three-fourths of the Republican members who accept it as a happy compromise of all differences. The amendment presented at the foreign relations meeting Wednesday, was introduced by Mr. Lodge in executive session of the Senate yesterday.

These objecting Democrats yesterday took the position that the Lodge amendment conflicted with the treaties themselves. Consequently, these Senators object to it as a practical nullification of the treaties' vital parts.

Allowed Wife to Starve.

Windsor, Jan. 12.—George Knight, a well-to-do farmer of the Township of Gosfield South, Essex County, was placed under arrest yesterday by High Constable Campeau on a charge of murder, by neglecting to provide for his wife. According to information received by the authorities, Knight failed to provide food and clothing, although he is reputed to have $1,200 in the bank and a clear title to fifty acres of land. Knight is now lodged in jail here and will be arraigned to-day.

Mrs. Knight died on Dec. 22.

Seine Still Rising.

Paris, Jan. 12.—The River Seine is still rising, although it is 13 feet below the mark of the great flood in 1910. The situation is considered very grave, the hyprographic authorities announcing that as a result of the overflow of the tributaries of the Seine, on account of continuous heavy rains for a week past, the river will continue to rise until the end of the week. This will put all the wharves under water.

Brantford's Rabies Scare.

Brantford, Jan. 12.—An outbreak of rabies is threatened in Brantford and surrounding district. Numbers of cattle and sheep have been destroyed just outside the city and the authorities say that three mad dogs are at large, and serious damage may result. Strictest precautions are being taken in this city to prevent the spread of the disease.

Shuster Leaves for Europe.

Teheran, Jan. 12.—W. Morgan Shuster, the American, who recently was removed from office as treasurer-general of Persia, left here yesterday for Europe. He was accompanied by his family and Edward Bell, secretary of the American legation at Teheran, and will proceed by way of Battum, on the Black Sea and Constantinople.

Winnipeg's Anti-Vice Campaign.

Winnipeg, Jan. 12.—The local social and reform council will shortly approach the new police commission with the demand that the law of Canada for the suppression of vice be put in force in Winnipeg, and that the segregated area be wiped out.

THE MARKETS.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Heavy selling, presumably to release profits, more than wiped out a modest advance here today in wheat. The fact that cash demand was disappointing and flour business light, formed a contributing cause. The close was easy at a shade to 1-8c to 1-4c under last night. Corn showed a net gain of 3-8c to 1-2c, oats finished 1-8c off to 1-2c up, and provisions at an advance of 7 1-2c to 32 1-2c.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—There was an increased demand from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat and prices bid showed a further advance of 3d to 4½d per quarter with a fair amount of business doing for May-June shipment. The tone of the local market for oats is stronger and higher prices have been realized in some cases. Malting barley is strong and prices have advanced 1c to 2c per bushel. ## TO PROBE BANK CASE.

Farmers Victims Will Get Commission to Make an Inquiry.

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—It was announced by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, last night, that the Government had decided to grant the requisition of the Farmers' Bank victims for a thorough investigation of the affairs of the bank. A royal commission is to issue, clothed with ample powers for probing the whole affair from beginning to end. The decision of the Government was reported without any further representations from the bank sufferers, although a number of gentlemen concerned in the appeal recently made were in Ottawa yesterday.

The commission has not yet been named, but will consist of one man, probably assisted by counsel. The commision, it is understood, will issue at once.

Much Treasure Moved.

New York, Jan. 12.—Between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 in cash and securities was removed intact late yesterday from the vaults of two of the financial institutions whose quarters were destroyed in the great fire that gutted the Equitable Life Assurance Society building on Tuesday. The vaults of the Equitable Trust Co. alone yielded $300,600,000, mostly securities held under corporate and individual trusteeship. These were transferred under an escort of police to the company's temporary offices, further from Broadway.

There remains yet to be opened the great vault of the Equitable Assurance Society itself, with its treasure of $300,000,000.

Somewhere in an icy shroud the body of Battalion Chief Walsh still lies among the ruins.

B. C. May Build Line.

Vancouver, Jan. 12.—A railway running north and south through British Columbia, intended primarily to open the great Peace River prairies, is the chief question for legislative action for the session of the British Columbia Parliament, which opened at Victoria yesterday.

At this session the plan is to arrange for a line nearly 1,000 miles in length to connect Vancouver with the rich agricultural lands of northern British Columbia. But an advance may be made on any previous Western Canada legislation in that the new line may be built and operated by the Government.

The Canadian Pacific has already filed plans for terminals at North Vancouver, which would be the southern end of a Peace River line.

Miners Favor Strike.

London, Jan. 12.—The voting of the coal miners in all the districts throughout the United Kingdom shows an enormous majority in favor of a strike, and there is every indication that the needful two-thirds majority will be obtained. Previous experience in similar ballots, however, has shown a considerable waning of enthusiasm after the first day's voting. Hence it would be rash to predict that a strike will be voted, and strong influences are being exerted on both sides to avoid a conflict.

The ballot is to decide whether notice shall be given of a national strike, to begin on March 1. The men demand a fixed minimum wage. The leaders of the Miners' Federation are opposed to the movement.

Gave $6,000 For Calf.

ST. JAMES' IS SOLD TO MARSHALL FIELD

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—It was learned this morning that the St. James' Methodist Church, the largest Methodist church in Canada, had been sold to Marshall Field and Company, of Chicago, who will, it is said, erect a ten-storey departmental store and open a big Canadian branch there.

THESE ARE PLAN FACTS

Now, when nearly everybody is coughing, it is well to know the plain truth about coughs and colds.

Since coughs are caused by irritation of the sensitive lining of the bronchial tubes, the only way to cure a cough is to stop that inflammation.

The only way to do that is through the blood—by making it richer so that it will nourish and soothe the inflamed, tender tissues.

Instead of cough syrups we always recommend that sterling blood and strength renewer, Vinol. It is a delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil and actually cures coughs, colds and bronchitis by building up the whole system.

Mrs. Bessie Mathes, Lynchburg, S. C., says, "I want you to know what Vinol has done for me. I have had chronic bronchitis for the past year, coughing, and losing sleep a great deal. Two bottles of Vinol fixed me up all right, my cough is gone and I am better in every way."

We give back your money if Vinol does not do all that we claim.—Red Cross Drug Store, J. S. McKeown, Belleville.

SEVEN LADIES TOOK THE VOWS

Impressive Ceremony at the House of Providence, Kingston

KINGSTON, Jan. 10.—The happiest event in the lives of seven young ladies was recordded this morning in the House of Providence, when they assumed the triple vows of poverty, charity and obedience. They were Miss M. Brady, (Sr. M. Clotilda) Latimer; Miss E. Marshald, (Sr. M. Matilda) Gananoque; Miss M. Brennan (Sr. M. Scholastica) Ireland; Miss M. E. Maloney (Sr. M. Maurice) Marmora; Miss M. McCormack, (Sr. M. Anastasia) Sheffield; Miss C. Johnston, (Sr. M. Dominica) Holyoke, Mass.

Miss Brady is a graduate of St. Mary's Brooklyn. She has three aunts and four first cousins Sisters of Charity.

They spent two years in the study and practice of the religious life, and one full week of eight days in silent retreat to know more accurately the obligations which they were about to contract and freely approached the altar and there pledged their fidelity to God and the institute, by assuming the vows for a limited term.

To this galaxy of religions was added a neophyte, known as Sr. Dunnigan, Mayo, Que., who received the Holy habit and veil.

The ceremony was performed by His Grace, Archbishop Spratt, assisted by Revs. C. J. Mea, Dean of Regiopolis; A. J. Hanley, rector, and J. J. McDonald, chaplain. In the sanctuary were Revs. G. Brophy, C. J. Duffus, J. P. Kehoe, Gananoque; W. Cavanagh, Corkery, Ont.; W. A. McDonagh, Merrickville, Ont.; M. F. Crawley, Chaplain of St. Mary of the Lake, Kingston.

Many friends of the newly professed came to witness the ceremony and to more generously make the sacrifice of giving to God and religion their dear daughters whom they cherished with all the fondness of loving parents.

The altar was beautifully ornamented with a profusion of flowers and lights, and the music and singing formed a delightful combination.

At the conclusion the chaplain announced that by an indult of the Holy Father an indulgence of one hundred days was granted to all who had assisted at the sacred function.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Arkansas Planter Is Being Held Pending Investigation.

BLITHEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 10.—C. P. Carpenter, a wealthy planter and former banker of this city, is under arrest here and will be detained pending the conclusion of a coroner's inquiry into the death of his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Davis, whose throats were chopped with an axe and their heads almost severed at the Carpenter home early yesterday. Two farmers also are under arrest.

Carpenter asserts that the crime was committed by "squatters," that when he was awakened his wife had been killed and her assailant was standing over him with an axe poised to strike, and that he grappled with the man, but the intruder escaped with a companion who had killed Mrs. Davis. Carpenter was slightly injured.

According to Carpenter, his wife was threatened several times recently by land "squatters." He has had trouble over the ownership of the land.

"DEAD" GIRL'S RETURN.

Family's Flight From an Apparition of Their Dead Daughter.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—At a village in the Vosges a girl has gone mad through witnessing the horror produced on her family by her appearance while they were preparing for burial a body they imagined to be that of the girl herself.

Three days ago the mayor of the village of Sauley notified the authorities of the finding of a body in the river Meurthe. Shortly after a farmer came from the adjoining village of Anold and formally identified the body as that of his sister who had disappeared a few days previously. The farmer drove home with the body in his cart and the family made preparations for its burial.

Just as the corpse was being put into the coffin the "dead" girl walked in. Chilled with horror, the mourners turned their eyes from the face in the coffin to the living face in the doorway. The resemblance was so remarkable that the simple villagers fled in terror from the supposed apparition at the door.

When the mistake was finally recognized the living girl had become insane through horror at the family's evasion of her.

DREAM REVEALS THE LOCATION OF BODY.

Remains of Fourteen-Year-Old Boy, Drowned at Wallaceburg, Found.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., Jan. 11.—Following the statement of a dream of Mrs. Scott, of this town, that the body of Harold Comer, fourteen years of age, son of Samuel Comer, and who broke through the ice on the Sydenham river here, to his death, the citizens located the remains of the lad, as predicted between Dunlop's and the Gilt Edged bakery plants. The discovery was made directly opposite to the place where the Port Huron diver had made a diligent search for the body.

The lifeless form was encased in a solid mass of ice and was lying extended at full length.

The ice was cut away from the body which was removed to the home of the grief-stricken parents.

FATAL FIRE

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—By the explosion of a lamp just before noon to-day, two children, named Dillon, living at 31 Bird Avenue, Earlscourt, were burned to death in a fire which completely destroyed the home. Three other children escaped. The father, a carpenter, is said to have been at work, and the mother at church. The dead are Irene Dillon, 2 years 7 months, and Frances Dillon, infant, seven months.

MARRIED AT EIGHTY.

Yorkshire Vicar and Welsh Lady Unite in Matrimony.

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 10.—The marriage of the Rev. W. Marshall, vicar of Idle, Bradford, who is eighty years of age, has been officially announced to the parishioners. It was stated that Mr. Marshall, who had been away from the parish since Thursday of last week, had married at St. Andrew's Church, Well street, London Miss Jane Margaret Moore, younger daughter of John Moore, of Greylands, Penarth, Glamorgan.

Mr. Marshall, whose first wife died about a year ago, is remarkably hale and hearty for his years.

MORE STEAMERS FOR C. N. R.

Sir Wm. Mackenzie Urged to Do This by English Representatives.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—During the recent visit here of Sir William Mackenzie and Vice-President Hanna, of the Canadian Northern Railway, representations were made to them of the necessity of providing additional steamship facilities for emigration, especially from the West of England.

It is understood that this increasing demand may lead the Canadian Northern to charter additional steamers or make booking arrangements with some leading trans-Atlantic line for the expansion of the Canadian Northern's trade with the St. Lawrence, pending a permanent enlargement of the Canadian Northern fleet.

LADIES' AUXILIARY HAD FINE MEETING

An Excellent Programme was Given in the Y. M. C. A. Parlor Yesterday

About forty-five ladies assembled in the Y.M.C.A. parlor yesterday afternoon. Mrs. O'Flynn gave an inspiring bible reading. She assured us that the Lord would surely be with us in the larger work in the new building, and commended to us individually the careful daily reading of God's word.

Mrs. Mark Sprague then conducted a very helpful prayer service. She gave a few thoughts on each of the following subjects: Y.M.C.A. Work with the immigrants. Prayer by Mrs. (Rev.) Wallace. Salvation of our young men. Prayer by Mrs. Ray. Our country. Prayer by Miss Hitchon. Watch for the opportunities of Service. Prayer by Mrs. Lambly.

The President, Mrs. Faulkner, then called on Russell Woodley to give a report of the Boys' Conference held at Orillia, Dec. 24-31. His report was excellent, and the ladies were delighted to hear one so young, in such a manly way, give utterance to truths which stand for the upbuilding of character. These are a few extracts from his report: 'There were 221 delegates—nine from Belleville.' 'Some men have a great driving power, but if God is not their guide they will fail.' 'It takes sand in a boy to stand out before his fellowmen and tell of Christ. Mr. Crosby called it rich, red blood, and said it was needed mostly in High School and College students. At this conference 30 took their first step for Christ.' Some of Orillia's young men had been addicted to cigaertte smoking, and as a proof that they had decided to give up the evil habit, four cigarette packages were left on the platform.

They were not slow in pronouncing him one of Belleville's leading men in the course of time. Mrs. Sprague and Miss Ray then sang a beautiful duet.

The Rooms Committee then reported on the furniture, dishes and bedding purchased. Mrs. Asselstine then called for volunteers to make comforters, the material being provided. Thirty are needed. Half of these are already promised.

The meeting closed with "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow" After this a social time was spent and refreshments were served by Miss Stafford and her committee. All seemed to feel that it was one of the best meetings they ever attended.—Com.

DEADLY MENINGITIS.

Fifty-Five Deaths Occurred in Twenty-five Days at Waco, Texas.

WACO, Tex., Jan. 10.—Alarmed at the number of fatalities from spinal meningitis in this city, 55 deaths in 25 days, at a meeting of business men, it was decided to call upon Dr. A. Sophian, assistant to Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institue, New York, to investigate conditions here.

Three deaths occurred in one night. In one instance, a young farmer, 22 years old, retired perfectly well. Shortly after midnight his wife awakened to find him in an unconscious condition. He died six hours later.

LITERARY NOTES

The splendid progress made in the commercial car branch of the automobile industry has created special interest in the COMMERCIAL CAR JOURNAL, the monthly magazine published in Philadelphia devoted exclusively to commercial cars.

Among the interesting features which regularly appear in the COMMERCIAL CAR JOURNAL are departments of Instructive Experiences; New Commercial Cars; In the World of the Electric; From Across the Water; Criticisms and Suggestions; Truck Accessories and Appliances; and instructive and practical editorials as well as much miscellaneous matter of timely interest. In the various departments is found information for transportation managers; complete details of new trucks (gasoline and electric) showing the classes of work to which each is best adapted; suggestions for handing commercial cars efficiently and economically and other valuable information.

The magazine shows great care in its preparation and is printed upon a high grade of paper which brings out clearly the important details of the numerous illustrations.

January CANADA MONTHLY is out with another article in its crusade against "money-mad farming"—that is, the growing of wheat exclusively, to the impoverishment of the soil and the disintegration of the mass of root fibres that hold the earth together. Edwin Balmer, author of "Via Wireless," has a story called "The Yielding of Eleanor," in his best manner; W. D. Eaton tells the story of "A Mongrel Dog of Italy"—a thief, a wastrel and a drunkard, but nevertheless a faithful friend; Hubert McBean Johnston, in "Canada and the Census," gives some facts and figures on the recently published population statement; Arthur James Smith tells in "Comrades," a story of gold and blood; and John Patrick Mackenzie takes 'Spinal Maginnis' through further adventures at Galt school. The serial by H. M. Egbert, "With Aviator No. 6" is continued, and there are many other items of interest in the magazine.

One thing rarer than a day in June is a woman who has nothing to say.

A CARLIER MODEL

A fur scarf that is wrapped around the body and then hangs gracefully over the arms is one of the latest freaks of French femininedom. This confection is as charming as it is unusual. The model from the French modiste Carlier was of sealskin trimmed with white fox. The color and fabric scheme were carried out in the hat and muff.

The scarf was about three-quarters of a yard wide and long enough to enfold the body twice. In this way it forms a complete wrap. It has a band of white fox on one side and is lined with salmon pink satin. The muff is perfectly flat and has the fox on either end, in this way differing from the scarf.

The tall crown of the hat of this three-piece fur set, is of sealskin. The narrow brim where it turns up is touched with the white fox and on top of the high crown saucily toss a bunch of Prince of Wales feathers This is of salmon pink. This set could easily be copied in black velvet and swansdown. This combination would be pretty and inexpensive.

PROTEST

Hilliard Lang protests Mike Gibbons' assumption of the Canadian welterweight title, claiming that he had the better of their meeting in Winnipeg and offering to prove his superiority before any club for a side bet of $1,000.

Shabby Treatment

Harvard has broken off athletic relations with Carlisle for the Indians' shabby treatment of Vanderbilt University of Nashville, Tenn. Harvard asked Vanderbilt for a game on November 11, but the southern university replied it had a game for that date. Then Harvard offered the game to Carlisle, which accepted it. Vanderbilt protested to Harvard that Carlisle had agreed to play her on that date. Harvard asked the Indians to play Vanderbilt, but they refused and held Harvard to the game. Carlisle has received a cheque for $11,000 for her share of the Harvard game.

It will be some time before Bruce Ridpath will be able to play hockey. It is reported that "Roddy" is still confined to his home and that he still finds himself too weak to take many steps. 20

A BOXING MARVEL

Mike Gibbons Shows Gotham Things That Recall Dempsey, Corbett, Fits and Young Griffo.

That bright light on our sky is the reflection of the radiance shed by Mike Gibbons, S. F., of St. Paul.

S. F. means some fighter, Algernon.

Gibbons did a Lochinvar from St. Paul and beat up Willie Lewis so thoroughly that Willie couldn't remember whether he [illegible] the Bois de Bouillon or Broadway.

Be it known that Mike Gibbons, who "came out of the west," is the greatest welterweight fighter New York ever saw. He is the marvel of the game for the time being, and experts say all he has to do is to hold out his hand for the title to tumble into it.

When the critics began to talk Gibbons, they drew deeply on their memories. Summed up, he is a combination of everything rare in boxing

One said he was a combination of Jem Driscoll, Abe Attell and Packey McFarland.

MIKE GIBBONS

Another recalled Jack Dempsey, Jim Corbett and the marvelous Young Griffo, and another added to this that he looked like old Bob Fitz in action.

Gibbons has been boxing three years, and is 23. He is tall and slender. Nothing indicates abnormal strength. His legs and waist are small.

Gibbons used to box in the St. Paul Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, and developed such cleverness that he was appointed instructor. Soon afterward he took up the professional game.

OTTAWA AFTER EDDIE KING

While the coast clubs are taking players from the east, the eastern clubs are going to try their hands picking a few from the west. Eddie King, touted as another Fred Taylor, who hangs out at Calgary, has been recommended to the Ottawa club, and the locals will get after him at once. He played with the Stettler team which beat Edmonton for the Fit-Reform cup last winter. King, it is said, was the whole Stettler team in that series. He plays right wing, and is a big fellow weighing somewhere around 180. His Calgary friends wanted him to go to the Wanderers but Ottawa was tipped off first.

BEST LIGHTWEIGHT IN THE SOUTH

Near Champion as Result of Friends' "Joshing".

Many persons, including Ray Bronson, Grover Hayes and Abe Attell, boxers, claim credit for bringing out Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who looms up as a dangerous opponent to Champion Wolgast. Mandot says Johnny Lynch, of Boston, is responsible for him.

Two and a half years ago, Mandot, pushing a delivery wagon about New Orleans for his father's bakery, was induced to enter an amateur tournament. He did not know who his first opponent would be until the night of the fight. Imagine his surprise to find himself matched against a boy larger than himself, who had been the neighborhood bully for years. Mandot's heart almost failed, and although he knocked out his opponent, he took a hard lacing.

Joe had enough then and there, but friends "kidded" him into another match.

JOE MANDOT

The little southerner didn't know anything about the game, but among the spectators was Johnny Lynch, training for a fight with Freddy Andrews, of Milwaukee. Lynch heard Mandot's friends making fun of him and asked the boy to train with him.

Joe learned rapidly and Lynch secured a preliminary engagement for him and he won handily.

After this Mandot learned from every top-notcher who landed in New Orleans. He made friends for him among the boxers and they helped him along.

Mandot's rise has been little short of phenomenal. Since he joined with Blackey Baggio, a Memphis Sportsman, he has defeated all comers.

Had it not been for the "kidding" of his friends, Mandot would not be a near champion. His determination to silence the "joshing" and his natural ability made him a star, although he never fails to credit Lynch as the man who really gave him the first encouragement.

Latin Prescriptions

The following ludicrously illustrates the necessity of a reform in medical nomenclature.

"REAL BOSS OR NONE," SAYS WOLVERTON.

Famous old player engaged to manage the New York American league club. Wolverton was a successful manager on the coast.

HARRY WOLVERTON

When offered the leadership of the Highlanders, by Owner Farrell, refused to act as Hal Chase's successor until assured he would have absolute authority and be free from interference. Wolverton knows the trials that beset George Stallings, who was ousted as manager with the club in second place by Farrell and Ban Johnson.

TOM LONGBOAT

A writer tells a story explaining Tom Longboat's ambition to figure as a boxer: "When Battling Nelson was training in Toronto recently the Indian sauntered in and volunteered the information that he used to box. "Put on the gloves," said the Battler, and, Tom consenting, the fun started. It was in the second round when the Battler dropped his guard that Longboat got his chance and he at once punched the Battler on the jaw and down went Nelson "for the count," and more than that, for it was hard to revive him — while the Indian was looking. The whole gang were laughing when Longboat hurried out to find Tom Flanagan to tell him to book him for fights at his weight."

"Steve," the lad who spots pins on Saratoga alley number one, had an extremely busy session the other day. He toiled throughout the day and well into the evening. To him the work was easy — simply daily routine — but had he been aware at the close of his duties that he had handled the equivalent of over 35 tons of wood he doubtless would have agreed that a day in a bowling pit is far from a sinecure.

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

IF TROUBLED WITH HEAD-FULNESS, RINGING NOISES, SPECKS BEFORE THE EYES, THE STOMACH IS AT FAULT.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable hat for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. ### Hardly Encouraging.

He was fresh up from the country, and if there was a ruling passion in his life it was politeness — if such a rare accomplishment can be called a passion.

All the days of his two-and-twenty years had been spent in imbibing the lesson that politeness is irresistible, that as a business asset its value is incalculable. He'd had politeness for breakfast, politeness for dinner, for tea, and for supper. Spring, summer, autumn, and winter it had been the same.

And now he was in London, looking for a job.

But, alas! he could find no job. Tired and despondent he tramped along.

Then suddenly he smiled. Surely if they only knew how polite he was he would be given a job at once.

The idea was immediately acted upon.

An affluent-looking old gentleman drew near. Up went a hand, and off into the gutter flew the old gent's hat.

Then began an expoition of the art of politeness. Picking up the hat he had so unceremoniously knocked off, the "polite" one carefully dusted and replaced it, and in a thousand different ways sought to render himself agreeable not forgetting to throw out hints that he desired a job.

And he succeeded. He got a job. He is at it still. He is in gaol.

PETERBOROUGHS NEARLY LOST THEIR GREAT REPUTATION

Belleville's Intermediates Gave the Peterborough Cracks a Hard Contest—Not Until the Final Part Did the Visitors Have Any Material Advantage—The Play Throughout Was Fast and Skilful

For their scheduled game in the O. H. A. Intermediate series to be played here last night Peterborough sent down a team with a high reputation, but they almost lost that reputation to a team which had positively no reputation. The visitors, who came with all the pomp and circumstance of a special train which carried forty-three of their rooters, are a team composed of O. H. A. "amateurs," some of whom have played together for years, and are perfectly trained. They boasted of having beaten Lindsay recently by 13 to 1, and expressed their sure and certain belief that they would do as well, or even better, here. To oppose these alleged Goliaths of the hockey world Belleville had only a pick-up seven, composed of amateurs of the "simon-pure" kind, who had not been trained and who had never practiced together. And yet the local boys had the best of the play until lack of condition manifested its inevitable effect, and then the visitors won, but only by a very small majority, and after a strenuous hockey battle such as is seldom seen. Under the circumstances the vanquished were entitled to great praise.

The crowd was smaller than usual, owing to the extremely cold weather.

THE GAME.

It was exactly 9 o'clock when Chaucer Elliott, of Kingston, the referee, blew his whistle as a signal for play to commence. Symons, centre for Belleville and Parks, who played a like position for Peterborough, crossed sticks, the puck was placed between them, and the game was off to a good start. At the commencement neither team seemed to be playing hard, but after a few minutes they became warmed up and then it was a battle royal for some time. When about 28 minutes of actual play had elapsed the puck was taken into enemy's territory, and Symons for Belleville secured the rubber and shot it into Peterborough's net, scoring the first and only goal that was secured in the first half of the game.

SECOND PERIOD.

After the usual time allowance for rest, the teams were again called upon the ice, and at the start it was apparent the visitors were going to make a desperate effort to win the game. They made repeated rushes down the ice which the local players were unable to check, and in about five minutes the puck was landed into the home net, tieing the score, much to the delight of the supporters of the visiting team, who were present in goodly numbers. Play was immediately resumed, and in a few minutes the visitors again scored. At this stage of the game the supporters of the local team urged the boys on, but they were not in condition to stand the pace set by their opponents, who, as previously stated, were well trained and also, as they were not now so strongly checked, played combination as it should be played. It was now apparent that the Peterborough team would win, and the question was asked by not a few what would the score be. A third goal was soon scored by Peterborough, and shortly before the bell rang to denote that time was up, the visiting team scored their fourth goal, thus winning the game by a score of 4 to 1.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:—

| Belleville. | Position. | Peterboro. |
|---|---|---|
| Lafleur | Goal | Derocher |
| Wallace | Point | Bearss |
| Connolly | Cover Point | Bond |
| Gerow | Rover | Goroux |
| Symons | Centre | Parks |
| Dawkins | Right Wing | Coughlin |
| Ford | Left Wing | Kelly |

REMARKS.

It was certainly a well contested game in every respect, and the defeat administered to the Belleville aggregation was by no means a discredit to them. They played well, but were simply beaten owing to lack of condition. During the progress of the game the penalties, considering the strenuousness of the play, were comparatively few. In this respect Bellevilles possibly were the greater sufferers.

Mr. Chaucer Elliott, of Kingston, was the referee, and he is certainly at home upon the ice. No fault could possibly be found with his decisions, as he was thoroughly impartial in every respect.

Mr. P. Whalen was goal umpire for Peterborough and Mr. J. McCourt acted in a like capacity for Belleville.

The timekeepers were Mr. Ingram for Kingston, and Mr. Jas. Connolly for Belleville.

Mr. M. Patterson acted in the capacity of penalty timekeeper.

PLEASING CEREMONY IN A PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY HOME

An event of more than ordinary interest took place on Thursday, the 11th inst., at "Elm Dale," the beautiful residence of ex-Reeve John Nightingale, Huff's Island, Ameliasburg. The occasion of the happy and social gathering was the performance of the beautiful baptismal ceremony of the Anglican Church by Rev. Rural Dean Beamish, M.A., of St. Thomas church, Belleville, upon little Miss Olive Vantassel Nightingale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nightingale, and only grandchild of John Nightingale.

The parlors were beautifully decorated with lilies and begonias for the happy event, and an interesting part of the ceremony was the use of a beautiful silver bowl, filled with water for the occasion, presented in May, 1836, to the great great grandfather, John Nighingale, by the Preston Agricultural Society of England in a spirited contest for the best horse. This valuable trophy was brought to this country in 1836 by the father of Mr. John Nightingale, and in time became the property of its present owner. During the course of the ceremony Mr. Ignatius Nightingale, brother of the father, was made godfather, and Miss Beatrice Jones, professional nurse, of New York, and cousin of the father, was chosen godmother.

Another interesting feature in connection with the christening was the presenting to baby Nightingale of a half dozen silver spoons from Mrs. Clapp, grandmother, the same set of spoons having been given to Mrs. Clapp at her christening by her grand mother.

Among the outside relatives present to witness the cermony wre Mrs. Elias Wallbridge, aunt; Mr. Fred Wallbridge, cousin, of Vancouver, B.C.; Mr. Ignatius Nightingale, brother, of Vancouver, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. McTaggart, sister of the mother, of Vancouver, B.C., and Miss Beatrice Jones, cousin, professional nurse, of New York.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the company partook of refreshments of a high order. The Intelligencer extends congratulations to those directly interested and especially to our esteemed friend, the grandfather, Mr John Nightingale.

TO APPEAR IN THE SUPPLEMENTARIES

$50,000 for Belleville Harbor and $20,000 for Frankford Bridge will be Granted

The Intelligencer has had many inquiries as to why the Government grant for Belleville harbor had not appeared in the estimates which were laid before Parliament a few days ago. Information was sought from Mr. Porter, M.P., who replied that the item of $50,000 for Belleville harbor, as well as $20,000 for Frankford bridge will appear in the supplementary estimates. Mr. Porter has certainly been working hard and efficiently in the interest of his constituents.

MEAT VS. VEGETABLE DIET

Jesse H. and Warren H. Buffum, the ocean to ocean diet walkers, who left Boston on July 8 last, bound for Los Angeles after Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, physical director of Harvard University, had pronounced both fit, the former on a diet of meat and the latter on a diet of vegetables, arrived there last evening and declared that the vegetable man had won.

The experiment has been conducted in the interests of science. At the end of the walk it was discovered that Warren had gained eight pounds and that Jesse had gained three. The brothers are authority for the following statement:

"Generally speaking, we are both convinced that vegetables are far the healthier diet, not only for one leading a sedentary life, but for one doing hard work."

Neither of them slept under a roof since starting. On Monday, when they arrived at San Bernardino, a hasty decision led them to start on a side trip into the San Bernardino Mountains. On Tuesday morning they began to climb. Tuesday night they were lost. For more than sixty hours they went without food, wandering through canyons and over the steep hills, and only yesterday morning found their way back to San Bernardino.

This was final proof. Jesse, who has been living on the meat diet, was on the point of physical exhaustion after he had gone twenty-four hours without food, while Warren was still in comparatively good shape.

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

WATER SERVICES FROZEN.

The Water Works Department of the city was to-day kept busy answering calls to various parts of the city where services were frozen up owing to the continued severe cold weather.

MAYORALTY RECOUNT.

Before Judge Deroche this morning the recount of votes cast in the recent mayoralty election was commenced. At the hour of adjournment for luncheon the greater portion of the ballots cast had been counted. In Foster Ward Mr. Geo. I. Thomas had apparently gained two votes, while in Samson and Ketcheson Wards there were several ballots which appeared to be favorable to him. In No. 11 division of Coleman Ward, however, Mr. Thomas had been credited with two more ballots than had been cast for him. In the recount Mr. Carnew looked after Mr. Thomas' interests, and Mr. O'Flynn appeared on behalf of Mayor Vermilyea.

OLD FRIEND'S FAREWELL.

Yesterday afternoon the Veterans' Association received the following telegram from Colonel Edward Harrison, of Ottawa: "Funeral card re our dear old comrade Sergeant-Major William Blaind received. Had previously ordered a floral memorial design, but cancelled it upon learning of funeral being to-day. Would have gone to Belleville, but notice of funeral was not received until 2 p.m. this afternoon."

STILL IN PROGRESS.

The case of Robert Logan, the young man who is accused of indecently assaulting a little girl, was further investigated yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Masson. The trial was continued until 6.30, when an adjournment was made until Tuesday next. In the meantime the accused is out on bail. Mr. Anderson represented the Crown and Mr. Carnew appeared for the accused.

LAST SAD RITES.

The remains of Sergt.-Major Blaind, who on Wednesday afternoon answered the final roll call, were yesterday afternoon consigned to their resting place. Despite the severe cold weather, there were many present at the obsequies, including a number of the members of the Veterans' Association of which deceased a member. At the family residence an impressive service was held conducted by Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrew's church, assisted by Rev. A. M. Hubly, of the Reformed Episcopal church, who is a veteran. Upon the casket were a number of floral tributes. At Belleville cemetery the interment took place. The bearers were all veterans, namely Messrs. Wm. McKeown, Jas. Warham, Wm. Black, Chas. Addison, Robert Baker and Robt. Wilson.

No Immediate Prospects of Milder Weather

To-day is the eighth day of the extremely cold spell which began on Saturday last with a temperature of 20 degrees below zero. This morning the lowest point—a lower reading of the thermometer than occurred last winter—was reached, namely 24 below zero, and there is no immediate prospect of relief. The officials at the Toronto Observatory yesterday could promise no immediate relief from the intense cold spell which now has its centre over Manitoba. There will be no moderation for several days in Ontario, and in the meanwhile excessive low temperatures will likely prevail.

CURRENT COMMENT

Canadian banks have increased their capital in the last ten years by $43,824,200.

There were 53 Sundays last year—more than there will be for a hundred years or so again, but it is not on record that the average man gained any in religious fervor.—Buffalo News.

Two young men near Aylmer spent Christmas shooting squirrels. They killed ten and were fined $50 and costs. We have heard the saying:—"It is a fine day; let us go and kill something." But it was a strange notion to fix on Christmas Day.—Toronto Star.

Among the heaviest losers in the destructive fire in Halifax on the 12th inst., is the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, whose large and valuable law library was in the office of Ritchie and Robertson. The library was one of the best of its kind in Canada and contained books that cannot be replaced. It was valued at $10,000.

Hastings is the most progressive county. It was the first county to free its roads from toll, which was done by popular vote in 1860—half a century in advance of many other counties. Now it leads the way in the highly commendable enterprise of reforesting waste lands. 'We lead, others follow," is the motto upon which Hastings has acted, to the great advantage of its people.

The Ne Temere agitation is not confined to the Protestant portion of Canada. It has found its way into the Quebec Legislature which is now in session. On the 10th inst, Mr. Godfroi Langlois, Montreal, submitted several interpellations in the operation of the marriage laws in Quebec, Mr. Langlois wanted to know if the decrees of the Council of Trent had ever been promulgated in Quebec, and whether it was the intention of the Government to introduce a law legalizing the marriage of two Catholics by a Protestant clergyman. The answer of the Government will be looked for with interest.

Women live up to their religion, but men won't even live up to their politics.

In the United States the annual death rate from typhoid is 46 per hundred thousand inhabitants; in Canada it is 35.5. These two countries have the unenviable reputation of standing at the head of the world's mortality tables in the matter of typhoid. It is little wonder when sewage is poured into our rivers and Great Lakes.—Kingston Standard.

Packers' Books Missing.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Books and records showing the items and allowance used in figuring the test cost of fresh meats, which were inspected by a federal grand jury investigating charges of rebating against the packers in 1909, cannot be found by employes of the defendants, for use in the trial of the ten packers charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade, before United States District Judge Carpenter.

Three accountants employed by the packers testified yesterday that they had searched for the records in question and had been unable to find them. They said they believed the documents had been destroyed.

By HAROLD MacGRATH

Synopsis.

Gretchen, a goose girl, meets a mysterious mountaineer and Carmichael, American consul in Dreiberg, kingdom of Ehrenstein. Carmichael loves Princess Hildegarde.

Gretchen's lover is Leo, a vintner. The prince regent of Jugendheit sends Hildegarde an offer of marriage from King Frederick. The princess was abducted in infancy and later restored to her father, the grand duke.

"Bring him near me."

Gretchen gathered up two stools and placed them on either side of her grandmother and motioned to the vintner to sit down.

"Where are you from? You are not a Dreiberger," the old woman asked.

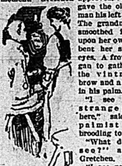
"From the north, grandmother."

"Your name."

"Leopold Dietrich, a vintner by trade."

"Give me your hand."

The vintner looked surprised for a moment. Gretchen approved. So he gave the old woman his left hand. The grandmother smoothed it out upon her own and bent her shrewd eyes. A frown began to gather on the vintner's brow and a sweat in his palm.



"I SEE RICHES."

"I see many strange things here," said the palmist in a brooding tone.

"What do you see?" asked Gretchen.

"I see very little of vineyards. I see riches. I see vast armies moving against each other; powder and fire; devastation. I do not see you, young man, among those who tramp with guns on their shoulders. You ride. There is gold on your arms. You will become great. But I do not understand."

"War!" he murmured.

Gretchen's heart sank.

"Shall I live?" asked the vintner.

"There is nothing here save death in old age, vintner." Her gnarled hand seized his in a vise. "Do you mean well by my girl?"

"Grandmother!" Gretchen remonstrated.

The vintner withdrew his hand slowly.

"Is this the hand of a liar and a cheat? Is it the hand of a dishonest man?"

"There is no dishonesty there, but there are lines I do not understand. It is like seeing people in a mist. They pass instantly and disappear. But I repeat, do you mean well by my girl?"

"Before God and his angels I love her; before all mankind I would gladly declare it. Gretchen shall never come to harm at these hands. I swear it."

"I believe you." The old woman's form relaxed its tenseness.

There was a sound outside. A carriage had stopped. Some one opened the door and began to climb the stairs.

"There is something strange going on up there," said Gretchen in a whisper.

"Three times a veiled lady has called at night on a sick lodger; three times a man muffled up so one could not see his face."

"Let us not question our 20 crowns rent, Gretchen," interrupted the grandmother. "So long as no one is disturbed, so long as the police are not brought to our door, it is not our affair."

The vintner picked up his hat, and Gretchen led him to the street.

He hurried away, giving no glance at the closed carriage, the sleepy driver, the weary horse. Neither did he heed the man dressed as a carter who, when he saw the vintner, turned and followed. Finally when the vintner veered into the Adlergasse he stopped, his hands clinched, his teeth hard upon each other. He even leaned against the wall of a house, his face for the moment hidden in his arm.

"Wretch that I am! Damnable wretch! Krumerweg, Krumerweg! Crooked way, indeed!" He flung down his arm passionately. "There will be a God up yonder," looking at the stars. "He will see into my heart and know that it is not bad, only young. Oh, Gretchen!"

"I DO NOT WISH ANY QUARREL, MY CAPTAIN."

"Gretchen?" The carter stepped into a shadow and waited.

Carmichael did not enjoy the opera that night. He had missed the first acts, and the last was grewsome, and the royal box was vacant. Outside he sat down on one of the benches near the fountains in the Platz.

He left the bench and strolled around the fountain, his cane behind his back, his chin in his collar.

"Just a moment, my studious friend," he was saluted.

"Wallenstein! I didn't see you." Carmichael halted.

"I'm absentminded," Carmichael admitted.

"Not always, my friend. Now, I do not believe that it was absentmindedness which made you step in between me and that pretty goose girl the other night."

"Ah!" Carmichael was all alertness.

"It was not, I believe?"

"It was coldly premeditated," said Carmichael, folding his arms over his cane, which he still held behind his back. "But that happens to be an innocent girl, colonel. You're no Herod. You really annoyed her."

"Pretense. They always begin that way. I do not wish any quarrel, my captain. But that girl's face has fascinated me. I propose to see her as often as I like."

"I have no objection to offer. But I told Gretchen that if any one, no matter who, ever offers her disrespect to report the matter to me at the consulate."

"Well, in case she is what you consider insulted what will you do?" a challenge in his tones.

"Report the matter to the police."

Wallenstein laughed.

"And if the girl finds no redress there," tranquilly, "to the chancellor."

The colonel laughed harshly and strode abruptly away.

TELLS OF DYNAMITING.

McManigal Recounts Adventures In Various Cities.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 13.—Descriptions of how Ortie McManigal with a suit case filled with explosives and time fuses, sneaked about the streets of Pittsburg, Pa., and Buffalo, N.Y., and met men who discussed or picked out "open shop jobs" that were to be blown up, together with photographs of wrecked places, which were forwarded to John J. McNamara, were presented before the federal grand jury in its investigation of the dynamite conspiracy yesterday.

Several witnesses from Buffalo and Pittsburg, whose names were withheld, were questioned, in an effort to discover who was involved with McManigal in explosions there. The confessed dynamiter made three visits to Buffalo, the first in July, 1908, when he blew up a bridge. It developed that McNamara, as secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, obtained, whenever possible, photographs of the structure which McManigal blew up in order to keep a check on the dynamiter in paying him "fees" out of the $1,000 a month allowed McNamara for "organizing purposes." Many of these photographs are in the hands of the Government.

Just before he went to Buffalo, McManigal says he tried to quit the dynamiting business, but he was visited at his home in Chicago by a man whose name is still a secret.

"This man told me that I did not dare quit," said McManigal. "He told me I had gone too far and I would have to stick to it. Finally we both went to Buffalo. The man with me said he wanted to get to Canada for the explosion. I took the dynamite out of my suitcase and planted it with a sixty-foot fuse. It blew up that night."

The witnesses from Pittsburg are believed to have been asked about men whom McManigal met there in reference to an explosion at McKees Rocks, Pa., which is within reach of Rochester, Pa., where the dynamiters kept stores of explosives.

Miners May Not Strike.

London, Jan. 13.—There was no change in the labor situation last night. The result of a ballot of the miners is not yet available and it is likely that it will not be published until next week. There is little doubt that the necessary two-thirds favoring a strike will be obtained, but it is believed a compromise will be arranged.

Big Strike of Garment Workers.

New York, Jan. 13.—At the headquarters of the United Garment Workers of America here, it is announced that preparations are being made for a secret ballot on a proposed nationwide strike. It is claimed that the strike, if called, will affect 125,000 garment workers in this city, and 250,000 throughout the country.

It is difficult for some men to keep a secret—f the other fellow has the price.

CANNOT GET PREMIER.

Bourgeois and Delcasse Refuse and Poincare Considers.

Paris, Jan. 13.—The gravity of the existing Ministerial crisis, the solution of which is not yet in sight was shown by the fact that President Fallieres yesterday summoned in conference the leading statesmen of France to discuss the best means for the formation of a Government strong enough to meet all current problems, both domestic and foreign, but especially foreign.

Leon Bourgeois, a former Prime Minister and at one time or another the holder of nearly every portfolio in the Cabinet, who in recent years always has been regularly offered the Premiership with the downfall of Cabinets, yesterday, as in the past, declined the honor, advancing the state of his health as the reason.

Theophile Delcasse, Minister of Marine in the late Cabinet, was next asked by M. Fallieres to form a Ministry, and there was considerable surprise last night when it was learned he had declined the offer and recommended Senator Raymond Poincare, a former Minister of Public Works and Minister of Finance. The exact reason for M. Delcasse's refused is unknown.

M. Poincare, when the office was tendered him, requested of President Fallieres time for reflection. He will not give a definite answer before tonight. In the event of his refusal, it seems most likely that former Premier Briand may be recalled to conduct the Government.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

The appointment of Mgr. Boggiani, Bishop of Adria, as apostolic delegate to Mexico has been confirmed.

The Italian fleet in the Red Sea encountered Jan. 7 and destroyed several Turkish gunboats and captured a Turkish armed yacht.

Two cases of smallpox have been reported at Brussels, Ont. Dr. Hayes has been sent by the Provincial Health Department to investigate.

Throughout the province the cold was still intense yesterday, especially in the north. It was 20 below zero at Sault Ste. Marie at 8 o'clock last night.

A despatch from Seoul says Chinese emissaries are collecting money from their countrymen in Korea for the revolution and are spreading revolutionary doctrines.

The New York Gas Workers' Union after an all-night session voted early yesterday to order a strike of the 32,000 men employed by the gas companies of Greater New York.

The piano manufacturing plant of the Knabe Brothers Piano Co. in Norwood, Ohio, a suburb of Cincinnati was entirely destroyed by fire yesterday, with a loss of $200,000.

The Government has asked Messrs. McIsaac, Calvert and Young, N.T.R. commissioners, to resign. The construction of the road will be in the hands of Major Leonard and Mr. MacPherson.

Through a scaffold collapsing, four men were thrown to the ground in Ottawa yesterday. They are John Jordan, scalp concussion; James Bourne, back broken and unlikely to recover; W. Arnold, internal injuries, and M. O'Brien badly shaken up.

Nanking May Be Capital.

Pekin, Jan. 13.—The Manchu Princes of the Imperial Clan met yesterday and resolved to advise the throne to retire immediately to Jeohl, about 120 miles to the northeast of Pekin, where the members of the Imperial family have usually retired during the summer.

The decision of the princes has aroused apprehension of a possible transfer of the Chinese capital to Nanking, which would open up a wide field for foreign adventure in Northern China. It would also accentuate the disorganization of trade.

The patriotic fund being raised among the Manchu princes to suppress the revolution, has realized 850,000 taels, (approximately $595,000).

Canadian Policies Unchanged.

London, Jan. 13.—The Times, editorially reviewing the Canadian Parliamentary prospects, thinks it extremely unlikely that the next few months will see any strikingly new development of Canadian policy, because the most important problems have already been reserved for prolonged investigation. It commends Mr. Borden for his decision to take personal charge of the imperial and foreign policy.

Murder Trial Stirs France.

Paris, Jan. 13.—A sensational murder trial in which several members of an aristocratic family are involved opened yesterday at Caen and is being followed throughout France with absorbing interest. A youth, aged 18, is accused of brutally slaying his father, the Baron de Couvrigny at the instigation of his mother and with the complicity of other members of the family.

Don't Like Panama Policy.

London, Jan. 13.—The Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed a resolution that the chamber should make representations to the Government on the suggestion contained in President Taft's recent message to Congress, that preference should be given to American ships as regards tolls to be charged for passage through the Panama Canal.

A lucky always attributes it to his superior judgment.

WALTER CAMP

Editor of Spalding's

Walter Camp, who picks the All-American eleven team, has been Yales' last word in football for 30 years. He is on the rules committee. He played for Yale and his son is now on the Varsity. Camp edits Spalding's football guide. His All-American team is considered the country's best.

There is a little wolf and a little sheep in every man.

The South African Football Association are anxious to have another team from England in their country before they seriously consider the project of sending an eleven to the Mother Country. The F. A. lost $1,190 on the last trip, but it is expected that the South African Federation would arrange matters so as to prevent any loss to the visitors. Gate receipts for the last tour netted $16,500, twenty-seven games being played.

Sweet Foods.

Sugar has gone up in price, and gone up materially, and, in view of the part played by jams and sweets in the general scheme of food, the fact is one which affects all sorts and conditions of people, young and old. Manufacturers say that the demand for sweet articles of diet is increasing, and that the output has gone is greatly in recent years. As a matter of fact, prices have risen to such an extent that it is hardly profitable to manufacture the cheaper kinds of sweets, but the price will hardly affect those with a taste for sweet things and these are becoming more numerous daily. Some day people may revert to the severer form of diet wherein "sweets" did not figure so largely, but for the moment they are at the height of their popularity, whether in the form of prepared fruit or confectionery. Considerations of effect upon teeth appear to weigh but little.

The darkest hour is just before the pawnshop.

Reducing the Cost of Living

It is becoming clearer as the months pass by, remarks the Montreal Journal of Commerce, a non-political journal, that in the reciprocal trade proposals, the two Canadian Ministers who considered the subject at Washington, were duped into accepting them for their party, by the astute United States gentlemen, who had in view mainly the lowering of the cost of living in their own country. That this was to be brought about by assisting foreign competition against their own producers did not greatly concern those gentlemen. Evidently it was the strong common sense of the Canadian electorate which alone prevented this country from becoming tributary to this scheme.

Whatever advantages to Canada the proposals contained are not unlikely to come our way in any case. The paper pulp arrangements, whereby our goods find free entry into the States, is a case in point. The endeavor of the U. S. railways to have wheat export, or at least transport, regulations modified, goes to show the same inclination. This week we notice that a reduction in the duty on dairy products from Canada was advocated in the annual address delivered by Julius D. Mahr, the retiring president of the New York Mercantile Exchange. He urged the members to send a petition asking Congress to consider this question, as he believed that such a reduction in duties would relieve the consumers in his country from some of the burden of high prices. He even expressed the opinion that all foods should be admitted to the United States free of duty. The defeat of the reciprocity treaty with Canada was greatly deplored by Mr. Mahr, but he believed that this should not prevent Congress from considering the question of at least lowering the duties.

It is curious that the export of dairy and other food products from the United States does not decline more rapidly in the face of the high prices in the home market. In fact there is some room for suspicion that there is manipulation which prevents present quotations from giving evidence of effects which are quite natural. But there is no doubting the fact that the cost of living is a potent factor in the political economy of the present time. Indeed, the great problem of the future is going to centre about this very point. And the chances are that prolonged investigation will bring us back to a realization of what is now an ancient economical principle, that high wages, and high prices are twin sisters of prosperity. Possibly some of the philosophies may be able to run the problem back to a favorite "cul de sac," the theory that excessive gold production is at the bottom of it all. But no one need wonder if it becomes clear that the first visible step in promoting a high cost of living is a high rate of wages. We are iconaclastic enough also to hold the opinion that it is a good thing to have the gold, to pay high wages, even though this does advance the cost of living.

Immigration in 1911

Immigration into Canada, both from Europe and the United States, has shown steady increase in 1911, but, according to Ellis Island records, there has been a decided slump in European emigration to the United States. The statement for the eleven months to Dec. 1 shows that 300,000 fewer immigrants entered the Unied States in that period than in the year 1910. Moreover, the exodus from the United States to Europe in the same eleven months was exceeded only twice in late years. To troubled industrial conditions is attributed this decline of immigration in favor of the United States, but the spreading fame of Canada as a land of "milk and honey" has undoubtedly served to divert some of the better class of trans-Atlantic emigration. Nor is the declension of immigration in the United States merely a matter of numbers. There is a falling off in quality as well. Mr. Williams, Commissioner of Immigration at New York, says, in his report for 1911, that the immigrant of to-day is inferior, morally and physically, to the immigrant of earlier years. He adds that the southeastern Europeans, who now form over 80 per cent. of the European immigrants, are of exceedingly low standards of living, their habits are filthy, and their ignorance so great that in his opinion they have no capacity for assimilation into the citizenship of the United States.

So far Canada has been comparatively fortunate in the quality of her immigrants. In addition to drawing heavily on the very cream of the Anglo-Saxon farmers of the United States, Canada has succeeded in attracting emigrants from northwestern Europe almost to the exclusion of southern Europe people. In the year ending June, 1910, half of the European immigration into Canada was English and Scotch, and not 15 per cent. of it was from southern and southeastern Europe.

The plans now being arranged for more progressive and aggressive immigration work by the Borden Government will further sift the quality, as well as increase the number of the immigrants. One of its first steps in taking up this matter was the appointment of a commissioner to study and report on conditions in Canada and in Europe, particularly in Britain, and to suggest more effective means of securing desired classes and placing them to the best advantage. The establishment of a system of Government supervision over the placing of immigrants has been badly needed, for much of the trouble attendant on profitable assimilation of the newcomers has been due to their ignorance of Canadian conditions. Such a system will give the intending immigrant courage to face, without misgiving, the ordeal of settling in a strange land. It will greatly stimulate emigration by the better class of agricultural workers. It will more equally settle and develop Canada and restrain the further crowding of already congested cities by newcomers seeking a market for their labor. Both East and West will share in the influx, according to the class of immigrant and the work for which he is best adapted. "Foreignization" such as has marred the development of American centres of population, will be restricted and the evils that follow low class immigration will be at a minimum. The counting of immigrants two and three times, fictitiously swelling the statistics, will be stopped, and an accurate account of emigration will be kept in order that immigration figures may truly reflect the real state of affairs.

IDEAL PROTECTION AGAINST INROADS OF CATARRH

BY BREATHING THE RICH, BALSAMIC VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU PREVENT AND CURE ALL HEAD, NOSE AND THROAT DISEASE.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every trace of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence, or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums, all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness, or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensible as "Catarrhozone."

VICTIM OF CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.

I contracted a severe cold while following my occupation of furniture travelling, and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim of Chronic Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhozone, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I possess to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life two years

A. H. SWARTZ, Brockville, Ont.

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y., U.S.A.

MOTHER NATURE'S LESSON

Before baby can walk it will have to be thoroughly acquainted with the means at its disposal. This is gained by the practised use of the muscles in kicking, stretching, and sprawling till it learns to attain a sitting posture; from that it progresses to the creeping and crawling stage, and eventually manages to raise itself to a standing position by holding on to a chair, table, or mother's dress. At this stage the weight is only just borne by the legs on which baby is unable to balance without additional support. To learn to move the legs, and preserve its balance, is a matter of some week's work and must not be unduly expedited. It can very well be left to the growing child and the teachings of Mother Nature. Babies growing up with other children generally walk and talk earlier than children brought up alone.

Flattery is the coin with which some people pay their way.

HOW KING COAL JUMPS AT CRACK OF COMBINE'S WHIP

How Canadians Pay Tribute to the Yankee Monopolists--A Freight Reduction

Whatever goes up is sure to come down. This wise old saw, literally true in its application to material objects, such as bricks, has been sadly disproved of late as regards the necessities of life.

If nothing else, the price of coal alone is a flamboyant rebuttal of this moth-eaten proverb. Coal is one commodity, the price of which, apparently, never comes down.

The fact is that, notwithstanding Canada's place as one of the greatest coal fields in the world, we unfortunates in Canada are, with the rest of the continent, in the grip of one of the tightest, meanest corporations on the face of the earth—to wit, the American Anthracite Coal Trust, who at present control the total output of that paricular commodity. Our huge soft coal deposits in the west and in Nova Scotia are of little use to us here in Ontario.

HUGE PROFITS.

Although anthracite sells for $2.13 at the mines in Pennsylvania, you, Mr. Householder, have to fork out more than three times that amount when you want to re-stock the cellar. Your coal dealer informs you, as he juggles with some nice, clean counter samples, that the big furnace coal costs $7.25 a ton; the neat little specimen of the egg variety $7.50; while if you would like something really choice for that new brick fireplace in the sitting room, he will simply be tickled to death to let you have the beautiful cannel coal which burns to a clear white ash—for $7.50.

With a deprecatory shake of the head he assures you that the common soft coal, which they are simply giving away for from $4 up, is not used by any really nice people, and to be strictly in the swim you must burn cannel.

FOLLOWS ORDERS

Now don't get sore and blame the dealer. He is after all only a poor slave of the coal barons who own the anthracite areas of Pennsylvania. He is merely making a working profit out of his sales, and is subject to the dictation of the mine owners. In this connection it might be mentioned that one concession, if it might be termed such, is the delivery of the wholesaler to the retailer of the "long ton" of 2,240 pounds. Of course he, in turn, only dumps 2,000 pounds into your cellar. This merely applies to anthracite. You dealer gets no allowance in soft coal.

A QUEER SITUATION.

What makes coal so dear, the consumer is constrained to ask. He knows that hard coal comes into Canada duty free; and that there is only a nominal charge of 14 cents a ton levied on bituminous. Furthermore the coal area of Pennsylvania is not so far distant and on the map there appears to be a network of railways conecting it with the rest of the country. With plenty of transportation facilities and a short haul, why should coal cost so much?

The answer is simply excessive freight rates and exorbitant profits to the mine owners. As a matter of fact the railways themselves own the mines. With a small and arbitrarily settled margin of gain allowed to the dealers and agents and brokers the fat bulk of the receipts flows into one coffer.

FARMERS DUG OWN COAL

Fifty years ago there were hundreds of small mines in Pennsylvania. Every farmer had his own pit. Coal was worth a trifle. Like land and timber in those days of prodigality coal seemed so abundant and far-spread that the average citizen never dreamed of an eventual monopoly. But very soon astute men began buying up farmers mines. Several thousand dollars for a non etoo productive homestead looked good to the poor settler. Such was the beginning.

Presenty the big mine operators began to squeeze the little fellows. They also bullied the newly-built railroads into doing what they wanted. Finally the worm turned and the railroads became the power in the land, organized and retaliated by putting the thumbscrews on all miners, big and little. Pretty soon they owned many the mines themselves, and what ones they didn't own they controlled absolutely. That is why such dinky systems as the Reading and Delaware roads are rated so high on the stock exchange. They and a few others own and haul most of the anthracite used on this continent, and everywhere else, for that matter.

LOTS OF COAL IN CANADA

Out in Alberta to-day, coal mining is in somewhat the same condition as in the Pennsylvania of half a century ago. Numbers of farmers dig their own coal. Conditions there are diametrically opposed to these in eastern Canada. Down here we depend on the Americans for our coal. Sunset Canada has on the other hand, barring undeveloped Alaska, practically all the soft and semi-anthracite coal in the western part of this continent. Alberta and British Columbia are said to have the largest deposits in the world.

Great black ridges of it outcrop on the river banks. Mines are worked at intervals all the way from Souris, Man., to the Rocky Mountains, though until Alberta is reached it is all very low grade. Up at Edmonton a few years ago they quarried it out of the bluffs along the Saskatchewan, selling a crumbly, bituminous stuff to the residents of that place for $1.50 a ton.

For all this, however, the coal used in Calgary and Edmonton, brought in from the mines at Lethbridge, Bankhead and other places within a radius of 150 miles, costs the consumer about as much as does anthracite here in our midst. No doubt a larger market and more mines opening would bring the price down considerably.

CROSS PRAIRIES BY BOAT

"I hope to see the day when a barge load of coal will sail from the Rocky Mountains down the Saskatchewan to Winnipeg," exclaimed Sir Wilfrid Laurier to a Manitoba audience. But alas, his dream of making the two-thousand mile course of that turbulent river navigable can hardly be realized. And even then the coal would be a long way from Toronto.

By Americans some alleviation is expected in the coal situation when the new coal traffic rates on the New York Central and other lines go into effect. Residents of northern New York are wondering how the change will affect their coal bills.

A FALSE ALARM.

A Toronto coal broker says with regard to this: "There has been some talk of a change in rates in American roads. But it is not a reduction. The fact is that the small shippers have been kicking about the prices they have to pay for short hauls. Now the railroads propose to equalize matters by raising the rates on long hauls. That, of course, only applies to American roads.

"Some three months ago the Canadian railroads raised the freight on coal by ten cents a ton. The coal people here all kicked, as we had taken orders away ahead on the old schedule. So they consented to keep the old rates in force until the first of May.

PREPARING FOR STRIKE.

"If anything there will be a rise in the price of coal. Ten years ago, when there were big strikes in the United States, the mine-owners built fences around their places to protect the non-union men from those in the union. Since then these fences have been gradually pulled to pieces by the people around the mines. One representative who has just returned from a trip to that part of the country, tells us that these fences are being rebuilt. This certainly looks as though the mine-owners expected a recurrence of the troubles of ten years back.

"The mines down there are only working to 60 per cent. of their capacity. They have been storing coal in large quantities, in preparation for trouble with their men."

NO COAL IN ONTARIO.

And we are absolutely dependent on Pennsylvania.

Although Ontario is rich enough in both the precious and the more utilitarian metals, no lucky prospector has yet found bona fide coal. True, there was excitement over an alleged discovery up Cochrane way two winters ago, but the samples of "coal" from the find exhibited in Toronto were woefully disappointing. The stuff looked and felt like charcoal. It was about the lowest grade of lignite, little farther advanced in its transposition into black diamonds than peat, and not half so combustible.

TO BREAK MONOPOLY.

But there is a rift in the cloud of the coal situation. The Panama Canal is rapidly progressing, and its termination is now only a matter of a year or two. Strenuous efforts are also being made to prevent the establishment of any coal combine in Alaska. In short, with the completion of this great waterway and the opening of the immense Alaskan deposit of anthracite, students of economics predict an end to the Pennsylvania coal barons' monopoly.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovrey.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. D. M. Waters, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Belleville, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

Utilizing Waste as Fuel.

The greatest work which has been carried on by the British in Egypt, since their occupation of that country has been the construction of dams along the Nile for the purpose of providing water for irrigating the Nile Valley. As a result of this work vast areas, previously waste, have been brought under cultivation and the output of the country vastly increased.

Another enterprise, of little less importance, is now under way. This is for the purpose of utilizing sudd, a thick tangle of water plants in the Nile bed. This growth has for generations seriously interfered with the navigation of the Nile. It has recently been discovered that it can be utilized as a fuel. The new fuel is known as suddite.

The New Boarder Again.

"For ten eyars," said the new boarder at a Montreal boarding-house, "my habits were as regular as clockwork. I rose on the stroke of six; half an hour later I sat down to breakfast; at seven I was at work, dined at twelve, ate supper at six, and was in bed at nine-thirty; ate only hearty food, and hadn't a sick day in all that time." "Dear me!" said th edeacon in sympathetic tones, "and what were you in for?" An awful silence ensued.

Without Nihilism in Russia Siberia would be unnecessary. The very faults which Nihilism seeks to remedy are kept alive by its existence. If it were eradicated Russia would take its place among the Liberal nations of the world.

Humility Safest Virtue.

Among all the virtues, humility, the lowest, is pre-eminent. It is the safest, because it is always an anchor; and that man may be truly said to live the most content in his calling who strives to live within the compass of it.

SWEEPING OUT THE STOKERS

Introduction of New Type Lake Steamers Will Dispense With Stokers and Otherwise Reduce Cost of Freight Transport.

The "Toiler", latest addition to the Canadian Lake fleet, and first of a type which promises to revolutionise the carrying fleet is propelled entirely by internal combustion engines, in much the same manner as a motor car. Above its deck appears neither funnel nor mast. Its fuel is oil and while the absence of funnels, masts and stays gives greater deck room and convenience, the use of oil entirely as a propelling force gives far greater storage capacity inside the vessel, as oil fuel takes up only a small fraction of the room that the coal bunkers occupy. Moreover, oil combustion engines occupy less than one-quarter of the space occupied by the other type of engine.

The new type marks a further effort to reduce the cost of lake transportation. The greater freight carrying possibility of this boat over a similar sized coal burning engined boat helps to this end. Moreover, the oil engines, requiring but half, or even less, of an engine crew, materially cuts down the wage account. At one sweep, all stokers are dispensed with.

Enormous capital is invested in great lake carriage, and any expense reducing device will be rapidly seized upon and developed. The lake capitalists in the past have spent great sums to this end. A few years ago the whaleback type promised to revolutionize lake traffic and many of these boats were built and still plough the lakes. None, however, have been built in recent years. Nevertheless, the history of recent lake lake navigation shows that the men in charge of the work are not conservatively minded, and any new and promising departure will receive thorough investigation.

Dogs Go Wild.

Our tame dogs would all go wild if left to themselves for a few years. They tried the experiment once on Robinson Crusoe's island. They left some of their dogs there, and nobody called at the island again for about thirty years. And they found all the dogs had become quite wild. They hunted just like wolves, and they had forgotten how to bark; they could only howl. It was not till they became used to men again that they learnt to bark. A few years ago two dogs near to Nottingham lost their owners, so they made homes for themselves in a field. They hunted sheep and lambs, and did a great deal of damage, just as the wild dogs of India and Africa and Australia do. They looked just like wolves—so much had they changed during the months they had lived the life of wild dogs; and, finally, they had to be shot.

A COLLEGE SPORT

No Knockout Allowed in Intercollegiate Boxing.

Properly restricted and safeguarded, boxing might prove an acceptable form of intercollegiate sport, in the opinion of Dr. William G. Anderson, director of the Yale gymnasium, but it would have to be freed from the "knockout" and "any other element that has proved hurtful to boxing."

In an article in the Yale News discussing the matter, Dr. Anderson suggests a meeting of representatives of different colleges and universities for the purpose of giving the subject careful consideration.

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2963 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SWALLOWS' NEST OF BANK-NOTE

Also How a Mouse Stole $40 Worth of Notes to Make a Home.

A pair of swallows of Fiberbrunn, in the Tyrol, have stolen a number of ten-kronen bank-notes to line their nest.

The parent birds discovered that the new notes were just the shade of blue to match their eggs, the tissue being tough but flexible, and exactly the material they needed. The nest and the missing notes were only discovered when the swallows had abandoned it and it fell to the ground.

This feat has been equalled by that of an enterprising mouse in Dornbirn, which abstracted a number of twenty-kronen notes to the value of $40, of a delicate reddish brown shade, from the cash drawer of a butcher, and, tearing them to pieces, adapted them to the purpose of making a nest for her family of seven. The butcher in his search for the notes suspected and traced the mouse, and found the nest under the boarding. He carefully picked up the remains of the notes and returned them to the bank, where they were pieced together. The butcher recovered all but $10 worth, which went into the mouse's teeth.

Last Call.

Professor Leacock tells the following story about a young man who sometimes drank more whisky than was good for him:

He had been making a night of it, but had forsaken his companions. He was acquainted with an undertaker named George, and got the crazy notion at three o'clock in the morning that he must see this particular man. Accordingly, he found George's undertaking establishment, over which George had his sleeping apartments.

The intoxicated young man rang and rang George's bell, and at last awoke him. The undertaker put his head out of the third-story window, expecting to find that his funeral services were required immediately. Instead, he recognizd his friend Frank.

"Well, Frank," he exclaimed crossly, "what do you want?"

"I just wan' tell you, George," said Frank, "that you're the lash man in the world I wan' to do bus'ness with."

Expecting Much.

The sphere of our affections is one in which we are very apt to expect too much from others, and thus to cause bitterness and often estrangement. Where we love we naturally crave to be loved; but this craving if not regulated by reason, is very likely to blossom into a selfish oppression.

A Sewing Machine Wrinkle

A hand sewing-machine is often very apt to slip about on the table. To obviate this, all that is necessary is to place a couple of the old-fashioned gelatine lozenges, slightly moistened, under each corner of the base board. In a few seconds the machine will be found to adhere to the table and equal a stand-machine in firmness.

LORD ROSEBERRY'S BET.

How the Great English Politician Gave a Good Tip.

On one occasion Lord Roseberry was in a railway carriage on his way to a race meeting at Ayr. Opposite him sat a commercial traveller, who was rather inclined to be talkative.

Seeing his lordship (whom, of course, he did not know) reading the Racing Calendar, he remarked:

"Suppose you are going to the Ayr meeting?"

"I am going as far as Ayr," replied his lordship.

"Pity young swells get fleeced by blacklegs. Some noblemen, I hear, drop fortunes on the Turf."

"Indeed!"

"Do a bit myself sometimes — about a tenner or a pony is my cut. Know anything good for to-day worth my while touching?"

"I am not a tipster."

"Beg pardon. Saw you reading the Racing Calendar, so thought you might know."

"Well," replied his lordship, "if I give you the straight tip will it be of service to you?"

"Depends if I fancy it."

"Put your tenner or pony on Lord Roseberry's Chevronel for the Welter Cup."

"Not for Joseph! I never back Lord Roseberry's horses. They say he's a regular chumpkin."

"Indeed! Perhaps they're right. However, you asked me. I can only add that I heard Lord Roseberry himself tell what you term a chumpkin to back his horse."

"Depend upon it, if it was all right, he would not let you overhear his conversation. Mum would taen be his game. Why, there's a lot in that race! I'll bet you a pony Lord Roseberry don't win it."

"Really! I am not accustomed to bet in railway carriages with strangers."

"There's my card. Fact is, you ain't game to bet."

"I think you'll lose your money, but as you challenge me let it be a bet. You'll see me in the stewards' enclosure at the course. I have no cards with me."

"Agreed! It's a bet. I bet you an even pony against Chevronel for the Welter Cup. But what's your name, young fellow?"

"Primrose. Sometimes I'm otherwise addressed."

"All right, young Primrose; pay and receive after the race."

The companions separated at the station. Chevronel won in a canter, and the commercial received the following morning a short note by a messenger from the stewards' stand: "Mr. Primrose (Lord Roseberry) would feel obliged by Mr.—— handing to his servent £25, which his lordship will have much pleasure in forwarding as a donation to the Commercial Travellers' Orphan Asylum."

The "bagman" paid his money, looking very crestfallen, and was heard to ejaculate, "Doae! Who on earth would have dreamt that the good-looking, affable young fellow, whom I imagined was a chumpkin, was in fact none other than the Earl of Roseberry, giving me a good honest tip about his own horse, by which I was fool enough to lose £25? Anyway, he's a regular trump, and he's right — I'm the chumpkin after all!"

ON A GRAIN OF WHEAT.

A Prayer Containing 286 Letters Inscribed and Four Figures.

Prayers have been written and engraved on many very small objects, but only one person ever has been patient and painstaking enough to inscribe a complete prayer on a grain of wheat. One day Sir Moses Montefiore, the great Jewish financier of England, received a small tin box in the mail. On the cover of the box was written, "A prayer for Moses Montefiore, by Bauch Mordecai, son of Zebi Hirsch Scheinemann, of Jerusalem." The box contained a single grain of wheat, on which was inscribd, in characters so small that they could only be read with the aid of a powerful microscope, the 286 Hebrew letters of the prayer, and the date of the year (Hebrew reckoning), 5645. Sir Moses kept the prayer in his desk until he died, and it is now preserved with religious care by one of his friends.

Canada's Post Office.

A Devonshire lady once sent to her son a pair of trousers by book post, which is, of course, cheaper than parcel post.

The postal officials wrote to her: "Clothes cannot be sent by book post. If you look in the 'Post Office Guide,' you will see under what conditions articles may be sent by book post."

After a few days the lady replied: "I have looked in the 'Post Office Guide' and find that articles which are open at both ends may be sent by book post. And if trousers are not open at both ends I should like to know what is."

FOOTBALL

How sports, once only followed in the British Empire, have become popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by on means confined to the white race. Some of the native teams in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussern Hegarzi as centre forward on Saturday, against Stockport. He is an Egyptian, who showed capital form against English teams at Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he shaped very well for a first appearance in an important game.

The Little Chap — We're getting up a tug-o'-war between the married and single men You're married, aren't you?

The American — No, I've just been seasick, that's why I look that way.

Some people have such a dread of taking something that doesn't belong to them that they won't even take a hint.

WARNING!

Information has reached us that cetrain dealers, when asked for Zam-Buk, try to sell something else on which they make a larger profit. They do not give this or that reason, but say: "I can sell you so and so at half the price, and it is just as good."

Don't be fooled! The "cheap" preparation is not just as good as Zam-Buk—not in the same class! Most of the cheap salves are made from animal fats and oils. Zam-Buk is made from pure herbal essences and juices. There is as little similarity between the two as between a horse and an automobile!

Imitations of Zam-Buk and cheap substitutes may give the dealer a little more profit, but they won't cure your skin disease, or stop the pain of your burn, or ease the agony of piles, or cure the rash on your baby. Don't be misled. Get the real Zam-Buk. See the legally protected name on the packet before paying for it.

Weird Meals

There are many eccentric eaters in our midst, but not all of them allow their eccentricities to become known. At one of the most aristocratic clubs in London, (England), however, a certain duke may frequently be seen lunching on oatmeal porridge and treacle, while a well-known marquis insists upon gratifying his taste for raw cockles and mussels in vinegar; and one of the wealthiest noblemen in the land dines cheaply off a plate of soup and cold beef and pickles, except when he is entertaining a friend.

But these peculiarities fade into insignificance beside the habits of one English statesman, who will frequently eat five or six heavy courses at four o'clock in the morning, and then fast till the following evening, when he will dine in sumptuous style.

THE LIE NAILED DOWN

J. M. Barrie, who celebrated his 51st birthday a few days ago, is a direct contradiction to the absurd theory that Scotsmen are humorless. Once the leading actor who was playing in one of his plays fell ill. The occurrence meant a chance for his understudy, who, not being particularly gifted with a sense of modesty, sent a few dozen telegrams to dramatic critics and others solemnly informing them that he would be taking the "star" part that evening. One telegram went to Mr. Barrie. He sent this answer:

"Thanks for your warning."

In connection with the Scotsman's proverbial love of argument, he tells a delicious story. An old fellow lay very near to death, and his friends suggested sending for the minister. But the old chap did not want a spiritual comforter. The friends said they would sing a hymn. The dying man did not want hymns. "A'm wanting neither hymns nor minister," quoth he: "I want to argy."

Another yarn Mr. Barrie tells is about a friend of his who once had the misfortune to sit at a performance of "The Little Minister" behind a lady with a large hat. Requested politely to remove it, the lady stubbornly refused. But the man was anxious to see the play. Presently he leaned forward again. "Madam," he said, gravely, "if you won't remove your hat, would you mind folding up your ears?"

CANADIAN BASKET BALL LEAGUE IS PROPOSED.

Dr. Peacock, well-known yachting and hockey enthusiast, has a scheme for the organization of the Canadian Basketball Leagues, which is well worth consideration. It is proposed to have two sections, an eastern and western. The eastern section will be composed of teams in Ottawa and other eastern cities, while the western section will be composed of teams in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Brantford, Woodstock and other cities. The idea is to have the winners of each section to play off for the championship. If the league is formed there will be senior, intermediate and junior sections.

A Baseball Story

"Big Six" Mathewson, for years King of the Twirlers, told this story at an impromptu reception one night.

"The teacher of the class in English had demanded that the public all write for their daily exercise a short account of a baseball game. One youngster sat through the period, seemingly wrapped in thought, while the others all turned in their narratives. After school the teacher, impatient and disgusted at the laggard, offered him only five minutes to write the description, with a thrashing as an alternative. The boy concentrated all his attention upon the theme in hand, as the teacher counted his remaining moments. At the last, he scratched a line on his tablet, and with a sigh of relief handed it to his master. It read, "Rain — no game."

New Police Station.

On the 25th of October the Police Department moved into their new quarters in the old meat market. This building has been renovated throughout. Downstairs are the Chief and Constables' rooms, store room, bath and lavatory, cell room with four steel cells and room for casuals in for protection. Upstairs, court room, Magistrate's, attorney's, and witness' rooms.

There is a little more furnishing required. When this is attended to we shall have comfortable and sanitary quarters.

It must be a source of great satisfaction to the Board that in view of the large amount of construction work going on in the city and vicinity during the past year and such large numbers of strangers coming and going, that we have had so little crime of a serious nature. This I believe has only been accomplished by the many hours of extra duty on the part of the sergeants and men, and which I am pleased to say they have done willingly at all times.

Special Constable Arnott, as in former years, returned to me the owners and harborers of dogs in the city, and acted as Special Constable whenever called upon.

The force remains the same as last year, viz.—Chief, two Sergeants and four Constables.

In conclusion, I thank your honorable body for clothing and supplies granted and for your kindness to me personally during the past year. Respectfully submitted,

Your obedient servant,
JOHN NEWTON,
Chief Constable.

Make your pastry with PURITY FLOUR It will be delicious

WE tell you frankly that it will likely cost you slightly more to make pastry with PURITY FLOUR than with an ordinary flour. But thousands of home-cooks, who have tried both, willingly pay the difference.

Because of its extra strength and extra quality more shortening must be added to PURITY FLOUR than to blended or soft wheat flours, when making pastry.

PURITY FLOUR gets its extra strength and extra quality from the high-grade portions of the hard wheat berries. There is no low-grade hard wheat flour, nor soft wheat flour, mixed with PURITY. It is all high-grade.

But think of the added delicacy of flavor, the extra deliciousness of the pies and the cakes! Surely it is worth paying a little more for greater enjoyment.

And the pleasure of using such a high-class flour for all of your cooking [illegible] purposes [illegible] in mere dollars and cents. And remember PURITY FLOUR [illegible]

Naturally, such a high-class flour will cost you slightly more. It costs more to make. It is worth more money.

RIBBON PAINTING

A vogue which will command itself to the home artist is the use of hand-painted ribbon for trimming evening and other gowns. Both silk and satin ribbon are treated to water-colour designs of a "sketchy" artistic type usually in colours of "chintzy" suggestion, or imitative of Japanese colour schemes with the "Chinese" blues, pure greens and reds, and inevitable touch of black.

A broad satin ribbon hand-painted in a bold conventional design makes an excellent skirt "band" of the fashionable kind. It can, if desired, be veiled with chiffon, in order to produce the attractive "blurred" effect so well liked this season. Moreover ribbons serve to trim tunics and magyar blouses, the edges of the ribbon being turned under to make it simulate piece satin, or a beaded edge can be worked over the selvedge in beads coloured like the painted design. It is an original detail of this character which just now distinguishes the most expensive gown.

SOCIALISTS MAKE GAIN

German Elections Result In Thirteen New Seats For Them.

The Expectations of Politicians In the Fatherland Are Justified by Decided Swing Over to Social Democrats—Gains Are Chiefly From the Liberal and Radical Parties, But Centrists and Conservatives Lose.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—The expected swing towards Socialism in the Reichstag elections held throughout the empire yesterday was realized, but the early returns, to the surprise of most persons, showed that it was accomplished more at the expense of the [illegible] and Liberals than of the Radicals and Conservatives. Centrists [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning. Up to [illegible] had been received from [illegible] results [illegible]es, in which 84 members in 131 constituencies were elected and 47 [illegible] bers definitely [illegible] necessary. The reballots will include four Con[illegible] members elected [illegible] Centrists, two [illegible]servatives, thirty-nine [illegible]-eight Social[illegible] Liberals, no Radicals, thi[illegible] cialists and one Dane.

The Socialist net gain by the [illegible] is thirteen seats, they have won seven from the Radicals, four from the Liberals, one from the Centrists and three from the Conservatives. They lost, however, two seats to the Liberals. The Socialists will participate in thirty-three of the forty-seven reballots.

AUGUST BEBEL.

Leader of the Social-Democrats in the German Reichstag.

Voting throughout the Empire for the election of members of the Reichstag began at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The weather was clear, but extremely cold. The conditions generally, however, were conducive to an active participation in the polling, and a heavy vote was generally reported.

Detachments of troops belonging to the garrison were held in readiness and special arrangements were made for guarding the royal palaces. The precautions were mainly designed to cope with possible Socialist demonstrations in the streets.

Emperor William, who at the election in 1907, awaited the results in the imperial palaces in Berlin, was informed of the returns this time in his palace at Potsdam, an arrangement which was considered in some quarters as a symptom of the expected outcome.

The interest in the elections in Berlin was largely concentrated on the so-called "Ministerial precinct" in the centre of the city, where Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and most of the other Ministers have their names on the voting registers.

The situation of parties in the last Reichstag was as follows: Roman Catholic Centre, 105; Conservatives, 60; Social Democrats, 52; National Liberals, 48; Radicals, 25; Imperial Conservatives, 25; Poles, 19; other various groups, 43; non-party members, 22. Total, 397.

The parties number about fifteen, including the groups and fractions of minor parties; but, generally speaking, they may be divided into those of the Right, Centre, and Left.

The parties of the Right are the Conservatives, the Imperial Conservatives, the Agrarians; and four groups of antisemites.

The Centre consists of the Roman Catholic party, the Left includes the three [illegible] and radical groups (known [illegible] under the united name of the [illegible]sive party) and the Socialists. Apart from these parties there are [illegible] others, which are important and which cannot be classified in any of the above-mentioned groups, for example, the National Liberals, who claim to belong to the Left, but generally vote with the Right.

There also are the Nationalist groups—the Poles, the Alsatians, and the Danes—and finally there is the Guelph party, which represents a small faction whose political ambitions centre in the revival of the Kingdom of Hanover as one of the confederated states of the empire.

This extraordinary number of parties naturally means a corresponding number of candidates to seek election. Although the Reichstag only counts 397 members, the number of candidates at the election is over 2,000.

For weeks an exciting campaign has been conducted throughout the country, the opposition parties taking advantage of the Government's recent failures on international policy to urge the electorate to change its rulers, and the Conservative parties impressing on the people that every vote given against the present Government will be a vote for socialism, internationalism, and anarchy.

Since the last election every bye-election has been a triumph for the Socialists, and thus the prediction of Prince Buelow.

TWO CHILDREN PERISH

Terrible Fatality Occurs in a Toronto Suburb.

Children Left at Home Alone Tampered With Oil Stove and In Trying to Light It Caused an Explosion—In Their Flight They Forgot the Little Girl, Aged Two Years, and the Boy, Aged Nine Months.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Two children were burned to death in their home at 31 Bird avenue, Earlscourt, in a fire which broke out shortly before noon yesterday. They were Irene Dillon, two years of age, and Francis Dillon, nine months of age. The fire was caused by the explosion of a coal-oil stove. The dead are the two youngest of six children of Mr. and Mrs. David Dillon, five of whom were in the house at the time.

Kate, aged eight years, the oldest of those who escaped, says that the children were playing in the kitchen, the stove which was in the hall exploded. She, with Madge, aged six years, and John, aged five years, ran out into the yard, leaving the two younger and helpless children in the burning house. When the alarm spread, Mrs. Corduroy and Mrs. Taylor, near neighbors, endeavored to rescue the little ones, but were driven back by the flames.

Japs In Hawaii.

Washington, Jan. 13.—A statement that there were 35,000 former Japanese soldiers in Hawaii, who would support Japan if that country and the United States went to war, created a deep impression on the House committee on military affairs yesterday when Major-General Wm. H. Carter, assistant chief of staff of the army, made the assertion.

Gen. Carter expressed the belief of the army general staff officers that the U. S. must greatly enlarge its military force, or dispose of some of its insular possessions.

The strengthening of fortifications and the enlargement of the standing army in Hawaii and the Philippines must be continued to a point where an enlargement of the army will be necessary, he said. Under the reserve system of Japan, the former soldiers come into service at once if needed. He urged the creation of an American army reserve.

Riot of Woollen Operatives.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 13.—The mill district of this city was thrown into a state of disorder yesterday by a riotous outbreak on the part of hundreds of Italians and other foreign operatives who left their work at the Wood, Ayer and Washington mills of the American Woollen Co. because they objected to a reduction of two hours' pay a week under the workings of the new 54-hour law.

Before the trouble ended several persons had been severely injured, a number of girls operatives had fainted and six arrests had been made by the police.

Nearly 11,000 operatives were idle yesterday afternoon and the feeling was general that the strike might involve the 25,000 mill workers in the city to-day or early next week.

Who Will Be Governor?

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—A spirited race is in progress for the governorship of the Yukon. The post is practically vacant now.

Governor Henderson some time ago obtained six months' leave of absence and it has been well understood that at the end of the term he would retire. The succession lies between Hon. A. S. Goodeve, Conservative M.P. for Kootenay, a former member of the McBride Government; J. A. McKinnon of Dawson and George Black of Dawson. The Kootenay member, who was very much in the running during the formation of the Borden Cabinet, is said to have a good chance of securing the post in the Yukon, if the choice does not fall on Mr. Black.

Alarming Fire on Liner.

Greenock, Scotland, Jan. 13—A most alarming fire experience was undergone by the passengers of the Allan line steamer Pretorian, which sailed from Philadelphia on Dec. 29 for Glasgow and reached here yesterday morning.

Flames broke out in the smoke-room on the upper deck Thursday morning when the liner was about 130 miles from Malin Head. The fire assumed alarming proportions and there was considerable excitement, but the prompt work of the crew arrested the speed of the conflagration. The smokeroom, however, was entirely destroyed. No one was injured.

[illegible] Chief's Body.

New [illegible], Jan. 3.—The discovery yesterday of the lantern and gauntlets of Battalion Chief Walsh, who lost his life in the Equitable building fire, gave rise last night that his body, which still lies buried in the ice-encrusted ruins of the structure, would soon be found.

About $150,000,000 in securities where removed yesterday from the offices of August Belmont and company.

THE TERROR OF 1896

Major Currie Harks Back to the Liberals' "Bloody Assize."

Member for North Simcoe Effectually Blocks the Charges of the Opposition With Regard to Dismissals of Civil Servants by Reading Returns [illegible] at Last Political Upheaval—George Bradbury's Bill.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—"The great bloody assizes of the Liberals in '96" was the sounding phrase in which Major Currie (North Simcoe) described the ruthless slaughter of Conservative office-holders when the Laurier Government took office in 1896.

The doughty major insisted on reading a return to the Senate, 35 pages in length, setting forth the names and alleged offences of the victims of this "reign of terror." But this was only a partial list, he said, and added that the reading of the full roll of those who had fallen beneath the blade of the political guillotine would require at least two days.

The member for North Simcoe, however, was not resposible for the introduction of a discussion of the spoils system, which was brought up by the Opposition the moment the House went into supply at 3.30 p.m.

Orators on a former occasion when the spoils system was under discussion harked back to the time of the Tory regime before '96, but Major Currie went them several better. Not only did he recall the days of the infamous Judge Jeffries in the reign of James II., he even went back for one of his illustrations to a date antedating the Christian era.

G. H. Bradbury (Selkirk) introduced a bill to amend the navigable waters protection act, with the object of preventing the pollution by the sewage of Winnipeg, St. Boniface, Brandon and Portage la Prairie of the waters of the Red River, with which the health of the residents along its banks has been threatened since the construction of the St. Andrew's locks, with resultant stretch of slack water extended as far as Winnipeg.

When the House went into supply in the afternoon, a vigorous attack was made on the Minister of Customs, Hon. J. D. Reid, on the spoils system, the attack largely centering around the dismissal of Thomas C. Bryant, a preventive officer at Windsor, Ont., and the appointment of Mr. McHugh in his stead. The Minister declared that the displaced official was only a temporary appointee, and, moreover, [illegible] an active partisan.

O. J. Wil[illegible] (N. Essex), on whose recommendation the dismissal was made, defended his action in the matter. It was [illegible] the dissolution, though pointed after [illegible], who had displaced before the election [illegible] whom no charges had ever been made [illegible] him. He had no apology for reinstating [illegible]

A. P. Clarke (S. Essex) declared that Bryan had been refused an investigation.

The Minister declared that no investigation was necessary, as a member of the House had made the recommendation on his [illegible] responsibility as a member.

Mr. Clarke stated that the policy of the late Government had been to appoint young men, an age limit of 36 years being placed.

The Minister of Customs said he did not think this was correct, as men had all been appointed whose ages run down the way up to 75 years. For his own part he had never appointed men over 36 years of age except in very special cases.

J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro) challenged the Premier to make a statement as to the position of the Government on dismissals and appointments. He asked Hon. Col. Hughes what he thought of the dismissal of Mr. Baldwin of Montreal because he had had the courage to protest against disloyal statements made by Nationalist speakers.

Hon. J. D. Reid stated that this man was undoubtedly an active partisan. The whole front page of a newspaper in the constituency in which he resided was occupied by a virulent article written by Baldwin and adorned with his portrait. This article referred to more matters than the one adverted to by Mr. Sinclair.

"I may say," declared the Minister of Customs, "that any official the moment he leaves his office and enters the political arena, no matter to whom he refers, will not remain in the service."

Back From Panama.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—A. St. Laurent, assistant Deputy Minister of Public Works, S. J. Chapleau, and C. R. Contlee of the engineering staff returned last evening from the Panama Canal to which they were sent to inspect. The object was to get pointers in the construction and administration of such a stupendous undertaking. The three gentlemen state that that they were received most courteously and afforded every facility for obtaining information and data which will be of much value when Canada embarks on similar undertakings.

Surveyor Frozen.

Peterboro, Jan. 13.—Alfred J. Cameron, Ontario land surveyor, died yesterday morning through exposure to the cold weather.

Mr. Cameron was found outside the city limits by friends in an exhausted condition, having been overcome by the extreme cold weather. He was taken to a farm house, where all efforts to revive him failed, and he died shortly afterwards.

Mr. Cameron leaves a wife and a large family of small children.

Halifax's Big Fire.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 13.—The fire which yesterday destroyed The Herald newspaper office was the greatest conflagration in years, destroying half a block of the business part of the city, and ruining Premier Borden's law library.

The loss by the fire is estimated at $350,000. The conflagration in The Recorder office was checked when it reached that building. The insurance will fairly cover the loss.

Parole System Works Well.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—The Dominion system of releasing prisoners on parole during good conduct is being shown by the passage of time to be a splendid success.

Up to date (the system was inaugurated in 1900), a total of 3,731 persons—a majority of them from the penitentiary—have been let out on parole. Only 201 of these have had their licenses cancelled. Many of these, even were not for fresh offences, but for not complying with regulations. But 3,530 settled down into honest life, so far as all evidence had gone.

Will Go To Borden.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Premier Borden and the Dominion Government will shortly have to face the delicate task of dealing with the ne temere decree. The Evangelical Alliance held a lengthy meeting to discuss the situation yesterday, and the trend of thought was in the direction of going to the Dominion Government as the next step with a request for the Government to submit a stated case and carry it through if necessary to the Privy Council of the Empire.

Consideration was given to the suggestion of a mass meeting at Massey Hall, but no decision regarding it was made. Dr. N. W. Hoyles presided.

Rev. F. D. Silcox, secretary, produced a large roll of petitions, and stated that the Alliance would soon have an aggregate of 300,000 signatures.

The petitions ask for the submission of a stated case to the courts by the Dominion Government.

The Evangelical Alliance will meet again at an early date at the call of the president.

Shuster's Aides Ignored.

Teheran, Jan. 13.—The treasury crisis has taken an extraordinary turn. Acting under instructions of the Cabinet, M. Mornard, the Belgian ex-director of Persian customs, yesterday summarily took possession of the treasury offices, refusing to recognize the status of F. E. Cairns, the American, who was left in charge of the treasury by W. Morgan Shuster, the deposed treasurer-general, when the latter left Teheran Thursday for the United States.

M. Mornard, in acquainting Mr. Cairns and the other American officials of the Cabinet's message, told them that if there were further delay in turning over the treasury, not only would they be dismissed from their positions, but punished. This procedure is all the more inexplicable as Mr. Cairns has shown no disposition to retard the work of transferring the office to the commission appointed to take over the duties of the treasurer-generalship.

Fire at Kingston.

Kingston, Jan. 13.—With the thermometer 15 below zero the firemen had a lively fire to fight in one of the main business blocks in Princess street yesterday afternoon. Fire broke out in the shoe shop of John Green and it spread so rapidly that he and his wife narrowly escaped. The tobacco store of William McGlade, next door, caught fire. The loss will amount to about $3,000, partly insured.

Robert J. Wright, Labor candidate in Cataraque ward at the municipal election, was defeated by Allan Stroud by three votes and has asked for a recount.

Breaks Record In Michigan.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 13.—Northwestern Michigan yesterday experienced the greatest cold in twenty years. The Government thermometer at Cadillac registers 24 below zero, and at Petosky the mark is 20 below. Unofficial thermometers at Luther register 31 below, while Reed City reports 30 below. At Grand Rapids yesterday the temperature went to 9 below zero.

Aviators Aid Sheriff.

Los Angles, Cal., Jan. 3.—Four aviators, sworn in as deputy sheriffs, flew into the mountain country around Calabasas yesterday in search of the two men who wounded a deputy sheriff in a fight at San Fernando Wednesday and escaped.

The aviators, Glen Martin, Howard Gill, Philip Parmalee and Clifford Turpin, agreed to seek the fugitives, as automobiles could not follow them.

MR. D. V. SINCLAIR DISCUSSES THE CITY'S GAS DEPARTMENT

He Defends His Action as Chairman of the Gas Committee Several Years Ago—And Contends that Large Additional Storage Capacity is Necessary

To the Editor of The Intelligencer.

To one who has always been interested in our city Gas Plant, it is really refreshing to hear Mayor Vermilyea in his inaugural address refer to the Gas Department and suggest "an active canvass of the city for the more general use of city gas."

Now, Mr. Editor, if you will allow me space, I propose to discuss this very important civic department, in which Belleville has invested about one hundred thousand dollars, and when I am through I will ask your readesr to judge for themselves as between the early and the more recent management of the Belleville Gas Department. Time and again your paper has recorded many uncomplimentary remarks made by members of the City Council and aspirants thereto, reflecting on Belleville's first Gas Committee, of which I happened to be chairman, and one of the most serious charges made was that the Committee let a contract for the building of a new gas holder to a local company because their's was the lowest tender received, which contract was afterwards cancelled because it was given to a local company, and not because Belleville did not require the new gas holder, as I will show

Now, just here, let me revert to a little of the early history of the Belleville Gas Plant, which you will recall was purchased for 7c. on the dolar, and that only by a small majority vote of the rate-payers, the majority of our citizens believing that the city had purchased a 'white elephant,' and this opinion was shared by a majority of our City Council. There was no rush for seats on the Gas Committee in those days, and the writer resigned another chairmanship to take that of the Gas Committee, because no other man in the Council would take the Chairmanship of Gas.

In those days every advance made in the development of the Gas Department was made in spite of a united opposition on the part of the Council, many of the members of which "knew the Gas Department would never pay." But it did.

I need hardly remind your readers that when the Gas Works were taken over by the City only three wards, namely Samson, Ketcheson and Baldwin, had a gas service and the total output of gas by the old company was only about eight millions of cubic feet per annum.

Knowing that the Gas Works could never be made a success unless greatly enlarged and made to serve the whole city, Belleville's first Gas Committee made enquiries from other cities and towns of our size and learning that three million feet of gas per thousand of the population was about the average consumption, and the Committee having faith in Belleville's future, at once set to work to equip a plant that would produce at least thirty million feet of gas per year, the work being supervised by the most expert gas man in America, and with the completion of the works, followed an extension of the mains into every ward in the city in order that every citizen might have that to which he was justly entitled, namely a gas service. The result of this policy was that in three years time the consumption of gas was doubled, and there it has practically remained for the past five years.

Now while Mayor Vermilyea suggests a canvass of the city for the more general use of gas, I believe that almost any merchant on Front street or any housewife in Belleville who uses gas for cooking purposes, can tell the Gas Committee that they cannot now give satisfactory delivery of gas to their present customers apart from the suggestion of increased consumers, and what would it mean if Belleville consumed 30,000,000 feet of gas per year, as she would have done ere this if the Gas Department had been properly managed. As compared to other places to which I shall refer shortly, Belleville should consume thirty million cubic feet of gas per annum, and Belleville's first Gas Committee believed this and provided for this in the erection of the present Gas Works.

Now, Mr. Editor, my contention is this: If the citizens in general were given an opportunity to use gas for lighting and cooking purposes, and gas is cheaper than coal or pine blocks for cooking, we would soon use gas in quantities equal to other places of our size. But, sir, while we have the works to produce the gas, and people to use the gas, we have not the holder capacity to deliver the gas we should produce.

Does any man with common sense suppose for a moment that the same gas holder that served the old Belleville Gas Co., when making only half the gas we now make, is sufficient holder capacity to serve the city now, to say nothing of how inadequate it would be if we consumed 30,000,000 cubic feet of gas per annum, as we should do and would do if our Gas Committee would realize the possibilities of their Department.

The following figures will help your readers to understand why an optimistic Gas Committee thought it wise some years ago to let a contract for a new gas holder and these same figures may help this year's Council to see that the need to-day is greater than ever, for the success of our Gas works depends upon its ability to deliver the goods.

In the year 1911—

Belleville consumed 17,800,000 feet of gas, our holder capacity being 40,000 cubic feet.

Brockville consumed 36,832,000 feet of gas, with holder capacity of 91,000 cubic feet.

Berlin consumed 28,7000,000 feet of gas with a holder capacity of 90,000 cubic feet.

Woodstock consumed 30,000,000 feet of gas with a holder capacity of 180,000 cubic feet.

Kingston consumed 46,000,000 feet of gas with a holder capacity of 180,000 cubic feet.

I might add that our Gas Works is modelled after Woodstock's, but Woodstock, having an eye to future business has one of the finest gas holders in Canada.

Now, sir, I think these figures should help our City Council to see the great possibilities of the Gas Department, if worked out along the lines suggested by Mayor Vermilyea, and Iam also equally sure that a comparison of these figures will help our gas consumers to understand why the gas delivery is so very unsatisfactory

In closing, allow me to make two predictions—the first is a note of warning and the second by way of encouragement. 1st—I predict that unless our gas service is greatly improved, there will not be a store on Front street lighted with gas in two years' time. 2nd—That 30,000,000 feet of gas sold to our citizens at $1.00 per thousand will make a better showing at the end of the year than that now made by our Gas Department.

Mr. Editor, you will pardon the length at which I have written, as this is the first time I have spoken in five years on this subject, and I feel my writing at this time is entirely in the city's interests, and at the same time in self defence.

Respectfully yours,
D. V. SINCLAIR.

GRANT OF $18,000 FOR ONTARIO SEED

General Co-Operation With Province by New Dominion Government

That a new era of advance is dawning for the agricultural interests of Ontario is evidenced by the splendid support which is being given to the Department of Agriculture by both Federal and Provincial Governments. The most encouraging feature to the Ontario farmer to-day is the knowledge of a Government at Ottawa in harmony with the progressive agricultural interests of this Province.

This co-operation has already resulted in the granting to Ontario this week of $18,000 for the Standing Field Crop and Seed Fair Competition, the appropriation being the largest for any provincial branch of agriculture in Canada or any other agricultural country.

The scheme by which this grant is possible was designed by Hon. Martin Burrell the Federal Minister of Agriculture, in an effort to encourage the farmers in the production of more excellent crops and in the raising of the grain standard in the different Provinces of the Dominion.

This branch of the work began in 1907, when a Government grant of $1,000 was made toward the offering of prizes, for the best standing field crop and the best assortment of seed grains in a Province. Ten societies entered the contest on that occasion, in 1908 the grant was raised to $3,000, and the following year to $7,000. The maximum grant of $7,500 was reached in 1911, when 104 societies, including 1,800 farmers, competed at the fairs.

The plan of Mr. Burrell embraces the granting by the Federal Government of an amount not exceeding two-thirds of the cash prizes given by the agricultural societies. Seventy-five dollars is to be paid to each standing field crop competition and $600 to Provincial fairs.

Since arrangements have been made for the holding of two Provincial seed fairs, at Guelph and Ottawa at the same time as the winter fairs, and $600 in prizes will be given at each place. Of this amount the Federal Government will advance $800 and the Province $400.

The Provincial grants are based on the acreage under cultivation, and must not exceed $10,000 to any one Province. At the rate of $1,000 to every million acres of cultivated land Ontario claims this year the maximum garnt of $10,000. In addition to these grants the Canadian National Exhibition has offered $500 to the best exhibit of prize-winning grain and sheaves.

The present inducements to agriculture are all the more appreciated when the neglect of Ontario and Manitoba in 1907 and 1908 is remembered. During these years when Hon. Sydney Fisher held the Federal portfolio of Agriculture, certain Provinces received assistance in the appointment of judges, and the printing of prize-lists to the extent of $10,000, but to Ontario and Manitoba these privileges were persistently denied.

MUSIC and DRAMA

Music lovers of Belleville who remained at home missed a rare treat in not hearing Miss Eva Mylott, the Australian songstress, who appeared at Griffin's Opera House last evening before a small but appreciative audience. As a contralto Miss Mylott is one of the best to visit this city, her superb voice, always under control, captivating all who heard her. Rich and full were the clear notes that carried the dozen or more selections, each faultlessly rendered. Her range of voice is beyond the average, strong and far-reaching, or soft and tender as occasion required, the rounded finish to every note being technically perfect. Miss Mylott is of prepossessing appearance, garceful in action; there being a pleasing absence of affectation and unnecessary gesture. The simplest melody was beautified, the most intricate performed in a manner that evidenced a thoroughly trained voice. "Will o' the Wisp," "Charity," "In the Time of Roses," and "Home, Sweet Home" were among her most pleasing renditions. Should the fair vocalist again visit our city we are sure the audience will be much larger.

WASTED AWAY TO A SHADOW

"Fruit-a-tives" cured me after 12 years Suffering

HULL, QUE. Dec. 24th. 1910.

"For the past twelve years, I had painful attacks of Dyspepsia. Finally, in March 1908, I suffered such tortures that I was compelled to stay in bed. I could not digest my food and everything I ate caused the most agonizing pain in my stomach. I also had a fearful attack of Constipation, and at times I had no movement of the bowels for two weeks.

Three doctors attended me for two years and gave me all kinds of medicine but did me no good. My weight came down to only 80 pounds and everyone thought I was going to die. Finally I had the good fortune to buy 'Fruit-a-tives' and as soon as I began to take them, I felt better. I persisted in the treatment and to my great joy and to the astonishment of my friends, I improved.

Now I feel very well, weigh 115 pounds (and this is more than I ever weighed, even before my illness) I attribute my cure solely to 'Fruit-a-tives'."

INSANE NEGRO WAS SUBDUED

Killed Two Men and Held Sheriff's Posse Off for Five Hours

ROCHESTER, Jan 12.—Lurking in the cellar of a rambling brick house near Scottsville, 12 miles south of Rochester, William Twyman, a rum-crazed negro, twice a murderer within a few hours, held at bay for five hours the sheriff of Monroe county and his deputies, a detachment of the national guard and nearly every able bodied man in that section of the country, and surrendered later only on the assurance of another man of his race that that no violence would be done him if he gave up.

His surrender followed on the heels of the arrival of the Rochester division of the state naval militia with a one-pounder cannon, which they were about to train on the house.

Above him as he fought, in the front room of the house the body of his aged father whom he had murdered lay in a litter of alcohol and gin bottles and scarcely a rod from the side of the house throughout the greater patr of the siege, the huddled body of Deputy Sheriff Simon W. Bermingham lay where he fell, with a hole through his forehead from a bullet from the negro's rifle. Deputy Sheriffs Herbert M. Abbott and Edward A. Jenkins and a villager, William L. Vogt, were wounded by Twyman's fire.

Twyman has been known as a "bad man" for years. He was a hunter and a dead shot with a rifle, shotgun or revolver. Tuesday he was acting strangely and the Scottsville negroes of whom there are several hundred, scattered throughout the town of Wheatland, had been fighting shy of Twyman as his proclivities in the shooting line were well known and he had figured in half a dozen gun scrapes.

Early in the morning one of the colored families of the village was aroused by the smashing of a window of their home and a request from Twyman for admittance. This was refused and he went down the street to the home of James L. Cox. Mr. Cox came to his door and Twyman stepped inside. He held his right hand suspiciously in his pocket and Cox feared the man had a revolver.

Twyman is alleged to have asked Cox to come over to the house and help him haul out the body of Turner Twyman, his father, whom he said he had murdered.

Cox grappled with the negro and managed to get him out of the house. Twyman fired a shot through Cox's door and shambled down the street, smashing windows and firing shots at intervals. He finally took refuge in the brick house and only surrendered as stated above on assurance that no violence would be offered him.

There were cries of "Lynch him!" when the negro surrendered, but a cordon of soldiers and police was thrown about the murderer. He was rushed to Rochester in an automobile and lodged in the county jail.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BOXING

BOXING SQUABBLE.

That J. J. Corbett does not intend to allow Jack Johnson to get away with his statement anent "faking," etc., made against the ex-champion is evident from the following letter:

Sporting Editor of The Toronto News

It is not my desire to encroach on your valuable space but in view of the ridiculous charges made against me by Jack Johnson, and widely circulated through the medium of the press, a few words from me may interest your readers.

In my weekly sporting letter of January 6, published in a number of the leading newspapers of the country, I called attention to Johnson's stalling tactics. I pointed out that he was using every possible means of dodging a match with either McVey, Jeannette or Langford, each of whom has repeatedly challenged, and whose record in the ring entitles him to a contest for the championship.

I stated exactly what I believe to be true, and in signing to fight Jim Flynn at "some unknown town in Nevada some day next July," Johnson has made it evident he wants easier game than any one of the three above mentioned. Furthermore he has done what I predicted he would do, i.e., tie himself up in a match with one of the "white hope" brigade, thus postponing indefinitely the proposed match with Sam McVey in Paris.

In questioning Johnson's courage, to which he takes no exception, I am not alone in my views, or the first to do so in the public prints. A number of others entertain the same opinion regarding the lack of that essential quality in the heavyweight champion's make-up.

I do not care to dignify Johnson's absurd charges by replying to them in details here. I have been informed that he has made affidavit to certain accusations. I will be in Chicago within the next few days and will take the necessary legal steps that will give Johnson an opportunity to prove the charges in court. Jas. J. Corbett.

Boston, Jan. 12.

PEDERSEN MATCHED

Arrangements Under Way to Get Dane to Meet Yussif Mahmout the Turk.

Jess Pedersen and his manager, John Moje, have been awakened. They got a jolt when they read a statement in a local paper credited to Frank Gotch, in which the champion said he would bet $20,000 that Yussiff Mahmout can beat Pedersen.

Mr. Moje was around town trying to get some reliable party to hold the sum of $20,000 that he wished to put up in acceptance of Gotch's offer. Mind you, he wants to post the entire sum right away, the affair to be decided as soon as an agreement can be reached.

The amount of the stake that Mr. Moje, who is an earnest man of undoubted sincerity, wished to put up was so appalling that he had great difficulty in getting even an audience. So it is likely he will cut the amount down some.

"Wrestle Mahmout? Why, haven't we been challenging him and all the rest of them: And did we ever get any reply until we saw this" were some of the questions that Mr. Moje slapped out in an excited manner. "It looks to me as if every one of the big fellows are afraid of Pedersen, and I say it in all sincerity because none of them is coming through with an acceptance of our propositions.

"Gotch has been hiding behind Mahmout. I knew that when I first read in the Chicago American some time ago that the Bulgarian has signed up with Gotch and that this would be the scheme. That's all right; we're not kicking about that at all. If by beating Mahmout, we can get a match later with Gotch, all well and good, I say. And that's just what Jess will do, too.

"Now, let Gotch appoint a meeting place here in Chicago, which is central for all of us, and if they are sincere we can reach an agreement in less than no time, so quick it will make their heads swim. Yes, we want the whole bet that Mr. Gotch offered to make Zbysco or anybody else. We'll take every penny of it, but the match must be to a finish. I don't care if it's in private, just so the better man can win."

STIFF LEGGED TIM

Stiff-Legged Tim Land of Australia Can Fight Some. He Gave "Cyclone" Thompson a Good Fight.

Can you imagine a man with a stiff leg being a good boxer and fighter? Tim Land, the Australian middleweight, is handicapped with a stiff leg, and he is not only a good boxer and a rare fighter, but as game as any man that ever entered the arena. There may be other boxers handicapped as Land is, but I never heard of them.

I saw Land in Sydney. He had won 17 battles over the knockout route in the smaller clubs of Sydney and Melbourne, when he was matched with "Cyclone" Thomson by Manager Ted Cowell, representative of Hugh McIntosh. They fought before 7000 fans in the Stadium.

When Covell talked to Land about a match, the boxer told him to get the toughest middleweight he could find.

TIM LAND.

"Try to get Thompson or Papke for me and I'll deliver the goods," he said.

The men were matched for 20 rounds and for 19 they fought like wildcats. Tim more than held his own for 15 rounds, but in the sixteenth Johnny began to get home some terrific short arm jolts to the jaw and he had the game stiff-legged boy wobbling, but could not make him back up an inch. It looked like a draw in the nineteenth, but toward the end Johnny dazed Tim with a hard one to the jaw.

As they came up for the twentieth Thompson landed a hard right swing on Land's jaw, putting him down for the count. As he came to, Tim asked for Covell and said: "Well, I kept my word, didn't I?"

Land demanded a return with Thompson and got it about a month later. He lasted but two rounds. I believe Thompson's first victory worried Land and he lost confidence. Thompson afterwards told me that he never had a harder fight in his life.

CALGARY FOOTBALL

The energy of Calgary is becoming almost phenomenal. The desire of their football team to play for the Dominion honors seems quite natural although a little late to be perfectly seasonable. But the activity in professional baseball circles is remarkable, considering that spring is so far away. It is reported that the manager of the Calgary Bronchos is signing up players right and left, one of the "finds" being a youth of nineteen named Brunstine, who, says a Calgary writer, "has all the earmarks of a veteran."

AFTER THE BANTAMWEIGHT

Al Delmont, who has fought Jimmy Walsh about as often as Jim Barry has mixed with Sam Langford, wants to get the bantamweight belt and has challenged. Johnny Coulon at 116 pounds. Albert is a great little fighter, but he will not be able to make 116 pounds ringside and Johnny Coulon absolutely refuses to make a lower weight for any star.

McGOORTY IN ENGLAND

Eddie McGoorty, Wisconsin middleweight, is in England again this winter, as his manager, Patsy Callahan, has received an invitation to box Jim Sullivan at the National Sporting club.

White Wings

Fig dust put well into the feathers and then sprinkled thickly over them will clean a white wing beautifully. If very dirty the wing should be wrapped up in tissue paper with the fig dust for several days.

POISONER OF A WHOLE FAMILY

Ohio Mother, is Held on Charge of Poisoning Husband and Daughters

LANCASTER, O., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Nancy C. Hall was arrested on an affidavit filed by John D. Cleary, of the Mahoney detective agency, of Columbus, on the charge of poisoning her husband and three daughters on Dec. 12. One of the daughters, Miss Ruth, died that day.

Mrs. Hall is accused of putting poison in pancake flour that she purchased the night before. In the morning the mother was up early, and prepared breakfast for herself and two young girls that boarded at the Hall home. She did not use the flour, it is declared. The eldest daughter prepared the breakkfast for the father, W. G. Hall, and her two sisters, Mary and Ruth. The latter died in the afternoon and the others became ill but recovered.

After the death of the girl, the stomach was sent to the State chemist at Columbus, and it was discovered that death resulted from arsenic poisoning.

The Hall family, including the mother, father, and three sisters, carried more than $2,500 insurance, all of which is declared to be made payable to the mother, who has already received $246 incurance on the death of her daughter, it is alleged.

RAILWAY AND CANAL EXPENDITURE

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The annual report of the Department of Railways and Caanls presented in the Commons this afternoon, and covering the last year of Hon. George P. Graham's administration, shows a total expenditure by the department during the year of no less than $40,180,326, of which $36,301,979 was on railways. The main items of capital expenditure included $23,488,208 on the National Transcontinental, $184,149 on the Hudson Bay Railway, and $227,563 for the Quebec bridge. It is interesting to note that the total Government expenditure on railways in Canada now amounts to the enormous total of $475,489,401, while on canals the total expenditure has been $130,200,470, making a grand total expenditure of $606,000,000. On the other side of the account there has been a total revenue from Government railways of $157,406,587, and from the canals of $14,377,392. On the National Transcontinental Railway the capital expenditure last year was $55,293,999. During the fiscal year the total payments of the railway subsidies were $1,284,892.

The main figures with regard to the operation of Government railways last year shows gross earnings of $10,294,394, with a net profit of $211,515. The Intercolonial Railway working expenses were $9,595,783, with earnings of $9,863,783, a profit of $267,806. It is pointed out, however, that an additional amount of $200,000 was taken out of the revenue at the end of the year and placed to the credit of the fund for renewals. If this extra amount for renewals had not been so taken the net profit for the year would have been nearly half a million.

The deficit on the Prince Edward Island Railway was $86,684, and on the Windsor branch $30,693.

The total traffic through the canals of the Dominion during the season of 1910 amounted to nearly forty-three million tons, an increase of nine and a quarter million tons. It is significant that of a total increase of through freight in the Welland Canal amounting to about three hundred thousand tons Canadian vessels carried over five-sixths of this increase.

DEATH'S CALL

MILLIONAIRE FOR DAY WAS "BUTCH" McDEVIT

Son of Laborer, With $2,500 to Spend Puts Wilkesbarre on Map—How He Did It

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A raw-boned dynamic, carrot-topped stranger, with small, sparkling greenish-gray eyes and a spreading forehead, sprang down the steps of a special train at the Lehigh Valley Railroad station in Jersey City at 6 o'clock this evening.

He gazed about him hungrily and then crooked his finger in the direction of a small, coal black negro, who made one of the surging group about him.

"Hey, you'se 'Smoke' O'Loughlin," he called crisply, "serve me up four taxicabs.—I want wan for me physician, wan for me secretary, wan for me head and wan for me feet. And say, get the kind that pants and jumps when you look at 'em."

John Jay (Butch) McDevitt, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., had arrived in New York to put the final crimp in the $2,500 roll he became possessed of a month ago, when he gave to an opponent the Democratic nomination for county treasurer which had been tendered him as a joke.

John Jay has been everything in this world from third helo to losing candidate for mayor of Wilkesbarre. If you ask him he will tell you he's a "journeyman lunatic."

When the Wilkesbarre wildcat hit the big town this evening after a prodigal day he discovered that he had but $72.40 with which to tickle the ribs of Father Knickerbocker. Therefore he decided to economize right off the reel. He recinded his order for a flotilla of taxis (instead tipped the crew of his 50-mile-an-hour $316 one-way special with one of his few remaining yellow backs) and consented to enter Manhattan via the Hudson tunnels.

But the rest of his programme he refused to modify. He breezed into the Waldorf, whence a suite of rooms had been engaged for him in advance and paid for in advance, at a quarter to 7.

The first persons the "millionaire for a day" encountered in the Thirty-fourth street corridor of the Waldorf was J. Alton Davis and two friends, all attired in evening wear.

"Me name's McDevitt," said the jovial Irishman, slapping Mr. Davis on the back. "I'm doing me best to put Wilkesbarre on the map. I've started out in grand style. Why, man, me train ($316 it cost and, and here's the receipt) beat the Black Diamond Express by a full minute.

"McDevitt, me boy," replied Mr. Davis, "we're proud of you. Welcome to New York's millionaire colony."

"Sure, McDevitt," put in "Fingy" Connors, who happened to be standing nearby. "You're one of us millionaires. But when you get tired smoking them bum millionaire weeds, come to me and I'll give you the right kind of a smoke for a husky lad like you."

McDevitt, accompanied by his secretary, John Lenahan, and his private physician, Dr. Edward A. Sweeney (who is pledged to pay him $5 for every day he's sick) adjourned to his apartments on the fourth floor. Here he posed for a few more photographs and glanced over the pile of letters and telegrams which had already begun to pour in upon him.

"Faith," cried McDevitt, a broad smile overspreading his features, "here's a Socialist who threatens to wallop the life out of me for being a millionaire. Pooh! Throw it in the waste basket, John. I've no time to waste on these workin' folks."

McDevitt had promised to attend the performance of the "Little Millionaire" at George M. Cohan's theatre in the evening, and so the first meal at the Waldorf was of necessity a hasty affair.

"Faith," said McDevitt, scanning the menu which the waiter presented to him. "I'm an American, an Irish-American. I can't read Latin and Greek. But I'll give you $10 for an egg."

A huge platter of scrambled eggs was placed before him, and to the keen enjoyment of scores of nearby diners McDevitt demolished it within five minutes. Then he pushed back his chair and slipped the waiter $5.

"A man of your education ought to be a college president," he told the servitor. "To-morrow I'll give you $10 if I've got it left. Otherwise I'll ask you to lend me a dime to get back home on."

Between the acts at the theatre McDevitt presented George Cohan with a Yankee Doodle brooch made of coal with huge sulphur diamonds sprinkled upon its surface. Later he was the guest of Cohan at a supper party which lasted until almost daylight.

The trip of the miner for a day from Wilkesbarre to the metropolis was one continual whirligig of fun. The whole town of Wilkesbarre turned out to witness the departure of the reverse Argonaut's special at 1.35 p.m. First making sure that green lamps were displayed at both ends of the train, McDevitt mounted the shoulders of two of his loyal supporters and distributed dimes, nickels and pennies to the urchins. Then he delivered the first of a series of brilliant extemporaneous orations:

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the doughty McDevitt, addressing in particular a slender young lady, who proudly confessed that she is his intended, "I am glad you appreciate the fact that I'm spending every d——d cent I have to put Wilkesbarre on the map.

"After the people were good enough to nominate me for Treasurer I was good enough to resign so I could devote my enegries to waking

RAILWAY WRECK.

A rumor became quite freely circulated about the streets this morning that a railway collision had occurred on the line of the G.T.R. at Ernesttown and that a well-known engineer of this city had been killed. The auxiliary from here was sent to the scene of the wreck.
